TONS OF FOOD FOR SURVIVORS

Naval Supply Ship Celtic Hurries on Errand of Mercy

New York, Jan. 1.—The United States supply ship Celtic, which was to have met the returning battleship fleet with holiday cheer, sailed out of New York harbor on an entirely different mission, but without changing a single item of her cargo. She will go direct to Messina with a million and a half of navy rations for the earthquake sufferers.

The idea of changing the Celtic into a relief ship came to her commander, Harry Huse, Wednesday night. It met with the immediate approval of Rear Admiral Goodrich, commandant of the navy yard, who promptly communicated with the department at Washington.

Red tape was cut in a jiffy on the ground of humanity, necessary preparations were hurried at the yard and the Celtic, with Christmas trees still lashed to the mast-heads—it had been designed to make the Celtic the Christmas ship for the fleet—sailed last evening. Her supplies will not be eaten by American sailors, but by suffering survivors of the Italian disaster.

In the face of the overwhelming need of the Italians, the department is considering its own men second; how they will be provided with food is something that will be considered later.

The navy department takes full responsibility for this sudden gift of supplies belonging to the United States government to the Italians without warrant of law. It probably relies upon congress to approve of this evidence of American pluck and the "get-there" qualities of the American navy.

Just as its ships were the first to reach Kingston after the West Indian earthquake disaster, so the American naval flag on the Celtic may be the first to bring actual food supplies to Messina from any country, even though we are 3600 miles away. Certainly the ship has been dispatched to sea in record time—in less than eighteen hours after her captain conceived his humanitarian idea.

It is deemed a feather in the cap of the navy, an achievement which will take its place in the history of the service. The Celtic has in her cargo $150,000 worth of provisions, sufficient food for 50,000 people for one month, $32,000 worth of clothing, tents enough to accommodate 1000 persons and a large quantity of medical and surgical supplies.

According to her orders the Celtic is to proceed first to Gibraltar, which she should reach in twelve days, and where she should receive congress' formal authorization to distribute the government stores to the naked and starving Italians. She will waste no time at Gibraltar, but will simply touch there long enough to get the necessary congressional sanction and will then sail post haste to Messina.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the entertainment, which was followed by dancing until midnight.

NEW YEAR'S EVE DANCE.

A very enjoyable New Year's dancing party was held at Electa hall, Thursday evening by Skandia lodge, Vasa, which was participated in by about fifty couples. Kronstrom's orchestra furnished the music and dancing was in order until 2 o'clock this morning. The committee in charge of the affair were August Nydberg, Fred Erickson, Bert Nelson, John Forsmons and Charles Bastin.

CLAN MCGREGOR PRESENTS ROB ROY

Clan McGregor O. S. C., following out its long established custom of observing the passing of the old and the coming of the new year held its twenty-eighth annual drama and dance at Music hall Thursday evening. These annual parties are always a grand success and that of this year was no exception. The attendance at the drama and dance was fully as large as in previous years and it is hard to see how more could have been accommodated.

Every seat in the hall and balcony was occupied and many were obliged to stand.

The drama this year was one familiar to all Scotchmen and was entitled "Rob Roy." It was presented largely by local talent under the direction of John M. Troupe and William Elrick. Peter Kerr took the character of Rob Roy and his impersonation of it was perfect. Miss Margaret G. Esson, took the principal lady's part, impersonating Diana Vernon. Alexander Cowe impersonated Sir Frederick Vernon and William Elrick made a capital major. It is hardly fair however to single out any particular character and say, "that was the best" for all were equally good although the opportunity for good acting was given those who impersonated the principal parts. Without the good work of the minor characters however their good work would have been greatly marred.

Particular mention should be made however of the singing by Miss Mary Ogilvie as Helen McGregor, of Miss Esson, Mr. Elrick and James S. Whyte who impersonated Francis Osbaldistone. The duet by Miss Esson and Mr. Whyte, the Highland dancing by the McDonald sisters, Alexander D. McDonald the piper was particularly good.

The curtain rose promptly at 7.45 and there were no long waits or hitches. It was a long drama but everything ran very smoothly so that the curtain dropped on the last act on schedule time.

In the cast were:

Sir Frederick Vernon	Alex Cowe
Rashleigh Osbaldistone	John M. Troupe
Francis Osbaldistone	James S. Whyte
Mr. Owen	Francis Morrison
Captain Thornton	John Wedderburn

Diana Vernon	Margaret G. Esson
Martha	Miss Green
Mattie	Mrs. Jennie MacKay
Jean McAlphine	Mrs. Margaret Hall
Hostess	Mrs. Coates
Katty	Mrs. Bishop
Helen MacGregor	Mary Ogilvie

In addition to these there was the usual Highlanders, travellers, Lennox troopers and English soldiers.

The play was over shortly after 10 o'clock and as soon as the floor could be made ready the dance was in order. Wilson's orchestra furnished music for the dancing which was opened with a march and circle led by William G. McDonald the floor director, and Mrs. McDonald, who were followed by nearly one hundred couples.

There was a brief intermission at midnight during which supper was served, in the annex and New Years greetings exchanged. Dancing was then continued until 3 o'clock this morning.

Those in charge of the affair and to whom much credit is due for its success were:

Floor Director, William G. McDonald.

MAYOR THE GUEST OF HONOR

Houghs Neck Associates Install New Officers.

An event long to be remembered by the residents of Houghs Neck took place last night when the officers of the Houghs Neck Associates, incorporated, were installed for the year 1909 at Hotel Pandora.

Mayor Shea was the guest of the evening. He arrived about ten minutes of twelve in company with the newspaper men.

The members of the association began to gather at the hotel at nine o'clock. A splendid entertainment was furnished by George O'Brien. The musical program included John Dempsey, coon shouter and buck and wing dancer, George O'Brien, songs, Wallace Higgins, tenor, Charles O'Brien, songs, Mr. Noonan, daner, William Irwin, pianist, and Walter Proctor, the blind pianist and singer of Everett.

Supper was served shortly after eleven. Arthur J. LaBrecque had charge of the spread and put out a fine Dutch supper. After the supper was over, President Henry W. French said in part: "We are together again. I am pleased to see so many new faces present, last year we had only about forty present this year we have with us over a hundred members present. I would like to review the work that the organization has accomplished during the past year. We were a year ago today a very small band of men, we were only partially organized, tonight we are the strongest improvement organization in the state. We have obtained better car service, better police protection, gas in our houses, gas and electric street lights, the Mayor has watered our streets in the summer time, the Council has treated us fairly, we have a lockup in the basement of the fire station, we are getting our coal at the same price as the people in any other part of Quincy, we have express accommodations during the winter months, an order is in the Council for a site for a school house. The Commissioner of Public Works is looking into the matter of putting a sewer at Houghs Neck we have a lot to be thankful for. The Mayor is the first Mayor that ever recognized us and gave us a fair show." Following brief remarks were made by several of those present.

Mayor Shea then made his appearance having been delayed at a dance in another part of the city. He was greeted with a rousing cheer. When he had taken his place at the head of the table, President French called on him for a few words, the Mayor said, "I am rather late in making my appearance but "better late than never," I was detained at a dance in another section of the city. I am more than pleased to be with you tonight as I always feel at home when here. I came tonight to witness the installation of officers. I hope that the fun will be good. I think that the incoming officers should be made to remember tonight, and Iwill join with you in helping them to. Houghs Neck has always been loyal to me. As Mayor I have done the best I could to please each and every one of you. The president asks me to tell you what I will do for the Neck this year. Well I cannot say, I never make any rash promises. When I came down to you for your votes a little over a year ago I did not make any promises and I will not tonight but will do the best I can. In my inaugural address I have taken care of Houghs Neck all right. The things that Houghs Neck needs most is a sewer, public landing and a schoolhouse. A Brockton contractor approached me the other day and asked me if the city was thinking of putting a school at Houghs Neck. I said yes and he wanted to know if I would consider a bid for the removal of one of the old buildings on the Coddington lot. I told him that he did not know the Houghs Neckers. There is a lot of old school buildings vacant at present in different parts of the city where they are not needed and it seems a shame that there is no school in a section that needs it like this one does. I am in favor of a school house and when you get one it will be a new one. The matter of putting a sewer at the Neck will probably be attended to some time this year. Houghs Neck is the proper place for a public landing and I think that steps will be taken to obtain one this year."

THINK BOY WAS DROWNED.

No trace of Curtis Gould, the five-year-old son of Irving F. Gould of 239 Eliot street, Milton, has been found. Searching parties were out Wednesday dragging Neponset River in the chance that the boy might have fallen in and been drowned. Young Gould was last seen about four o'clock Tuesday afternoon. When he did not come home for supper, his parents became alarmed and started to hunt for him. In this search they were joined by neighbors who looked for the missing boy well into the night. On inquiry from playmates, it was learned that he had last been seen near the river midway between Milton Lower Mills and Mattapan.

Dynamite will be exploded on the river this afternoon in the hopes of raising the body.

PREFERRED A QUIET WEDDING

So Wollaston Couple Make Trip to Providence.

Henry T. Raymond, twenty-nine years old, of 667 Adams street, Wollaston and Marian L. Hatch, twenty-one years old, of Linden avenue, were united in marriage Wednesday at Providence, R. I.

The bride is the daughter of Walter M. Hatch, the wealthy importer of Summer street, Boston. She is a graduate of the High school, class of 1905. After leaving school she studied to be a nurse but gave it up to become her father's private secretary. The groom is in the milk business at Wollaston and owns a fine large farm on Adams street, he is also in the real estate business on a small scale.

The couple had announced their engagement some time ago but fearing the trouble and bother that is usually attached to a home wedding they decided to go to Providence and get married quietly. They attempted to get a marriage license in Boston on Tuesday but they were refused as they were not residents of that city. Leaving the house early Wednesday morning supposingly to go to the Sportsmen's show in Boston, the couple boarded a train and journeyed to Providence where a license was easily obtained. They came home Wednesday night but did not say anything to their parents about what they had done.

The news of their marriage was received with great surprise by society in Wollaston. The mother of the bride received the first news of her daughter's marriage from the newspaper and was greatly surprised although she knew her daughter was to be married soon.

When seen by a Ledger reporter Mrs. Raymond said. "Yes I am married, Henry and I had announced our engagement some time ago but fearing an elaborate wedding we went to Providence and where married quietly.

Walter W. Hatch, the bride's father is away on a business trip to New York and probably does not know anything about his daughter's marriage. The Hatchs reside in a handsome large house at the corner of Lincoln and Highland avenues, Wollaston.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

New Year's eve was observed at the Y. M. C. A., with an informal social time. After the gymnasium classes closed and other routine work was off an enthusiastic crowd of young men gathered about the fire place for a two hours program of music stories, serious thought and resolves.

Refreshments were served at 11.30. At exactly 12 o'clock Mr. Clee appeared on the roof of the building and blew taps on the cornet which sounded out beautifully clear and stirring on the night air. Immediately the whole party who were on the sidewalk gave three rousing cheers for the new year 1909 after which each wished the other a Happy New Year and went to their homes. The year closed with sixty-eight new members received during the four weeks campaign. Further effort will be made to bring the number up to 1 before Jan. 14, when the turkey supper will be held.

A Happy New Year.

Don't forget the new resolutions.

Richard Croaker and Andrew Carnegie, who believe respectively in clean politics and the reduction of import duties, are a good deal more decent than the fellows who never know when they've enough.

With the horror of the San Francisco disaster fresh in our minds , it is not surprising that the citizens of the United States, are doing all in their power to aid the survivors of the disaster in Southern Italy and Sicily.

Through Governor Guild Massachusetts was one of the first states to issue an appeal for aid, and the people are responding nobly. Here in Quincy where there is a large colony of Italians, many of them having relatives in the stricken district, the mayor has issued an urgent appeal for contributions, and it is to be hoped the citizens will make a prompt response.

All contributions will be sent to the state committee and immediately cabled to Italy, so that effective work in relieving the sufferings of the survivors can be rushed.

Every American citizen should read the last report of the Inland Waterways Commission. It contains much information bearing upon the future prosperity of the country. As has been shown recently that the improvement of American roads would result in great increase in the income of the farmer by reducing the cost of transportation of his products to market, so doubtless would the inland waterway improvements be one of the most remarkable economies in transportation that could be effected. It is estimated that if the work of the waterway improvement should be so planned as to involve the expenditure of fifty millions a year for a period of ten years, the net result would save annually not less than two hundred and fifty millions in the cost of transportation; the prevention of flood damage to the extent of one hundred and fifty millions; the saving of twenty-five millions in forest fires and of seventy-five millions in cheapened water power and in increase in farm productiveness of not less than five hundred millions. The figures read like a fairy tale, for the estimate is that there would be a gain in these economies each year that the plan was in working order, of twenty times as much as the original expenditure. One feature of the plan that has been outlined is the impounding of immense reservoirs in different localities. The water impounded here could be used for power purposes and also to regulate the flow of small streams during the dry season, as well as to improve the navigable condition of rivers.

Initial steps have at last been taken to secure a comprehensive and effective system of co-operation fire service for Boston and the nineteen surrounding cities and towns. Under this system it will be possible to send to the scene of a conflagration, or to cover districts where companies have moved up, a force of 95 engines, 125 hose cariages, 40 ladder trucks, 28 chemicals, 35 combination wagons, water towers, and other fire fighting apparatus, together with a force of 5000 trained fire fighters.

It is understood that the plan as contemplated includes a central station in Boston. From this station, direct signal wires will run to the central stations of the fire departments in the nineteen cities and towns included in the scheme. In each of these fire stations a signal box will be located and connected by special wire with the central station in Boston.

Should a conflagration start in Quincy for instance, and get beyond control of the local department the chief could immediately summon the aid needed and the kind of apparatus wanted.

If it was steamers that were needed all that would be necessary would be to put a hand on a dial, pull the hook and instantly the call would be recorded in the Boston central station, and inside of five minutes the steamers would be on their way to Quincy.

A suggestion that a local fireman makes in connection with the proposed cooperative system for sending a steamer or hose wagon to Boston is, that a spur from the street railway tracks on Quincy avenue be run from the yard at the Central Fire station, and that a flat car be kept there at all times ready for immediate use.

In case the apparatus was needed in Boston all that would be necessary would be to run the apparatus onto the car, which could be given the right of way over the street car tracks. This car could be run into Boston much more quickly and easier than by having it drawn over the road by horse power.

As there is a double track all the way from School street to Boston it would not be difficult to give the right of way necessary for the car.

The same scheme could without doubt be worked in several other places, thereby creating an efficient reserve fire department in care of emergency.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

Nineteen young men were killed on the football field this season. Suppose these young men had been killed in the crush attending Sunday school classes, how on earth could we have explained matters?—Beverly Times.

It is going to be Old Home year in Venezuela. Under the Castro regime a great many prominent men were driven into exile by the ruling President, and now that Castro himself is an exile, and not expecting or expected to return, the expatriated Venezuelans are flocking back to their former homes. To these are added the political prisoners who have been in retirement in the jails and fortresses of the republic, men who are quite decent fellows, and good men to live with under a real republic, governed by one who considers himself answerable to the people, whose servant he is. Nobody seems to know just what Castro's plans are, but that they include a return to the country he so signally misgoverned is not believed by any one. Gomez, his successor, assumed office in a dramatic manner that was very near to being tragic, but his courage as well as his executive ability seems to have appealed to the Venezuelans, and no doubt the electorate will endorse him at the proper time.—Lynn Item.

The Boston Journal has called attention to the power of the comma again. Once a misplaced comma gave Boston its famous 11 o'clock license law. Now the lack of a comma where a comma should be gives at least a shadow of reason for fighting over a law intended to be entirely plain. The Journal calls attention to this paragraph: "Whoever operates an automobile or a motorcycle on any public way or private way laid out under authority of law recklessly or while under the influence of liquor, or so as to endanger the lives or safety of the public * * * shall be duly punished."

A comma would fit nicely after the words "laid out under authority of law." Its absence leaves the law to read to apply to anyone operating a machine on a road that has been itself laid out recklessly or by someone under the influence of liquor. The comma in this case may be considered unnecessary if the matter ever comes to a test, but wouldn't it be a good idea for somebody responsible for the printing of Massachusetts laws to take a correspondence course at least in the art of putting commas where they belong?—Brockton Enterprise.

The three millions of Red Cross stamps sold in New England this Christmas mean $30,000 to fight tuberculosis. Then there is the sale of the stamps throughout the country to add to this New England popular contribution to the good cause. Put the totals together and there will be a splendid sum. The response that came to the appeal for purchase of the stamps indicates the kindly disposition on the part of the public, a disposition to assist in a great work even if the contribution be comparatively small. Probably a very large proportion of the stamps were not used but were placed away as a proof positive that one had contributed to a good cause, or, it may be, the stamps were thrown into the waste basket as soon as bought, the purpose of the purchase having been reached when the money contribution was made. Whatever the disposal of the stamps by the purchasers, the spirit actuating the purchase was commendable, and the combined results very satisfactory. It is remarable what a spontaneous movement of this sort can accomplish even when the individual contributions be extremely small—perhaps not more than five cents each—when the scheme "gets a run" on the popular fancy. Now that the Red Cross society has determined to continue the sale of the stamps, the receipts must necessarily be smaller, but the society may still count upon receiving a large amount in the aggregate.—Barre Times.

THOUSANDS STARVING IN STREETS

Lives of Quake Survivors In Jeopardy

RELIEF IS OBSTRUCTED

Report That Lipari Islands Have Disappeared

MEANS 28,000 MORE DEATHS

Hovoc of Earthquakes Not Confined to the Coast

Rome, Jan. 1.—Estimates of the death roll of the earthquake now cease to concern the Italian people.

It is enough to know that the catastrophe is overwhelming.

Figures would add nothing to the grief of the stricken nation, nor move to greater efforts those upon whom the work of relief and rescue has fallen.

Every channel open to the government has been utilized to this end and other nations have been quick to come to its assistance, even before the cry for aid went up.

Shiploads of fugitives have been carried out of the stricken zone to Naples, Palermo, Catania and other ports, and, according to the minister of marine, rescue vessels to the number of thirty-six and now centered in the Strait of Messina and 5000 soldiers are being landed on the two coasts.

Thousands Are Starving

Most imprtant of all now is the question of the living.

Thousands of those who escaped the falling walls and the sweep of the tide are starving and without clothes or shelter. They can scarcely long survive their sufferings.

The first thought has been to carry food and covering for these helpless people and it has now been decided by the government to send a fleet of emigrant steamers to transport them to other places.

The latest reports received at Rome say that there have been many intermittent shocks after the first to which the greater part of the destruction is attributed.

The British warship Minerva reported by wireless to Malta that two severe shocks occurred at Messina last night.

Lipari Islands Wiped Out

The Vita states that a wireless message from the Strait of Messina reports that Lipari Islands, a group of volcanic islands in the Mediterranean near the coast of Sicily, have disappeared.

The total population of the group numbers 28,000 and must inevitably have perished.

The minister of marine has rushed a torpedo boat to ascertain the facts.

The Liparian Islands lie to the north of the northeastern section of the island of Sicily. The group consists of numerous islands, the seven principal ones being Stromboli, Panaria, Salina, Lipari, Vuncano, Fliicuni and Alicudi. The group is part of the province of Messina.

The climate is highly salubrious and the land is well cultivated and yields grapes, cotton and olives. The islands also are known as the Aeolian Isands, and here, according to the fable, Aeolus held the winds imprisoned in the caverns and released them at his pleasure.

Forty-two Shocks

Professor Ricco, director of the observatory at Mount Etna, states that his instruments recorded forty-two distinct shocks after the first, but during the last thirteen hours they have been almost motionless. Etna and Stromboli are now quiet, and he is certain that the earthquake was not of volcanic, but geological origin, similar to that of 1785.

Lloyd C. Griscom, the American ambassador, will leave here tomorrow and will proceed to Messina and other places in the south on an Italian warship in search of information concerning missing American travelers. It has been found impossible to obtain tidings of the hundreds of foreigners, supposed to have been in the zone, about whom inquiries have been made to the government and the various embassies.

Death List Estimates

The horror of the situation at Messina and Reggio grows with every fresh dispatch. One of the correspondents places the death roll throughout the entire territory as high as 300,000, but this appears to be extreme. Others make their outside estimate 200,000, but the official estimate, as made by the minister of marine, still holds to 115,000.

Relief expenditions which have been making their way to Reggio have encountered tremendous obstructions all along the route.

They report 18 provincial villages besides those already mentioned in Calabria as having been completely ruined. Havoc was not confined to the coast. What has become of the inhabitants of these villages is not known. Those that were left alive after the destruction of their homes doubtless joined the great army of refugees seeking safety or have fallen by the wayside.

Coast Twisted For Thirty Miles

The Calabrian coast for thirty miles has been torn and twisted. From Bagnara to Reggio, a distance of twenty-five miles, it is half demolished. Assistance has reached but few of these places and they are practically without supplies of any kind.

At Bagnara surgical operations are being performed with pruning knives, but at Reggio even that is impossible.

Bands of thieves infest the country and the despair of the unaided villages is complete. Hunger supplies the motive for scenes of shocking violence, and pillagers and robbers defy the few surviving policemen and soldiers.

SKIPS OUT OF NEW YORK

Washington Life Insurance Company Leaves by Night With Funds

New York, Jan. 1.—Empty offices at 141 Broadway greeted the clerks of the Washington Life Insurance company when they reported for duty Thursday and a notice informed them that overnight the books and papers of the concern had been shipped to Pittsburg, to the Pittsburg Life and Trust company, which purchased the controlling interest in the company from Thomas F. Ryan and Levi P. Morton last fall. Envelopes containing their usual salaries were handed the clerks as they came in.

If the removal of the company was astonishing to the employes of the Washington Life, it was more so to State Superintendent of Insurance Kelsey, who had not been informed of the plans of the company.

When asked whether it was legal for the Washington Life to turn over its affairs without consulting the state insurance department, Kelsey said it was a disputed point, and one which the new attorney general, whose term begins today, would have to decide.

FORAKER PASSES FROM PUBLIC LIFE

Burton Will Succeed Him as Senator From Ohio

Columbus, O., Jan. 1.—Every vestige of opposition to his nomination having disappeared, Representative Theodore E. Burton of Cleveland, a prominent figure in the lower branch of congress for the last twenty years, will be chosen by acclamation for the United States senate to succeed Joseph B. Foraker at a Republican caucus called for Saturday afternoon.

C. P. Taft of Cincinnati, a brother of the president-elect, formally announced his withdrawal from the race. Then Senator Foraker, learning that the delegation from his home county of Hamilton, pledged to Taft, would be turned over to Burton, admitted that he could no longer hope for a re-election. Within two hours all of the "favorite sons" and "dark horses" had quit the field and Burton was left alone.

Mr. Burton's election will come on Jan. 12. He will serve out his congressional term, ending March 4. The developments mark the passing from public life of one of the most notable of the older leaders in the senate—Joseph B. Foraker.

PROSPEROUS YEAR AHEAD

Closing Months of 1908 Showed Remarkable Recovery From Panic

New York, Jan. 1.—Hopeful financial and commercial conditions for the year 1909 are glowingly predicted in R. G. Dun & Co.'s annual review of trade conditions, which appears in the New Year's number of Dun's review. The review asserts that the recuperative powers shown by the Wall street interests during the year just ended "were beyond the hopes of the most sanguine."

But while the figures for the early part of the year made a poor showing as compared with the corresponding part of the preceding year, "the closing months," says the review, "marked a recovery so great that in many cases there was improvement over 1906."

Wiley Not to Resign

Baltimore, Jan. 1.—Dr. H. W. Wiley of the bureau of chemistry, department of agriculture, in an interview declared that rumors that he is to resign and that there is friction between President Roosevelt and himself are both entirely without foundation.

Death List May Reach Sixty

Bluefield, W. Va., Jan. 1.—Forty-eight bodies have been recovered from the ill-fated Lick Branch colliery, in which an explosion occurred last Tuesday. There is scarcely any doubt but that the dead will reach sixty.

Will Be Searching Inquiry

Washington, Jan. 1.—That the proposed inquiry by the senate committee on appropriations into the methods of the secret service will be very searching and comprehensive is definitely and authoritively stated.

HAD TO SUMMON HELP

Maine Village Has a $150,000 In Its Business Section

Skowhegan, Me., Jan. 1.—A large part of the business section of this village was threatened early today by a fire which started in the Gould block on Water street and spread to a number of stores along that street.

Help was summoned from Waterville when it was found that the blaze could not be confined to the Gould building.

At 3 o'clock two business buildings had been destroyed and the occupants of all the stores between those buildings and the point where the Maine Central railroad crosses Water street removed their goods to places of safety.

The fire was not under control until a loss of $150,000 had been sustained.

Parents of Thornton Hains Give Testimony on Witness Stand

Flushing, N. Y., Jan. 1.—General Peter C. Hains and his wife, Mrs. Virginia P. Hains, parents of Thornton J. Hains, were witnesses in their son's behalf Thursday and their testimony brought out in detail the relationship between Mrs. Claudia Hains and William E. Annis, which caused the estrangement of Captain Hains and his wife.

General Hains declared that in his presence, and before his two sons, Peter and Thornton Hains, the captain's wife, Claudia Hains, made a full confession of misconduct and that subsequently Captain Hains manifested such poignant grief from the disclosures that his mental condition became affected.

ERB RUSHED AT WIFE

Was Disarmed and Shot Down by His Sister-in-Law

Media, Pa., Jan. 1.—The testimony of Thursday in the Erb trial revealed little that has not been published about the slain man's domestic woes.

That Mrs. Erb took offense at her husband for calling her "vile names," had thrown things at him during a quarrel on the night of the tragedy, and then summoned her sister to protect her, was testified by witnesses.

After Mrs. Beisel's arrival at the house Erb came from his room, pistol in hand, and was about to rush at his wife when her sister disarmed and shot him, the jury was informed.

No pension will be allowed to a person who has "habitually refused to work," and "all who have been brought into a position to apply for a pension through his or her wilful acts of misbehavior" are barred from the benefits of the act. There are other restrictions to the application of the act to the aged poor, but the foregoing are the principal provisions of the law.

GLOUCESTER'S DEATH ROLL FOR 1908

Sixty Two Fishermen Lost Their Lives While at Sea

Boston, Jan. 1.—The annual statistics of the Gloucester fishermen show that six hundred fishermen of the old seaport lost their lives during the present year and six vessels, valued at $74,000, were lost and became a total loss. The death roll is somewhat larger than former years.

Eleven fishermen were washed overboard, nine were drowned by the capsizing of dories, twelve were drowned by vessels being run down by steamers, nine by the foundering of craft at sea, and the remainder met death in various other ways. Seventy dead left fourteen widows and forty-six children.

OVERCOME WITH GRIEF

Death of Young Girl Followed Suicide of Her Parents

New York, Jan. 1.—Unable to endure the thought of spending their declining years alone and without the cheering presence of a daughter whom they both shipped Professor J. P. Gordon, New York University and his wife committed suicide a few hours after the death of their daughter.

The girl, who was 18 years old, had been suffering for weeks from pneumonia. After giving way to their grief for nearly two hours after her death the parents of the young woman appeared to grow more resigned and the physician and two trained nurses left, feeling that nothing they could do would comfort the couple.

The two then retired to their apartments and, getting into bed, emptied the contents of three bottles of chloroform on the pillow between them. Two hours later they were found clasped in each others arms and both dead.

Mrs. Henry is not expected to live. She says that before the shooting her husband accused her of infidelity.

Henry was 40 years old. He had seen service in China and the Philippines during his fifteen years in the army. Mrs. Henry is 33 years old. The couple have two daughters, aged 5 and 3 years respectively, besides the latest born.

This is an increase of $10,000 above the original bail and was decided upon by Judge Schofield of the superior criminal court, before whom King was recently tried.

It is said that King may have an opportunity of raising the required amount. Schofield has given his attorney until Saturday noon. If at that time King is unable to furnish the required bail he will be committed.

CHINA BUYS $30,000,000

Projected Extension of Pekin-Hankow Road From Belgium

—Belgium has relinquished its Pekin-Hankow railroad to China upon the payment of the subscription price, about $30,000,000 to the Paris and London. China will at once dispense with the foreign employees of the road, retaining only the resulting engineers.

China's initial success in constructing and operating the Pekin-Kalgan railroad has created general confidence in her ability to take over and operate other foreign built railroads as they become redeemable.

A Romance of The Year's End

By Howard Fielding.

[Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.]

If you had been able to look into Henry Clifford's rooms upon a certain evening as if they were a scene set on a stage and he an actor, you would have said to yourself, "What is the matter with this fellow?"

He was engaged in packing his belongings in spasmodic bursts of hurry, and often he would stand stock still and set his teeth very hard and pull himself together in the manner of a man who fights against a prostrating illness or a racking pain. You would have felt sure that he was forcing himself through this task, which must be done within a very brief time, for he kept looking at his watch, and the sight of it always seemed to increase his distress and his hurry.

Now, the facts are that there was not a healthier young man in ten miles' radius, that he suffered no physical pain whatever and that he had a superfluity of time for what he was doing. It was the evening of Friday, Dec. 31, and Clifford was to leave his rooms on the following Wednesday and sail on Thursday. Meanwhile he had scarcely anything to do except the remainder of his packing, a few hours' work in all.

Take another look at the man, and then I will let you into the secret. You will observe that he is a strong, rugged, masculine creature, with a handsome but somewhat stern countenance, keen gray eyes, plenty of nose and a firm jaw—an attractive fellow, not unamiable, but very hard to move. He is an expert in steel work, especially bridge building, and his appearance fits his calling.

This is what had happened to him: In the early part of the preceding summer he made the acquaintance of Miss Dorothy Leland at her father's country house on the north shore, and he had fallen in love with her.

He addressed himself to Dorothy's father, who admired the young man extremely and willingly gave him leave to try his fortune. Then, with a sense of hazard that might have paralyzed a weaker man, with cold fear in the marrow of his bones and a consuming fire in his blood, but outwardly as steady as iron, he offered his hand and heart to Dorothy.

The girl had seen this coming, and yet she was surprised. It was too soon. She was almost angry with Clifford, as if he had been guilty of a rudeness. He had spoiled the fun.

The sense of justice in man is replaced in woman by the punishing instinct. A true woman will punish even an inanimate object if it hurts her. If you have seen a little girl stumble on the stairs and then stand and make faces at the stair carpet you have the material for a considerable knowledge of the sex.

Only one circumstance saved Clifford from a direct refusal—that he showed in his avowal the capacity for doing precisely what he had thus far conspicuously neglected. He really did introduce the subject, and for half an hour he was a wooer, speaking of nothing in particular, but with a thrill images of beauty rose unsought to his lips, surprising and exciting his own heart; he sang a sort of wordless song to her, and all the meaning was in his eyes. What he said was mere fancy, mere picture, a direct emotional appeal, and if he had gone on like that for half an hour more he might have won an acceptance. But suddenly his intellect awoke and felt itself neglected. It intruded awkwardly where it had no business, and it wrecked the scene. He began to speak straight out rationally about marriage and his status in the world and all the cold conventionalities. Thirty minutes at least these matters should have been postponed, but Clifford did not know it.

Dorothy was furious—as she herself would have expressed it. Her wrath when he began to speak ordinary, colorless words out of the dictionary was directly proportionate to the pleasure she had had in the bird song prelude; but, of course, she couldn't tell him to go back and do it over again. He should have known it; he must be punished.

"No," she said, rising. "No, I cannot listen."

"That is your answer?" said he.

"I have not answered you at all," said Dorothy. "I am not prepared for either question or answer. Let us not speak of it."

"I have spoken," said he sadly. "If you have not answered, I can only wait."

"Yes," she said, "wait. We have been friends. Let us go on as before. But you must not speak to me of this."

"The question must remain," he said, with a touch of firmness. "It would not be right, it would not be honest, to ignore it."

"Let it be so," said she, "and I will answer"—

"When?"

"Within the year," said she, and looked for him to plead for a much briefer time, but he said gravely:

"Within this year?" And she answered, "Yes."

The absurd fellow accepted these terms as if his honor were in pledge for their fulfillment. They met as friends thereafter, and Clifford was often very charming and lovable, but his lips were sealed. There were times when Dorothy could have beaten him.

He was aware in his foolish way of her displeasure, and he read his doom in it. The days passed, and she gave him no answer, and of course he didn't ask her for it. He didn't know enough. He relied upon her promise (the idiot!) to answer him within the year, and now it was half past 10 on the evening of the 31st of December, and she had not answered!

He could not believe that she would be false to her promise, but he had long since ceased to have the smallest hope of any favorable word. Within the last month he had seen her rarely; within the last week he had decided that he would go away. He had resigned his position with the bridge company and was considering several offers of work in the far parts of the earth. An agent of the British government had offered him especial inducements to go to Pretoria for a year, and he viewed the proposition favorably because the place was so remote. He had, in fact, accepted, with the single proviso that he should be permitted to change his mind at any moment within the year.

Several times during that last evening he had resolved to telephone to Sir James Knowlton, the English representative in this negotiation, that he might consider the matter settled, and then he had clung to the dwindling possibility that Dorothy might yet communicate with him.

At half past 10 he had a foolish idea. Perhaps Dorothy had sent some word and he had not received it. Would it be a breach of his word to ask her? He sat with his head in his hands and debated this question, and at last, like a dull, dishonest schoolboy who knows the answer of the problem and shapes his figuring to fit it, Clifford shaped his reasoning to suit his desire and dragged himself to the telephone.

Dorothy did not give him any time to ask her anything; she had her own way with the conversation.

"What are you doing?" she asked. "Nothing? You're all alone? Well, that won't do at all on New Year's eve. Come right over here. Father is entertaining a few sedate graybeards, and no one is entertaining me. If I had dreamed that you were disengaged I should have summoned you."

That was very friendly—far, far too much so. A young lady who felt herself bound to answer a young man's offer of marriage within an hour and a half would hardly address him in a style so unconstrained. The inevitable inference was that Dorothy considered the matter settled already, the "no" tacitly given and understood, the love episode at an end.

It is said that a poet has died young in every one of us. He was not quite dead in Clifford, and he was a really able bard. Dorothy had heard him sing once; she was now to hear him sing again, and in a most moving strain.

Clifford's mood was ideal for the performance, and his theme, the exile's farewell, has always been a favorite. Moreover, he had the advantage of unveiling a complete surprise, and Dorothy listened with a feeling of great grief and loss that did not lack an element of pleasure.

Clifford said not a word about her part in this upheaval of his life. The cause of his expatriation seemed to lie with the gods, like the issues of Greek tragedy, though th... and some other eart... nified the tale with t... could not escape the... Clifford glanced at the clock.

"Can you not guess?"

"What!" she cried, as if surprised. "You were waiting for my answer, and you did not tell me?"

"Tell you, Dorothy?" he echoed. "How could I tell you? I had promised you not to speak"—

"Oh, man, will you never learn women? I have waited for you in pale wrath—waited for you weeks and months."

"Dorothy!" he gasped. "It is not possible. Is this—is this your answer?"

"Where is that man?" she asked.

"Sir James?"

"Yes."

"At the Army and Navy club. He will wait there till midnight. On the stroke of 12 our bargain is closed."

"Call him up! Tell him you are not going."

She slipped away from him and led the way to the telephone. He called the number. Interminable seconds passed.

"Busy," said central.

He waited one minute by his watch and called again. "Busy." Another minute and another. The same answer. Then suddenly both he and she fell into a listening attitude, looking into each other's eyes. From outside the house, from the rivers that surround the city, there came a great and growing drone of whistles, the greeting to the new year.

"My watch is slow," said he. "I am too late."

He hung up the receiver of the telephone and turned toward Dorothy. He was very pale.

"I shall be gone a year," he said. "Will you wait for me?"

"No," she answered. "I will go with you."

The next step in this controversy will be the taking of evidence before the congressional committee.

Some kind friends saw to it that the office of Mayor Shea at City Hall was prettily decorated for new years day. Over his desk was a sign reading "Happy New Year." About this was draped two handsome silk flags. From the chandelier there was suspended a a wreath of green. This was not all, for the decorators had suspended a piece of decoration, called mistletoe over the door leading to his office. HIGBEE OF HARVARD ONE LONG LAUGH

Mirth Creating Comedy Pleases Large Audience.

"Higbee of Harvard" a three act play by Charles Townsend, was presented by the A. Isabelle Davis Dramatic club, before an audience which filled every seat in Colonial hall, Thursday evening. And a jolly good audience it was too, laughing in the right places and fully appreciating the clever work done by the young amateurs.

The play itself is full of mirth provoking incidents, not one of which was overlooked by the actors. As Theodore Dalrymple, better known as "Ted," a Harvard graduate, with plenty of brains, but with little money, John D. Gourlie was the star of the evening. His acting was almost professional in its finish.

Another clever performer was Miss Beatrice Morrison, who took the part of Nancy Withrow. Miss Morrison had a difficult role but carried it through without a hitch. In the last act she was particularly pleasing. Alan Arnold, as the millionaire from Montana and Miss Catherine Saville as Mrs. Malvina Meddigrew, originally from Missouri, were excellent. As the dignified butler, with a temper when needed, Curtis Arnold left nothing to be desired. Ruth Penniman as the sweet tempered aunt, and Minnie Hardwick as Madge Cummings, from Montana, did capital work. Eliot C. Johnson as the blue-blooded senator gave a creditable interpretation.

The whole play reflected much credit upon Mrs. Davis, and she deserves unlimited praise for giving Quincy people such a pleasing entertainment.

The cast was as follows:

Hon. V. D. Withrow, a blue-blooded ex-senator with a tall family tree and a short bank account — Eliot C. Johnson

Nancy Withrow, the senator's daughter. An up to-date, level-headed girl — Beatrice Morrison

Madge Cummings, from Montana. A quiet sort, with temper when needed — Minnie Hardwick

Mrs. Ballou, the senator's sister from New York, who meets her second affinity at the eleventh hour — Ruth Penniman

Mrs. Malvina Meddigrew. Orginally from Missouri. Must always be shown — Catherine Saville

Scene I — Lawn at Withrow's home — Brookline.

Scene II — Drawing-room at Withrows, same evening.

Scene III — A Mining Camp at Montana, five months later.

NEWS OF THE SPORTING WORLD

Brief Items of Interest From All Quarters

High scores were hard to attain yesterday afternoon at the traps of the paleface shooting association at Wellington, over which the final match for the Massachusetts amateur championship was decided as was also the permanent possession of the trophy. A blustering northwest wind interfered with good work by the marksmen.

Charles Comer, secretary of the Palefaces, a Newton man, won the title for 1908, though James McArdle, a Providence shotter, won the match Thursday. Comer won two matches, the first on Nov. 24, when he led the field with a total of 46 out of 50 targets, and again on Dec. 16, when he won out on a shootoff of a 40 tie with Todd of Newburyport. No other shooter has more than one victory to his credit in more than a dozen shots.

McArdle of Providence, the Narragansett gun club shooter, who won today's match with a total of 45 to 42 by Frost of Salem, is the only shooter outside of the Bay state to capture any match for the championship title.

The day's program of 100 targets, which included the match for the Massachusetts championship, started at 2 with a field of 19, among whom were three "pros" who shot for target records only. H. H. Stevens of New York a "pro," led the field with a total breakage of 88. McArdle was second with 83 and Sibley was third with 81.

A New Year at Cote Blanche

...By... Frank H. Sweet.

Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.

EVERY one who is familiar with the customs of the creoles and Acadians of Louisiana knows that New Year's is the most eagerly anticipated and the most important of their festivals.

A religious significance is attached also to the New Year's anniversary. They believe that from day dawn to dark an angel, "l'ange de paix," broods over each household, striving to destroy hatred, malice and all uncharitableness in the heart and to substitute love and forgiveness. If his promptings are obeyed, enemies forgiven and the hand opened wide in charity, that man's sins are wiped off the record, and he starts on a new year with a clean conscience.

For a week before New Year's day the preparations of the "habitans" begin. The house undergoes a thorough scrubbing and cleaning from garret to basement and is whitewashed inside and out. I have an idea the Acadian housekeeper fancies that "l'ange de paix" is going to make a close scrutiny into all her dust corners and hidden receptacles and would be disgusted with a rusty pot or dirty pan.

The hunters go out on a grand "battue" to provide game. If a new dress is possible during the year, it is certain to be made up and worn then.

But in two houses in Cote Blanche these cheerful notes of preparation were unheard. To look at them you would not be likely to perceive a connection between the largest and most comfortable farmhouse in Cote Blanche, the property of rich old Jacques Lefebvre, and the miserable and daubed cabin which stood at the edge of Laverne woods—a cabin with dirt floor and unglazed windows, a home of poverty and illness, where the father and breadwinner, a helpless invalid, watched his pale wife and three children with despairing eyes.

For the first four years all went well with the young couple. Wood had plenty of work, and their home was full of comfort, besides a snug little sum laid up, the nucleus of the fortune he fully expected to accumulate. Then he fell from a scaffold, injured his spine and became what this New Year's eve found him—a helpless invalid.

Their money had all been spent, and at last the day arrived when they had to give up their comfortable home and move to a cabin at the edge of the woods.

Laure eked out a precarious subsistence by spinning and weaving cottonade and raising poultry for the New Orleans market, but this had been a bad year. She had been too sick to work much, and the poultry had the cholera among them. She had not seen her father or mother since her marriage.

She knew her mother too well not to understand that it was the imperious will of the old man which kept her away. He had never mentioned his daughter's name since the night she left his roof, and woe be to the one who inadvertently did so.

The only sign he gave of his remembrance of her was to keep the anniversary of her flight as a solemn fast. There were no fine dinners at the Lefebvre farm New Year's day, no visits to and from old friends, but from morning till night the old man sat moodily within, his only companion the faithful wife.

The two sons, Henri and Claude, took themselves off to pleasanter interiors, and decidedly "l'ange de paix" must have had a weary time wrestling with the evil spirit of that household.

"What a New Year's eve!" sighed poor Laure as she sat by the fire with her youngest child in her arms. She had put the other two early to bed, for her husband had fallen asleep at

"'L'ANGE DE PAIX' HAS CONQUERED!"

He knew that bread was lacking that New Year's eve, and there seemed no means short of begging it.

Six years before that Harry Wood, a handsome young fellow and a skilled mechanic, had come to Cote Blanche.

He easily found work on the large plantations in the neighborhood and seemed to have a career of prosperity before him when he formed an attachment for pretty Laure Lefebvre, the only daughter of the old farmer. But when he asked the father's consent a terrific storm was raised in that household.

"Aha!" cried the old man furiously. "You t'ink I give my Laure to you—you, a stranger, a 'vaurien American,' no farm, no cattle, no money, no not'in'? You want to mak' a Protestant of her, hein? You want her 'dot,' her land, her cattle, and, you get dem, den you run avay and leave her. Maybe you got two wifes where you come from. Non, monsieur; you touch not ze money of ole Jacques Lefebvre. Laure shall spik to you no more."

But Laure, being a willful, spoiled young damsel, did see him and speak to him again and refused positively to give him up.

Had her father been kind in his refusal it is probable the child, for she was only sixteen, would have been obedient. But he was harsh and abusive and from having been foolishly indulgent became so stern that her home was not a pleasant one. The poor mother, weary of standing between the two, one day after an outburst said to her daughter:

"Laure, he is getting worse and worse. I think he is going crazy, and you must either give up Harry or marry him and go off."

As she gazed in the fire you saw that, though only twenty-two years old, Laure looked thirty, so deep were the lines that care and grief had traced on her pale, thin face. She heard a slight noise at the door and turned to see a figure muffled in cloak and shawls entering it. She thought it was one of her neighbors and raised her hand warningly.

"Hush!" she whispered. "He has just fallen asleep. Ah!" as the wrappings of the visitor fell off and she saw her mother. "Mamma, mamma!" And in a moment she was in her mother's arms, weeping, sobbing and holding her in a convulsive embrace.

"Ah, my own mamma, is it really you?" she sobbed, holding her off at arms' length with such a pitiful smile on her wan face that the mother wept to see it.

"Yes, cherie; I could stand it no longer. He may curse me if he will, but I cannot help it. To sit there all New Year's day with closed doors and a face as if you were in your grave—ah, it made me mad! I felt as if you were really dead, and I had to come and see if you were living."

"Mamma, my own dear mamma!" was all the daughter could say in the fullness of her content, kissing the face and hands of the mother.

"Yes; I slipped away and made black George bring me in his buggy. But I can stay only a minute. I heard he was ill," with a glance toward the sleeping man, "and there's some wine and other things out there in the buggy for you. But, stay! I have come to say something else. Yesterday for the first time in all these years he mentioned your name. He said: 'If Laure will leave that vaurien of a husband, who can no longer work for her, I will take her back, she and her children, though they are his. Let him go to a hospital and stay there till he dies.'"

"Leave my husband!" Laur said, with an incredulous look. "Oh, o! He cannot think I could do that! I will kneel at his feet and ask his pardon. Now that I am a mother I know how I have sinned against him. But lesert my husband—mamma, he cannot mean that!"

"Yes; he means it, my poor child! And you, my Laure, you who were so pretty and bright, you are an old woman, and you are weak and sick and soon you cannot help him, and then you will both die. Come back to us, my daughter! Oh, I am so wretched without you!"

Laure rose to her feet, her black eyes sparkling and a bright red spot on her thin cheeks.

"Mamma, look there," she said. "There he lies, helpless, who worked for me and loves me and to whom I am necessary. I will stay with him to starve and die perhaps—who knows?—but happier so than to desert him and live in comfort in my father's house. But you have not seen my children. Come and look at them. That is Jacques, that is Helene, and this little one at the foot of the bed is Aimee."

"You named the two eldest after your father and me?" the grandmother said, with a stifled sob.

"Yes. Are they not handsome? And so bright! Jacques is beginning to read, and Pere Joseph teaches him when his father is too ill, and they say he is going to be a great scholar."

The grandmother pressed a kiss on each round cheek and stood looking at them, lost in thought.

"If he could only see them!" she murmured. "He loves children so much, even now!"

"I must go now, Laure," she said at last, "but I will come back again before long. I have a thought. I will talk it over with Pere Joseph tonight as I go home. Whatever he tells you to do tomorrow, you must obey him."

The next morning Pere Joseph entered the room where old Lefebvre was sitting, leading two children. No one, not even that moody man, thought of barring out the good cure who had lived from youth to old age among his people at Cote Blanche.

"Happy New Year!" he called out cheerily. "Aha, in the sulks still, mon ami! Six years in the sulks! Too long, too long, for a man over sixty, who hasn't many more New Years to be sorry or glad in. I'm afraid 'l'ange de paix' is tired of standing on your threshold. Happy New Year!"

"I hear you, and nobody knows New Year better than I do. Who are these children, Pere Joseph?"

"Two I picked up out of a wretched hovel, where there was nothing to eat, and brought them to see how gay and happy a rich man can be on New Year's day. You know, poor people always think where there is money there is happiness. Go to monsieur, my children, and kiss him and wish him a happy New Year."

The two pretty children did it, a little frightened at the stern old face which bent to receive their caresses, but it softened wonderfully as he lifted them to his knee and stroked their soft brown curls.

"And what is your name, my pretty little girl?" he said.

"Helene," she lisped.

"And yours?" to the boy.

"Jacques Lefebvre Wood," he answered in his high, clear voice. "I am named after my grandpa, and Pere Joseph said I was going to see him today. I want to go to my grandpa," slipping to the floor. "I want to kiss him and love him and wish him a happy New Year."

The old man had turned ghastly pale and trembled in every limb, but there was not the outburst of rage his wife and Pere Joseph had expected. He still held the little girl on his knee, unconsciously, perhaps, and she put up her little soft hand and stroked his face, which was working convulsively.

He looked from her pretty face to the brave, clear eyes of the little boy, which were fixed wonderingly upon him, and then his white head sank on his breast, and tears rolled down his cheeks.

"'L'ange de paix' has conquered!" reverently murmured the good old priest. "Yes, Jacques, that is right; kiss them, for they are your own flesh and blood. Open the shutters and let in the sun to warm your old heart, and thank God, you old sinner, that you have had time to repent." He marched out, his own heart full of joy, and, baring his head, stood gazing up as if the visible presence of the angel he had invoked was before him.

CITY CLERK TO PRESIDE UNTIL COUNCIL ORGANIZES

Mayor Shea and New City Council to take Office Monday

CITY CLERK HARRISON A. KEITH,
Who will preside until the City Council is organized.

The inauguration of the twenty-first year of the City Government on Monday will differ but little from other years. There is always local interest in the ex[illegible]s however and the Council chamb[illegible] doubtless be none too large to a[illegible]mmo[illegible]ose who desire to attend.

Promptly at the hour of [illegible] the inauguration party [illegible] Council chamber from [illegible]ear e[illegible]trance. City Messenger [illegible]y [illegible] Tirrell will lead the way followed by Mayor William T. Shea, City Clerk Harrison A. Keith and Rev. Henry T. Grady pastor of St. Mary's church who will open the exercises with prayer.

City Clerk Keith will preside until after the Council is organized. His first duty will be to administer the oath of office to Mayor Shea. He will then call the roll of the Council to whom he will also administer the oath of office. Mayor Shea will then be presented and deliver his inaugural address.

This over the Council will proceed to organization by the election of a president, clerk of council and committees, city messenger and city auditor. These will be elected by roll call. After the oath is administered to the Clerk the Council will get down to business. The first thing will be the drawing of seats. As a matter of courtesy members of the Council will probably be permitted to retain their old seats.

Regular business will then be in order. This will include communications from the Mayor who will send in a list of constables and special police officers.

There are several things to do at this first meeting. These are to adopt rules of the Council of 1908 as the rules of the present Council, elect two trustees to the City Hospital and a member of the Board of Managers of the Woodward Fund and Property.

As the regular meeting of the Council comes that evening the rules will probably be suspended and an adjournemtn made until the second [illegible]day in the month.

The following brief sketches of the men who will compose the new City Council will be read with interest as will also the table giving the ward, year of service, birthplace, age and busines[illegible] of the Councilmen on another [illegible].

ICHAEL T. WALSH

Is [illegible]ed to the City Council from W[illegible]d Two for his third term having first been elected in the Council of 1907. He was born in Quincy June 9, 1880, and has always made his home here. He was educated at the public schools, the High school and at a business college. He is a member of the A. O. H and Quincy Council Knights of Columbus. Charles H. Bagen Held For Grand Jury.

The continued cases of Charles H. and William T. Bagen for breaking and entering the store of the W. A. Bradford Co., in the night time with intent to commit larceny was heard in the district court this morning. In addition to this complaint another complaint was served on them. One charged William T. Bagen with the larceny of books from the Thomas Crane Public Library and Charles H. Bagen with the larceny of a fountain pen and knife from Miss Alice White.

A large number of witnesses were heard and the trial lasted until after 1.30.

The court found probable cause to believe Charles H. Bagen guilty on the breaking and entering charge and held him in $2,000 for the grand jury.

In the case against William T. Bagen for breaking and entering the court ordered his discharge for want of probable cause.

Both were found guilty on the complaint for larceny and were sentenced to six months each in the house of correction.

FROM ALL QUARTERS.

Capt. Osborne Brewer of Southport, Me., owns a pet crow, which is on such good terms with the family cat that they go hunting together for mice. This is a much "happier" family than that at a recent poultry and stock exhibition at Vineland, N. J., where the prize pig ate the $25 prize rooster.

A new invention from France is a cork bullet designed to stop automobile speeders. If an order to stop is disobeyed the policeman can fire this harmless missile at the car, which will do no harm and yet should be very effective, as the driver will naturally suppose real bulletts are being fired at the tires.

The oldest Odd Fellow in Plymouth county, and probably the second oldest in the state, is Samuel F. Lucas of North Carver, who has recently passed his 92d birthday. He has been a member of the Odd Fellows for 63 yerrs.

The world's peppermint is grown on farms in the neighborhood of Kalamazoo, Mich., which produce over 300,000 pounds of peppermint annually. An acre yields about 25 pounds, worth $125, which with the total cost of production not more than $15, leaves a neat profit per acre of $115.

The tallest man in Rhode Island is said to be Charles S. Gregory, a patrolman on the Newport force. Aged 32, he weighs 251 pounds and stands 6 feet, 3 inches in his stocking feet.

During the fiscal year ending March 31, India exported 227,021,657 pounds of tea valued at $34,334,495. And this despite the fact that the cultivation of rubber is pressing the tea trade so hard that in a district once given wholly over to tea growing, nearly 17,000 acres are now devoted to rubber plantations.

The enterprising proprietor of a billiard parlor in Lawrence much patronized by the firemen has installed a fire alarm tapper for their conbenience.

USHERS WORE TENNIS RACQUETS

Novel Features Introduced at Tennis Club Ball.

The third annual ball of the Quincy Tennis club was held last evening at Music hall and was a pronounced social success. It was also one of the prettiest parties held this winter. The younger set predominated and many exquisite gowns were worn by the ladies.

The color scheme was more in evidence than usual, and the delicate prevailing shades, of the gowns, as they mingled with each other in the dreamy waltz formed a beautiful, symmetrical and harmonious picture very pleasing to look upon.

The matrons who received the guests were Mrs. Russell A. Sears, Mrs. Paul R. Blackmur and Mrs. Dexter E. Wadsworth all gowned in white forming a pretty picture by themselves as they stood in the cosy corner at the right of the platform.

The ushers, each of whom wore a badge with a tennis racquet upon it, were Henry R. Holden, Charles A. Price, Fred B. Rice, Moreton T. Swallow, George E. Pfaffmann, Laurance H. Sturtevant, J. Brooks Keyes, H. E. Frick, L. H. Gilson, C. Lee Morrison, Dr. N. S. Hunting, George F. Hall, Delcevare King, Warren G. Ogden, and Dexter E. Wadsworth.

Poole's orchestra furnished the musical accompaniment and dancing was in order from 8.30 until midnight

Frappe was served during the entire evening.

Guiseppi Picone Receives Cable from Italy.

The report yesterday morning that the Lipari Islands had been destroyed by the earthquake was received with great grief by Guiseppi Picone, the fruit dealer in Carlson's store.

Picone's wife, two children, mother, brother and sister are living in Salina, Lipari Island. Upon receipt of the news, Mr. Picone immediately sent a cable to Italy to find out if his family was safe.

Great was his joy when he received a reply that the Islands had only received a slight shock and that his relatives were uninjured.

Vessels loaded with refugees continue to stream into Naples and Palermo, and each day sees the arrival of additional steamers in the Straits of Messina. It is the government's intention to remove all the survivors possible to the various ports in Italy.

Refugees on the March

The road between Catania and Messina is filled with refugees. There are crowds of them at every station of the railroad, and they are pouring into the main highways from outlying villages, hamlets and huts. Some of them stagger along overloaded with their most precious possessions; others are driving before them a donkey or a cow weighted down by the load of household goods on its back, while still others are accompanied by a sheep or a few goats, or perhaps a faithful dog.

But the vast majority of the survivors have saved nothing. All their possessions are on their backs in the shape of tattered clothing, and in many cases even these garments only cover their owners.

The survivors, one and all, tell awful stories of death and destruction. They say that there are undoubtedly still living people trapped in the ruins of the smaller villages that have not been carefully searched, that others are straying along the beach and that still others are high up in the mountains. Many people fled to the high land to escape the water.

It is hard to believe that there are still living souls in the wreckage. Death would be preferable to their agony and suffering.

Quicklime Used on the Dead

So far as has been possible quicklime has been used on the dead, but many bodies have been burned and others buried. In the relief work the officers and men of the foreign warships have been untiring, and their courage is beyond words. The crew of the British cruiser Drake gave up everything they possessed for the benefit of the refugees, and practically forgot rest and sleep for more than thirty-six hours in their devotion to duty.

Reports are published that it is the king's intention to sell his property in Sicily and devote the proceeds to the assistance of the sufferers. A dispatch from Catania says that it is proposed to build a new suburb to that city and christen it Messina, quartering therein all the survivors of the fallen city.

English Speaking Persons Escape

While nothing yet is definitely known concerning the Americans supposed to have been in Messina at the time of the earthquake, it is stated that a party of twenty English speaking persons, which may have included some Americans, made their escape, crossing a large tract of country which was not harmed by the shocks, in the direction of Palermo.

Soldiers have been called from the rescue work at Messina to quell disturbances in the surrounding villages, where the survivors were in a state of riot because assistance had not been given them. They could not understand the impossibility of succoring all immediately and providing the needy thousands with food and shelter. On the arrival of the soldiers, however, the disturbances soon ended, the peasants being speedily subdued.

RECORD FOR NEW YEAR'S RECEPTION

More Than Six Thousand People Call on President

Washington, Jan. 2.—President Roosevelt and over 6000 people, representing every land and every state and territory in the union, exchanged happy New Year's greetings at the White House. For three and a half hours the president stood receiving his guests, and when the reception was ended last year's record of attendance had been broken by over 700.

The brilliant court dress of members of the diplomatic corps gave a picturesque aspect to the annual function. The number of small children who were brought by their parents to shake hands with the president was unprecedented. Contrary to the custom of recent years, Mrs. Roosevelt and the ladies of the cabinet remained in the Red Room throughout the function.

There were receptions also at the home of Vice President Fairbanks, Speaker Cannon, members of the cabinet, and at hundreds of private homes and institutions.

The closing of all the government departments and local business concerns enabled thousands of officials and employes to participate in celebrating the day.

RARE PRESENCE OF MIND

It Is Displayed by a Fireman and Disaster is Averted

Erie, Pa., Jan. 2.—"Keep the show going, for God's sake," called Abraham Louch, fireman of the Park Opera House, to the performers on the stage at 10:15 o'clock last night, when he discovered that the building was on fire. His cool head probably averted a repetition of the Chicago Iroquois theatre disaster.

The John Sullivan Amusement company was presenting "In the Nick of Time." Louch saw smoke issuing from the floor of the gallery and sent in a still alarm. He reached the rear of the stage before the audience was advised on the danger and after speaking just loud enough for the actors to hear him, called to the audience to file out in order, giving them to understand that the fire was in an adjoining structure.

The house was crowded to its capacity. A dozen or more women fainted and had to be carried from the building, but no one was seriously hurt, owing to the ease and rapidity with which the audience was dismissed and the theatre emptied. The building was partially destroyed.

NO MURDEROUS PLOT

Defense Claims That Shooting of Erb Was Accidental

Media, Pa., Jan. 2.—The commonwealth closed in the Erb case here without having produced evidence to prove that Captain Erb was killed as a result of a murderous plot by the defendants, his widow and her sister.

The defense opened by an address to the jury outlining the contention that Mrs. Catherine Beisel shot her brother-in-law to death after a fierce struggle in self-defense, during which she wrested the pistol from him. In the encounter the weapon was accidentally fired. The many alleged quarrels and fights between Erb and his wife were repeated verbally to the jury.

Mrs. Erb collapsed and had to be carried from the room just before adjournment.

New Sprinting Record

Pretoria, Jan. 2.—R. E. Walker, the South African sprinter, established a new world's record of 10 2-5 seconds for the hundred metres dash. Walker won the hundred metres at the Olympic games at London in 10 4-5.

Corbett May Tackle Johnson

Leadville, Col., Jan. 2.—James J. Corbett, formerly heavyweight pugilistic champion, announces his willingness to meet Jack Johnson, if it is necessary, in order to bring the championship back to a white man.

OUR HOSPITAL.
(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889
The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.
Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.
The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE Young Men's Christian Association OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title—Incorporated 1892.)
The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.
Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.
The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

The fear is expressed that Congress will not have time to be economical this year.

It is up to the police to stop the malicious overturning of ash barrels. Each week protests go up from all over the city over the overturned receptacles. It is annoying to endeavor to keep things tidy by placing barrels of ashes out each week for collection by the city teams, only to have them overturned and the contents scattered about. It is malicious fun and should be stopped. One example would be enough. This week every barrel on the west side of Spear street, also on Foster and other streets were tipped over just after dark. The miscreant was watched and probably arrest may follow after due warning if he persists in his mischief.

The Boston Advertiser notes with horror that looting in Sicily began almost while the walls were falling and while death was all around. That is horrible (without doubt, but it is always to be expected at such times. Every city has its real or would-be burglars, murderers, thieves and cold-hearted plunderers of all kinds. Turn them loose with temptation before them and the police force paralized by calamity, and they get to work at once Every great fire, every disaster by flood, every earthquake even, sees the same dismal band of human coyotes and vultures about their terrible work. San Francisco saw it, even while soldiers patrolled the streets. Sicily has had no worse experience along that line than other places have had. Human nature at its best is the same everywhere, at its worst, the same.—Brockton Enterprise.

No holiday event created such a wide interest as the decision of Judge Wright of Washington, sentencing Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison to jail for twelve, nine and six months respectively. They were sentenced for contempt of an injunction obtained by the Bucks Stove and Range Company of St. Louis, against publishing their company on the unfair list. The President has received an avalanche of telegrams and letters asking his interference. It is well understood, however, that he has no power to interfere, especially as the condemned have taken an appeal and declared their intention to appeal further if necessary until a final decision is reached in the Supreme Court of the United States. Long before this can be accomplished, Persident Roosevelt will have left the White House and executive action in the case must be through the President-elect Taft. He can, if he thinks proper, exercise the pardoning power but not while the case is in court by appeal.

The Ledger has been asked to publish from day to day a list of taxpayers with assessed value, number of feet of land etc taking them by streets in the order of location. This doubtless would be very interesting reading as every one, especially this year, is much interested in what his neighbor is assessed.

This would mean a lot of work in compliing as the taxpayers are arranged alphabetically in the assessor's books. From a brief glance over a few of the books we feel sure a published list would prove interesting for in one case we found a large two and a half story house which we know brings to its owner seventy dollars a month taxed for about $2,500 while next to it is a small one and half story cottage renting for thirty to thirty-five dollars a month taxed for the same amount. On another street it was found one man was taxed about thirty cents a foot while across the street on the best side too, another man was assessed under twenty-five cents all of which goes to show as we have said before, that a published list would prove of great interest and also that some way should be devised of assessing every one their just proportion, no more, and no less.

Dr. Harvey W. Wylie, Chief government chemist, it appears, is likely to suffer, temporarily at least, the fate of all reformers. It is said that his connection with the Department of Agriculture will be discontinued after President Taft is inaugurated on the fourth of March. No man has done so much to secure pure food, pure medicine and pure drinks for the American people. In doing this, of course, he has incurred the enmity of those who adulterated food, drink and medicinal commodities. Long before the Pure Food Law was enacted, Dr. Wylie was making experiments to determine the effect of various chemicals on the human system. His creation of a poison squad did as much as anything else to call attention to the reckless and outrageous adulteration of foods in the United States. He fed the members of this squad on quantities of drugs used by food manufacturers. These contended that he was giving the squad many times more of these chemicals than they would get in the ordinary way at the table, but he persisted and the papers published as is believed now, that every drug used was deleterious to health.

The powers in control, the Commissioner of Public Works, Board of Health or somone is very negligent in civic pride in the matter of allowing the dumping of rubbish in the wrong places. Coddington street which was tidy and attractive all summer is now quite the reverse in spots because of piles of tin cans, paper and the like. If these could have been disposed of further along the road in low places instead of conspicuously above the sidewalk they would be a benefit. On Woodward avenue there was once a fairly good sidewalk but it comes to an abrupt end at the foot of Russell park because everything dumpable, stones, plaster, tin cans, bottles, paper, household goods, even clothing has been desposited in such profusion that one has to take to the road. The papers blow about making the vicinity very untidy. Now has the city a public dump or hasn't it? If so why not make the citizens use it if they have not the decency to do so of their own accord? It is time our people realized that their neighbor's vacant lot or the public highways are not the place for their rubbish. The places above mentioned are not the only places needing attention the complaint comes from all over the city.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

A cheering thing about the opening of this new year is that its finds the business men of the United States in a far more contented frame of mind than they were a year ago. As a matter of fact, there is a feeling of optimism in industrial circles that is very desirable, in view of the very poor showing made in business during the year just ended. The experience of the last dozen months has made manufacturers and merchants more conservative in their undertakings, but they are imbued with a calm confidence concerning business prospects for 1909, and this spirit will render them more successful than if they were over-sanguine and anticipating too much prosperity.

It requires considerable time to fully recover from the shock business received in the fall of 1907, but the country is already emerging from the financial clouds that obscured prosperity, and the prospects for a fairly good business year are very bright.

The trend of events within the last six months has created a universal feeling that prosperity is slowly, but surely, returning to most lines of industry. The awarding of large contracts for electrical equipment on several railways benefited the affairs of numerous manufacturing concerns, raised the price of copper, and sent thousands of miners to work. More orders by railroads for cars, engines, rails, etc., has caused the reemployment of other thousands of men that were let off by equipment companies about eight months ago. Hundreds of thousands of men, taking the country as a whole, are working on full time again.

Another cause for the renewed feeling of confidence is the easy condition of the money market. The banks which wield so much power over industrial conditions are in good working order, and merchants are not finding it so difficult to get accommodations in these institutions as they did a year ago. A further cheering phase of the financial condition is the steady recovery made in the stock and bond markets within the past few months. A considerable revival of business followed the recent national election, and on every side it is conceded that trade certainly is not standing still.—Boston Globe.

Mr. Bryan says he hopes it will never be necessary for him to run for office again, and yet there is a popular feeling that down in the bottom of his heart there is a hope that 1912 will once more find him in the saddle. He says he is still in politics, and expects to be for about 20 years, and he will make it convenient to be present whenever a man or a group of men attempt to Republicanize the Democratic party. This means, if it means anything, that he is the real interpreter of the Democracy, and that whoever undertakes to work that party without consulting him is liable to bring his party into disfavor and subsequent defeat. Bryan is now in his 48th year and even if he remains in politics for 20 years, and suffers five more defeats, he will not then be too old to butt in on any group who will try to get another man than he to stand as the party candidate for President. He has no regrets over the recent campaign, and is as eager for the fray that will come in the next four years or eight years, as he was 12 years ago. His is a wonderful vitality, and the Democratic party exhibits a complacency in regard to his leadership that is the wonder of politics.—Lynn Item.

When Miss Gladys Vanderbilt called at the New York city hall a year ago to get her marriage license, Lieut. Kennel, the mayor's doorman, conducted her into the city hall, and out again, without attracting the attention of a single person. Now he has received a letter from the Countess Szechenyi, thanking him for good wishes, and closing: "I am happy to say that my baby and I are both well." How's Pa?—Boston Globe.

Supposing that the Government should demand that not only beef and beans must be true to the label, but that all labels must tell the truth! What trouble there would be with some political and religious labels. It would require the invention of an automatic, shifting standard label to mark some conspicuous people! Religious labels used to stand for something; when a man pinned orthodoxy on his coat, as once many had the courage to do, it stood for what was inside the man, but now the label is pinned, inside, instead of outside the coat, or tucked away securely in the innermost compartment of his pocket-book, or effectually hidden in the family Bible, and is used only as a sort of credential when required, and even then, explained as the official and not actual inventory of faith. Who can tell us what is "Orthodox"? Or almost anything else doctrinal today? A dozen men holding officially the same label, hold really a dozen different views, yet all are in good standing and all are unquestionably sincere. But what does the lable stand for? And is it really not quite as unethical, if not as illegal, to lable the modern, up-to-date minister "orthodox," as to label olemargarine butter"?

An important feature of McClure's Magazine for January in the first instalment of "Marriage a la Mode" a new novel by Mrs. Humphry Ward, dealing with American life. Then there is a great story of the South Seas, "The House of Mapuhi," by Jack London, and five other good, strong short stories. The articles are fully up to the McClure standard. NEWS OF THE SPORTING WORLD

"Rube" Waddell, the great southpaw baseball pitcher, was the star for St. Louis in the all-star rugby football game with Chicago at St. Louis yesterday afternoon. Chicago won the game, 12 to 4, owing to the wonderful playing of Walter Eckersall, the west's greatest quarterback, who kicked three goals from the field.

But "Rube" was everywhere at the right time, and after every scrimmage he was always pulled from the bottom of the pile. His work was really the greatest that has been shown on any football field here, so far as the defensive game of any one player is concerned. He was good at tackling the Chicago runners and putting them down hard.

He sustained a kick in the jaw shortly before time was called in the second half, which put him out of the game.

Those who witnessed the exciting race in Madison square garden three weeks ago, when Dorando lost, collapsing in the 26th mile, look for a still more gruelling contest in the Buffalo race.

Longboat, who parted temporarily from his bride in Toronto the other day, has been training at Niagara Falls. Dorando arrived from New York Thursday.

Excursions will be run from Toronto and Hamilton for the race.

William J. Connors, chairman of the democratic state committee, will start the men, and Mayor J. N. Adam will present a cup to the winner at the trackside.

A special nine-lap dirt track has been constructed, and record time is promised by both men.

Dineen says he will meet Hayes at any time or place or for any distance, and will make a $1000 side bet.

James M. Dean of Philadelphia challenges Dineen to a race at from 25 to 50 miles. Dean claims to hold records of 73 miles for 12 hours, 350 miles for 72 hours and 547 miles 620 yards for 142 hours.

The semi-final games in the Junior basket ball color league were played this morning in the Y. M. C. A. gym. Th games were close and exciting, and resulted in victories for the Blues and Reds. The final games of the season will be played on Tuesday at 4.45 P. M., when th Blue and the Reds will struggle for the championship.

League standing to date:
Blue, (Capt. Jennings.), 600.
Red, (Capt. Morrison.), 600.
White, (Capt. Neal.), 400.
Green, (Capt. Brown.), 400.

This evening at St. Mary's hall, West Quincy, the St. Mary's basket ball team will clash with the strong Hyde Park A. A. These teams met three weeks ago and the home quintet were defeated by the score of 44 to 18, but things are expected to take a decided change in tonight's battle, especially as the boys have been practicing hard and showed that they were equal to their opponents in the first game by coming back in the second half and scoring the same number of points. A very large crowd is expected to be on hand including many Hyde Park rooters who will accompany their team. The St. Marys will present the same lineup with the exception of Eddie Donovan, former star forward of the home team, who is now studying at Yale university and is considered one of the fastest men in this vicinity. The Hyde Parks will lineup as follows: F. Sullivan r.f., Robertson l.f., Conway c, J. Sullivan, r.b., and Finn l.b. This team has not been defeated this season and the West Quincy boys are confident of turning the trick in tonight's contest.

There will also be a game between the St. Mary's 2d team and the Hyde Park 2d, which is expected to be very fast and will no doubt keep the crowd on edge from start to finish.

RURAL SPORTSMAN'S SHOW.

One does not have to go to Boston for a sportsman show for on Maple street is a miniature one owned by "Bob" Johnson the popular marketman. About his place he has arranged a hedge of Christmas trees, which is pretty to behold and attracts considerable attention. In the yard there sports a pony, the envy of all the children in the vicinity, there are also squirrels, pigeons, fancy fowl, etc., a wood pile and a man sawing and little children playing about all present a happy bit of rural life such as the Boston show advertises as one of their special features. Quincy is a place hard to beat, even Boston has to hustle.

Mr. Charles Zueblin, formerly of the University of Chicago, who is lecturing in the East during the present sesson, begins a course of six lectures on "The Common Life," at Tremont Temple, Boston, Saturday January 2d at 11.00 A. M. The titles of the individual lecture are Business, Labor, The Family, Fellowship, Government, Democratic Culture.

—"The calendar fiend is right on hand as usual this year," remarked a Washington street merchant. "I make it a point, however, to refuse no one, old or young, as long as my supply holds out, but I greatly doubt if this style of advertising is a paying one. Next year I expect to put my money into straight newspaper advertising which I have always found yielded the best returns, if properly placed."

HOW Ralston SHOES ARE MADE

The soles of RALSTON SHOES are made from the famous Ralston Oak sole leather—which from the standpoint of wear and pliability is the best that is made in this country. Great care is used in its selection, and as you will notice in the above diagram, only the choicest bend is used.

If you will come in and see us we'll tell you more about the way RALSTON SHOES are made. You will be interested to learn the way Ralstons are foot-moulded which saves you the torture of breaking them in.

1908 IN HISTORY

A Brief but Comprehensive Review of the Important Events and Tendencies of the Year Past For Busy Readers Who Want to Be Well Informed.

By EDWIN S. POTTER,
Editor Universal News Analysis.

Despite the Depression, Republicans Retain Control.

Looking now calmly and dispassionately back across the field of conflicting interests and balancing forces which shaped the American presidential campaign of 1908, one incontestable conclusion forces itself on the open mind. It is that a majority of the people became convinced in one way or another that it is "better to bear the evils that they have than to fly to others that they know not of" and to give the trust regulating policies of President Roosevelt a longer and fairer trial in the hands of his favorite adviser, William Howard Taft. How the people became so minded is a question to which no answer can be found to suit all kinds of partisans. The salient facts can, however, be recounted briefly and with historical impartiality.

On Jan. 31 was issued the challenge of the dominant personality and official of the party in power which was to determine in many ways the plans of battle of the different parties for the capture of the American electorate—namely, the message of President Roosevelt to congress advocating his program of radical legislation.

On June 16 at Chicago the Republicans got together. They cheered forty minutes when Chairman Lodge eulogized the president and seated all the Taft contestants. The thoroughness of this operation caused it to be described as the administration "steam roller," of which Frank H. Hitchcock was the engineer. The only fight was on the court injunction plank. Samuel Gompers, head of the A. F. of L., and other leaders of organized labor, confronted with numerous court decisions unfavorable to their methods and facing lower wages or lack of work for many workers, had decided to fight in the open for the party whose labor plank suited them best. Despite the warnings of the Gompers "cabinet" before the platform committee the plank finally adopted at Chicago was not to their liking. Van Cleave, Cannon, Crane and other Republican leaders insisted upon upholding the integrity of the courts, but asserting that the rules of injunction procedure be "more accurately defined by statute" and that no injunction should issue without due notice "except where irreparable injury would result from delay." William H. Taft of Ohio was nominated for president on the first ballot and James S. Sherman of New York for vice president.

On July 7 at Denver the national convention of the Democratic party assembled with the knowledge that an overwhelming majority of its delegates were pledged to the nomination of William J. Bryan of Nebraska. The big gathering broke all records for continuous cheering when the blind Oklahoma senator, Gore, eulogized the Nebraskan, the demonstration lasting eighty-seven minutes. Bryan was nominated on the first ballot, although the names of Johnson and Gray were presented. John W. Kern of Indiana, with the approval of Bryan, was named for second place.

As in the Republican convention, the main contest had to do with the wording of the injunction or labor plank of the platform. Gompers was present and gave his assent to the plank finally agreed upon. While asserting that the "courts of justice are the bulwark of our liberty," it demanded a modification of the injunction law so as to provide for a trial by jury in cases of indirect contempt. It declared against treating labor organizations as illegal combinations in restraint of trade, favored the eight hour day and promised a general employers' liability law.

Bryan at once induced his executive committee to say that it would reject all corporate gifts, would limit individual donations to $10,000 and would publish on Oct. 15 and daily thereafter the names of givers of $100 and upward. The final total published after election was $620,644 from 75,000 contributors. Although the Republican convention had rejected a publicity plank, Taft and his managers decided to work under the New York law and publish names and amounts of contributors after the election. Their funds totaled $1,655,518.

Frank H. Hitchcock, who had engineered the Taft canvass, was chosen chairman of the Republican national committee, and George R. Sheldon was made treasurer. The Democrats elected Norman E. Mack, the Buffalo newspaper proprietor, as their national chairman and Governor Haskell of Oklahoma as holder of the purse. When Treasurer Haskell resigned, his place was filled by Herman Ridder, editor of the New York Staats-Zeitung.

July 28, at Cincinnati, Taft delivered his speech of acceptance. He frankly accepted the role of "me too" by defending the Roosevelt policies in their entirety and explaining that his work, if elected, would be to carry on those reforms in detail.

Aug. 12, at Lincoln, Neb., Bryan was notified of his nomination and sounded the keynote of his campaign in the question, "Shall the people rule?" In subsequent speeches he gave great prominence to the bank guaranty plan, to the popular election of senators and to campaign publicity before election. He made a special bid for the labor vote on the injunction plank. He would destroy all trusts controlling over 50 per cent of an industry.

Regarding the depression as the beginning of the breakdown of the capitalist system and claiming the army of idle workers as their asset, the Socialists of America went into the campaign with better weapons than ever before. On May 10 the Socialist convention met at Chicago. For the first time the Socialists of America affirmed their position on specific questions of policy. The convention nominated on the first ballot unanimously Eugene V. Debs for president and Benjamin Hanford for vice president, the same ticket put up by the Socialists in 1904.

The Prohibitionists, conscious of the great strides their cause had made on the local option issue in many states, nominated Eugene W. Chafin of Illinois and Aaron S. Watkins of Ohio July 15 at Columbus, O., on a platform containing many radical proposals besides that against the sale or manufacture of intoxicants.

On July 28 at Chicago the first national convention of the Independence party, outgrowth of the league organized by Editor Hearst, named Thomas L. Hisgen of Massachusetts and John Temple Graves of Georgia on a platform containing most of the radical ideas of the Democrats and some more radical. Opposition to Bryan was its keynote.

The People's party April 3 at St. Louis again named Thomas E. Watson of Georgia as its standard bearer along with S. W. Williams of Indiana, although it did not put a ticket up in all of the states.

On Sept. 15, at Columbus, O., Hearst stirred up the hitherto calm current of the campaign by reading into his speech the first batch of a series of letters which had been stolen from the files of the Standard Oil company and which threw a sinister light on the activities of various public men, notably Foraker, Bailey, MacLaurin, Sibley, certain Pennsylvania judges and ex-Governor Stone, who was urged to appoint them. Most of the letters were written by Vice President Archbold of the trust and contained divers certificates of deposit for large sums of money. At the same time Hearst repeated the story of the alleged attempt to bribe former Attorney General Monnett of Ohio wherein Haskell, the Democratic treasurer, was made to figure. As governor of Oklahoma Haskell also was accused of protecting a legal branch of the Standard. Foraker at once withdrew from the campaign, and the president issued a hot statement condemning the Ohioan and gave out an old letter showing how Taft had refused to deal with Foraker; then compared this course to that of Bryan and Haskell. Bryan replied, demanding a hearing for Haskell, and then ensued a bitter verbal duel on personal and party issues. Haskell resigned, but protesting innocence, as did also Du Pont, the powder trust head, from the chairmanship of the Republican speakers' bureau. Both the president and Taft took the ground that publishing names of contributors before election would be to invite unfair and partisan criticism of candidates.

Gompers appealed to all unions in the A. F. of L. to give moral and financial support to Bryan. Speaker Cannon was the special target of the Gompers battery, and "Cannonism" became a national issue, many candidates for congress being pledged against Cannon as the next speaker.

On Nov. 3 the voters of the nation had their say. The extent of the Republican victory can be best remembered by the statement that Taft carried every state that Roosevelt did in 1904 except Nebraska, Colorado and Nevada. Furthermore, Taft invaded the solid south with small pluralities in Maryland and Missouri and large gains in other southern states. The popular vote stood: Taft, 7,637,676; Bryan, 6,393,182; Debs, 447,651; Chafin, 241,252; Hisgen, 83,186; Watson, 33,871; Gilhaus (Socialist-Labor), 15,421; total, 14,852,239. The total vote in 1904 was 13,510,708. Several states in the Taft column elected Democratic governors—Harmon in Ohio, Marshall in Indiana and Johnson in Minnesota. Taft captured the Democratic stronghold of New York city. The Republican majority in congress was reduced to 47, the total being 219 and the Democratic 172. The senate's Republican complexion was unchanged.

The early months of the long session of congress were devoted chiefly to the Republican wrangle over the terms of a currency bill. The Aldrich relief measure finally went through the senate March 28 despite the all night filibuster of La Follette, to propitiate whom the railroad bond feature had been cut out. La Follette named an oligarchy of fourteen wealthy men who, he said, actually ruled the nation. The Vreeland bill, in which clearing house associations were made the channel of the new currency issue, was passed by the house, and then a compromise between that and the Aldrich bills, with provision for a joint commission to report on permanent reforms, was adopted by both branches and signed by the president.

Under the president's prodding the Sterling liability bill was advanced by the majority and passed unanimously in both houses. This holds interstate carriers liable for injuries to employees and abolishes the rule barring compensation when the negligence of a fellow employee can be proved.

The Democratic filibuster was met by a gag rule and daily recess until the majority had accomplished its purpose. This included provision for two new battleships instead of the four urged by the president, higher pay for army officers and privates and a liability law to protect employees in the service of the government. The house failed to pass the anti-injunction and anti-trust amendment to the Sherman law desired by the president in the interest of labor. "In God We Trust" was restored to the gold coins. The total appropriations of the session reached the record figure of $1,804,000,894.

Congress reassembled Dec. 7 and received the final Roosevelt message, in which executive control of legalized trusts was advocated and judges were urged to heed the will of legislators according to present day standards. A bitter controversy arose over one passage which intimated that congress had confined the secret service to the treasury department because members did not want to be investigated. The senate moved an investigation of the secret service, and the house demanded proof of the president's assertions.

Uncle Sam Insists Upon Carrying a Big Stick.

The administration's foreign policy has exemplified well this year a favorite saying of the president, "Speak softly, but carry a big stick." This nation has preserved good feeling toward other nations, but at the same time has sent its battleship fleet to the antipodes and devoted much thought and money to navy and army betterments.

March 11 at Magdalena bay the fleet ended its voyage around the Horn, in command of Evans, and was wildly welcomed all along the coast to San Francisco. Evans then gave up the command to Sperry, and on July 7 the fleet sailed from San Francisco on its record breaking naval practice cruise, visiting Hawaii, New Zealand, Australia, Japan, China and the Philippines before the year's end.

On May 5 the state department concluded a five year arbitration treaty with Japan. On Nov. 30 notes were signed containing an agreement with Japan for concert of action in maintaining the status quo in the orient, a virtual alliance.

The treasury in January had a deficit of $10,000,000, which grew to $60,000,000 by the end of the fiscal year.

The postoffice department, by order of the president, ruled that papers in foreign languages must submit translations and authorized postmasters to exclude papers containing incitement to murder, arson and treason. In May the parcel limit to England was raised to eleven pounds, and Oct. 1 the postal rate to that country was lowered to 2 cents, later the same to Germany.

May 13 to 15 at the White House the first conference of state governors and noted men met the president to discuss the conservation of national resources, the conference making a new element of national unity. This body reassembled Dec. 8 and approved a great scheme of waterways by a bond issue.

GREAT BRITAIN.—The government of King Edward began the year with a program of radical legislation, including old age pensions, frankly intended as a sop to socialism, which showed signs of rapid growth along with the increase of the vast army of the unemployed. Asquith took the reins April 5, when Premier Bannerman retired on account of continued illness. Asquith carried through the age pension bill July 20, the plan of which is $1.25 a week to all over seventy years of age whose income is under $150 a year, to take effect Jan. 1, 1909. The Asquith government encountered a boisterous campaign for woman suffrage, the suffragettes organizing huge parades and rushes on the parliament to attract attention, many women choosing prison terms rather than give bonds to keep the peace. Alarm over the signs of coming revolt throughout India has increased, with numerous acts of violence against the ruling Britons. CANADA felt the effects of the American depression in decreased exports and in a halt in her industrial development. The general elections Oct. 26 sustained the Laurier government. A great historical pageant marked the tercentenary of Quebec, the Prince of Wales attending.

GERMANY.—The German people will remember the year 1908 as marking the end of their kaiser's absolute, personal rule and the beginning of ministerial responsibility to the reichstag. This revolution through the power of public opinion voiced in the radical press and in parliamentary action of nearly all parties came to a head in October, the occasion of the outburst being an authorized interview in the London Telegraph in which the kaiser told of his refusal to join a secret coalition against England during the Boer war and of sending war plans to the queen. It was like the last straw. The reichstag called Von Bulow to account, and William made concessions.

TURKEY.—The leaven of democracy showed signs of working even in the European stronghold of autocratic Islam. The sultan of Turkey saw his army turning from him under the influence of the Young Turk party and thus powerless, he put into effect the hitherto dead letter constitution of 1876 and called into being a national parliament at Constantinople. This body met amid rejoicing Dec. 17.

THE BALKANS.—On Oct. 5 the whole status of southeastern Europe as fixed by the treaty of Berlin (1878) was suddenly altered. Bulgaria proclaimed its independence, with Prince Ferdinand as its czar and at the same time by concerted arrangement Austria announced to the powers that she proposed to annex completely the former Turkish provinces of Herzegovina and Bosnia, while the Turkish island of Crete moved toward a union with Greece. War seemed unavoidable then, and the clouds still lower in the diplomatic sky as a gloomy omen of what the new year may have in store. The prompt action of the powers on motion of Russia in agreeing to hold a conference to readjust the balance in the Balkans, the opening of negotiations between Bulgaria and Turkey and the military impotence of Servia and Montenegro combined to prevent an immediate outbreak. Later Turkey began a boycott of Austrian goods, and all the Balkan states prepared for war.

PORTUGAL.—The ferment of Republicanism in the Portuguese monarchy after long restraint found vent in the assassination of King Carlos and Crown Prince Luiz Feb. 1 while they were riding in the streets of Lisbon. The younger son, Manuel, who was slightly wounded, succeeded to the throne, and the hated Premier Franco fled the country. Subsequent elections showed the Conservatives still in a large majority.

MOROCCO.—On Aug. 24 the oft repeated story of the defeat of Sultan Abdul Aziz by the forces of the pretender, Mulai Hafid, proved to be true, and the latter demanded recognition of the powers as the sultan. That was where the German emperor made a peck of trouble by recognizing Hafid without consulting the nations in the Algeciras conference. France firmly objected, Spain seconded, and the kaiser "came down." Then they all bowed to Hafid together.

PERSIA.—The Radical first parliament at Teheran under the constitution granted in 1907 was wiped out of existence in a bloody battle with the shah's soldiers June 23, 400 persons being killed in the streets, the parliament buildings battered down and some of the Radical leaders executed. The revolutionists captured and held Tabriz.

JAPAN.—The Japanese government gave the American fleet a wonderful reception, the mikado and the president exchanging most cordial greetings.

CHINA.—On Nov. 13 Emperor Kwang Seu and the dowager empress, who had been for a generation the real ruler of China, died. Pu Yi, the infant son of Prince Chun, had been designated as heir to the throne, and the regency was seized by Prince Chun.

CENTRAL AMERICA hovered on the verge of war, but finally the issues were laid before the new Central American court of justice, which was set up May 26 at Cartago, Costa Rica, with all the states represented.

VENEZUELA added Holland to the list of her "don't speak" neighbors by expelling the Dutch minister for some indiscretion, and the Dutch were hot for coercion. They began war Dec. 13 by capturing the Venezuelan coast guard ship, Alix. Sleeper, the American minister, finally broke off relations and quit the country owing to the failure of the Castro government responding to the overtures from Washington as to a settlement of claims. The Venezuelan minister later was recalled from Washington. President Castro sailed for Europe the last of November.

HAITI was torn by two revolts, that led by Jumeau and Firmin in January being crushed, but the second, under Antoine Simon, resulting in the bloodless capture of Port au Prince and the fall of the Nord Alexis government Dec. 2. As the forces of Simon approached the capital the officers of Alexis deserted and the people turned against him, so that he was barely able to escape with his life on board a French warship. Simon took possession of the city and on Dec. 17 was elected president by the Haitian congress.

Everything is relative. While business conditions in this country are still far from what they were two years ago, the end of 1908 presents an encouraging outlook in comparison to that which capital and labor faced last January. Then 338,000 freight cars were idle, thousands of mills and factories were closed, at least 2,000,000 wage earners were unemployed, other millions worked on part time or at reduced wages, goods on hand could not be sold at a profit, railroad and industrial stocks were battered in price almost beyond recognition, and at high rates of interest little money could be enticed from hiding. Fear possessed the business community on the eve of a presidential campaign in which both the old parties were considering radical measures for scaring off the bogy of socialism. Processions of the unemployed marched in the larger cities and gave authorities a case of nerves.

The railroads were between the devil of reduced traffic and the deep sea of a threatened general strike. Their only apparent relief, if they hoped to pay salaries and dividends, was to raise freight rates. Here they met the opposition of the shippers backed by the preliminary investigation of the interstate commerce comission. The Southwestern association did advance rates in July, and some southern lines reduced wages, while nearly all lines laid off men. In December came the general announcement of a 10 per cent increase to take effect Jan. 1, 1909.

E. H. Harriman in March took full possession of the Georgia Central, which with a new connecting link gave him a cross continent system.

On April 28 Cleveland's three cent fare municipal street railway system went into effect, but hardly was it started when a bitter strike was called to enforce a former contract for wage increase. Riots and car dynamiting tied up the lines for weeks, but the city finally won. A deficit the first two months gave way later to a surplus, but the public, dissatisfied with the service, voted in the Oct. 2 referendum against the municipal franchise, and a few weeks later the company was thrown into a receivership.

Secretary Wilson reported the value of all crops to the farmer to be $7,772,000,000, a new record, corn heading the list with 2,643,00,000 bushels.

Jan. 9 New York celebrated the completion and operation of its first East river tunnel and of its first Hudson river tunnel from Hoboken Feb. 25. Philadelphia's $20,000,000 Market street subway was opened July 30.

The ocean speed record was lowered repeatedly by the big British turbines, the Lusitania finally doing the best western trip in 4 days 15 minutes.

Regulation of Trusts and Pursuit of Grafters.

The American smile of 1907 when Judge Landis fined the oil trust $29,240,000 for taking Alton rebates certainly came off July 22 last, when Judge Grosscup and associates of the court of appeals at Chicago reversed Landis on the assumption that the fine was excessive and not based on good law. What the chief hunter of the big octopus had to say of that particular turn in the road was that the merits of the case had not been touched and he would "regard it as a gross miscarriage of justice if through any technicalities" the quarry should escape. The president at once had the motion for a rehearing made. This was denied, and the famous case goes up on appeal to the supreme court.

But in the meantime the government pack was in full cry along other paths, the chief of which led toward the dissolution of the Standard Oil company.

Sept. 10 at Philadelphia Judge Gray and associates on the circuit bench sustained the right of railroads to own and operate coal mines, holding the commodity clause of the Hepburn bill to be despotic and confiscatory.

Federal suits were also started against the Harriman railroad trust and against the powder trust, while numerous fines were imposed on railroads and other corporations under the Elkins law for rebating. On March 23 the supreme court, 8 to 1, invalidated the Minnesota and North Carolina rate laws, holding that federal courts had the right to review and to stay execution to protect stockholders. The Alabama rate law was held up by the circuit court pending investigation of reasonableness of rates. Pennsylvania two cent rate law was invalidated by the state supreme court. On Nov. 31 the United States supreme court ruled that the order of the Virginia railroad commission fixing a two cent passenger rate was subject to review and must be tried before the highest state court before seeking federal intervention. In December the circuit court of appeals enjoined the tobacco trust from continuing interstate traffic.

Early in January the supreme court knocked out the employers' liability law because it was not confined to interstate corporations. On Jan. 25 it ruled that membership in a union might justify dismissal of interstate railroad employees. On Feb. 3 in the famous Danbury hatters' boycott case it decided unanimously that the boycott as a method of fighting capital is illegal when declared against goods in interstate traffic. President Gompers and other A. F. of L. officials were enjoined from publishing an "unfair list."

On March 9 the California supreme court vacated the conviction of former Mayor Schmitz, and he was freed on heavy bail covering other charges after having been confined ten months. When in November his pal, Boss Ruef, was brought to trial the desperation of the graft forces showed itself in the act of one discredited saloon man, Haas, who shot Heney in court. Though Heney was seriously injured, he recovered to continue the fight with increased public sympathy. Ruef was convicted Dec. 11 and faced a prison term. Four of Pennsylvania's capitol grafters were convicted in February and sentenced Dec. 18 to two years in prison and $500 fine each.

On Nov. 6 at New York Charles W. Morse, the millionaire whose illegal banking practices were believed to have started the financial panic of 1907, was brought to stern justice with conviction and a fifteen year sentence. At the same time sentence for his banking associate, President Curtis of the Bank of North America, was suspended.

Pittsburg was shocked by a series of banking explosions and defalcations, two of which stand out as collossal crimes. On March 23 Henry Reiber, teller, and John Young, auditor of the Farmers' Deposit National bank, were arrested for the misuse of over a million of the bank funds. In June they were sentenced to ten years each. On May 7 William Montgomery, cashier of the Alleghany National bank, was accused of diversions which ultimately ran up to $1,350,000, including some state funds. He was sentenced to fifteen years in prison.

Kentucky's tobacco Night Riders made additional raids in spite of the troops sent out to check them, and on Oct. 20 a band of dispossessed squatters on Reelfoot lake, Tennessee, kidnaped Captain Rankin and Colonel Taylor of Trenton. They hung the former, but the latter escaped by swimming the lake. Troops were called out, and many arrests were made.

The most serious race riots of the year occurred at Springfield, Ill., Aug. 14 and 15, when a wild mob killed nine persons, injured eighty and burned houses occupied by negroes. Troops were called out and the leaders brought to justice.

The last of the Idaho cases against miners' officials ended with the acquittal of George A. Pettibone in January. Harry Orchard, the confessed murderer of Governor Steunenburg, whose testimony implicated the miners, received a death sentence, which later was commuted to a life term.

Caleb Powers, four times tried in eight years for the murder of Governor Goebel, was pardoned by Governor Willson of Kentucky.

Science, Sociology, Religion and Other Data.

Continuous mechanical flight as a human feat has been publicly demonstrated to the satisfaction of the world by the two American aviators, Wilbur and Orville Wright, giving assurance of new military weapons and promise of practical commercial applications. Having finished their secret trials at Kill Devil hill, North Carolina, last May and having received patent protection here and abroad, the Wrights made public the details of their work. Wilbur then took one machine to Le Mans, France, and Orville another to Fort Myer, Va., for official trials in September. Orville scored first, making a record flight of 1 hour 14 minutes 20 seconds prior to the fatal trial of Sept. 27, when the aeroplane, carrying the inventor and Lieutenant Selfridge, fell with a broken propeller, killing Selfridge and breaking several of Wright's bones. Later Wilbur sailed the air alone 1 hour and 31 minutes and on Oct. 10 took along one man for 1 hour 9 minutes 45 seconds, winning $100,000 for the invention from a French syndicate. Farman and Delagrange also made successful aeroplane flights in France, the former winning the Arch-Deacon prize for the first circular mile, while the tetrahedron machine of Bell and Baldwin at Hammondsport, N. Y., was flown short distances.

Count Zeppelin of Germany again led the world in the dirigible balloon field, although his series of flights culminated Aug. 1 in the burning of his huge rigid gas airship at Mayence where he had paused in a storm for repairs after a continuous journey of 261 miles in 11 hours. With popular aid he built another ship, in which he made more flights in November, winning the kaiser's praise and selling his invention to the government.

The dirigible balloon built by Thomas W. Baldwin on official trial at Fort Myer, Va., in August attained a speed of 19.16 miles an hour on a two hour trip and was bought by the war department for $6,000.

Both the pan-Anglican conference and the Lambeth conference at London went on record for socialism. The Methodist general conference at Baltimore took advanced ground for industrial reforms and prohibition, but refused to change the code of discipline. The Episcopal diocese of New York made a working arrangement with organized labor. On the other hand, the American Catholic society sharply condemned socialism. The first assembling of the Catholic hosts in this country took place in Chicago in November, the occasion being the celebration of the transfer of the United States from a mission country to a country with an independent national church.

Signs of a coming unification of all churches were seen first in the warm interchanges between the Methodist Episcopal conference at Baltimore and the Methodist Protestant conference at Pittsburg, in the union motions between the latter and the Congregational and United Brethren, in the union favored by the Presbyterian general conference at Kansas City with the Reformed church and finally in the first meeting of the great federal council of the Churches of Christ in America at Philadelphia in December. This council also took advanced ground for practical social reforms.

American athletes won a majority of the events in the Olympic games at London in July, John Hayes being the Marathon winner. In November he was beaten by Dorando in Madison Square Garden, New York, and on Dec. 15 at the same place Dorando was beaten by Longboat, the Canadian Indian. The baseball leaders were the Chicago Cubs and the Detroits.

Famous persons who died in 1908 were: Charles Emory Smith, Edmund C. Stedman, Edward A. McDonald, August Wilhelmj, Louise de la Ramee (Ouida), Redfield Proctor, senator from Vermont; William Pinckney Whyte, senator from Maryland; William B. Allison, senator from Iowa; Francois Coppee, Henry C. Potter, Murat Halsted, Joel Chandler Harris, Bronson Howard, Ira D. Sankey, Daniel Coit Gilman, Charles Eliot Norton, Donald G. Mitchell, Grover Cleveland, Henry Campbell-Bannerman and Victorien Sardou.

HELPING HAND FOR SUFFERERS

PRESIDENT PLANNING MESSAGE

Cabinet Members and Leading Members of Congress Will Consider How Best the Nation May Show Its Real Sympathy—Important Questions to Be Discussed In All Their Phases

Washington, Jan. 2.—Instead of taking a vacation today as had been planned originally, President Roosevelt will remain at the office to consider how best the nation may show in a substantial way its sympathy with the Italian people in their great hour of need and distress.

As an outcome of today, the president hopes to be able to formulate a message to congress to be laid before that body when it convenes Monday, recommending specific action on the part of this nation.

The president has asked Senator Hale, acting chairman of the committee on appropriations and chairman of the committee on naval affairs, to discuss the matter with him today. For a similar purpose the president will invite Secretary of State Root, Secretary of the Navy Newberry, and Assistant Secretary of State Bacon. The views of several leaders of the house probably will be ascertained during the day by the president.

The question of the diversion of supplies designed for the fleet on its arrival in the Mediterranean sea, of a direct appropriation to be sought at the hands of congress for the relief of the people of southern Italy, and other proposed measures of relief will be considered in all their phases at the conference at the White House.

Several persons believed to have been in the earthquake zone in Italy, regarding whom information was asked, are reported safe in dispatches received at the state department.

PREPARING TO HIKE

People In West Virginia Town Think They Are Near Volcano

Richmond, Jan. 2.—Great anxiety is being felt by the inhabitants of Green Bank, a small town just across the border in West Virginia, over the steadily increasing range of a burning crater of recently volcanic nature on the side of a neighboring mountain.

Flames are daily visible at intervals, accompanied by rumbling noises as from internal disturbance. The air in the vicinity is strong with sulphur fumes.

The smouldering mass is situated on a small bluff overlooking a creek in the wild lands on the western side of the Alleghenies. A spring of sulphur water near the bluff has been noted for a number of years for its vile odor and taste.

The area of the molten mass has spread until it now covers some fifty square yards. People are preparing to leave the neighborhood should there be indication of trouble.

Bay Staters' Contributions

Boston, Jan. 2.—Massachusetts' fund for the relief of stricken Italy totals $74,702. Of this $12,839 was collected by the Red Cross. The greater part of this sum has been given in Greater Boston, and when the funds from other places in the state come in a big jump in the total contribution is expected.

FOWLER WINS MARATHON

Nearest Competitor Weakens Four Hundred Yards From the Goal

Yonkers, N. Y., Jan. 2.—Robert Fowler, formerly of the Cambridge Athletic club of Boston, but who is now unattached, won the Yonkers Marathon race in 2 hours, 52 minutes and 45 2-5 seconds, in the presence of a great crowd of spectators.

At the twentieth mile the race resolved itself into a duel between John F. Daly and Fowler. Daly weakened and Fowler romped on alone, winning by about 400 yards from Daly. Sidney Hatch took third place.

A Gas-Electric Combine

Pawtucket, R. I., Jan. 2.—The combination of all gas and electric companies in the Blackstone valley, for which purpose the Blackstone Gas and Electric company was incorporated, was formally effected when Stone & Webster of Boston filed in this city a collateral trust bond of $5,000,000 to the Slater Company, trustees, to cover the bondholders of the company.

Forty-Nine Killed In Mine

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 2.—Chief Mine Inspector Laing, who is investigating the explosion in the Lick Branch mine, wired Governor Dawson: "The last body has been taken from the mine. Forty-nine in all. Will make final inspection and report by telephone."

Portland's Grain Shipments

Portland, Me., Jan. Nearly 300,000 bushels of grain of kinds more than in 1907 passed through this port for trans-Atlantic shipment during 1908. The grand total for 1908 was 7,424,994 bushels.

"SCAR-FACED MAN" IS IN CUSTODY

Accused of Having Looted a New York Police Station

New York, Jan. 2.—With the arrest last night of William Delaney, a former patrolman, the police believe they have not only captured the man who broke into and looted the police station in the criminal court building, but have under lock and key the "scar faced man" they have been seeking for nearly a month on the charge of impersonating an officer and making unauthorized arrests.

On Dec. 8 a prisoner was unlawfully lodged in a station house by a man impersonating a detective. The impersonator had a scar on the right cheek and nearly 200 police officers with scars on their faces have been scrutinized recently in an effort to identify him. When arrested Delaney, a scar-faced man, had in his possession, the police say, badge No. 3604, which was the number of the shield displayed by the impersonator of Dec. 8.

The officers' revolvers and all their personal effects of value were stolen from the criminal court building police station on Thursday night. Delaney's captors charge him with having looted the place, gaining access to and egress from the locker room by use of his police shield.

SAWED BARS OFF CELL

Prisoners In New Hampshire Jail Take French Leave

Berlin, N. H., Jan. 2.—Three prisoners at the county court house effected a successful escape and are now believed to be on their way to the Canadian line. Two of the men, Fred Forbes and Paul Martha of New York, sawed the bars off their cell while the sheriff was absent and left their pen and also freed Dan Ferrari of Berlin, who was confined in an adjoining cell.

Forbes and Martha had been sentenced yesterday to not less than four and not more than seven years for forging American Express company money orders, and Ferrari had been convicted and was awaiting sentence for assault with intent to kill.

A posse of fifty men is searching for the escaped trio, but no definite clue as to their whereabouts is known.

EDUCATION OF NEGROES

Would Be Blow to White Supremacy, According to Tillman

Columbia, S. C., Jan. 2.—United States Senator Tillman, in delivering an address before the State Teachers' association here last night, warned the people against the agitation for compulsory education, asserting that should such a law be passed it would mean the education of the negro, which in the end would mean a blow to white supremacy.

Senator Tillman urged the Democrats of the south against the scheme which he said President-elect Taft and his associates were hatching up to break the solid south. He said it was the purpose of Taft to hand out federal offices to the Democrats of the south in order to build up a white Republican party in this section.

NEW LAW HITS FOREIGNERS

They Cannot Operate Barrooms In State of Louisiana

New Orleans, Jan. 2.—Variously interpreted, and threatened with a test of its constitutionality in some particulars, the new saloon regulation law, which went into effect Jan. 1, will compel many changes, some of them drastic, in the method of conducting the liquor business in this state.

The clause of the new law which prohibits foreigners from operating barrooms will undoubtedly involve a test on constitutional lines. Many claim that it is an abrogation of treaty rights which they participate in.

HUNTING FOR CABMEN

Detectives Trying to Get Trace of Necklace Valued at $14,000

New York, Jan. 2.—Six detectives are looking for the drivers of several cabs in which Mrs. George D. S. Hemlen of 50 Central Park West made trips in the shopping district Thursday, when she lost a pearl necklace valued at $14,000.

Mrs. Hemlen did not miss it until after returning home. She has offered $2000 reward for the return of the jewel.

Lawyer's Downfall

San Bernardino, Cal., Jan. 2.—Israel S. Donnell, for many years a prominent attorney of Mansfield, O., was arrested here for Ohio authorities on an indictment for alleged fraud, forgery and obtaining money under false pretenses, totalling $30,000. Since Dec. 17 he has been residing here as W. W. Woodford. He admits his identity.

Alkon Gets Jail Sentence

Boston, Jan. 2.—Harris A. Alkon, who was convicted of using the mails in a scheme to defraud by obtaining goods on credit from various firms in the country and giving as surety a company which he and others controlled, was sentenced to eighteen months in jail.

Factors of Safety

The human body is a wonderful machine, provided with muscular, nervous and mental energy far in excess of normal needs. In health, the organs and tissues can do double their usual amount of work without strain or friction, because they have stored energy to meet the extra demand.

When you feel "all tuckered out," these factors of safety are nearly exhausted and you need to resort to

to renew the supply of energy, wherever it may be called for.

Indigestion, bilious attacks, constipation, loss of sleep, nervousness, dizzy spells, are warnings that the factor of safety in the stomach, liver, bowels or brain, is low, or nearing the danger point and needs to be replenished.

The Scrap Book

Overlooked the Boots.

That Lord Brougham was fully capable of a quick retort is shown by the following:

"You, my lord," said Wellington, angry with him, "will be remembered not for having been a great lawyer or for having written profound philosophical essays, but for having given your name to a peculiar style of carriage."

"And your grace," answered Brougham, "will be remembered not for having gained the battles of Vittoria and Waterloo, but for having given your name to a fashionable kind of boots!"

"Oh," said Wellington, "d— the boots! I forgot 'em."

WORK.

You can climb to the top of the loftiest hill
If you work.
You can make of yourself whatsoever you will
If you work.
A faith you must have, rooted deep in your soul;
A purpose unshaken, a firm self control.
Strive on without ceasing. You'll reach to the goal
If you work.

Asked and Received.

Patrick was a clerk in a suburban grocery store. It was a busy season, and the grocer was waiting upon two or three customers at the same time. He was in a hurry, and everything had to be where he could get it without much trouble or he would be delayed and probably lose money, so when he found that the pound weight was gone he was bothered.

"Patrick," he called out, "where's the pound weight?"

"The pound weight, is it?" said Patrick complacently. "Sure, an' it's Misther Jones has the pound weight."

"Mr. Jones has it? What do you mean by saying that Mr. Jones has the pound weight? How did Mr. Jones get it?"

"An' shure, didn't yez tell me to be perlite to the rigular customers?"

"Of course."

"Well, thin, Misther Jones comes into the store for a pound of tay. An', says he, whin I asked him what quality of tay he would have, 'Whativer yez give me,' says he, 'give me the weight.' So I put the pound weight in the package with the tay, perlite like, an' it's himself that's gone with it."

A Delicate Reply.

A senator, discussing a certain measure before congress, said:

"That needs delicate handling. It is like the position of the young man on his honeymoon. This young man's honeymoon was peculiar because, while still in mourning, he had married his deceased wife's sister. A friend of his, a chap he had not seen for years, accosted him on the honeymoon in a Niagara restaurant. The friend, after being introduced to the bride, said sympathetically:

"'But who are you in mourning for, old man?'

"'For my sister-in-law,' was the delicate reply."

The Countess of Ayr.

At a country dance in England a gilded youth from town was complaining that there was nobody fit to dance with.

"Shall I introduce you to that young lady over there?" asked his hostess. "She is the daughter of the Countess of Ayr."

Delighted, the young man assented, and after waltzing with the fair scion of a noble house ventured to ask after her mother, the Countess of Ayr.

"My father, you mean," said the girl.

"No, no, no," said the bewildered youth. "I was asking after your mother, the Countess of Ayr."

"Yes," was the reply, "but that's my father."

Utterly at a loss, the young man rushed off in search of his hostess and said the girl she had made him dance with was "quite mad—told me the Countess of Ayr was her father."

"So he is," answered the lady of the house. "Let me introduce you to him. Mr. So-and-so, Mr. Smith, the county surveyor."

The Joke Was on Them.

Two capricious young ladies planned to have some fun when a certain young man called to spend the evening. They thought it would be great sport to imitate everything he did. When the young man entered the parlor he blew his nose, which each of the girls promptly imitated. Thinking it a peculiar incident, the young man proceeded to stroke his hair. Both girls followed. Then he straightened his collar. They did the same, and a few dimples and smiles began to appear in spite of them. Now it was the young man's turn. He was positive of his ground and calmly stooped down and turned up his trousers.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Nothing Is Lost.

Everything disappears, but nothing is lost. The civilization of man is nothing but a huge immaterial pyramid constructed out of the work of all that has ever existed, just as our chalky mountains are made of the debris of nameless creatures who have subsisted under the forms of microscopic animal life.—Henri Frederic Amiel.

Something He Couldn't Wear.

A wealthy American who became a convert to Rome was very generous to Pope Leo XIII. in money matters. He had done many generous things, and the pope had rewarded him with orders and medals galore, for once a year this convert made a pilgrimage to Rome, where he was kindly received by the holy father as a son, and generally, until the orders were exhausted, each time was bestowed with some fresh honor. On such occasions all these brave metal pieces were attached to the rich American's breast.

"I'll soon end that," the pope remarked to a confidant who was at his side during the levee. "Next time I shall give him a snuffbox," which he did, and a beautiful jeweled box it was.

The following year the American turned up again and was granted an audience, when, to the holy father's consternation, the faithful son of the church appeared not only with all his medals, but with the snuffbox attached to his waistcoat.

"The next time," the pope said, with a comical sigh, "I shall present him with a marble topped table. It is the only thing I can think of that he can't tie to his waistcoat."

Aunt Mahaly's Expedient.

"These stockings are so full of holes that they are worthless, Aunt Mahaly," said a lady to an old colored woman with a large family, who was a pensioner of her family.

"No'm, dey ain't," replied Aunt Mahaly, calmly appropriating them. "Rastus en Verbena got such black laigs dat de holes won't show nohow, en dem chilluns what got yaller meat kin wear two pairs at de same time. En you knows, Mis' Jo, dat de holes in all dem stockin's ain't gwine hit de same places."

The Conscientious Scot.

A commercial traveling man landed at Edinburgh, Scotland, one Saturday night too late to get out of town for Sunday. The next day he found that there was actually no form of amusement in the whole city to assist him in whiling away the day. He went to the proprietor of the hotel to see if he could suggest a way of passing the remainder of the day.

The landlord took pity on the stranger and took him to one of the rooms in the house in which a number of Scotchmen were playing a game called "nap," which is a sort of modification of "seven up." They were playing for a shilling a point, so that the game was a pretty stiff one. The stranger got in the game and played very cautiously, for he was quite sure that the players, or at least some of them, were cheating. One solemn faced Scot, he was especially sure, he caught cheating a number of times. The visitor began whistling a part of some vagraut tune. The Scot who had been cheating arose from the table and threw down the cards.

"What is the matter?" the other players asked.

"I'm gangin' awa'," the Scot answered, glaring at the stranger. "I'll play cards wi' no mon that whustles on the Sabbath."

The Struggle For Liberty.

What you call liberty I call liberties, and what I call the struggle for liberty is nothing but the constant, living assimilation of the idea of freedom. He who possesses liberty otherwise than as a thing to be striven for possesses it dead and soulless, for the idea of liberty has undoubtedly this characteristic—that it develops steadily during its assimilation. So that a man who stops in the midst of the struggle and says, "Now I have it!" thereby shows that he has lost it.—Henrik Ibsen.

Steam Pipes as Hosts.

When Commissioner Allen had charge of the patent office in Washington he was very punctilious about the respect due him and his position and demanded full tribute from everybody.

One day as he was sitting at his desk two men came in without knocking or announcement and without removing their hats.

Allen looked up and impaled the intruders with his glittering eye. "Gentlemen," he said severely, "who are visitors to this office to see me are always announced and always remove their hats."

"Huh," replied one of the men, "we ain't visitors, and we don't give a hoot about seeing you. We came in to fix the steam pipes."—Saturday Evening Post.

She Would Cure Him.

"My husband is so poetic," said one lady to another on a street car.

Whereupon an honest looking woman, with a big market basket at her feet, interjected with, "Excuse me, mum, but have you ever tried rubbing his joints with hartshorn liniment?"

Called His Name.

On the occasion of a dinner Sydney Smith was the guest, and when the evening was over the host thanked the wit heartily for the entertainment he had afforded. "I shall not forget you, Mr. Smith," he added. "Thank you. Take care you don't forget yourself tomorrow"—it was Saturday—"in church," rejoined Smith, whereat the host, Kershaw by name, rather bridled up.

"I hope, sir, I know how to behave myself in church!" "Well," said Smith good temperedly, "if I catch you smiling I will call you by name." "You may," rejoined the visitor. "The thing is absurd. I will give you a donation to the York hospital if it happens."

On the ensuing morning Smith read the prayers reverently, as he always did, then ascended the pulpit, looked around the church and rested his eye on the visitor, whose name was Kershaw. That gentleman said afterward that he did not know what possessed him, but so it was he gave a broad smile. Thereupon the preacher was seized with a violent inclination to sneeze, and, applying his handkerchief with suitable action, he sounded "kerker-ker-ker-shaw" three times over.

QUINCY LOCALS BRIEFLY TOLD

The male choir which sang for the first time Sunday evening at Memorial Congregational church, proved a pleasing addition to the service and the church was well filled.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the National Mount Wollaston bank is to be held in the banking rooms on Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 5th, at half past three.

Quincy people are interested in the concert to be given by the Wollaston Glee club on Jan. 19th, as many are in the club or have friends in the club.

The song recital by Mr. Pol Plancon at Colonial hall on Jan. 12th is attracting considerable notice in musical circles and the hall will hardly be large enough to accommodate all who wish to attend.

Arthur P. Russell of Wollaston, a recent candidate for the executive council, is reported as being ill at a private hospital, after an operation for an ulcerated tooth. He was reported as resting comfortably.

Rev. Thomas W. Davison of Billings street was joined by his family on Tuesday of this week at their new home, where they will make their future dwelling place during Rev. Mr. Davison's pastorate at Memorial church.

The windows of the upper story of the Old Quincy school building have been completely riddled with stones and the old landmark bears the sign of irreverent youth in its unsightly wreckage of the windows and fences.

A fine musical program has been prepared for the vesper service at four o'clock Sunday at First church. Rev. C. B. Ames assistant pastor of the church will give a short sermon. These services will continue every other Sunday through January.

Ernest Jacoby, Esq., of Boston is to speak on the Emmanuel Movement at the Men's club of St. Chrysostom's church Monday evening in the parish rooms, and it is hoped that every man in the parish be present. Refreshments will be served.

Miss Isabel G. Murphy, Miss Esther Dahlberg and Mr. George Reynolds will appear for the first time at the Student's recitals Thursday evening at Colonial hall. Music by women composers will be interpreted. Mrs. J. F. Merrill and Mr. Fjilbeck will by request repeat two violin selections by Chaminade.

On Tuesday Jan. 5 the regular monthly meeting of the Day Nursery association will be held at the Women's club house at 3 P. M. This is the first meeting of New Year and it is hoped there will be a large attendance as matters of importance will be brought up.

Rev. E. Victor Bigelow of Lowell, well known in Quincy, his wife being Miss Carrie Hardwick, daughter of the late Franklin Hardwick, is to assist Rev. C. F. Hill Crathern of the South Congregational church, Braintree, in two weeks' evangelical services beginning Jan. 31st.

Miss Beatrice Briggs of Appleton street has resumed her teaching duties the Randolph Normal school, after the Christmas vacation. Early in January Miss Briggs will go to Johnson, Vermont, for continuation of duties for the rest of the season. She reports two feet of snow and excellent sleighing.

Music by women composers, American and foreign, will be interpreted at the next Students' recital the evening of January 7th at Colonial hall. The program will open with songs by Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, whose talent as a composer, was made known to the public on her eighty-ninth birthday anniversary when her album of fourteen songs was published. These are very melodic and the harmonies are strong through their simplicity.

CHRISTMAS AT DAY NURSERY.

The Christmas festival of the Day Nursery was held Saturday, Dec. 26, at the pleasant new home of the Nursery on Garfield street. The children with their mothers and ladies interested in the Nursery came together about 2.30 P. M. Mrs. Jones the efficient matron had prepared a program of songs and recitations by the children of the Nursery which was much enjoyed by every one.

Five young girls from the Wollaston Unitarian Sunday school added to the pleasure of the afternoon by the singing of carols and recitation. Then the tree with its load of good things was dismantled. There were tops for each of the little ones beside fruit, candy, some stockings and mittens. After the tree came ice cream for all. A treat provided by Mrs. King. The president Mrs. Sibley was in charge of this very successful celebration ably seconded by the assistants Mrs. Jameson and Mrs. King.

AMUSEMENTS.

Keith's Theatre.

Will Cressy and Blanche Dayne come to Keith's theatre next week as headliners in that funniest of all New England sketches, written by Mr. Cressy, entitled "Town Hall Tonight." This sketch has become a classic, and is too well known to make a description necessary. There is another headline feature that will come as a distinct surprise, and will no doubt create a sensation. This is Bernardi, the Italian protean actor, who puts on an entire drama with many characters, all of which are taken by himself. This is without question the most elaborate affair of the kind ever devised, and Bernardi succeeds in mystifying his audience. Emmett Devoy and Company are also on the bill in that delightful sketch called "Dreamland," in which they were seen last season. Violet Gillette and George McFarlane have a musical comedy that is both bright and catchy. Others are Willie Weston in a monologue; Smith and Heagney in a dancing and singing turn, and the Raven Trio, equilibrists, making one of the most varied and interesting shows announced in a long time.

Colonial Theatre.

"Little Nemo" will have to open at the Colonial theatre, Boston, January 25th, despite its success at the New Amsterdam theatre, New York, where this beautiful and amusing comedy has been playing to crowded houses all through the present season. This move conforms to the Klaw & Erlanger policy of filling their dates with the attraction booked unless they have something equally as good to offer. As it has always been the policy of the firm to send the original company on the road intact, this plan will be pursued with "Little Nemo."

"Little Nemo" is the best musical comedy ever staged. Its success in New York was certain and sincere. The three comedians, Joseph Cawthorn, Billy B. Van and Harry Kelley, are very amusing as Dr. Pill, Flip and the Dancing Missionary. They reach the height of laughable absurdity when, in the plot of the play, they are cast away on the Table D'Hote Islands, with cannibals for companions. Wonderful hunting yarns are spun by the trio. The Dancing Missionary relates his description of the capture of the montimaniack. Flip, not to be outdone, tells how to capture a peninsula. "Little Nemo" will be taken to Boston on a special train of baggage cars for the opening at the Colonial on January 25th.

Castle Square Theatre.

Nothing like the success of "The Circus Girl" at the Castle Square has been known for many a day. Ever since its opening performance on Christmas eve the theatre has been thronged by multitudes eager to see Mr. Craig's brilliant production of this entertaining musical comedy, and during the past few days many hundreds have been turned away unable to obtain admission to the theatre. Mr. Craig has, in response to this remarkable demand, rearranged his plans and has decided to give "The Circus Girl" still another week. Even then an early application for seats is advisable, for the popularity of the second week, which begins next Monday, promises to be as great as that of this of the first. There will be no changes in the cast, and the performances will be up to the top notch of musical comedy. The large chorus adds liveliness, personal beauty and vocal excellence to the production, and there is not a single member of the John Craig Stock Company who is not thoroughly at home in "The Circus Girl."

Gaiety Theatre.

The Blue Ribbon Girls are coming to the new Gaiety Theatre for the week of January 4 and from reports of their great success wherever they have appeared this season, the title under which they are touring the country certainly seems deserved. "A really creditable show" is the verdict everywhere which means that the company is finely equipped and that its performances are thoroughly enjoyable. The chorus of this organization is said to be made up of exceptionally pretty girls who know how to sing and dance and march well. One of the numbers entitled the Red Raven Cadets, led by the dashing Hilda Carle is so capitally presented as to always provoke the most enthusiastic applause. The show is strong in comedians and in its variety olio. Among the fun-makers are Billy K. Wells, Harry Ward, William Keller and Jimmy Lane and Lillie Harrison leads the young women. Ward and Raymond, and the three Ferry sisters in "In Chorus Life" are perhaps the best entertainers in the long olio. Last Tuesday Manager George Batcheller invited a large party of New England editors to see his new and very handsome theatre and every one was loud in praise of its beauty and safety and convenience of all sorts for the comfort of patrons. The Gaiety is on Washington Street near the corner of Boylston Street.

Orpheum Theatre.

Determined to maintain the lofty standard which has been established by the Orpheum theatre since the opening of the season, the management announces another all star bill for next week, which impossible though it may seem excels even the wonderful headline programs of the past. For next week every single act on the program has been head-lined at different times at other theatres, but there is one that stands out so pre-eminently that it is worth even the first place on the Orpheum bill. The one only and incomparable, Vesta Victoria, queen of comediennes is back again to repeat her former tremendous successes in the Hub. The great English artiste has had America at her feet for the past two seasons and her latest tour has been one continual ovation. Another attraction of great magnitude is Professor Ernest Brengk's group of Bronze Beauties. This act is the apothesis of sensation and will furnish to artists and laymen alike unbounded pleasure. Other acts that the vaudeville devotees will immediately recall as of the headline variety are Beatrice L. Webster and Burt Carleton, who will present an original comedy entitled "Her Beau," and John F. Clark, the man who makes you laugh and keeps you laughing.

Mrs. J. E. Poland will hold a whist party in Norfolk Downs Hall on Monday evening.

The address of M[illegible]s considerably longer than that of a year ago. L[illegible] welt largely with financial problem. This year howe[illegible] ives considerable attention to the different departmen[illegible]h of the important departments was taken up separa[illegible]y. Gentlemen of the City Council:—

The City of Quincy today begins the 21st year of its municipal life. During the past twenty years our city has made wonderful strides in commercial progress, its population has more than doubled and we have rapidly forged to the front among the hustling cities of the Commonwealth. I believe that during the next twenty years we will make greater progress than we have during the last score. Within the past few years the name of Quincy has become one of international note. The battleships built on our shores have visited nearly all the known world and it has fallen to the lot of this city to be the first place in the United States to build one of the new battleships of the so-called Dreadnought class, the progress of which has been watched with keen interest all over our own country and in foreign lands. Heretofore we have expended our energies chiefly in our granite quarries and in developing our lands. We have left for present development our splendid water front and I feel certain that a great share of the future success that is to come to Quincy will be found in that direction.

You gentlemen have gathered here to begin the work of the city for the coming year. You have been chosen by the people as their representatives and the trust of the people is confided in you. It is a time-honored custom for the Mayor at this time to review the work of the past year, to present the financial condition of the city to you so that you may realize the necessities of the city and its financial possibilities. At this time also it becomes the duty of the Mayor to suggest to your honorable body such recommendations as he thinks may be of assistance to you in your important task of rendering to our city the best service that it is possible to give. With this end in view I have prepared a few suggestions for your consideration.

SCHOOLS

In my inaugural address of a year ago I suggested that the City Council and School Board should devise some method of co-operation so that the work of the School Department, one of the most important in the city, could go on without restraint. I am happy to state that the relations between the Council and School Board the past year have been most harmonious and I trust that a continuation of this state of affairs may prevail the coming year. The most important work undertaken the past year in connection with the School Department was the erection of the new Coddington School which was accepted by the city on Saturday and was opened for the use of teachers and pupils this morning. The wait for this new building has been a long one since the project was first considered but the city has, in some degree,

ATTEMPTED BREAK AT WOLLASTON

Burglar When Discovered Makes Quick Get-Away

Edward Badger of Grand View avenue Wollaston had quite an experience Friday night with a burglar who he chased for some distance before the fellow got away.

As Mr. Badger tells the story it was about 7.50 Friday evening when he saw a man at the east window of the house occupied by Wendell G. Corthell. Mr. Corthell's family is south for the winter and the house is unoccupied. Thinking perhaps that the man might be a neighbor. Mr. Badger walked toward him. The man at the window saw him approaching and jumping down the enbankment walked away.

When Mr. Badger started after him, the fellow quickened his steps and then broke into a run. By this time Mr. Badger realized that the fellow was about the house for no good purpose and he gave chase. Although a good sprinter the burglar outdistanced Mr. Badger and when near the residence of Dr. Adams on Farrington street Mr. Badger gave up the chase.

Returning Mr. Badger met Officer Reily whom he notified. The two went back and examined the house, but they could not discover that the house had been entered.

An hour later Office Reily saw a man acting in a suspicious manner near the Corthell house who ran upon his approach. The officer ran after him but was too far behind to overtake the fellow and he did not dare to use his revolver for fear of hitting pedestrians.

An examination of the house later disclosed the fact that a window had been smashed. Near the window was a butchers cleaver with which the job had evidently been done.

Mr. Badger says it is possible that the window may have been smashed when he and the officer made their examination early in the evening but he does not think so.

EIGHT POUND MASCOT.

The Iroquois club now have a mascot, a thing they have been wanting for a long time. It is the eight pound baby boy of "Al" Bullock, one of the most popular members. The mascot was born Dec. 28, and it is hoped he will bring good luck for the coming minstrel show.

—Henry O. Underwood of Belmont, says the Lynn Item, seems to be one automobilist of a thousand—yes, one of a hundred thousand. In paying his tax recently he added a check for $100 to the town with the explanation that he thought his automobile had damaged the town streets to that extent. We do not believe there is another community in the country that can show an automobilist with so much consideration.

CODDINGTON SCHOOL OPENED.

Children Take Possession of Building at Morning Session.

The new Coddington school was formally opened this morning when the children moved into their new quarters on their return from the Christmas vacation. The building is the most beautiful in the city and is built of brick with granite trimmings.

The school is named after William Coddington, who once owned all the land in the vicinity and who was once governor of Rhode Island. The old buildings still stand in the yard, looking deserted and cold, in comparison to the new structure.

The building will be dedicated some day next week. The principal of the school is Walter Bentley and the janitor is William Caldwell.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lovejoy of Butler road, by special permission, placed a statue of Hiawatha in the main corridor. The statue is in memory of their daughter, Gertrude, who died suddenly two years ago while reading the poem "Hiawatha."

Several other beautiful pieces of statuary and several pictures will later adorn the walls of the new building.

NORFOLK REGISTRY.

In Norfolk County the volume of business transacted at the registry of deeds in 1908 was heavy, 13,993 deeds and other real estate documents having been placed on record, 1015 in January, 850 in February, 1074 in March, 1294 in April, 1234 in May, 1280 in June, 1187 in July, 1044 in August, 1251 in September, 1447 in October, 1267 in November, 1050 in December. During the year 593 attachments were filed.

LEAVES ESTATE TO FAMILY.

There are no public bequests in the will of Frederick L. Jones, once a candidate for mayor of Quincy, which has been filed at the Norfolk Registry in Dedham. The bulk of the estate is left to the widow, Alice C. Jones, who is named as executrix. The sum of $50 is bequeathed to each of his five children.

—James Pease of Hope, Me., has just won a prize offered to him who should raise the most potatoes from any acre of land in the state outside of Aroostook county. His acre yielded 436 bushels and 26 pounds.

—We examine in our dark-room with modern instruments. If we find disease we send you to a reliable oculist. Williams 1473 Hancock street.

ORGANIZATION OF NEW CITY GOVERNMENT

The twenty-first year of the city government of Quincy was inaugurated at 12 o'clock noon today. The ceremonies were witnessed by a very large gathering of citizens, even larger if anything than last year. Extra seats were provided on the main floor and the gallery was reserved for ladies, These were all occupied and there were many who were obligd to stand throughout the entire ceremony.

Aside from the usual interest it was thought that the Mayor might take time by the forelock and announce his appointments at this meeting. While few if any changes in his official family were expected it is always interesting to know who is to fill the various offices.

RALPH W. HOBBS
President of City Council.

The President's desk was adorned with many beautiful flowers sent by admiring friends of the Mayor which served to add a bit of coloring to the scene.

As the bell on the historic First church struck the hour of noon the inaugural party entered the Council Chamber by the rear stairway. The members of the City Council had assembled previous to this time however and occupied seats in the inclosure. First came the City Messenger Harry W. Tirrell, followed by City Clerk Harrison A. Keith, and Mayor Shea with Rev. Henry T. Grady, the chaplain.

The City Clerk occupied the President's chair and presided until after the Council had organized.

The exercises opened with prayer followed immediately by the administering of the oath of office to Mayor Shea by City Clerk Keith.

ROLL CALL OF COUNCIL.

The City Clerk then called the roll of the Council as follows:—

George W. Abele
Arthur C. Beal
Charles L. Bean

City Clerk Keith then introduced His Honor the Mayor who delivered his inaugural address which will be found in full on another page. Applause greeted his introduction and there was prolonged applause at the completion of his address.

Immediately following the address came the organization of the City Council. The vote for president resulted as follows:

been compensated by the very handsome and well constructed building that today becomes part of our public school equipment. It has been pleasing to me, and must be, I think, to all our citizens, to know that the building was constructed and equipped in all its details, but one, by citizens of Quincy. The school has been pronounced a splendid building by all who have inspected it and I hope it will long stand as a monument to Quincy industries. Unfortunately for the children who attend this school, the granite strike of the early spring delayed work on the building. But for this the building would have been completed earlier.

During the past year the Council has appropriated $12,000 for a four-room addition to the Lincoln School and bids will be asked for in a few days. With the erection of this addition it is thought the accommodations for the Adams, Lincoln and John Hancock districts will be sufficient for some time. The erection of new buildings within the past few years has left four old wooden buildings standing idle and useless. These are the old High School, the two Coddington buildings and the old Quincy School building. Some of these structures have become targets for petty vandalism and I think it would be advisable for the Council to instruct the Mayor to dispose of at least three of these buildings. One of the two old buildings on the Coddington lot is in good condition and being located in the center it has been thought advisable to keep it intact in case it may be needed for further public use.

HIGHWAYS AND BRIDGES

This is an important department of our public works and one that calls for careful thought and conservative management. The work required of this department is entirely out of proportion to the amount of money appropriated for its use. We must, therefore, do the best we can with the money at our disposal, making all work on the streets as far as possible of a permanent nature.

Some idea of the importance of this department can be inferred from the following brief statement of a portion of the work accomplished by it during the past year, viz:—

Permanent streets built	3 miles
Catch basins built	114
Surface drainage pipe laid	9,274 feet
New curbstone set	400 feet
Crosswalks laid	9
Paved gutters laid	1,000 feet

A total of more than 10,000 tons of crushed stone has been taken from the city ledge and placed upon our streets at an average cost of 70 cents a ton, loaded on the wagons. From the fact that about one-third of the amount of money appropriated for miscellaneous highways is required in cleaning streets, sidewalks and catch basins, you can readily see that the amount left for repairing the streets is necessarily small.

The macadamized portion of Hancock street between City Square and Neponset bridge is in such a poor condition that it should be rebuilt this year. The cost of macadamizing is about 95 cents a yard and the average life of such a street is from two to three years. Granite paving can be laid complete for $1.65 a yard. I believe it is economy for the city to pave this street in view of the heavy travel thereon. It would cost about $46,000 to pave and curb this portion of Hancock street and the cost of macadamizing and curbing would be about $23,000. I think it wise to pave a portion of this street each year until the street is completely paved and I earnestly recommend that an appropriation be made for this purpose.

Howard street is another thoroughfare which in my opinion should receive our attention. The largest business enterprise in the city is located on this street. Local pride should prompt us to provide a suitable approach to this industry. The street at present is narrow, hilly and in generally poor condition. This street needs straightening and widening, particularly that portion of it between Des Moines road and Quincy avenue. I earnestly recommend this matter to your most serious consideration.

The problem of laying the dust on our main streets is becoming a serious one, owing chiefly to the increase in the automobile travel. I am of the opinion that some method of oiling these streets should be adopted this year. I am having an investigation made for the purpose of determing the best method of doing this work, the results of which I will later lay before you.

The Fore River bridge during the past year has been replanked but it needs repainting and notwithstanding the fact that it is practically a new bridge considerable repairs will have to be made on it this year.

SIDEWALKS

Good sidewalks are an essential factor of a city. It has been said that they are to a great extent an index of the character of a city. There is considerable opportunity for improvement in our sidewalks. I renew my recommendations of last year and earnestly urge that a substantial appropriation be made for the purpose of building permanent sidewalks under the betterment act.

PARKS AND PUBLIC PLAYGROUNDS

I am a firm believer in parks and public playgrounds and think that as fast as practicable suitable playgrounds for the children should be provided in each ward of the city. I also believe that so far as practicable the public playgrounds should be flooded in the winter time for skating and provision should be made for that purpose.

At the last municipal election the city accepted the provisions of Chapter 513 of the Acts of 1908 relative to providing and maintaining playgrounds of suitable size and equipment for the children of the city. Provision should be made in the near future for carrying this act into effect. During the past year the Park Commissioners have obtained good results with the money at their disposal.

WATER DEPARTMENT.

This department is fast becoming one of the largest and most important in our city. The demands for extensions are constant and increasing, particularly in Squantum, Houghs Neck and Rock Island. The people in these sections of the city are entitled to have their demands for water met with reasonable promptness. At the present time the City has no water pipes in Squantum or Rock Island and I recommend the extension of the water pipes to these districts. The pipes in several of our streets should be replaced by larger ones, as they are now inadequate for the purposes required of them. During the past year this department has laid approximately 17,000 feet of water pipe, set 20 hydrants, and 31 water gates. 312 service connections were made during the year. The total number of miles of water pipe laid in the city is 106. The total number of services in use 6,403.

The total number of meters installed to date is 1,913.

SEWERS

The work of construction was begun by this department in April last and carried on throughout the season with very good success. Two gangs of men have been employed. A little more than three and one-half miles of various sized pipes ranging from 8 to 15 inches in diameter were laid during 1908.

During the year 1908, 301 connections were made with with the public sewers. The money for particular sewers is exhausted and an early appropriation should be made for this purpose, as there are several applications on hand that will have to be attended to in the spring.

In the majority of instances the streets through which the sewers were laid last year were selected at the suggestion and on the recommendation of the Board of Health.

A study is now being made for laying sewers at Houghs Neck. There are several petitions now on hand for the extension of the sewerage system, an estimation of which will be made later.

POOR DEPARTMENT

The worthy poor should always receive our earnest attention. During the past year the people who through sickness or misfortune have been obliged to apply to the City for aid have been relieved and made comfortable so for as the funds at the disposal of the Overseer would permit.

Your attention will later be called to some permanent improvements which should be made in the buildings of this department.

BOARD OF HEALTH

This is an important department of the city government and upon the proper discharge of its duties to a considerable extent depends the health of the community. The facilities of the Board for the proper collection of garbage are now inadequate and further means should be provided.

Recent legislation has made it obligatory upon each city of this Commonwealth to provide a hospital for the reception of persons having small-pox or other diseases dangerous to the public health.

I am advised that the City Hospital is willing to cooperate with the City in the erection and maintenance of a ward on its premises in connection with its hospital for the use of such patients. Authority must first be obtained from the Legislature before the City can avail itself of this offer. I recommend that the Mayor be authorized to petition the Legislature that authority be granted the City to make such an arrangement with the hospital authorities and to appropriate money for that purpose. The necessity of a strict compliance with all the laws intended for the preservation of the public health is earnestly urged upon all our citizens.

POLICE DEPARTMENT.

The work of this department is constantly increasing. I believe the number of regular patrolmen should be increased. A day officer should be placed in Ward 5, and one or more night officers should be added to the force.

In this connection I desire to call your attention to the fact that an order amending the ordinance regulating this department is now pending before your Board. I believe the adoption of this amendment would tend to improve the discipline and efficiency of the force and earnestly urge its prompt consideration.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

This department has rendered excellent service during the past year. Fires in the city have been ably and carefully handled and have been attended with but small loss.

Three new fire alarm boxes have been added, which greatly improved the service.

The fire alarm battery at the Central Station has been remodeled and put in first-class condition. Some improvements will have to be made in the equipment of this department the coming year. Three of the horses are in poor condition and should be replaced.

The present fire engine has been in use about twenty-seven years and needs to be repaired and remodeled. It will cost about $2200 to do this work.

An order for the purchase of a new fire-engine is now pending before your Board. I urge that this matter receive your early attention.

WATER FRONT

I believe the time has come when we should take an active interest in the development of the water front of our city. We should co-operate with our neighboring city of Brockton in its canal project, as a United States Government proposition for a free canal from Quiney to Brockton, Taunton, Fall River and Newport. The opening up of such a way would mean much to our city. I believe it would be wise to establish the office of Dock and Water Front Commissioner, with no salary attached thereto. Such a Commissioner would give attention to the matter of establishing public landing places on our shores and keep in touch generally with matters pertaining to the commercial development of our water front.

NO LICENSE

Our city has again by an overwhelming majority voted in favor of No License.

The will of the people on this question having been so clearly expressed must be respected, and the laws concerning the sale of intoxicating liquors fully and impartially enforced.

During the past year the police have been active in enforcing these laws.

I shall insist upon continued vigilance on the part of the police force, not only in the enforcement of the liquor laws but of all the laws for the suppression of crime and the protection of life and property.

GRADE CROSSINGS

The special commission consisting of Hon. John L. Bates, Hon. Arthur H. Wellman, Hon. Winfield S. Slocum, appointed to determine the method of abolishing the grade crossings at Saville and Water streets, have held several public hearings during the year, and it is expected that a final hearing will be held on the 16th inst.

The City before deciding on the method of abolishing these grade crossings, it would advocate, invited the co-operation of the Granite Manufacturers' Asociation, Citizens' Association, Board of Trade, and the Central Labor Union. Representatives of these organizations have acted with the Mayor and City Solicitor in looking after the City's interest in this important matter. The plans adopted by the City were, before being submitted to the Commission, approved by these organizations and also by the citizens at a mass meeting held at City hall. The City plans provide for a slight depression of the tracks of the Railroad Company at Water street, a considerable depression of said tracks at the Saville street crossing, and in each instance an overhead bridge with easy grades along the lines of the present locations of said streets.

CITY CHARTER

Discussion still continues as to the advisability of amending the City Charter.

The form of government provided by our City Charter is as a whole generally satisfactory. I believe, however, that in some respects the charter could be amended to an advantage.

The term of office for the Mayor should be extended to two, and possibly three years.

The Mayor should ex officio be a member of the School Committee.

The number of Councilmen should be substantially reduced, and authority to deal with much of the matters that now engage the attention of the City Council should be transferred to the Executive Department.

WIRES AND SHADE TREES

I think the time has come for the City Council to establish a department of wires with men in charge who shall give their sole time to keeping in condition all fire alarm and police wires of the city and also pass upon the wiring for electric lighting purposes that may be installed in our public buildings as well as to take care of all the wires at present installed in City Hall, the school buildings, fire houses, police station and any other municipal buildings. At present there is an official connected with the Fire Department branch of the public service who is known as the Superintendent of Fire Alarm. That office was created when the official in question had to take care only of the Fire Department's wires. A few years ago a police signal system was installed and since then the same official has had charge of the police wires, although he is in no way responsible to the Police Department. At present there are 110 miles of Fire Department wires and 38 miles of Police Department wires to be looked after besides the battery rooms in the Central Fire Station and police headquarters, three steam fire alarm whistles and five fire alarm bells of a large size. Considering the fact that the fire alarm men have practically to take care of all public wires in the city, working for two departments and responsible only to one, it seems to me that the most business-like way to do is to create the office of Inspector of Wires.

The occupant of such an office should have the full responsibility of taking care of all public wires in the city and should have the power to pass upon the locations of our Fire and Police Department wires on the poles of public service corporations which now reserve a portion of their poles for the City's use. Such an official could also have the authority to order the trimming of trees where necessary and also to prohibit the mutilation of our shade trees by the employees of corporations which have their poles and wires in our streets. In past years there has been considerable of this done in our city. If there is one thing we ought to be careful of in our public streets it is the shade treees with which our city has been blest in large numbers and for the protection of which we are annualy spending thousands of dollars in the supression of pests. I earnestly recommend that the Council give this suggested department its most careful consideration, as it is in keeping with the policy pursued by other cities of this State, many not so large as ours, where the best of results have been accomplished.

Dauntless Tom L. Johnson

Cleveland's "Three Cent Mayor," Who, With His Fortune Lost, but Still Optimistic, Will Begin Life All Over Again In a Cottage....

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

TOM L. JOHNSON, mayor of Cleveland, ex-congressman, defeated candidate for governor of Ohio and often talked of for the presidential or vice presidential nomination of his party, has long been one of the most striking figures in American politics. Now that he has lost his fortune in fighting for his principles and in trying to save his dead brother's estate for that brother's widow and children he is a striking figure still. He says that there are a thousand men who believe in him and that he will be a fifth time for mayor of Cleveland. The American people love a fighter and a game loser, and the "three cent mayor's" forthcoming race will be awaited with even more interest than were his others, which assumed the proportion of national events.

Johnson is a disciple of Henry George and the single tax. When he was in congress he had one of George's books included in the speeches of himself and other friendly members, then franked the book out by the million as a public document. He also came out for free trade while admitting that he was benefiting in a money way from the protective system in his street car properties and steel rail mills. He naively said that as long as special privileges existed he would take advantage of them to exploit the people, but he wanted special privileges abolished, so that no one could exploit the people.

It was when Tom Johnson was a mere boy, but already a rising traction magnate, that a news vender on a train laid George's "Progress and Poverty" on his lap. Casually glancing at the book, he first became interested, then fascinated and by the time the train reached his destination was a convert. He gave the book to his lawyer to brief the arguments against it, and when the legal light admitted that the arguments were unanswerable Johnson came out for the single tax. He took a residence near that of George in Brooklyn and told the originator of the new theory of taxation that while he could not make speeches for the cause he could make money to help it along.

George convinced him that he could also make speeches, which began a new chapter in his career, for his first effort before the public showed that he was a spellbinder of no mean parts, and since then he has developed into one of the most effective campaigners in the country. We have had many "whirlwinds on the stump," but Johnson proved himself one worthy of the name. If a red automobile, a circus tent and four brass bands do not constitute a whirlwind, then has a political breeze never been raised in this land, which is fairly famous for campaign twisters as well as the other sort.

Has Steam Engine Habits.

The first time Tom Johnson ran for congress in the Cleveland district he was defeated, but he hit the congressional trail again, and hit it so hard that he won out. He was in the house for two terms and made the country conscious of the fact that Cleveland had a representative. Then he ran for mayor and, though the Republicans had been carrying the city by majorities that gave Democrats the crushed feeling the morning after election, Johnson won out by 6,000. The next time, when they fought harder, he beat them worse, finally raising his lead to 12,000. The last time he was a candidate President Roosevelt and the national administration got into the game, and the Republican nominee was no less a light than the redoubtable Theodore E. Burton, one of the leaders of the house. The things Johnson did to Burton are not remembered with pleasure by the Republican party. Now that Johnson has been skinned out of his money there will be a more determined effort than ever to defeat him, but those who know his steam engine habits of getting there are not making any bets on the proposition that Tom Loftin Johnson will not be a fifth time the head puncher of the government of Cleveland the former home of Marcus A. Hanna and one of the present abiding places of John D. Rockefeller.

Seemingly fortuitous circumstances enter into the lives of many prominent men and become turning points in their careers, but they have played an especial star part in the onward march of Johnson. He was born in Kentucky in 1854, and his father was an officer in the Confederate army. The estate was swept away by the war, and young Tom began helping out the family finances by selling papers. His instincts as a captain of industry got into the game early, and he cornered the paper supply and made $84, enough to take the family from Virginia, where they were stopping, back to Kentucky. The lad then got a job in an iron mill at the munificent wages of $2 a week. Right here one of those fortuitous circumstances got in its work. The owners of the mill decided that they must economize and that they could not stand such extravagant salaries, so poor Tom lost his job. It proved to be the making of him. He got a new place with a street car company and before he was seventeen years old was superintendent of the concern and later made so many inventions and improvements that his mule power traction enterprise was the wonder of Louisville.

Johnson's three most noted inventions were the automatic car switch, the girder rail and the nickel-in-the slot contrivance which has thrown so many hardworking conductors out of jobs. I do not know whether all the slot machines with which the world is now pestered owe their origin to Tom Johnson or not, but for my own high opinion of him I hope not. He is too good a man to have been responsible for these devices that swallow all our stray pennies and nickels and give us nothing in return but bum weights, coon songs, wiggly pictures and chewing gum. Talk about octopi! Where is a more deadly one than the slot delusion, with its "capacious maw" and all the other attendants of well regulated trusts? Besides, think of the young men whose souls have been put in eternal peril because the temporary owners of these souls fixed up lead nickels and other devices to beat the machine!

Rival of Mark Hanna.

After making his big hit in the Kentucky metropolis Johnson while still in his teens broke into the street car situation in Indianapolis, buying up a broken down road for forty thousand that he and his associates put into such good shape that they soon sold it for a million. He then bought an old mule line in Cleveland, where Mark Hanna was the star street car performer. Mark said he would drive the interloper out of town, but Tom was in a little while the chief actor before the traction footlights, and Hanna had to take a secondary part, from which he could not entirely emerge until he steered his trolley into the political situation and ran over all competitors. Mark and Tom never did love each other, but they managed to live in the same town by lapping over into the national situation. Now, of these former business and political rivals Hanna is dead and Johnson is broke. Such are the vicissitudes of this ball of mud in the twentieth century.

Cleveland was not big enough to hold Tom Johnson as a traction magnate, so he captured the lines in Detroit, Brooklyn and elsewhere and also started rail mills in Pennsylvania. Then he saw the error of his way, withdrew from business, quit being a captain of industry and became a reformer pure and simple. In his campaigns for mayor he told the people that he had been taking their money away from them in five cent fares and otherwise, but that he would not do it any more and, as he knew the game, he would stop the other fellow from doing it likewise. He not only won out in four successive elections, but got the best of his enemies in the courts and elsewhere and continued in his career of victory till his three cent lines finally went into the hands of a receiver and Tom himself went busted. That is rather expensive fighting, but he says the seven years in which he has been engaged in it have been the best of his life, so there is little use of shedding tears over a reverse that the victim himself does not weep about. He makes no high browed claims to having been a martyr or anything of that sort, but says he was selfish in following his ideals because it made him happier than any other possible course could have done. He adds, however, that if he had desired to betray the people of Cleveland he could still be living on Good Times avenue with a paltry five millions or so in the bank. But what are five millions to the fun he has had walloping his political opponents and making the purse proud traction kings jump sideways?

Fond of Automobiling.

His fine Euclid avenue home, where he has entertained his political followers, Single Taxers and political reformers from all over, will now have to be sacrificed; also his automobiles, which have not only been a part of his cyclonic campaigns, but his one form of recreation. But he says he started life in a cottage, and, as he is about to start it all over again, it is the cottage for his once more. Likewise, since he made his fortune, both financial and political, out of street cars, he is not too proud to ride on street cars himself. That is not exactly what he said, and I have not time to hunt up his precise words and put quotes on them, but that expresses in my own kind of loose talk a general impression of what he gave out. Most of what these big men say is written by some reporter anyway, so you may as well take my version as any other.

One of the things I like about Johnson is that he was christened Tom and not the more pretentious Thomas, which is a fiction, since any Thomas that amounts to anything and is a good fellow is called Tom by everybody and only has Thomas put in the Bible and on his tombstone. The "three cent mayor" prefers not to sail under false colors, so it is Tom for his all the way along the line. What is good enough for a man to live by is good enough to be born by and to die by, even though it is nothing more than a front name.

Most Nervy Fighter.

Tom Johnson married his cousin, and when he did it he had little cash and only fair prospects, but his father-in-law said he made up for these deficiencies by a magnificent stock of home grown nerve. Now that he is again out of cash and has only fair prospects his nerve seems to stay by him. Some kinds of nerve only fill us with that fatigued feeling, but Johnson's variety inspires us with respect. He is about the nerviest fighter that ever bucked a corporation and a steam roller majority and left them both groggy after successive encounters.

Mayor Johnson made a three cent campaign, got three cent street cars and now has a three cent fortune. This shows that he is consistent. Even though he did not practice what he preached in the old days when he was high financier with his hands and a Henry George reformer with his vocal apparatus, he is practicing what he preaches now. This may be one more of those fortuitous circumstances, like the losing of his job in the foundry and the accidental reading of George's book, which are to prove a turning point in his career and make him a better if not a wealthier man. At least it will make him all one thing or all the other, which is an advantage to any of us. When we try to go two ways at once it is apt to make strained relations between our conduct and our consciences, to say nothing of the strained relations in our anatomies.

As for the loss of his fortune, what does that amount to? Tom Johnson is big enough that he does not need a pile of dollars to stand on.

MAYOR TOM L. JOHNSON OF CLEVELAND, HIS WIFE AND THEIR EUCLID AVENUE HOME.

Scarcity of Christmas Trees.

It is reported that the forest fires of the last year have destroyed or injured so many of the young pine trees in Wisconsin and Michigan that there will be a great scarcity of Christmas trees for the holidays, says a Grand Rapids (Wis.) dispatch. Orders from the cities have been pouring into the counties of Wood, Monroe and others which have always been able heretofore to supply the demand, and the woodsmen are unable to furnish one-quarter of the amount needed this year.

China's New Coinage.

The one tael silver coins which have been adopted as the standard coin of Chinese currency are expected to be minted next year. They will be limited to 10,000,000.

Factors of Safety

The human body is a wonderful machine, provided with muscular, nervous and mental energy far in excess of normal needs. In health, the organs and tissues can do double their usual amount of work without strain or friction, because they have stored energy to meet the extra demand.

When you feel "all tuckered out," these factors of safety are nearly exhausted and you need to resort to

to renew the supply of energy, wherever it may be called for.

Indigestion, bilious attacks, constipation, loss of sleep, nervousness, dizzy spells, are warnings that the factor of safety in the stomach, liver, bowels or brain, is low, or nearing the danger point and needs to be replenished.

TWO DAYS AHEAD OF SCHEDULE TIME

American Battleships Arrive at Suez From Colombo

SPERRY IS PLEASED WITH RUN

All the Vessels In First Class Fighting Condition—Yankton and Culgoa Going to Messina at Full Speed—Heaviest Ever Put Through Canal—Tolls Will Be About $150,000

Suez, Jan. 4.—The United States Atlantic battleship fleet finished, two days ahead of its schedule time, the next to the longest run of its world's girdling cruise, by arriving here Sunday from Colombo. The distance is 3440 knots.

The fleet sailed from Colombo Dec. 20. The loss of a seaman from the battleship Illinois, who fell overboard and was drowned, was the only accident to mar the voyage from Colombo.

The array of battleships was an impressive sight. The weather was splendid and the bay was crowded with launches and sailing craft, the occupants of which enthusiastically welcomed the ships which, despite their long trip, looked as smart and trim as though they had turned out for a naval review. All the vessels were in first rate fighting condition.

When the fleet had come to anchor the Egyptian and canal authorities went aboard the flagship and welcomed Rear Admiral Sperry, who expressed himself as well satisfied with the results of the cruise from Colombo.

Universal regret is expressed by the people here that the visit of the battleships will be brief. It had been expected that a representative officer would visit Cairo and be presented to the khedive on the anniversary of his accession to the throne, Jan. 8. A contingent of officers and men left by special train for Cairo Sunday afternoon.

The converted cruiser Yankton entered the canal Sunday afternoon and the supply ship Culgoa passed in last night. The former has a number of doctors aboard and the latter a large supply of provisions and stores. Both are going to Messina at full speed.

The canal authorities have made special arrangements for all the battleships to have a clear run through the canal and they therefore will not stop at any of the numerous stations where ships usually tie up to permit the passage of vessels which ordinarily have the right of way.

The battleships are moored in three lines. The Connecticut, the Vermont, the Kansas and the Minnesota entered the canal at 6 o'clock this morning and are due at Port Said at 10 o'clock tonight. The second group, consisting of the Louisiana, Kentucky, Ohio, Missouri and the Virginia, will enter tomorrow, and the third line, composed of the Wisconsin, Kearsarge, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Georgia and the Nebraska, will start Wednesday. At Port Said coal will be taken on board the battleships by their crews.

The passage of the canal is regarded as a safe one, even for 16,000 ton vessels, such as the Connecticut class, which will be the heaviest fighting ships that ever have gone through. None of the British Dreadnaught types have made this voyage.

The canal is 87 miles long, 66 miles being through dry land and 21 through the Menzeleb Ballah, Timsah and the Bitter lakes.

Leave to go through the Suez canal will cost the United States government, with quarantine and other dues, not far from $150,000. The regular tolls are $1.47 per ton. British shipping companies which use the canal are continuously complaining against this rate, which they aver is unreasonable and an excessive tax on commerce.

MEYER IN TAFT CABINET

Likely to Be Secretary of the Navy If Retained by Next President

Augusta, Ga., Jan. 4.—Senator Lodge left here last evening for Washington. In discussing his visit Mr. Taft says that besides giving him a general idea of the probable makeup of the senate committees after March 4, Lodge had strongly urged the retention of the Taft cabinet of Postmaster General Meyer.

While no particular portfolio for Meyer was mentioned, it was understood that if he was retained it would be either as secretary of the navy or secretay of the treasury, with the navy department the most likely.

Clergyman's Home Robbed

North Attleboro, Mass., Jan. 4.—While Rev. Albert Crabtree, pastor of the Attleboro Episcopal church, was assisting Bishop Lawrence in confirmation exercises at Mansfield, burglars ransacked his home and secured about $500 in money, jewelry and silverware.

The Oil Trust will have to put in a new underground pipeline into Missouri.

It would be easy enough to catch your wife under the mistletoe. Ever think of that?

With Mr. Pulitzer and Mr. Bigelow both in Panama, the President doubtless expects to hear of many new discoveries down there.

Mr. "Abe" Ruef, ex-boss and king of grafters says he hopes "to get justice from the Supreme Court of California." Right here is where we say "Amen" to "Abe's" observation.

There is so ardent a chorus of approval of Mr. Knox's selection to the Secretary of State that it might make him uneasy. Usually when the American people put a man on a pedestal they come around a week or two later, ask who is "nibs" and begin to toss rocks at him.

The report comes from Washington to the effect that the War Department is being besieged with inquiries as to the methods to be pursued in organizing civilian rifle clubs which may secure from the Secretary of War such magazine rifles belonging to the United States as are not needed for the equipment of the army and the organized militia. Under the provisions of an act of Congress, approved March 3, 1905, Civilian rifle club composed of clubs not less than twenty citizens between the ages of 16 and 45 in any locality after adopting certain by-laws approved by the Secretary of War, may through the governor of the state or territory in which they are located, make requisitions upon the Secretary of War for the rifles and equipment needed. After organization the Club affiliates with the National Rifle Association of America and becomes a member of the third class. The fees for such clubs are $10 which covers the first year's dues and $5 a year thereafter. All civilian rifle clubs having less than fifty members are entitled to one vote at all meetings of the National Rifle Association and those having more than fifty members are entitled to two votes.

The object of this act is to create an interest in marksmanship, and it is one of the schemes devised by the War Deparment to create a reserve force in case of war.

The great hue and cry of the average citizen is taxes, and until some means reducing the rate and equalizing the property valuation, is devised the, cry will continue. In Quincy, according to official statistics, the net increase in valuation for the year 1908 was $1,362,-773.

At first sight one wonders why with this increase in valuation, the tax rate should still be so high.

Although the valuation has been jumped, a glance at the assessors' books discloses the fact that there is still much so-called unimproved or waste land listed, which requires a stretch of theimagination to regard it as such. It is very doubtful if the owners of such property would call it waste land if they were attempting to dispose of it.

Would it not be well for the Mayor to have the City Solicitor look up the tax laws of Massachusetts and see if large parcels of land now taxed as farm or waste lands, should not be assessed as developed land, especially when such lands are fit for building purposes and have thermore front on accepted streets?

The reason we ask this question is because when property owners have been approached with an intent to purchase for improvement by building houses or manufacturing plants, the owners will not sell at any price even when said lands are assessed on the "farm" or "waste" basis.

It is a matter of common talk that the policy of the present Board of Assessors is to raise the city valuation (which by the way governs the debt limit) gradually, but would it not be well to first get after the persons whose property is under assessed?

Then again if the burden of taxes was equally distributed, would there be need of yearly increasing the valuation, so as to keep the tax rate down, or extend the debt limit. This is a question that must be settled if Quincy is to occupy the place commercially she is entitled to.

At the present time with over valuation in many cases and under valuation in others, and with a prohibitive tax rate the city cannot forge ahead as she should. It is up to the assessors to make an investigation, and when they find a person over assessed or under assessed to do the square thing by them and not wait for the next board to give them justice.

With the advent of the new year, the Ledger is entering its twenty-first year and like any other husky youngster, attaining man's estate has made many resolutions for the coming years.

It resolved to start the new year by getting better acquainted with the citizens of Quincy; by broadening its scope of usefulness.

It resolved to be a wide-awake, industrious, progressive and independent paper, working for the best interests of the city and its citizens.

It also resolved to be clean and honest, purging its advertising columns of all dead and objectionable advertisements. And it has done this, for on its birthday it refused absolutely, to take a liquor advertisement, thereby throwing away a large sum of money.

At the present time the world looks good to the Ledger, and the year is full of bright prospects. Its advertising space is being contracted for, so rapidly that it hopes soon to be able to increase its size. Although the world moves slowly, and it takes time to make any great changes the few that have already been made in the Ledger have been noticed and favorably commented upon, by many of our readers and contemporaries.

Like many of the citizens, the Ledger believes that Quincy has a bright future, from a commercial viewpoint, and it is going to do all in its power to help make the city, something better than a "Boston bedroom."

The old saying, "that everything comes to him who waits" may be true, but the Ledger believes that everything comes to him, who goes out after it has the right ring, and that is to be one of its many rules for the coming year.

A large tree had been erected in one end of the hall and from this the goblin distributd the presents and candy to the children. This was followed by the children pulling the tree to pieces according to a Swedish custom.

A supper was then served to the children after which they frolicked about the hall and had a general good time.

MORE LIGHT ON CITY CHARTER.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

It is exceedingly interesting to inquire and important for the people to understand just why and for what reasons City Solicitor McAnarney and Mr. Charles W. Hanscom objected to the amendment of Mr. George H. Brown, or that part of the amendment which related to the abolition of ward lines in electing councilman under a new or repaired city charter, if same is obtained. I understand perfectly well that the discussion to which I refer took place at a meeting of a special committee appointed to propose amendments to the city charter, and that no one is under any obligation to enlighten our citizens on the point which I make mention of at this particular time, or other points which I will probably call to the attention of the people at any later time. While I appreciate this fact, at the same time, I assume, that although these amendments are being made and will be proposed by a special committee, not a part of our city government, and bound in no way to give out information which it does not choose to give, that inasmuch as that which is being done is being done in the interest of the public, it would seem that if the people could have full knowledge through the press of the transactions of the committee in question, or any other body dealing on the subject, an insight into all that transpires pertaining to this subject of great local concern, I think, the form of government which the people will later be called upon to either indorse or reject, would be more fully understood. It is far more important to understand how the house is built than to know that the structure has actually been completed.

Mark me, I said through the press. It is an undisputed fact that the utterances of our newspapers have greater weight, are accorded greater credit and enlighten the public on questions of great public concern far more than any orator can do or hope to do. The newspaper goes to its audience, while the man who speaks in public must depend upon his audience coming to him. The voice of the press can be heard in every household, while the public speaker can be heard only on the platform or within the confines of some particular hall or meeting house.

As there is a reason for everything in the world, if one could but find it out, so there must necessarily be reasons for arriving at every conclusion which will be reached in connection with the amendments for our city charter. Much more important than the result is to know and understand the means by which the result is obtained.

As the judges say in cases coming before them for decision, so will I say in this case, in behalf of the stay-at-homes, if any of our citizens are public spirited enough to earnestly and purposefully discuss the proposed reforms in our city government, then "let us hear the arguments on both sides."

MESSAGE ON THE SECRET SERVICE

President Replies to Congressional Resolution.

SAYS HE DID NOT HIT AT HOUSE

Language In Annual Communication Called Objectionable by Representatives Will Stand Analysis, Declares Executive—He Renews His Argument For Repeal of Law Limiting Activities of Treasury Agents—Cites Cases In Which They Have Aided In Punishment of Violators of Federal Laws.

Washington, Jan. 4.—In a special message to the house of representatives today President Roosevelt says:

To the House of Representatives:

I have received the resolution of the house of representatives of Dec. 17, 1908, running as follows:

Whereas, There was contained in the sundry civil appropriation bill which passed congress at its last session and became a law a provision in reference to the employment of the secret service in the treasury department; and,

Whereas, In the last annual message of the president of the United States to the two houses of congress it was stated in reference to that provision, "It is not too much to say that this amendment has been of benefit only and could be of benefit only to the criminal classes," and it was further stated, "The chief argument in favor of the provision was that the congressmen did not themselves wish to be investigated by secret service men," and it was further stated, "But if this is not considered desirable a special exception could be made in the law prohibiting the use of the secret service force in investigating members of congress," it would be far better to do this than to do what actually was done and strive to prevent or at least to hamper effective action against criminals by the executive branch of the government; and,

Whereas, The plain meaning of the above words is that the majority of the congressmen were in fear of being investigated by secret service men and that congress as a whole was actuated by that motive in enacting the provision in question; and,

Whereas, Your committee appointed to consider these statements of the president and to report to the house cannot find in the hearings before committees nor in the records of the house or senate any justification of this impeachment of the honor and integrity of the congress; and,

Whereas, Your committee would prefer in order to make an intelligent and comprehensive report, just to the president as well as to the congress, to have all the information which the president may have to communicate; now, therefore,

Be it resolved, That the president be requested to transmit to the house any evidence upon which he based his statements that the "chief argument in favor of the provision was that the congressmen did not themselves wish to be investigated by secret service men" and also to transmit to the house any evidence connecting any member of the house of representatives of the Sixtieth congress with corrupt action in his official capacity and to inform the house whether he has instituted proceedings for the punishment of any such individual by the courts or has reported any such alleged delinquencies to the house of representatives.

"I Cannot Understand Resolution."

I am wholly at a loss to understand the concluding portion of the resolution. I have made no charges of corruption against congress nor against any member of the present house. If I had proof of such corruption affecting any member of the house in any matter as to which the federal government has jurisdiction, action would at once be brought, as was done in the cases of Senators Mitchell and Burton and Representatives Williamson, Herrmann and Driggs at different times since I have been president. This would simply be doing my duty in the execution and enforcement of the laws without respect to persons. But I do not regard it as within the province or the duties of the president to report to the house "alleged delinquencies" of members or the supposed "corrupt action" of a member "in his official capacity." The membership of the house is by the constitution placed within the power of the house alone. In the prosecution of criminals and the enforcement of the laws the president must resort to the courts of the United States.

Portion of Message Quoted.

In the third and fourth clauses of the preamble it is stated that the meaning of my words is that "the majority of the congressmen are in fear of being investigated by secret service men," and that "congress as a whole was actuated by that motive in enacting the provision in question," and that this is an impeachment of the honor and integrity of the congress. These statements are not, I think, in accordance with the facts. The portion of my message referred to runs as follows:

Last year an amendment was incorporated in the measure providing for the secret service which provided that there should be no detail from the secret service and no transfer therefrom. It is not too much to say that this amendment has been of benefit only and could be of benefit only to the criminal classes. If deliberately introduced for the purpose of diminishing the effectiveness of war against crime it could not have been better devised to this end. It forbade the practices that had been followed to a greater or less extent by the executive heads of various departments for twenty years. To these practices we owe the securing of the evidence which enabled us to drive great lotteries out of business and secure a quarter of a million of dollars in fines from their promoters. These practices have enabled us to discover some of the most outrageous frauds in connection with the theft of government land and government timber by great corporations and by individuals. These practices have enabled us to get some of the evidence indispensable in order to secure the conviction of the wealthiest and most formidable criminals with whom the government has to deal, both those operating in violation of the anti-trust law and others. The amendment in question was of benefit to no one excepting to these criminals, and it seriously hampers the government in the detection of crime and the securing of justice. Moreover, it not only affects departments outside of the treasury, but it tends to hamper the secretary of the treasury himself in the effort to utilize the employees of his department so as to best meet the requirements of the public service. It forbids him from preventing frauds upon the customs service, from investigating irregularities in branch mints and assay offices and has seriously crippled him. It prevents the promotion of employees in the secret service, and this further discourages good effort. In its present form the restriction operates only to the advantage of the criminal, of the wrongdoer.

The chief argument in favor of the provision was that the congressmen did not themselves wish to be investigated by secret service men. Very little of such investigation has been done in the past. But it is true that the work of the secret service agents was partly responsible for the indictment and conviction of a senator and a congressman for land frauds in Oregon. I do not believe that it is in the public interest to protect criminals in any branch of the public service, and, exactly as we have again and again during the past seven years prosecuted and convicted such criminals who were in the executive branch of the government, so in my belief we should be given ample means to prosecute them if found in the legislative branch. But if this is not considered desirable a special exception could be made in the law prohibiting the use of the secret service force in investigating members of the congress. It would be far better to do this than to do what actually was done and strive to prevent or at least to hamper effective action against criminals by the executive branch of the government.

Asks Careful Reading of Message.

A careful reading of this message will show that I said nothing to warrant the statement that "the majority of the congressmen were in fear of being investigated by the secret service men" or "that congress as a whole was actuated by that motive." I did not make any such statement in this message. Moreover, I have never made any such statement about congress as a whole nor, with a few inevitable exceptions, about the members of congress in any message or article or speech. On the contrary, I have always not only deprecated, but vigorously resented, the practice of indiscriminate attack upon congress and indiscriminate condemnation of all congressmen, wise and unwise, fit and unfit, good and bad alike. No one realizes more than I the importance of co-operation between the executive and congress, and no one holds the authority and dignity of the congress of the United States in higher respect than I do. I have not the slightest sympathy with the practice of judging men for good or for ill not on their several merits, but in a mass, as members of one particular body or one caste. To put together all men holding or who have held a particular office, whether it be the office of president or judge or senator or member of the house of representatives, and to class them all, without regard to their individual differences, as good or bad seems to me utterly indefensible, and it is equally indefensible whether the good are confounded with the bad in a heated and unwarranted championship of all or in a heated and unwarranted assault upon all. I would neither attack nor defend all executive officers in a mass, whether presidents, governors, cabinet officers or officials of lower rank, nor would I attack or defend all legislative officers in a mass. The safety of free government rests very largely in the ability of the plain, everyday citizen to discriminate between those public servants who serve him well and those public servants who serve him ill. He cannot thus discriminate if he is persuaded to pass judgment upon a man not with reference to whether he is a fit or unfit public servant, but with reference to whether he is an executive or legislative officer, whether he belongs to one branch or the other of the government.

Says Message Is Misunderstood.

This allegation in the resolution, therefore, must certainly be due to an entire failure to understand my message.

The resolution continues, "That the president be requested to transmit to the house any evidence upon which he based his statements that the 'chief argument in favor of the provision was that the congressmen did not themselves wish to be investigated by secret service men.'" This statement, which was an attack upon no one, still less upon the congress, is sustained by the facts.

If you will turn to the Congressional Record for May 1 last, pages 5553 to 5560, inclusive, you will find the debate on this subject. Mr. Tawney of Minnesota, Mr. Smith of Iowa, Mr. Sherley of Kentucky and Mr. Fitzgerald of New York appear in this debate as the special champions of the provision referred to. Messrs. Parsons, Bennet and Driscoll were the leaders of those who opposed the adoption of the amendment and upheld the right of the government to use the most efficient means possible in order to detect criminals and to prevent and punish crime. The amendment was carried in the committee of the whole, where no votes of the individual members are recorded, so I am unable to discriminate by mentioning the members who voted for and the members who voted against the provision, but its passage, the journal records, was greeted with applause. I am well aware, however, that in any case of this kind many members who have no particular knowledge of the point at issue are content simply to follow the lead of the committee which had considered the matter, and I have no doubt that many members of the house simply followed the lead of Messrs. Tawney and Smith without having had the opportunity to know very much as to the rights and wrongs of the question.

I would not ordinarily attempt in this way to discriminate between members of the house, but as objection has been taken to my language, in which I simply spoke of the action of the house as a whole, and as apparently there is a desire that I should thus discriminate I will state that I think the responsibility rested on the committee on appropriations under the lead of the members whom I have mentioned.

Replies to Request For Evidence.

Now as to the request of the congress that I give the evidence for my statement that the chief argument in favor of the provision was that the congressmen did not themselves wish to be investigated by secret service men.

The part of the Congressional Record to which I have referred above entirely supports this statement. Two lines of argument were followed in the debate. One concerned the question whether the law warranted the employment of the secret service in departments other than the treasury, and this did not touch the merits of the service in the least. The other line of argument went to the merits of the service, whether lawfully or unlawfully employed, and here the chief if not the only argument used was that the service should be cut down and restricted because its members had "shadowed" or investigated members of congress and other officers of the government. If we examine the debate in detail it appears that most of what was urged in favor of the amendment took the form of the simple statement that the committee held that there had been a "violation of law" by the use of the secret service for other purposes than suppressing counterfeiting (and one or two other matters which can be disregarded) and that such language was now to be used as would effectually prevent all such "violation of law" hereafter. Mr. Tawney, for instance, says, "It was for the purpose of stopping the use of this service in every possible way by the departments of the government that this provision was inserted," and Mr. Smith says, "Now, that was the only way in which any limitation could be put upon the activities of the secret service." Mr. Fitzgerald followed in the same vein, and by far the largest part of the argument against the employment of the secret service was confined to the statement that it was in "violation of law." Of course such a statement is not in any way an argument in favor of the justice of the provision. It is not an argument for the provision at all. It is simply a statement of what the gentlemen making it conceive to have been the law. There was both by implication and direct statement the assertion that it was the law and ought to be the law, that the secret service should only be used to suppress counterfeiting and that the law should be made more rigid than ever in this respect.

No Restrictions on Service.

Incidentally I may say that in my judgment there is ample legal authority for the statement that this appropriation law to which reference was made imposes no restrictions whatever upon the use of the secret service men, but relates solely to the expenditure of the money appropriated. Mr. Tawney in the debate stated that he had in his possession "a letter from the secretary of the treasury received a few days ago" in which the secretary of the treasury "himself admits that the provisions under which the appropriation has been made have been violated year after year for a number of years in his own department." I append herewith as Appendix A the letter referred to. [Appendix A is a letter from Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou to the chairman of the committee on appropriations of the house of representatives, dated April 29, 1908, protesting against the proposed law abridging the right of the secretary of the treasury to detail secret service men to work in other divisions of his department. Such abridgement, he declared, would be "distinctly to the advantage of violators of criminal statutes of the United States."] It makes no such admission as that which Mr. Tawney alleges. It contains, on the contrary, as you will see by reading it, an "emphatic protest against any such abridgement of the rights delegated to the secretary of the treasury by existing law" and concludes by asserting that he "is quite within his rights in thus employing the service of these agents" and that the proposed modification which Mr. Tawney succeeded in carrying through would be "distinctly to the advantage of violators of criminal statutes of the United States." I call attention to the fact that in this letter of Secretary Cortelyou to Mr. Tawney, as in my letter to the speaker quoted below, the explicit statement is made that the proposed change will be for the benefit of the criminals, a statement which I simply reiterated in public form in my message to the congress this year and which is also contained in effect in the report of the secretary of the treasury to the congress.

"Private Conduct" of Members.

A careful reading of the Congressional Record will also show that practically the only arguments advanced in favor of the limitation proposed by Mr. Tawney's committee beyond what may be supposed to be contained by implication in certain sentences as to "abuses" which were not specified were those contained in the repeated statements of Mr. Sherley. Mr. Sherley stated that there had been "pronounced abuses growing out of the use of the secret service for purposes other than those intended," putting his statement in the form of a question, and in the same form further stated that the "private conduct" of "members of congress, senators" and others ought not to be investigated by the secret service and that they should not investigate a "member of congress" who had been accused of "conduct unbecoming a gentleman and a member of congress." In addition to these assertions, couched as questions, he made one positive declaration that "this secret service at one time was used for the purpose of looking into the personal conduct of a member of congress." This argument of Mr. Sherley, the only real argument as to the merits of the question made on behalf of the committee on appropriations, will be found in columns 1 and 2 of page 5556 and column 1 of page 5557 of the Congressional Record. In column 1 of page 5556 Mr. Sherley refers to the impropriety of permitting the secret service men to investigate men in the departments, officers of the army and navy and senators and congressmen. In column 2 he refers to officers of the navy and members of congress. In column 1, page 5557, he refers only to members of congress. His speech puts most weight on the investigation of members of congress.

Newspaper Article Reproduced.

What appears in the record is filled out and explained by an article which appeared in the Chicago Inter Ocean of Jan. 3, 1904, under a Washington headline and which marked the beginning of this agitation against the secret service. It was a special article of about 3,000 words, written, as I was then informed and now understand, by Mr. L. W. Busbey, at that time private secretary to the speaker of the house. I inclose a copy of certain extracts from the article, marked Appendix B. [Appendix B consists of an article from the Chicago Inter Ocean of Jan. 3, 1904. In this John E. Wilkie, chief of the secret service of the treasury department, is described as ambitious of becoming "the Fouche of the United States," in imitation of Fouche, chief of the secret police of Napoleon I. The article declares that the secret service bureau exists without warrant of congressional action and that congress has always been antagonistic to the bureau.] It contained an utterly unwarranted attack on the secret service division of the treasury department and its chief. The opening paragraph includes, for instance, statements like the following:

He (the chief of the division) and his men are desirous of doing the secret detective work for the whole government and are not particular about drawing the line between the lawmakers and the lawbreakers. They are ready to shadow the former as well as the latter.

Then, after saying that congress will insist that the men shall only be used to stop counterfeiting, the article goes on:

Congress does not intend to have a Fouche or any other kind of minister of police to be used by the executive departments against the legislative branch of the government. It has been so used, and it is suspected that it has been so used recently. * * * The legislative branch of the government will not tolerate the meddling of detectives, whether they represent the president, cabinet officers or only themselves. * * * Congressmen resented the secret interference of the secret service men who for weeks shadowed some of the most respected members of the house and senate. * * * When it was discovered that the secret service men were shadowing congressmen there was a storm of indignation at the capitol, and the bureau came near being abolished and the appropriation for the suppression of counterfeiting cut off. * * * At another time the chief of the secret service had his men shadow congressmen with a view to involving them in scandals that would enable the bureau to dictate to them as the price of silence. * * * The secret service men have shown an inclination again to shadow members of congress, knowing them to be lawmakers, and this is no joke. Several of the departments have asked congress for secret funds for investigation, and the treasury department wants the limitation removed from the appropriation for suppressing counterfeiting. This shows a tendency toward Foucheism and a secret watch on other officials than themselves.

At the time of this publication the work of the secret service which was thus assailed included especially the investigation of great land frauds in the west and the securing of evidence to help the department of justice in the beef trust investigations at Chicago, which resulted in successful prosecutions.

In view of Mr. Busbey's position I have accepted the above quoted statements as fairly expressing the real meaning and animus of the attacks made in general terms on the use of the secret service for the punishment of criminals. Furthermore, in the performance of my duty to endeavor to find the feelings of congressmen on public questions of note I have frequently discussed this particular matter with members of congress, and on such occasions the reasons alleged to me for the hostility of congress to the secret service, both by those who did and by those who did not share this hostility, were almost invariably the same as those set forth in Mr. Busbey's article. I may add, by the way, that these allegations as to the secret service are wholly without foundation in fact.

Real Issue Named.

But all of this is of insignificant importance compared with the main, the real, issue. This issue is simply, Does congress desire that the government shall have at its disposal the most efficient instrument for the detection of criminals and the prevention and punishment of crime, or does it not? The action of the house last May was emphatically an action against the interest of justice and against the interest of law abiding people and in its effect of benefit only to lawbreakers. I am not now dealing with motives. Whatever may have been the motive that induced the action of which I speak, this was beyond all question the effect of that action. Is the house now willing to remedy the wrong?

For a long time I contented myself with endeavoring to persuade the house not to permit the wrong, speaking informally on the subject with those members who, I believed, knew anything of the matter and communicating officially only in the ordinary channels, as through the secretary of the treasury. In a letter to the speaker on April 30, protesting against the cutting down of the appropriation vitally necessary if the interstate commerce commission was to carry into effect the twentieth section of the Hepburn law, I added: "The provision about the employment of the secret service men will work very great damage to the government in its endeavor to prevent and punish crime. There is no more foolish outcry than this against 'spies.' Only criminals need fear our detectives." I inclose copy of the whole letter, marked "Appendix C." The postscript is blurred in my copy book, and two or three of the words cannot be deciphered.) [Appendix C is a letter dated April 30, 1908, from President Roosevelt to Speaker Cannon protesting against the cutting down in the sundry civil bill of the appropriation for secret service work. "The only people benefited would be the very worst of the big railroad men whose misdeeds we are trying to prevent or correct," were the words of the president.] These methods proved unavailing to prevent the wrong. Messrs. Tawney and Smith and their fellow members on the appropriations committee paid no heed to the protests, and as the obnoxious provision was incorporated in the sundry civil bill it was impossible for me to consider or discuss it on its merits, as I should have done had it been in a separate bill. Therefore I have now taken the only method available, that of discussing it in my message to congress, and as all efforts to secure what I regard as proper treatment of the subject without recourse to plain speaking had failed I have spoken plainly and directly and have set forth the facts in explicit terms.

[Here the president gives instances in which the secret service men have been instrumental in securing convictions of offenses against federal laws, citing especially the land fraud cases.]

In connection with the Nebraska prosecution the government has by decree secured the return to the government of over a million acres of grazing land, in Colorado of more than 2,000 acres of mineral land, and suits are now pending involving 150,000 acres more.

Department's Agents Dishonest.

All these investigations in the land cases were undertaken in consequence of Mr. Hitchcock, the then secretary of the interior, becoming convinced that there were extensive frauds committed in his department, and the ramifications of the frauds were so farreaching that he was afraid to trust his own officials to deal in thoroughgoing fashion with them. One of the secret service men accordingly resigned and was appointed in the interior department to carry on this work. The first thing he discovered was that the special agents' division or corps of detectives of the land office of the interior department was largely under the control of the land thieves, and in consequence the investigations above referred to had to be made by secret service men.

If the present law, for which Messrs. Tawney, Smith and the other gentlemen I have above mentioned are responsible, had then been in effect this action would have been impossible and most of the criminals would unquestionably have escaped. No more striking instance can be imagined of the desirability of having a central corps of skilled investigating agents who can at any time be assigned, if necessary in large numbers, to investigate some violation of the federal statutes, in no matter what branch of the public service. In this particular case most of the men investigated who were public servants were in the executive branch of the government. But in Oregon, where an enormous acreage of fraudulently alienated public land was recovered for the government, a United States senator, Mr. Mitchell, and a member of the lower house, Mr. Williamson, were convicted on evidence obtained by men transferred from the secret service, and another member of congress was indicted.

Stopped Naturalization Frauds.

From 1901 to 1904 a successful investigation of naturalization affairs was made by the secret service, with the result of obtaining hundreds of convictions of conspirators who were convicted of selling fraudulent papers of naturalization. (Subsequently congress passed a very wise law providing a special service and appropriation for the prevention of naturalization frauds, but unfortunately at the same time that the action against the secret service was taken congress also cut down the appropriation for this special service, with the result of crippling the effort to stop frauds in naturalization.) The fugitives Greene and Gaynor, implicated in a peculiarly big government contract fraud, were located and arrested in Canada by the secret service, and, thanks to this, they have since gone to prison for their crimes.

The secret service was used to assist in the investigation of crimes under the peonage laws, and owing partly thereto numerous convictions were secured and the objectionable practice was practically stamped out, at least in many districts. The most extensive smuggling of silk and opium in the history of the treasury department was investigated by agents of the secret service in New York and Seattle and a successful prosecution of the offenders undertaken. Assistance of the utmost value was rendered to the department of justice in the beef trust investigation at Chicago; prosecutions were followed up and fines inflicted. The cotton leak scandal in the agricultural department was investigated and the responsible parties located. What was done in connection with lottery investigations is disclosed in a letter just sent to me by the United States attorney for Delaware, running as follows:

The destruction of the Honduras National Lottery company, successor to the Louisiana Lottery company, was entirely the work of the secret service. * * * This excellent work was accomplished by Mr. Wilkie and his subordinates. I thought it might be timely to recall this prosecution.

Lottery Cases and Others.

Three hundred thousand dollars in fines were collected by the government in the lottery cases. Again, the ink contract fraud in the bureau of engraving and printing (a bureau of the treasury department) was investigated by the secret service and the guilty parties brought to justice. Mr. Tawney stated in the debate that this was not investigated by the secret service, but by a clerk "down there," conveying the impression that the clerk was not in the secret service. As a matter of fact, he was in the secret service. His name was Moran, and he was promoted to assistant chief for the excellence of his work in this case. The total expense for the office and field force of the secret service last year was $135,000, and by this one investigation they saved to the government over $100,000 a year. Thanks to the restriction imposed by congress, it is now very difficult for the secretary of the treasury to use the secret service freely even in his own department—for instance, to use them to repeat what they did so admirably in the case of this ink contract. The government is further crippled by the law forbidding it to employ detective agencies. Of course the government can detect the most dangerous crimes and punish the worst criminals only by the use either of the secret service or of private detectives. To hamper it in using the one and forbid it to resort to the other can inure to the benefit of none save the criminals.

Secretary Cortelyou Sustained.

The facts above given show beyond possibility of doubt that what the secretary of the treasury and I had both written prior to the enactment of the obnoxious provision and what I have since written in my message to the congress state the facts exactly as they are. The obnoxious provision is of benefit only to the criminal class and can be of benefit only to the criminal class. If it had been embodied in the law at the time when I became president, all the prosecutions above mentioned and many others of the same general type would either not have been undertaken or would have been undertaken with the government at a great disadvantage, and many and probably most of the chief offenders would have gone scot free instead of being punished for their crimes.

Such a body as the secret service, such a body of trained investigating agents, occupying a permanent position in the government service and separate from local investigating forces in different departments, is an absolute necessity if the best work is to be done against criminals. It is by far the most efficient instrument possible to use against crime. Of course the more efficient an instrument is the more dangerous it is if misused. To the argument that a force like this can be misused it is only necessary to answer that the condition of its usefulness if handled properly is that it shall be so efficient as to be dangerous if handled improperly. Any instance of abuse by the secret service or other investigating force in the departments should be unsparingly punished, and congress should hold itself ready at any and all times to investigate the executive departments whenever there is reason to believe that any such instance of abuse has occurred. I wish to emphasize my more than cordial acquiescence in the view that this is not only the right of congress, but emphatically its duty. To use the secret service in the investigation of purely private or political matters would be a gross abuse. But there has been no single instance of such abuse during my term as president.

The President's Appeal.

In conclusion, I most earnestly ask in the name of good government and decent administration, in the name of honesty and for the purpose of bringing to justice violators of the federal laws wherever they may be found, whether in public or private life, that the action taken by the house last year be reversed. When this action was taken the senate committee, under the lead of the late Senator Allison, having before it a strongly worded protest (Appendix D) from Secretary Cortelyou like that he had sent to Mr. Tawney, accepted the secretary's views, and the senate passed the bill in the shape presented by Senator Allison. In the conference, however, the house conferees insisted on the retention of the provision they had inserted, and the senate yielded. [Appendix D consists of a letter from Secretary Cortelyou to the late William B. Allison, chairman of the senate committee on appropriations, dated May 5, 1908. In it the secretary protests vigorously against the amendment to the sundry civil bill prohibiting the payment of "any person detailed or transferred from the secret service division." He gives reasons for such details and in an appendix cites instances in which the secret service men have been detailed effectively in cases outside the treasury department.]

The chief of the secret service is paid a salary utterly inadequate to the importance of his functions and to the admirably way in which he has performed them. I earnestly urge that it be increased to $6,000 per annum. I also urge that the secret service be placed where it properly belongs and made a bureau in the department of justice, as the chief of the secret service has repeatedly requested. But, whether this is done or not, it should be explicitly provided that the secret service can be used to detect and punish crime wherever it is found.

STROMBOLI PEOPLE IN A PANIC

Violent Shock and an Eruption

MEASURES FOR RELIEF

King and Queen Return to Rome and Give Orders

THIEVES SWARM EVERYWHERE

Continuance of Earth Shocks In the Stricken District

Rome, Jan. 4.—A violent earth earth shock lasting three seconds and during which the Stromboli volcano began eruption, occurred on Stromboli Island Sunday. The phenomenon was accompanied by prolonged dull rumblings.

The houses on the island were badly damaged and the populace fled to the streets in panic, but no one was hurt. The weather is intensely cold on Stromboli Island.

The island of Stromboli is the northeasternmost of the Lipari group, which lie about thirty miles off the north coast of Sicily. It is almost circular in form and on it is the volcano of Stromboli, which rises about 3000 feet above the sea and has been almost perpetually active for the better part of 2000 years. The population of the island is about 2000.

The crater of the volcano faces the northwest and is about one-third down the side of the mountain. It is about 170 yards in diameter. The principal town of the island, with a battery, stands on the eastern side and is divided into two parts, San Vincenzo and San Bartolomeo. The houses are low, with flat roofs, though some of them are two stories high.

Despite the stupendous volcano on the island, the soil there is extremely fertile, and some of the finest wines in the Mediterranean are made there, and a moderate quantity of wheat, barley, cotton and figs are grown.

King and Queen Return

The king and queen arrived in this city last night, coming by motor car from Naples. Their early arrival was unexpected. The queen looked tired and depressed, but the king was energetic as usual.

They went quietly to the palace, wishing to avoid any kind of manifestation. As soon as the news of their arrival spread, however, the people could not refrain from gathering and manifesting their admiration for the noble deeds of the sovereigns in their work among the afflicted.

The king communicated immediately with Premier Giolitti, urging that measures for the benefit of the sufferers be adopted at once. The premier has been working day and night and has succeeded in providing shelter, in the way of tents, hospitals and asylums, for 12,000 people, while other arrangements are being made to provide for many thousands more.

The American ambassador, Lloyd C. Griscom, has appointed a committee of Americans to which will be intrusted the work of utilizing the money received from the United States to the best advantage for the earthquake sufferers.

Thieves Among Ruins

Both at Messina and Reggio the guards are having difficulty in protecting the survivors and the vast treasures in the ruined buildings from the bands of thieves that are swarming everywhere. It is reported that six Russian sailors have been shot by looters at Messina and that sixteen criminals have been killed at the same place.

Six hundred persons engaged in pillaging have been arrested. In an engagement at Reggio between the police and bandits, two of the police were killed.

Reports still reach here of the continuance of earth shocks, some of which are of sufficient force to do further great damage. According to these reports, new shocks yesterday at Pellaro precipitated the entire population into the sea, including both the dead and living victims of the first earthquake.

At Reggio the people are becoming more calm, and aid to that city is now being systematically forwarded. Military zones have been establishel throughout Calabria.

During the first days following the disaster the saving of the wounded was the only thing thought of. As late as Friday a number of persons still living were taken from the ruins, but they died upon reaching the open air. Practically only the surface of the fallen towns has been gone over.

It has been ascertained that the chain of forts extending round the city are intact. The powder factory and cartridge factory, together with several million cartridges, were destroyed.

The pope has in both devastated districts a sufficient number of clergy to carry out his desires. He has, however, sent three prelates from Rome to the south to carry out special instructions, one of these being Mgr. Bongano, rector of the Propoganda college.

Advance In Relief Work

Great advance has been made in the preparations for the relief work here concerning bringing sufferers from the devastated districts. The hospital which is being prepared within the Vatican will contain 200 beds. The papal doctors will be in attendance and they will be assisted by sisters and nurses. The pope has undertaken the entire expense of the charity.

The Press club has also opened a hospital, while many ladies of the aristocracy will receive in their private houses a certain number of the wounded. Princess Borghese is the leader in the movement and she has had transformel three large rooms in her palace into an infirmary.

Funeral masses for the victims were celebrated in the churches of Rome Sunday. Official figures give the number of injured transported from the earthquake zone to the various ports up to yesterday by the Italian warships as 10,370, by the British warships 1200, by the German 900 and by the Russian 880.

A censorship has been established at the important points in the south, and the foreign correspondents are being greatly hampered in forwarding their dispatches. The censorship is seriously affecting both telegraphic and telephonic communication.

A Student's Story

A young student, Teodoro Rositani, who walked eleven miles to escape from Reggio, tells a terrible tale of the first moments of the earthquake, in which he lost a sister and other relatives. Rositani thus describes his experiences:

"Together with my companions, I was in a train waiting to go to Sangiovanni, the nearest spot on the mainland, to Messina, when the carriage was literally lifted off the tracks, the station crumbling to the ground before our eyes. There was a roar like a hundred cascades falling from a height. Our terror lasted only a moment and we were soon climbing the heap of rubbish, all that was left of the station, guided by the cries of distress. We dragged forth the family of the station master, all of whom were badly injured.

"Meanwhile the shocks continued and the sea gathered itself into a wall of water, destroying everything it touched. The sun had risen before we had completed our work of rescue at the station. At our backs fire had broken out, illuminating the scene, which words fail to illustrate.

"We were roused from our work by shouts and found ourselves in the embrace of the rest of our companions, who had escaped from the seminary. We soon joined bands of monks going about giving aid wherever it was possible, and later we found ourselves before a convent in which there were many poor girls, those alive being in a state to touch the hardest heart. From that place we removed fourteen corpses of nuns and girls."

ITALIAN MASS MEETING ENDS IN A RIOT

Police Clear Hall Before Contributions Are Taken Up

Lynn, Mass., Jan. 4.—A mass meeting of Italian citizens called for Sunday evening to raise funds for the Italian earthquake sufferers was attended by about 400 foreign speaking people, including many of Anarchistic and Socialistic tendencies. Before the time came to solicit subscriptions a local Socialist addressed the chair. So far as the needs of the Italian earthquake sufferers were concerned and the need of raising money he was in accord with the leaders of the meeting.

The arraignment of the Italian government met with vociferous applause and yelling from the supporters of the speaker, but the remainder of the audience took exceptions and attempted to quiet the minority.

During the hubbub someone grabbed the speaker and pulled him from the platform, which acted as a signal for a general mixup. The two factions, with yells and shouts, came together in an attempt to rush each other from the building just as the police came upon the scene.

The police lost no time in clearing the hall and the matter of raising of contributions went over until some future date.

Generous Response

Boston, Jan. 4.—Many thousands of dollars were contributed for the Italian relief fund through collections taken Sunday in the churches of Greater Boston. The exact amount is not known and the estimates vary widely.

While the total amount of the fund now in the hands of the local relief committee and the Red Cross totals more than $100,000, many believe the amount will be fully doubled when the result of the collections Sunday have become known.

J. J. Storrow, chairman of the Massachusetts relief committee, received a cablegram from the Italian Red Cross in Italy, acknowledging receipt of the $50,000 which was sent from this state last week.

NEW ENGLAND LEGISLATURES

They Will Assemble In Five States During Present Week

HUB CONFERENCE MEASURES

Uniform Legislation Regarding Forestry, Fisheries and Automobiles Will Be Recommended by Incoming Governors—Liquor Question Commands Attention In Maine, Massachusetts and Rhode Island

Boston, Jan. 4.—It is anticipated that the coming sessions of the legislatures of five New England states, Maine, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Connecticut, will be particularly interesting this year, as the incoming governors in each state will recommend uniform legislation in the matter of forestry, fisheries and automobiles.

All five legislatures will convene during the present week, and five new governors will be inaugurated, Bert M. Fernald in Maine, Henry B. Quimby in New Hampshire, Eben S. Draper in Massachusetts, Aram J. Pothier in Rhode Island and George L. Lilley in Connecticut.

As Vermont inaugurated Governor Prouty last fall, the New Year will see new men at the head of all six of the New England states, for the first time in many years.

The most important matters which will come before the Maine legislature this year are expected to be those of taxation and various phases of the prohibitory law. The last legislature passed a bill providing for the appointment of a tax commission which recently reported its findings and recommendations. These will be taken up by the new legislature. An effort will also be made to repeal the so-called Sturgis law, a measure which was passed four years ago and which placed the enforcement of the prohibitory laws in the hands of state officials. An effort will be also be made to pass a measure for the re-submission of the prohibitory laws to the people. Other liquor legislation it is anticipated, will be brought forward.

There is no opposition to the election of United States Senator Gallinger in New Hampshire to a fourth term. It is expected that Governor Quimby will endorse the action of the Boston conference by recommendations regarding forestry and automobiles as well as shellfish. Several taxation measures will also be offered as well as a bill further regulating the lobby and still further restricting the use of passes by legislators on railroads.

The bill for direct nomination at the state primaries is expected to be the leading issue before the Massachusetts legislature this year. Many endorsements will be offered to the present liquor law by the temperance advocates and a number of the cities will ask for a revision of their charters. It is also anticipated that there will be several street railway matters before the legislature for action and that the labor leaders will ask for the passage of the so-called picketing and anti-injunction bills. Governor Draper will carry out the ideas of Governor Guild for uniform legislation through his inaugural address on Thursday.

Nearly 200 measures which were not acted upon at the last session will be placed before the general assembly in Rhode Island when it meets this week, together with a great number of new measures. The most important upon which the assembly will be asked to act are the election of judges, the bill providing for the reapportionment of the state, the granting of the veto power to the governor and that of giving the cities and towns the right to vote annually on the license question. Governor Pothier will carry out the recommendations of the Boston conference and will probably lay particular stress upon those in regard to shellfish.

The feature of the session in Connecticut will be election of a United States senator to succeed Frank B. Brandegee. Numerous measures of great importance to the state will also be brought forward and Governor Lilley will probably recommend the adoption of some of the New England conference measures.

The Republicans have complete control in both legislatures in all the New England states.

Many Rioters Shot Down

Calcutta, Jan. 4.—The prohibition by the police, in deference to Hindu feelings, of Mohammedan sacrifices of cows, led to serious riots just outside Calcutta. Troops were summoned to quell the trouble and were compelled to fire upon the rioters, several of whom were killed and sixty seriously injured.

Would-Be Assassin Foiled

Union City, Tenn., Jan. 4.—An attempt to assassinate attorney General Caldwell was made near his home here. The assailant escaped. He was followed from the depot by a man who shot at him twice as he neared his home.

MRS. ERB'S TESTIMONY

Makes Husband's Behavior Appear to Have Been Extremely Brutal

Media, Pa., Jan. 4.—In a dramatic recital of wrongs alleged to have been inflicted upon her, Mrs. M. F. Erb, who, with her sister, Mrs. Katherine Beisel, is charged with the murder of Captain J. C. Erb, told a story of almost savage cruelty which created a sensation in the courtroom. Captain Erb, her husband, by virtue of his political affiliations well known all over Pennsylvania as a "good fellow," was held up by his wife as having committed deeds of brutality which startled all who heard her.

Mrs. Erb described her life at Red Gables, the Erb country home, since 1906, when she first went to live there with Erb. She gave a harrowing account of having been beaten, thrown out of the house on cold nights, and called vile names by her husband on many occasions. Quarrels, she alleged, were of daily occurrence. Even some of the servants in the house, she further said, insulted her, and she was only laughed at by her husband.

She did not see the actual shooting, she declared, but recounted the quarrel she had with the captain prior to the shooting, during which she threw several household articles at him when he attempted to shoot her. Fearing for her life, she said, she sent for her sister, who came to her assistance and the shooting followed.

On cross-examination, the widow admitted she lived with Erb before she married him.

CORBETT IN GOOD TRIM

Appears to Be Anxious to Go After Heavyweight Championship

Denver, Jan. 4—Apparently James J. Corbett is sincere in his announcement that he will re-enter the prize ring and endeavor to have a white man regain the world's heavyweight pugilistic championship, won by Jack Johnson, who recently defeated Tommy Burns for the title.

Given six months in which to train properly, Corbett says he feels supremely confident he can defeat Johnson. So it is more than probable that, should the Australian fight promoters take Corbett's talk seriously and offer a purse for a championship fight, Corbett would again be seen in the ring.

Corbett is now 42 years old, but he appears to be in perfect physical condition.

SUPREME COURT OF BASEBALL MEETS

National Commission Gets Together Today In Cincinnati

Cincinnati, Jan. 4.—The men who are filled from hat to shoe with the history, customs and rules of baseball, who know more about the national game as it is played today than the late Henry Chadwick, its "father," got together here today in the meeting of the national commission. Before the meeting is over several pages will be added to the history of baseball, if present indications do not lie.

Chief among the questions that are before the commission is the demand of the American association and the Eastern league for changes regarding the drafting rules. Briefly stated, these two organizations want the privilege now possessed only by the two big leagues of drafting men from minor leagues instead of acquiring them only by purchase.

A majority of the requests made by the American association and the Eastern league are being seriously considered by the national commission, and it is said many concessions will be made.

CANDY WAS NOT EATEN

Purpose of the Donor of Poisoned Sweets Is Thwarted

Warwick, R. I., Jan. 4.—The sender of a box of poisoned candy received by Mrs. George M. Webb of Pawtuxet is being sought by the police. Mrs. Webb did not eat of the candy and did not allow any member of the family to touch it because, she says, she had been warned by a fortune teller recently to beware of "a woman who had designs on her life and was planning to wreck her home."

The police have been unable to get any clue to the identity of the young man who handed the box of candy to Mrs. Webb at her door.

Boston, Jan. 4.—Cardenio F. King, the financial agent who was convicted of larceny of $22,000 from twenty-seven customers, was released from custody, having secured bail in the amount of $35,000, the subscribers to the bonds being parties in Boston and Lynn.

Before his conviction King had been out on $25,000 bonds, which amount was raised $10,000 upon his conviction. King's attorneys have been granted thirty days to file exceptions.

It would be ungrateful of me if I did not at this time return to the citizens of Quincy my sincere thanks for the honor they have conferred on me for a second time in electing me to the office of chief executive of this city. It is an honor of which I am deeply sensible. During the past year I have given freely of my time to the affairs of the city and have kept in close touch with all the various departments. During the coming year I shall continue to have a personal knowledge of the work of every department under my charge. Our city charter places upon the Mayor the sole responsibility for the administration of city affairs during his term of office, and deeply conscious of that responsibility I will make it my constant effort to conduct the affairs of Quincy during the coming year in a business-like manner. The Mayor and you, gentlemen, have been elected to represent all the people of our city. Let us then work hand in hand and give to the citizens the best that is in us, so that by furthering their interests we may, in a measure, express to them our appreciation of the trust they have confided in us. At all times during the present year I shall be glad to render every assistance in my power to the members of the City Council in the discharging of their official duties, and I trust that we may all labor together with a common object in view—the welfare of our beloved city.

The soles of RALSTON SHOES are made from the famous Ralston Oak sole leather—which from the standpoint of wear and pliability is the best that is made in this country. Great care is used in its selection, and as you will notice in the above diagram, only the choicest bend is used.

AFFRONT TO THE POWERS

Chinese Regent's Dismissal of High Official Is Thus Regarded

Pekin, Jan. 4.—Following the dismissal from office of Yuan Shi Kai, grand councillor and commander-in-chief of the forces, and the appointment of Ma Tung as grand councillor, an edict was issued appointing Liang-Tun-Yen, customs taotai, to the position thus made vacant on the foreign board.

The British and American ministers, at the conference held last night at the British legation, reached an agreement that the dismissal of Yuan Shi Kai should not pass unnoticed.

The foreign ministers disagree on the question as to whether the welfare of foreign interests are technically involved by the regent's action, but they agree that peace is endangered. The representatives of Great Britain, America and Germany view the regent's action as tantamount to an affront to the powers, on account of Yuan Shi's position abroad, he being recognized as the medium of fair and equitable treatment toward the nations. The dissenting ministers are of the opinion that unless other serious events occur interference would not be justified.

FINISHED IN A WALK

Longboat Wins Marathon Race After Dorando Peters Out

Buffalo, Jan. 4.—Tom Longboat, the Canadian Indian, for the second time took the measure of Dorando Pietri, the Italian, who almost won the great Marathon at the London Olympic games.

The end came with startling suddenness in the sixth lap of the nineteenth mile. Dorando had just made one of his spectacular sprints and 10,000 people were on their feet cheering lustily when the Italian faltered. Dorando was able to walk, but appeared to be very weak as he was led to his dressing room.

TO KEEP AN EYE ALONG THE COAST

Gunboat Dubuque Is Ordered to Nicaragua

Washington, Jan. 4.—Reports of expeditionary movements in Central America have led to a close watch of the situation by the American government and, acting under orders of the navy department at the request of Secretary Root, the gunboat Dubuque sailed Sunday from Havana for Bluefields.

Both Assistant Secretary of State Bacon and Secretary of the Navy Newberry say that the ordering of the Dubuque to Bluefield is for the purpose of patrolling the coast. The commander of the Dubuque will look into conditions there.

SUFFERED FROM EXPOSURE

Trio of Jailbirds Who Took Flight Are Again Caged

Berlin, N. H., Jan. 4.—The three prisoners who escaped from their cells in the basement of the Coos county courthouse in this city were all recaptured. None of the men made any resistance, and all were brought back here and lodged in the city jail.

The men are Paul Mertha, Fred Forbes and Dan Ferrari. All suffered considerably from exposure and Mertha's feet were badly frozen.

After escaping from the courthouse by sawing the bars of their cells, the men made their way to Randolph, where Mertha was captured just as he was about to board a train for Boston. Ferrari was similarly caught at Bowman. Forbes was found in a lumber camp near Bowman.

CAUCUS NAMES BURTON

Nominated by Republicans as Next Senator From Ohio

Columbus, O., Jan. 4.—Congressman Theodore E. Burton of Cleveland was given the Republican joint caucus nomination of the Ohio general assembly for United States senator to succeed Joseph B. Foraker in March next.

There had been no opposition to Burton's nomination since last Thursday, when Charles P. Taft, Foraker and other aspirants fo rthe honor withdrew from the contest.

Burton will be formally elected senator on Jan. 12.

French Government Endorsed

Paris, Dec. 4.—The elections of senataors whose terms will expire nine years hence were held Sunday throughout France and the colonies. They resulted in an endorsement of the government policy, the majority gaining fifteen seats.

—In the "Outlook," for December "The Spectator" praises highly the "sanity" of a young couple who make themselves a little home on a mountain side far from the haunts of men and there live for, by, and to themselves. "Far on the way toward the achievement of perfect living is that little establishment on the mountain side." The picture "The Spectator" paints is certainly very fascinating, but what of the Christian ideals of service? As far as any suggestion of duty to us others or helpfulness there is no mention.

NEWS OF THE SPORTING WORLD

Brief Items of Interest From All Quarters

For the second time this season the St. Mary's basket ball met the Hyde Park five at St. Mary's hall Saturday night. In the first clash the home team met defeat it being their first game of the season. Since then however the boys have trained and practiced so that Saturday night they turned the tables on their Hyde Park rivals and took the game 11 to 8.

The contest was fast and close throughout and rough play abounded at all times, although there was no serius trouble. One little side bout between two of the players caused quite a little excitement for a time in the second half, but this soon subsided and the game continued peacefully. The Hyde Park team made some unnecessary arguments over certain decisions but they didn't amount to anything.

"Bill" Duggan started the scoring for the St. Mary's after about five minutes of play, when a nice pass from Donovan enabled him to make a pretty one hand shot. J. Sullivan evened up matters at once by taking the ball on the run and making as clever an overhand shot as was ever seen in the hall.

Another basket by "Dan" Duggan put St. Mary's in the lead again and they were headed after that though after Buckley got a goal from the floor, Hyde Park tied the score on two goals in succession by Fred Sullivan. One more goal from the floor by Dan Duggan and one from a foul by Bill, left the score 9 to 6 when the first half ended.

The second half was closer than the first each side scoring two points.

It was a great victory for the local team as the Hyde Park team is one of the fastest around Boston. "Dan" Duggan and Buckley excelled for St. Mary's, while J. Sullivan and F. Sullivan carried off the honors for Hyde Park. The summary:

ST. MARY'S	HYDE PARK
W. Duggan rf	lb Finn
McLaughlin lf	rb J. Sullivan
Buckley c	c Conway
D. Duggan rb	lf Robertson

Score. St. Mary's 11, Hyde Park 8. Goals from floor, W Duggan, Buckley, D Duggan 3. J Sullivan, Conway, F Sullivan 2. Goals from fouls, W Duggan. Referee, Joyce. Umpire, Joyce. Scorer, Fitzgerald. Timer, Barron. Time, 20 m periods. Attendance, 500.

Between the halves the second teams of both club played and the St. Mary's team won 48 to 4. The visitors were outclassed at all times and appeared to be absolute strangers to the game. D. Sullivan scored all the points for Hyde Park, getting two goals from the floor. Duggan and Morrill excelled for St. Mary's, the former getting 15 baskets.

Carl Gram '09 of Quincy, captain of the M. I. T. track team has had his squad out daily during the Christmas vacation and some new stars have been developed. The annual indoor games will be held Friday night.

The schoolboy track teams will start work this week. The captains of the various teams have issued calls for candidates and the prospects for fast teams are very good. Coaches will probably be selected in a few days.

A game that will draw a large crowd to East Boston will be played on Wednesday evening when the Noddle Island five will face the St. Johnsbury, Vt., quintet at Lyceum hall. These teams are great rivals and local fans will watch for the result with interest.

The proceeds of tonight's basket ball game between the Cambridge and Lowell New England league teams will be turned over to Rev. John O'Brien of the Sacred Heart church of Cambridge for the Italian sufferers.

—Hard times are not particularly in evidence among recent immigrants who had relatives and friends abroad to be remembered for the Christmas season. One of the fast steamers sailing from New York the week before Christmas carried over 116,000 international post-office money-orders for a sum aggregating $1,526,780. Eight steamers sailing since December 2 have carried some 332,870 of these orders calling for the payment of over $5,000,000 on the other side. These are said to be largely in excess of the records of a year ago, and on a par with those of the most prosperous business years. New York banks and express companies in the business of transferring money to Europe report a similar enlargement of demand as compared with a year ago.—Milford Gazette.

—The battleship Maine says the Waterbury American will participate in the Cuban inauguration ceremonies at Havana next month. She will be anchored within a cable's length of her ill-starred predecessor, whose twisted signal mast and rust iron work raising above the water is the only monument to mark the resting place of the two hundred odd American seamen in the slime below. If the United States Government will not raise the wreck with its cargo of skeletons and will not permit the Cuban Government to do so it should at least refrain from calling attention to its neglect in such dramatic fashion. By an odd ruling the wreckage is still held to be the property of the Navy Department, which objects to its removal by the Cubans on the ground that it has no power to abandon Government property without special action by Congress. What is the mystery of the Maine and why is it so earnestly desired that she should remain at the bottom of Havana harbor.

—Poppy or opium riots in China says the Boston Advertiser, are the latest development of the anti-opium edict, and they point to a peril and a difficulty not foreseen in the issuance of the edict, perhaps. There is likely to be a severe test of the power of the government in the face of this sort of popular demonstration, but the probability is that such demonstrations will tend to strengthen the determination of the government to make its decree absolutely effective. The issue now becomes more than the issue of opium. It is the issue of law and government and that is of prime importance in the new China.

—The revival of the proposition to renew the stamp tax on bank checks and mortgages and notes is not likely to cause any general enthusiasum, but with a treasury deficit of almost $65,000,000 for the first six months of the current fical year, and with the tariff about to be revised, it is obvious that something must be done. In Washington they say that Boston bankers are in favor of a bank check tax because it would diminish their bookkeeping by discouraging the writing of unnecessary checks.

FOR EARTHQUAKE SURVIVORS.

In all the Catholic churches of the city Sunday, collections were taken up for the earthquake sufferers of Italy. The amounts collected were not made public, but if the archbishop so desires, the figures will be given out.

Rev. John J. Coan, pastor of St. John's church, spoke of the terrible disaster, saying it was not possible to pass such a thing over unheeded. He spoke of the suddenness of the earthquake and the necessity of being prepared for a sudden death.

Fr. Coan mentioned the fact that many Quincy people had relatives in the stricken district and that there were many among the sufferers who formerly lived in Quincy. Tomorrow morning a requiem high mass will be celebrated for the repose of the souls of those who were killed.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

Vacation week was a busy week for the boys in the Young Men's Christian Association. Outings, basket ball games, meetings and games kept everybody busy. The intermediate basket ball team played two games away from home, winning one. A track team has been organized with Charles Holmes as captain and Roland Grant, manager. The big events this week are Saturday, Jan. 9th, when Mr. Ernest F. Ver Wiebe of Harvard will tell of his football experiences to all High school fellows. Sunday afternoon Don S. Gates of Dartmouth will speak to the older fellows.

ANNIVERSARY MASS.

A high mass of requiem was celebrated this morning at 9 o'clock in St. John's church in memory of the late Mrs. Timothy Deasy, who died two years ago. The mass was celebrated by Mrs. Deasy's son, Rev. William T. Deasy of St. Mary's church, Randolph.

COL ANDERSON AT CHRIST CHURCH

Well Known Speaker Addresses Men's Club.

The Men's club of Christ church held its regular monthly meeting on Monday evening in the parish house.

At these regular meetings it is always customary to have some well-known speaker address the members.

Col. Edward Anderson of Quincy was the man chosen as Monday evening's speaker and to say that his talk was interesting would be a waste of words, for it goes without saying that when Col. Anderson is scheduled to speak, the address is sure to be interesting and instructive to all.

Last night's talk was no exception and there wasn't a person present who did not say it was the best talk he had heard for a long time. The colonel is without doubt one of the very best of speakers on occasions of this kind, for he talks directly to his audience and does not go off in wild flights of oratory.

His talk last evening was that well known subject "From Lincoln On," which has interested so many Quincy audiences. In this address Col. Anderson tells of the conditions of the South before the Civil war. How the slaves were treated by their cruel masters and forced to live like animals.

He said that instead of forging ahead as a prosperous young nation should, the South was fast going back. Industries were on the decline and agriculture was being neglected.

All this was caused by the laziness and sloth of the landowners, brought on by their immense wealth. The speaker then went on to tell of the rapid progress of all branches of industry and agriculture after the plantation owners were brought to a realization of conditions by the Civil war and emancipation of the slaves. He told of the wonderful advance of the cotton industry since the war and of the surprising progress of agriculture throughout the entire South.

No man is in a better position to know the conditions in the South than Col. Anderson, because he lived there, before the war, during the war and since the war and has studied and watched the progress of the South with a careful eye.

Rev. William E. Gardner of Cambridge formerly rector of Christ church was present and received a rousing reception from the members. He made a few brief remarks about the days when he was located here and said he was glad to spend an evening again with old familiar faces.

After the speaking, a brief but pleasing musical entertainment was given, mingled with a few stories by the ever ready entertainer Col. Anderson. Refreshments consisting of coffee and rolls were served by Henry Furnald, the club caterer.

OFFERS REWARD.

Irving F. Gould of Milton to Pay $100 for Return of Son.

Irving F. Gould of 229 Eliot street, Milton, announced Monday that he would pay $100 for the return of his son, Curtis Gould, 5 years old, who has been missing since Monday, Dec. 28.

The child was at play with Ralph Cheney of 310 Eliot street on that day, but all trace of him has been lost since he left his companion.

It is feared that the boy fell into the Neponset river, near his home, but as his body has not been found, his parents hope that he wandered into the woods, and some one who found him may have taken him home.

GREAT WIRELESS PLANT

Expiration of Time Set by Navy Department For Bids

Washington, Jan. 5.—Today marks the expiration of the time set by the navy department for the receipt of bids for the equipment of the vessels and shore stations of the United States navy with new wireless telegraphy apparatus.

When the contract for the construction of the apparatus is satisfactorily fulfilled the wireless equipment of our navy will have no peer on earth and sea. The department will be able to communicate quickly with any ship of the navy, no matter where it may be stationed.

The contract calls for the building and equipment of a high powered wireless telegraph station, the first of a number of similar stations, one of which is to be at San Francisco, with a radius of 3000 miles; the installation aboard each ship of two sets of instruments capable of sending messages a distance of 1000 miles and receiving messages from a distance of 3000 miles, with a wireless telephone having a radius of 100 miles. The contractor will be allowed to use any system of wireless telegraphy he wishes.

OIL TRUST FINE CASE

Ended by Decision of Supreme Court of the United States

Washington, Jan. 5.—The $29,000,000 fine case of the Standard Oil company will not be reviewed by the supreme court of the United States. The decision by the court to this effect was announced by Chief Justice Fuller.

The case came to the court on a petition filed by the government asking the court in a petition for a writ of certiorari to order up the record in the case for a review of the decision of the United States circuit court of appeals for the seventh circuit, by which Judge Landis' original decision imposing a fine of $29,000,000 against the Standard Oil company for accepting rebates from the railroad companies was reversed.

The action of the supreme court leaves standing the decision of the court of appeals, which was adverse to the government and favorable to the company.

IS NOW A FULL FLEDGED KNOCKER

Overseer of Poor Joins Knockers' Club at Annual Dinner

The first annual dinner of the Knockers' club was held Monday afternoon, after the inaugural exercises at City Hall. The dinner as usual was served at Thompson's restaurant and was up to the standard of excellence. President Spear occupied his seat near the head of the table. The main seat being reserved for His Honor the Mayor. Practically all of the members were present. There were two invited guests, City Solicitor McAnarney and Mr. Shields of Boston, and one about which some doubts were expressed as to whether he was an invited guest or if he just blew in.

The menu opened with oysters on the half shell, then followed fried scallops, tartar sauce, roast chicken and duck, spaghetti, lettuce, olives, mashed potatoes, cranberry sauce, pudding, ice cream, black coffee, toasted crackers and cheese. There was some questionable singing during the dinner by some of the members. But one telegram was received and that was by the genial Overseer of the Poor. It was from a firm who desired to sell him some paper collars for the inmates of the Quincy Home.

This same Overseer of the Poor was initiated into full membership in regular form. He was compelled to read the obligation and rules, and it was noticed that his voice trembled a little as he read the heart rendering obligation. He said that he could readily master the signs and that he would try to live up to the obligation which he did immediately by trying to borrow a dollar of the President, which he promised to pay in the same old way.

After some more questionable singing, cigars were lighted and the meeting adjourned as several of the members had important engagements. It was just one year ago that the club sat down to its first dinner which was the result of a friendly wager. At that dinner there were but four present. Dinners have been held monthly ever since and the membership has grown to fifteen. Another year it should be double what it is now.

The entertainment committee have some gems in store for the future dinners of the club the coming winter, and a member who misses them will always have cause to regret it.

INSTALLING NEW BOILER.

The change is being made partly to meet the demands of increasing business and partly because of difects in the boiler being displaced.

SPECIAL MASS CELEBRATED.

A requiem high mass was celebrated this morning at 9 o'clock in St. John's church for the repose of the souls of those who were lost in the recent earthquake disaster in Italy. Rev. John J. —Brockton is going to settle its financial and industrial problems in the approved New England fashion—by the appointment of a committee of investigation of five "impartial and reputable citizens," connected in no way with the shoe business. This committee is to study "the causes which are responsible for the recent exodus of a large part of the shoe industry" from the city, and is to be charged with the duty of making a report and recommendations, it being stipulated, however, that the recommendations shall be binding on nobody. We can foresee a period of disagreement as to causes, followed by another period of disagreement as to remedies. In the meantime, if the shoe industry is really leaving Brockton because other places can sell shoes to better advantage, committees of investigation composed of citizens who know little about the business are not going to stay the tide.—New Bedford Standard.

—The appearance of a wild deer in the down-town district of Lowell Sunday forenoon kicked up considerable excitement among the hundreds of churchgoers who happened to be on the streets at the time. It rolled into the canal, was rescued and released.

TREASURY IS TOO LOW

No Money For Rivers and Harbors During This Session

Washington, Jan. 5.—Representative Burton of Cleveland, who has just won his fight for the senate, was the recipient in the house of the congratulations of practically the entire membership.

He will soon call a meeting of the committee on rivers and harbors, of which he is chairman, at which it is believed the knell of the proposed river and harbor bill for this session will be sounded officially.

The impression has been given out that the conditions of the treasury will not justify an appropriation for this purpose this winter.

FROM ALL QUARTERS.

An interesting piece of old furniture belonging to Frank P. Wood of Bangor, Me., is a buffet of white mahogany once owned by the famous actor, Lawrence Barrett. And a family treasure of a Portland family is an ancient piano on which Annie Louise Cary took her first lessons.

At the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Drissell of St. Louis, the marriage ceremony was repeated before the same altar as 50 years ago and with the same bridesmaid and best man, although the children, grandchildren and great grandchildren of the couple were present.

Over his stamp window, Postmaster Bourne of Lenox has placed, possibly for the benefit of his wealthy New York patrons, a sign that reads: "Smile, darn you, smile."

A Cleveland policeman, having intercepted with his body a stone which a boy threw at a plate glass window, the authorities are now in doubt whether the boy should be fined for an attempt to break the window or for an assault upon an officer of the law.

One woman of Bridgton, Me., will henceforth heed the warning not to leave packages in the car, for in a bag which she left in the Portland station were bills to the amount of $6500. Thanks to the honesty of a station attache, after much telephoning and telegraphing, it was recovered.

TAKES NAP IN COFFIN.

Albert Belleville, a barber of Webster was given somewhat of a shock when he called upon his friend Wilfred Brassard and found him stretched out inside a coffin. Just as Belleville was backing out the door, Brassard rose to a sitting position in the coffin, and saw Belleville. Belleville saw the supposed corpse rise, at the same time, and made faster time to get out. The voice of Brassard calling to him reassured him a little, and he ventured back into the shop. Brassard makes coffins, and when he wants a nap he crawls into one and goes to sleep.

A writer inquires of a Philadelphia paper, if a woman's "no" means "yes." Yes; also no.

The disappointment of one batch of world end prophets doesn't seem to have the slighest effect on the next batch.

If the President will hand a few to the anti-Santa Claus idiot, we'll cheerfully lead the first round of deafening applause.

"Carnegie will tell the committee all he knows," says a line in the New York World. All he wants the committee to know, perhaps.

"Senator Elkins has bought a bank," says the Detroit Free Press. It certainly must be nice to be able to do that sort of Christmas shopping.

The New Jersey chicken thief who is allowed to have left a pocketbook containing $150 beneath the roost upon which he was operating has received enough advertising to tempt him into vaudeville.

At the last meeting of the special committee appointed by the Citizens Association, to consider and report on different amendments to the City charter, the question of government by commission, or what practically amounted to the same thing, was pretty thoroughly discussed. The principal objection to that form of government, seemed to come from the fact that it abolished ward lines. Now according to its adherents that was what should be done, ward lines should be abolished.

One of the principal opponents to this plan was the city solicitor. He took the stand that by abolishing ward lines, the wards would suffer. Now in a way this is true, for a ward councilman if he wants to "hold his job" must in a large measure look out for his constituents. He must endeavor to get certain improvements etc., for his ward. If he doesn't then ten to one he fails to be re-elected. As the city solicitor said, a ward councilman is better qualified to look out for his ward then a councilman elected-at-large would be. He knows his ward and he knows its people. This doing away with ward lines is too radical to became popular right off, although in time government by commission is quite possible. The city of Chelsea is trying it, as are several western places, but so far it is too early to say whether it is the right form of government or not.

The plan approved by the committee, by which the council would consist of nine members is far better for the present, and it is to be hoped that the Citizens' Association will adopted it, thereby giving Quincy a modern and up-to-date form of government.

Bridgewater citizens bid for the L. Q. White Co., a Brockton firm employing several hundred operatives, about $30,000 for the erection of a new factory being pledged at a mass meeting attended by nearly 500 citizens Friday night.-News Item.

Has Quincy through its City council, its Board of Trade, or its Citizens' Association done anything to get the L. Q. White company to locate here? Has Quincy through its City council, Board of Trade or Citizens' Association ever tried to get the Douglas company to locate one of its many shops here?

Has Quincy's Board of Trade or its Citizens' Association ever tried to interest the citizens in working for a busier city?

We have never heard that they have—and yet both the Board of Trade and the Citizens' Association were organized for this purpose as much as for anything else.

Does Quincy's Board of Trade and its Citizens' Association want to see business locate here? If so, why do they sit with folded hands and let other cities, like Bridgewater for instance, snatch the plums from under their very noses?

In his inaugural address Mayor Shea spoke of the waterfront and the wonderful possibilities it contained if only it could be developed.

No one questions the mayor's statement, but what possible good would result even if the waterfront was developed, and yet no move was made to get the necessary business here.

Business firms are not coming to Quincy unless some inducements are offered. And why should they? There are plenty of cities and towns, whose citizens are only too ready to concede something, if by so doing they can get business to locate in their midst.

Wake up you members of the Board of Trade and you members of the Citizens' Association and get busy. Don't wait until it is too late, but do something to show us you are interested in seeing your city a lively business community as it was intended to be.

Of course if you don't want to get business here then you are doing just the right thing to keep it away. However if you don't want it, would it not be better to let the people know where you stand?

Tell them that although you were organized for the purpose of promoting business interests you have no intention of doing such a thing, and then they would not be deceived by such busy sounding titles as Board of Trade or Citizens' Association.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

Mr. Douglas has already hired factories in four different cities, and other big operators in Brockton declare their desire to get out of that city, bcause of the intolerable treatment they are getting from the labor agitators and their followers. All Brockton is not that way of course, but enough of it to make much trouble.—Needham Chronicle.

Brockton is beginning to find out that she has sowed the wind and is now to reap the whirlwind. The sober and sane minded workingmen, the leading professional and business men and even the clergymen have at last found out that they are utterly unable to compel men with capital to run their business in that city just as the radical labor men want to dictate. As a consequence, with big manufacturers moving their business out of the city and other big ones refusing to come, simply and solely because they cannot do business as they wish, involving a wage loss of over six million dollars, these men are waking up and asking what they can do about it. The answer is just as simple as A B C. Allow the manufacturers to do business under living conditions, as compared with the rest of the country. Other things being equal, every Brockton manufacturer would prefer to make every pair of his shoes in Brocton, instead of in Marlboro, Haverhill, Springfield, etc. But he must be allowed to do business as he finds it necessary, and not as some "delegate" commands, even though the latter is honestly trying to help his fellow workmen. The working people of Brockton are finding out that the competition from other points has a great deal to do with this question, whether it should be so or not. And unless the manufacturers are allowed to meet this competition in Brockton factories, then the Brockton factories will stand idle and the real estate will shrink in value. A better time may come, but meanwhile what will become of those now under the harrow? —Canton Journal.

The only question before the ways and means committee in determining the retention or withdrawal of duty on works of art, is whether the educational and industrial advantages to the country, following the removal of the duty on art works, is worth the loss in revenue. Before the enactment of the Dingley law it was estimated that the tariff on art would yield $1,000,000 annual revenue. It has never done so. The first year under the Dingley law it yielded but $236,242. In 1908 the revenue was less than $600,000. As a revenue tariff it is not imposing, and there can hardly be any doubt as to the corresponding weight of the claims of this revenue and the advantages from a free entry of art.

The question of protection hardly enters, because the framers of the proposed art schedule have taken care that it shall not. They leave all mehcanical and chemical art productions dutiable, but place all works of art done by hand and antiquities (produced prior to 1850) on the free list. By this change no industry in the United States which produces the cheaper mechanical or chemical ornaments will lose protection. As for "protection" to American artists, those artists do not regard themselves as an infant industry needing protection. They are practically unanimous in favor of the repeal of all art duties. It is said that there are a few members of congress who fear to uphold this change for fear their horny-handed and hard-headed constituents might think them putting airs and wearing superfluous "culture." Possibly Speaker Cannon nourishes that idea. He has it himself, doubtless. Thus far, however, there has been no sign of any dangerous opposition to the repeal of the art duty.—Boston Advertiser.

INJURED BY CRAZED WOMAN

But Queen Helena Continued Work

PERRET'S PREDICTION

More Serious Shocks May Be Expected Very Soon

EARTHQUAKE EXPERTS' VIEWS

Early Reports of Devastation Were Not Exaggerated

Rome, Jan. 5.—Signor Mirabello has given the following account of the accident to Queen Helena at Messina, when she suffered contusions of the chest. He said:

"The queen was in one of the improvised hospitals. She was in the act of bending over a wounded woman when suddenly the door was thrown open violently and a crazed man rushed in crying loudly:

"'The end of the world has come! The earth has fallen in! Save yourselves; save yourselves!'

"The wounded woman, terrified, jumped from her bed and started running toward the door. The queen, with great presence of mind, placed herself in front of the unfortunate and extended her arms to stop her. But the woman was out of her mind with fright.

"She lowered her head and precipitated herself on the queen, driving her head full force against the queen's breast. The queen fell backward. Her mouth became full of blood, and this bleeding continued for some time.

"The next day the queen continued her work as usual, although every now and then her lips were reddened by blood. Queen Helena is worthy the undying admiration of the entire Italian people."

Vatican Is Helping

Upon the arrival of 1500 wounded from Messina and Reggio, Mayor Nathan telephoned the Vatican asking whether these unfortunates could be taken there. The Vatican replied in the affirmative and the wounded were received with open arms.

Fully to appreciate this incident, it must be explained that Nathan is not a Catholic, and that he was at one time grand master of the Free Masons.

The first 120 of the wounded sent to the Vatican were received at the railroad station by Mgr. Misciatelly, sent especially by the pope. Some of them were taken to the Vatican in public conveyances, but the more grievously injured were carried on stretchers by the Red Cross. They were received in the Vatican precincts by the nursing sisters.

Pope Visits the Wounded

The pope could not restrain his desire to bring them consolation and sought them out. He passed through the Basilisca of St. Peter's over the arch connecting the Basilica with the hospital. Although he did not actually set foot on Italian territory he in reality went outside that area which, under the law, is guaranteed and enjoys the right of extra-territoriality. The hospital, although belonging to the pope, stands on Italian ground.

The pope's entrance into the hospital was the sign for an outburst of emotion, not only from the patients, but even from the pope himself and the members of his suite. Many of those who were not gravely wounded insisted on jumping out of bed to kneel and kiss the pontiff's hand.

Predicts More Shocks

Messina, Jan. 5.—Frank Perret of Brooklyn, assistant to Professor Matteucci, director of the Royal Observatory on Mount Vesuvius, speaking of the disaster here and in Calabria, says that other shocks are inevitable, as there is a flaw in the earth's crust where the slip occurred. He predicts heavier shocks and declares that something, possibly very serious, may happen Jan. 7 and 8, when the relative positions of the sun and moon will produce the greatest strain.

Earthquake experts who are here to study the phenomenon generally agree that the earthquake was the result of a fault in the geological formation under Messina, which constituted a line of contact in the volcanic action between Mount Etna and Mount Vesuvius, and that a slip occurred similar to the one which detached Sicily from the mainland.

Harbor Channel Changed

That a subsidence occurred at some points, and that there was a rising of the earth's surface at others, is proved by soundings which show the channel of the harbor deeper at some places and shallower at others.

The British battleship Exmouth, at a distance of one-half mile south of Reggio, found 58 fathoms of water where formerly there were 243.

Mr. Perret, who was one of the first scientists to reach the scene, says he has proved that the first motion was upwards, and the second oscillatory. He characterizes the distubrance as inter-volcanic and says:

"The first earth movement at Messina was vertical. It was followed half a second later by an undulatory movement. In the Strait of Messina there were great changes in the bottom of the sea, from northeast to southwest. The movements probably were in the same direction as those that originally formed the strait, and they may have resulted from deep-seated earthquake shocks, which were freely predicted to the passengers of the steamer Cretic that arrived at Naples Dec. 25."

The continual settling of the crust of the earth in this region has been amply proved, for there have been no less than 500 recorded siesmic movements since 1905.

In the Ruined Cities

Naples, Jan. 5.—Two days spent amid the ruins of Messina and Reggio prove that the appalling horror of the situation has in no sense been exaggerated.

Messina and Reggio have ceased to exist. In the ruins of the former city two-thirds of the inhabitants lie buried, while at Reggio one-half the people lost their lives. Messina counted 150,000 and Reggio 50,000 souls. Both places are today vast morgues of the dead. Sickening stenches arise from the countless decomposing bodies and vultures are congreating to prey upon the dead.

Approaching the sunlit straits of Messina on board the steamer Lombardia, dispatched from the north with troops and supplies, the first signs of desolation were the ruins of several picturesquely situated villages on either side of the headlands of Scylla and Charybdis, which flank the entrance to the harbor of Messina. The landscape already bore the first desolate taint of death.

Screen to Hide Ruins

The first sights minimized the magnitude of the catastrophe. The lighthouse and the ancient citadel upon the point encircling the southern half of the bay were still standing.

But the nearer the steamer approached the greater appeared the devastation, and once ashore it was seen that these cracked and shattered facades were only a screen concealing utter ruin behind. The shattered walls still standing were mere empty shells through which roofs and floors had crashed to the foundations, burying the inmates under masses of debris twenty or thirty feet deep.

As most of the walls fell outward the streets were mountains of ruins. Eight thousand soldiers and sailors were in this charnel house still searching for those who had been trapped alive beneath the wreckage.

THORNTON HAINS' STORY

Testifies That He Did Not Anticipate Tragedy at Bayside

Flushing, N. Y., Jan. 5.—Taking the witness stand in his own defense, Thornton J. Hains related the shooting of William E. Annis and the conjugal troubles of Captain Peter C. Hains, Jr., which troubles, counsel asserts, caused the mental unbalancing of the captain and led to the killing of Annis on sight. Hains' direct examination has not been concluded.

Hains testified that when he went to Bayside to look at real estate on Aug. 15 he had no idea that his brother was armed and that he did not know that Annis was at the yacht club. He told the jury that all the shots were fired by Captain Hains before he rushed to the float to protect his brother from John Tonning, the boatman, and the club members who, he said, he thought would harm the captain.

Hains denied that he pointed a revolver at Mrs. Annis. He said that he had no idea how many shots Captain Hains fired and when Charles Roberts picked the revolver up and the muzzle of the weapon was pointed at him, he drew his own revolver and told Roberts not to shoot.

PERJURY IS CHARGED

Magistrate Is Asked For Warrant For Arrest of Rockefeller

New York, Jan. 5.—The action for criminal libel brought on complaint of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., against three officers of the Star Publishing company, which publishes the New York American, was begun before Magistrate Moss.

Rockefeller testified that the article published in The American, in which he was accused of having caused a system of peonage to be adopted by a certain breakfast food company of Chicago, was false.

In the cross-examination Rockefeller admitted that while he swore in his original complaint that he knew "of his own personal knowledge" that the defendants were officers of the Star Publishing company, that knowledge was in reality based simply "upon information and belief." Shearn contended that this constituted perjury on the part of Rockefeller and promptly applied for a warrant for his arrest on that charge.

APPEAL FROM PRESIDENT

$800,000 FOR NEEDY PEOPLE

Supplies Aboard Two Naval Ships Are Already on the Way to Earthquake Survivors—Services of American Battleship Fleet Were Tendered to Italy, but Would Be Too Late to Render Much Assistance

Washington, Jan. 5.—Bountiful provision for the earthquake sufferers of Italy was made by congress by unanimous vote. In the house there was vigorous handclapping as the bill carrying the appropriation was sent on its way.

The munificent sum of $800,000 was granted almost immediately after the reception in both houses of a message from the president calling attention to the calamity and the pressing need for aid for the stricken people of a sister nation.

The president will sign the bill, when it reaches him, which probably will be today.

Only the fact that congress was adjourned for the usual holiday recess when the earthquake occurred prevented earlier action, although by the president's direction and with confidence of congressional approval supplies aboard the naval ships Celtic and Culgoa intended for the battleship fleet were diverted and ordered delivered as quickly as their speed could take them to the scene of suffering and want. No such generous help ever was extended to a stricken people by this government before.

Confident that the further contributions of the American people would justify its assumption of responsibility in authorizing Ambassador Griscom at Rome to charter and load with supplies a relief vessel and also to transport refugees, the American National Red Cross advanced the necessary means wherewith to meet the suggestion of the ambassador and his committee of Americans in Rome. Over $330,000 has been collected through the Red Cross alone, of which $60,000 represents the advance referred to, one-half of which the Christian Herald has agreed to raise.

Because of the belief of the prime minister of Italy, expressed in a message in response to a cablegram from the president to Ambassador Griscom that the American fleet of battleships will arrive at the scene of the disaster too late to be of great assistance, conferences are being held with the view to rearranging their sailing program, especially as it has been determined that the fleet's visit to the several Italian ports where preparations were making for its appropriate reception would be ill-timed under the present circumstances.

President Roosevelt's tender to the Italian government of the services of American vessels of the fleet was made Saturday in the following dispatch, sent by Assistant Secretary Bacon to Griscom:

"The supply ship Celtic, which sailed from here Dec. 31, and the supply ship Culgoa, awaiting arrival of the fleet at Port Said with supplies for the fleet, have been ordered by the president to proceed to Messina to offer food and medical supplies and clothing amounting to about $300,000. Eight battleships of the fleet, now on their way to Italian waters, due to arrive from Suez about Jan. 14, according to former program. You will ascertain from the Italian government whether the services of these or of any additional vessels of the fleet can in any way be of use."

Contributions of money for the relief of the sufferers from the earthquake continue to pour into the headquarters of the American National Red Cross society. The subscriptions thus far amount to $49,758.

Criticized by President

Washington, Jan. 5.—In approving the sentence for dismissal imposed by courtmartial in the case of Lieutenant W. Ballard, Jr., coast artillery corps, the president took occasion to criticize the administration of affairs at Fort Wadsworth, N. Y., where the derelictions of which the officer was convicted occurred.

Steamer Badly Battered

Boston, Jan. 5.—Steamer Florence, from Fowey, Eng., bears many evidences of the damage caused by hurricanes and gales which she encountered. Bulwarks were stove in, deck fittings destroyed, ventilators were carried away, part of the bridge was gone, and no lifeboats were on deck, all having gone overboard with the immense seas which swept over the Florence.

Baseball Problem Unsettled

Cincinnati, Jan. 5.—The question whether the American association and the Eastern league will be put into a special classification among the baseball clubs of the country is not yet decided. The National baseball commission labored for six hours on the question and late last night adjourned until today.

DOUBLE SCARE IN QUAKER CITY

SHARP EARTHQUAKE TREMORS

The Contention That Shocks In This Country Would Follow Earthquake Abroad Is Borne Out—Nearly Five Tons of Dynamite Explodes In Quarry Magazine, Causing Damage to Buildings Miles Away

Philadelphia, Jan. 5.—Residents of this city and the surrounding territory were considerably aroused by what appears to have been two well defined earthquake tremors, followed by a heavy explosion of dynamite in Montgomery county, which shook the earth for miles around.

The earth tremors, which seem to bear out the contention of scientists that shocks would be felt in this country after the Sicilian earthquake, were felt at 2:32 and 4:22 o'clock Monday afternoon. Both were recorded on the seismograph at Swarthmore college, near here, and, according to Professor Miller, were of brief duration.

Before those who felt the earth's tremblings were through talking about them, or at 5:30 o'clock, there was an explosion of fifty cases of dynamite in the magazine of the Keystone Quarry company, not far from Norristown. Nearly 10,000 pounds of the explosive went off at once, tearing a great hole in the ground. No one was hurt, so far as can be learned.

Windows in buildings five and ten miles away were shattered by the explosion, chimneys were shaken down, and in the immediate vicinity walls of buildings were cracked by the terrific force.

FOR THE THIRD TIME

Effort to Have a Jury Determine Whether Thaw Is Sane

White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 5.—A third attempt to free Harry K. Thaw from the Matteawan asylum for the criminal insane was begun in the supreme court here. Again the court is asked to present Thaw's case to a jury to determine whether or not the prisoner is insane. Twice before attempts had been made to bring Thaw before a jury, but two justices refused to order such action.

As in the previous cases, the preliminary move in the matter was successful. Justice Tompkins granted a writ of habeas corpus, compelling the asylum authorities to produce Thaw before him in Nyack next Saturday.

Mrs. Thaw contends that her son was not legally committed to the asylum, that he is not a criminal, having been acquitted by a jury, and that he is now sane.

AS "TERMINAL CHARGES"

Packing Company Got Rebate of Dollar a Car From Railroad

Washington, Jan. 5.—By a divided court, the supreme court of the United States decided the rebate case brought by the government against the Chicago and Alton Railway company and Vice President Faithorn and Treasurer Winn of that company in favor of the government.

The case involved a charge of making a concession to the packing firm of Schwartzchild & Sulzberger on shipments of packing house products from Kansas City to eastern points. The packing company has a short railroad track in connection with its plant. The Chicago and Alton company repaid to the packers $1 a car for the use of these tracks and entered the payment on its books as a refund on account of the terminal charges.

BROWN ON THE JOB

Former Cop Notifies Lowell Health Heads to Quit Offices

Lowell, Mass., Jan. 5.—Probably the busiest man in this city is George H. Brown, the former policeman who is now mayor. One of his first acts on taking the reins of office was to ask for the resignation of two of the members of the board of health.

The men asked to resign are William C. Doherty and Charles W. Taylor. As yet neither has responded to the letter of the mayor.

Those who know what is going on politically say that if they do not resign the mayor will remove them.

Of Interest to Art Lovers

New York, Jan. 5.—An event likely to have far reaching effects of the most favorable character upon the art relations of Germany and America was the opening of the German art exhibition in the new wing of the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Fully 6000 persons, representing the diplomatic, political, social and artistic worlds, attended.

Dropped Dead on Street

Peabody, Mass., Jan. 5.—On his way down town from his home, Thomas H. Jackman, aged 68, a former postmaster, was attacked with heart failure and dropped dead in the street. Jackman was postmaster for twelve years. He was a veteran of the Civil war.

Keep the Disease-Wolves From the Door

Every man and woman should repel disease-wolves which are no respecters of persons and may attack at any time.

What are these disease-wolves? They are constipation, biliousness, indigestion, nervous headaches, sleeplessness and other little ailments, at first so trivial as to appear almost harmless. Disperse them now, and drive them from your door with before they grow dangerous. There is poison in their fangs that will harm the whole body unless you rid yourself of them at once.

When your digestion is upset, when the bowels do not act freely, when the head is heavy, the sleep troubled, the liver out of order—disease is at the door.

Be wise in time. Take Beecham's Pills immediately. For these pills, alone and unaided, will keep the disease-wolves at bay, and

STAGE CHARACTERS.

Camille Very Respectable Person Compared to Some of Present Day.

It has been decided by one commenting on stage affairs that, looking down on some of the characters of the stage today, Camille must feel like a very respectable person. Truly so respectable she is almost to the verge of the black-gowned conventional. She never knew what it was to wear a costume that would put your eye out. She never did a Salome dance on the stage. She wore the usual assortment of clothes, and they were not even disturbed by anything she did. She was not a person, who moved in the best circles, and she had a most unhappy time; but it was a pathetic time, too, in a way, and it certainly told a story and made an appeal to the imagination that was worth while in some cases. What useful story is told, what lesson is taught, what good is done in any way, by some of the capering nudities of these times, and by some of the actresses, clothed most perfectly as to gowns, who at the same time have to portray characters from which every vestige of covering has been removed so far as the mind and soul are concerned? Camille, and the ladies of "The Black Crook," and even the first of the French dancing quartetts that flourished in the earlier nineties, were people to receive in th homes of the augustly severe in comparison with some of those who have succeeded them in these days. Who is to blame for some of the present-day conditions—the public, the actors and actresses, or the managers? The chances are that certain managers lead the way, the public or a section of it, follows, and the players have to supply what seems to be wanted or get into some other business. This, of course, applies only to a percentage of what goes on upon the stage today; plenty of it is quite as good as ever it was, and a lot of it is better.—Brockton Enterprise.

UNCLE ELI'S ADVICE.

The Owl and the Peasant Who Made Fun of Him.

THE DONKEY AND THE CANINE

[Copyright, 1908, by T. C. McClure.]

ONE day at high noon the peasant discovered an owl perched in a tree and asked him whether a small bird sitting directly toward the sun was a bluebird or a chickadee. The owl looked and blinked and looked again and finally admitted that he couldn't be sure. Thereupon the peasant began making fun of his vision and telling him that he was no good and ended up by expressing his astonishment that nature should have wasted so much material. The owl felt humbled and humiliated, but bided his time until darkness came. Then he paid a visit to the peasant's cottage and called him out and said:

"In flying around I have discovered a lost purse. Come with me and recover it."

The two proceeded along the highway for half a mile, and then the owl stopped and said:

"Behold the purse."

"But where?" asked the peasant.

"Only two or three yards from your feet."

"But it might as well be a mile away. It is so dark that I cannot see."

Then the owl began to make fun of the man's vision and ended up by saying that nature must have been in a funny mood when she created a man that couldn't see in the darkness.

Moral.—In criticising others we forget our own deficiencies.

The Ass and the Dog.

The Ass and the Dog had long been jealous of each other, and, finding themselves in company one day, the former began:

"Did you hear our master praising me today for the heavy load I drew up the long hill?"

"Yes, I heard him say a word or two, but you ought to have been around last night when I caught a rabbit. I was really embarrassed by the praise bestowed."

"But you can't draw even an empty cart."

"I am twice the size you are."

"But I can run twice as fast as you can."

"Say, now," remarked the Ass, "what would the master do without me on market day?"

"Oh, come off," replied the Dog. "Who stays at home and guards the farm while he is gone to town?"

"You know I drove the wolf away once."

"But what is that compared to the two thieves I chased for half a mile?"

"Oh, well, this thing can be easily settled. I can bray louder and longer than you can bark."

"I deny it. Come on and see."

Thereupon the Ass began braying and the Dog barking, and the uproar soon became hideous. After it had continued for a few minutes the master appeared with a club and laid about him with heavy and impartial hand.

"Alas!" cried the Donkey as he winced under the blows. "You have taught me to believe that you appreciated me."

"And I was under the belief that you doted on me," added the Dog.

"Know ye," replied the master as he paused for breath, "that while an Ass or a Dog in his place is a joy forever he has but to step out of it to render himself a nuisance."

Moral.—Man often comes to grief in seeking to prove his virtues. It is better to keep quiet and let others judge them.

The Wolves and the Goat.

In feeding on the hillside one day the Goat became careless and fell among the rocks and sustained mortal injuries. He lay there, gasping and suffering, when two Wolves came along, and the first cried out:

"Ah, what have we here? The Goat has had a bad fall."

"It looks like it, indeed," replied the other, "but let us go slow about it and make no mistake. It is my opinion that he has broken both his hind legs."

"And it is plain to me that he has broken both his fore legs."

"You must see that I am right, and I further declare that if we can get the Goat home his life can be saved. I won't warrant that his hind legs will be as good as ever, but he will be able to climb around fairly well."

"Your diagnosis of this case shows what a fool you are. A blind man could see that it is his fore legs and that nothing can be done in his case. I tell you it is hopeless."

"And I tell you it is not."

At that moment the Goat recovered consciousness, and, looking up at the Wolves, he appealed to them to do something for him.

"But your fore legs are broken," replied one.

"But your hind legs are broken," added the other.

"Alas, it is neither my fore legs nor my hind ones," replied the Goat, "but my spine."

"But I must still insist"--

"And so must I."

And while the squabble was being renewed the Goat died. As soon as this fact was discovered the first Wolf observed:

"I am sure my treatment would have saved him."

"And I know that mine would," added the second.

"But since he is dead"—

"We will eat him."

Moral.—The lawyer and the doctor must always be paid.

The Sage and the Good Man.

One day as the sage was looking for huckleberries on a chestnut tree and wondering why the biggest harvest apples always grew on the highest branches of the apple trees nearest to the house he was approached by a man who said:

"Oh, sage, I have come to thee for a chunk of advice!"

"Your name?" was asked.

"Peter Jones."

"Your avocation?"

"That of a good man."

"How good are you?"

"O sage, I have lived in this world for sixty years, and there is no man to say I have wronged a fellow man!"

"That's a pretty fair record, but what advice do you want?"

"The people would have me to represent them in office. The question with me is, am I too good?"

"Um! That's a new one on me, but it's not so very hard. Canst get a nomination?"

"By acclamation. It is a dead sure thing."

"Then go in."

The good man went away feeling even gooder, but at the end of a few weeks he returned to wail out:

"O sage, but why didst thou give me such advice! I thought your words were wise and followed them; but, alas, I am undone!"

"You ran for office?"

"I did."

"And then newspapers showed you up as a liar, a hypocrite, a knave and all else that is bad?"

"Alas, they did!"

"And you were snowed under?"

"Buried under an avalanche. Why advise me as you did?"

"Simply, my friend, to show you the difference between a man knowing himself through himself or through his fellow men." M. QUAD.

Wanted His Money's Worth.

"They charged me $4 a day for the room I had at the hotel where I stopped in the city," says Uncle Hezekiah on his return.

"But, then, you must have had a good time going around seeing the sights," commented a listener.

"Huh! I didn't see a thing. How could I?"

"Why couldn't you?"

"You don't suppose I was goin' to be stuck that much for a room an' then not get the use of it!"—Chicago Post.

Trying His Hand.

"I doubt ye are growing remiss, John," said a Scotch parish minister. "I have not seen you in the kirk these three Sabbaths."

John was not duly abashed. "Na," said he. "It's no that I'm growing remiss; I'm just tinkerin' awa wi' ma soul masel."—London News.

The Greatest Problem.

"Some critics have been cruel enough to say that all airship inventors are flighty," said the pretty girl.

"That's just the trouble, miss," replied the struggling aviator; "the majority of us can't make a flight at all."—Chicago News.

A WOMAN'S BACK

The Aches and Pains Will Disappear if the Advice of This Quincy Citizen is Followed.

A woman's back has many aches and pains.

Most times 'tis the kidneys' fault.

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Read what one has to say about it:

Mrs. C. L. Lewis, living at 344 Granite Street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I gladly add my endorsement to the hundreds of others in Quincy, who have been benefited by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. I suffered for a long time from kidney trouble, the principal symptom being backache. Being advised by a friend to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store and began their use. They gave me prompt and effective relief and in six weeks I was again in good health."

It is hoped club members will buy tickets and help along the good work of this committee.

ADAMS CHAPTER D. R.

A very happy meeting of Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution was held on Monday afternoon at the birthplace of President John Adams. The gathering was not large as several members were afraid the house might be damp after being closed since fall, but the day was spring-like, which combined with cheerful fires in the fireplaces, made it cosy and comfortable.

The regent, Miss Prescott, was in the chair holding a short session of the council at two o'clock which was followed by the regular chapter meeting at half past two.

Finances were reported in good condition by the treasurer. A committee was appointed to see if some suitable colonial articles could not be secured for the chapter to donate to the furnishing of the Paul Revere chamber in the Paul Revere house, Boston.

It was voted to ask the State Society D. R. to assist in furnishing the John Adams birthplace.

A nominating committee was chosen to make up the ballot and prepare for the annual meeting in March. The February meeting will be held

BURN MORTGAGE AND BANQUET MAYOR SHEA

Members of St. Mary's Total Abstinence Society Hold Dual Celebration

An event of double significance to the members of the St. Mary's Catholic total abstinence society of West Quincy was fittingly celebrated last night in St. Mary's hall, West Quincy when the mortgage on the hall was publicly burned and a complimentary banquet was tendered to Mayor William T. Shea, who has been a member of the society for over 30 years and who was president of the organization when the present hall was dedicated 20 years ago. The dual celebration was attended by all the members, Rev. William J. Duffy of St. Mary's church, Rev. John J. Coan, pastor of St. John's church, Rev. John P. Cuffe, pastor of the Sacred Heart church, John T. Shea of Cambridge, president of the archdociesan Catholic total abstinence union and a number of other invited guests. The interior of the hall was handsomely decorated with the national colors and hung in a conspicuous place were the pictures of the late John J. White, first president of the society, and Mayor Shea.

Previous to the banquet the mortgage was placed on a plate held by Rev. Fr. Duffy and Mayor Shea while Lewis Pendis, the president, set fire to the document amid the enthusiastic applause of the gathering. It was somewhat of a significant fact that just as the match was applied to the paper the city fire bells began to sound an alarm from box 138.

After the mortgage had been entirely consumed the banquet was served and at its conclusion Pres. Pendis gave a short history of the society. He spoke of the benefits to be derived from a total abstinence society and than congratulated the organization upon the fact that it contained among its members a man who had been signally honored twice in an election to the office of mayor—Hon. William T. Shea.

Rev. Fr. Cuff who was the first speaker congratulated the members of the society in freeing their pretty hall from debt. He also congratulated the society in that it had among its members such a creditable representative as Mayor Shea and congratulated the latter that he belonged to a total abstinence society. Rev. Fr. Cuffe said that the young man who started out in life to cultivate the virtue of temperance could not be but a good member of his church and a good citizen. He expressed the hope that the society would continue to succeed as it had in the past.

Rev. Fr. Duffy, representing Rev. Fr. Grady, the pastor of St. Mary's church, who was unavoidably detained, said it was a proud pleasure for him to know that so many of the young men of his church belonged to an organization that meant so much for their spiritual and material welfare. He said the practising of total abstinence removed from the pathway of young men the greatest occasion of sin to be found in the world and he hoped that more young men would join the society. He also paid a tribute to Mayor Shea for his long and faithful service in the interest of the society and pointed to his career as one that was brought about largely because of his affiliation with a society that stood first for total abstinence.

Rev. Fr. Coan said the society deserved to be congratulated for two

A patron of a university says he has spent $5,000 on the education of his son and has only got a quarter back.

Several thousand miles from the Venezuela revolution Castro proudly and defiantly exclaims that in his bright lexicon there is no such word as fear.

When all of the nominations for Mr. Taft's cabinet are in we shall have a pretty complete list of the people of political prominence in this country.

A Pennsylvania rooster stole a three-hundred mile ride on a car truck. This is liable to cause the railway people some expense in further revising their arrangements to shut off all free transportation.

It appears that the visit to Washington of Francis J. Heney, who uncovered the Oregon land frauds which resulted in the trial and conviction of Senator Mitchell of Oregon and who has lately been conspicuous in the San Francisco graft prosecutions, was most opportune. He arrived simultaneously with the disclosure of rotten conditions in Pittsburg. It is said that President Roosevelt has asked him to investigate the bribery charges in that city so far as it is connected with federal institutions. If he goes to Pittsburg, it will be in the capacity of a special examiner to investigate the alleged use of money by officials of national banks to have these banks made depositories of the city's funds. President Roosevelt is said to have given the instructions to the six special bank examiners sent to Pittsburg: "Be sure to get the bribe givers as well as the bribe takers. One cannot exist without the other."

It will be of general interest to know that during the year 1908 there was something like 1800 men employed in the granite industry of the city. This number includes cutter, blacksmith, polisher, teamsters, quarrymen, apprentices and bosses.

From figures obtained from James Duncan, secretary-treasurer of the Granite Cutters' Union, the Ledger is enabled to give the following table, showing the number of men employed each month last year in the cutting department. The table also gives the figures for 1908 in comparison with 1907.

Month	1908	1907
January	1115	1152
February	1095	1012
March	1115	1090
April	1115	1100
May	1045	1185
June	1085	1196
July	1095	1178
August	1050	1215
September	1050	1217
October	1032	1185
November	995	1157
December	976	1065
Average	1064	1151

These figures would seem to indicate that not so many men have been employed in the cutting department, as there were during the year 1907, but if these figures included the superintendents, foremen, apprentices, tool sharpeners, polishers or quarrymen, the number of men employed in the industry would be fully as many as last year if not more.

The new City Council committee particularly the committee on Streets intends to get down to business promptly. In years gone by it has been the custom of this committee to let petitions and orders relating to street matters accumulate until late in the year before they were acted upon. The result has been that street improvement orders are rushed through at the end of the year, when the money can not be expended until the following year.

Councilman Moir who is the chairman of this important committee this year has expressed himself very decidedly upon this matter and he says that as far as his committee is concerned the matter before it will be taken up promptly and acted upon. This is as it should be and if he does this he will be entitled to much credit.

As far as the other committees are concerned the majority of them have not many old matters before them. Among the principal matters is the revising of the ordinances which are sadly in need of revision, the matter of the purchase of a lot of land for a shcool building at Houghs Neck, the order to purchase a new steamer and the matter of adequate water supply for Squantum.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

The arrival of the battleship fleet at Port Said, two days ahead of the schedule, shows what the great vessels can do. Probably the schedule made allowances for delays which were found unnecessary, and so the war vessels, bound for home, came right along. It is fortunate that they have arrived in the Mediterranean at this time. The arrival is most opportune, for the fleet and its supplies will be a most welcome appearance in the straits at Messina. The President has anticipated their arrival and tendered the services and the supplies to any extent that may be acceptable to the Italian government. This second offer of help cannot but be highly appreciated by the people of Italy, as well as by the sufferers from the earthquake. The arrival of the fleet on the scene of the disaster with supplies that will prove most welcome is another reminder of the peaceful nature of the world girdling cruise of the great warships.—Lynn Item.

What will man not do for those whom he loves! The music hall singer and her canary bird tells the same old story. She was in Messina when the earthquake came and the sea came and the fire came; but she finally reached Naples by means of a German steamer. The steamer brought some eight hundred refugees; wounded some of them were; there were children without parents and parents without children; and all of them were ragged and worn out with the struggle and the flight. One of these was the music hall singer, with her dress as tattered as that of a beggar, and probably with pretty much all that she had on earth lost, but with her canary bird; and as the big boat was docked the little fellow trilled his loudest and merriest in a song of thanksgiving for all hands that they were saved. The bird sat perched on her finger, well knowing that her hand was home and fortune and all good things for him; and she—well, she had a good deal left, for she had saved the little life of her dear comrade and friend. It is not the thing that one loves that counts; what counts is the love that holds fast.—Hartford Courant.

What the savers of the country need more than postal savings banks is an improvement in quality of the savings banks they now have in some parts of the country. Too much freedom is given the management of these banks in the investment of deposits, and too little Government inspection is made either by State or Federal examiners. Let us suggest to President Roosevelt that the most effective aid he can render in this instance, is not to set up rivals to our present savings banks, in the 61,000 post offices in the country, but to assist the Comptroller of the Currency to obtain that power over the savings banks of the District of Columbia which will enable him to protect the depositors who use them. For such authority he has asked frequently and without success. The example which the President thus would set could not help having advantageous influence in the States where new legislation to protect savings depositors is needed. For our part, we have a great deal more respect for the reformer who clears up conditions under his own nose than for the one who ignores conditions near at home and sets out to reform all the rest of creation.—United States Investor.

These may be hard and hopeless times, but take thought on a few things. The incoming year at great hotels and restaurants in the large cities saw crowds such as they never had before, and saw money thrown away with a prodigality that would have amazed in his sober moments a Coal Oil Johnny, spendthrift though he was. In a single city manufacturing automibiles—Detroit—a trade paper estimates that 50,000 machines will be turned out and sold before 1910. While it has been a bad year for daubtful ventures and untried work at theatres, the managers of the sensational successes have seen no sign of hardship, and have charged the same old prices and have had plenty of people ready to pay them—and mayhap a little something on the side to the spectator. Last summer was a good one at the beaches; the winter shows every sign of being equaly successful at the winter resorts of the south. In other words, while a lot of people are undoubtedly realizing the need of caution and some are in the steel grip of actual poverty and want, great armies of men and women are living as well as ever, are spending money just about as freely as ever, and are living lives of greatest pleasure, ease, and luxury. It is a great country, and only a small portion of it can be hurt severely for any length of time. —Brockton Enterprise.

TYPHOID FEVER AT MESSINA

It May Spread Outside Ruined District

GIFT FROM AMERICANS

Steamer Loaded With Provisions and Medical Supplies

MANY REFUGEES REACH NAPLES

Efforts to Save Lives In Ruins to Continue Two Days More

Rome, Jan 6.—The reports from Messina that typhoid fever has broken out there has filled the authorities with alarm and apprehension. It is realized here that unless proper sanitary precautions are taken at once, the disease may spread far outside the ruined districts.

Even though the present cases may prove to be dysentery, it is well known that this disease, under such conditions as prevail at Messina and Reggio, would be likely to prove just as fatal as typhoid itself.

Physicians here are inclined to think that dysentery is more to be feared than any other disease in the devastated regions. It was very fatal in the Crimea in 1854, in the armies of the United States during the Civil war and again in the Franco-German war of 1870. Almost perfect conditions for its propagation prevail at Messina.

Americans In the Lead

King Victor Emmanuel received Ambassador Griscom, who presented him with the steamer Bayern in the name of the American relief committee, representing the American people. The Bayern is loaded with provisions and medical supplies and is ready to proceed to the Straits of Messina. The king was greatly pleased, and said that the Americans were always first in their charitable efforts.

Thirteen thousand refugees have arrived at Naples up to date, of which 6000 are wounded. They are receiving the best of care, but many have died from injuries and others have gone mad. More than 50 per cent of those taken out of the ruins after three days did not have strength left to survive their terrible experiences.

Scorpion Carries Supplies

The American vice-consul, Stuart Lupton, in answer to inquiries made by the state department at Washington, telegraphs from Messina that the house of the "Little Sisters of the Poor" was destroyed. Two of the sisters were killed. The others, twenty-four in number, are desirous of going to Milan, but this is uncertain.

Rear Admiral Sperry, commander of the American battleship fleet, has notified the authorities here that he will be in Naples on Jan. 9 with the first division, composed of the Connecticut, Vermont, Minnesota and Kansas.

The latest news from Reggio shows that earthquakes occurred there yesterday, the shocks being about twenty minutes apart. One of the heavy shocks caused the collapse of a number of broken walls and added to the terror of the few survivors who remain there.

Further Search Almost Useless

The work of rescue at Messina is being pushed indefatigably night and day, and persons alive occasionally are dug from the ruins. An old woman released from the wreckage of the church of San Francisco did not seem to realize that she had been buried for so many days. She explained that she thought she was entombed in the church after having died a natural death and that she was living in the hereafter.

Efforts to release the living will be continued for two days more. Those who have lost relatives and friends still continue to hope against hope, and no argument suffices to convince them that further search is useless.

America's Generous Response

Washington, Jan. 6.—Miss Mabel Boardman, secretary of the Red Cross society, issued an official statement announcing that the total amount of subscriptions for Italian relief thus far received through the American National Red Cross is over $400,000. This includes Tuesday's contributions of $136,779.

The statement adds that contributions are still coming in rapidly and it seems evident that the collections through the Red Cross will reach $500,000.

Postmaster General and Mrs. Meyer contributed $1000 to the earthquake sufferers through the Red Cross. The Christian Herald has contributed $50,000.

Perret's Prediction

New York, Jan. 6.—The Messina dispatch in which a prediction was made by Professor Perret of Columbia university that further heavy shocks might be expected Jan. 7 and 8 excites the liveliest interest among Perret's associates at the university. The professor is regarded there as a master of physical phenomena.

Professor James F. Kent of the geological department says that "it is reasonable to assume that Perret is accurate as to the time of the next upheaval. At no time, however, has he attempted to designate the area affected, so that, if he is correct as to date, the disturbance may be thousands of miles from Sicily."

"CANNOT REMEMBER"

Hains Weakens Under Hot Shot Poured Forth by the Prosecution

Flushing, N. Y., Jan. 6.—New lights were thrown on the relationships of William E. Annis and Mrs. Claudia J. Hains when the defendant testified that several years ago in Marblehead, Mass., he became aware that Annis and Mrs. Hains had stopped at the same hotel. Hains said he never spoke of the relations between Mrs. Hains and Annis to Captain Hains, and had remained silent on the matter until last spring.

The fabric of the defense's case was badly torn when Thornton Hains, under sharp cross-examination by the state's attorney, made many damaging admissions. His jaunty manner quickly disappeared in the fire of the prosecutor's interrogations and several times he admitted that he could not remember the minor details of the same testimony he had given on Monday.

COUNCIL BACKS BROWN

Lowell's Mayor Removes Two Men and Quickly Fills Vacancies

Lowell, Mass., Jan. 6.—Mayor Brown, until his receiving the Republican nomination a patrolman of the police force, last night succeeded in his first attempt to carry out preelection pledges, when he removed Dr. Charles W. Taylor, chairman of the board of health, and William C. Doherty, a member, on charges of dereliction of duty and sent to the city council two nominations for the vacant positions.

Both actions were sustained by the council unanimously, without debate and without delay. The two new appointees are Dr. G. F. Martin and Dennis J. Murphy, a lawyer.

The mayor had requested previously the resignations of Taylor and Doherty and upon their refusal to comply with his wishes the mayor removed them.

DRASTIC ACTION CONTEMPATED

Men Criticised by Roosevelt Preparing to Fight

Washington, Jan. 6.—Drastic measures are being considered by the Perkins committee of the house, appointed to recommend to the house action in defense of the body in reply to the criticism made by the president in his annual message in referring to the secret service legislation of last year.

Friends of the president will resist any drastic action that may be recommended. On the other hand Representatives Tawney, Smith, Shirley and Fitzgerald are preparing to defend themselves against the references to them in the message.

Their remarks, however, will not be a personal defense, as they maintain that they should not be parties to any attempt to divert attention from the controversy which is between congress and the president and not between themselves and the president.

OF LIMITED CAPACITY

Aeroplanes Not Likely to Ever Carry More Than Twenty Passengers

New York, Jan. 6.—"I do not believe the aeroplane will ever take the place of trains or steamships for the carrying of passengers," said Orville Wright just before sailing for France.

"My brother and I have never figured on building passenger-carrying machines. Our idea has always been to get one that will carry two or three or even five persons, but this has been the limit of our endeavors.

"I believe ultimately the aeroplane may be put to special uses in the carrying of passengers, but never in excess of fifteen or twenty persons."

"Miracles" at St. Petersburg

St. Petersburg, Jan. 6.—A series of alleged miracles in connection with the burial of Father John of Kronstad are already being recounted. A blind man, it is said, had his sight restored by bathing his eyes in a puddle of water over which the coffin was carried and a cab driver recovered the use of a palsied arm.

Foreign Interests In Danger

London, Jan. 6.—The dismissal from office of Yuan Shi ai is causing no little anxiety at the foreign office. Dispatches received from the British minister to China intimate that foreign interests are in danger.

SOCIAL SEASON OPENS TONIGHT

Washington, Jan. 6.—With the bachelors' cotillon tonight the social season in the national capital will begin formally. There have been, of course, many coming out parties, receptions and balls, notably that at the White House for Miss Ethel Roosevelt, but tonight's event will be the first large gathering of Washington's ultra smart set.

The first bachelors' cotillon is an annual event in Washington society, to which the buds of the season look forward with eager anticipation. Success at the cotillon means a season of gayety and pleasure, and often the belle of the cotillon remains the belle of Washington until the following year.

All of Washington's socially prominent young women, as well as many of the younger married set, will be at the cotillon. Among the buds will be Miss Carrie Munn, Miss Martha Bacon, Miss Elizabeth Parker and others of Miss Roosevelt's set, as well as the White House debutante. Another prominent figure will be Miss Katherine Elkins, whose "affair" with the Duke of the Abruzzi filled so much newspaper space a short time ago.

KING'S BAIL INVALIDATED

Action of One of His Sureties Sends Him Back to Cell

Boston, Jan. 6.—Cardenio F. King, financial agent, globe trotter and former newspaper publisher, spent last night in a cell at the Charles street jail.

His incarceration was brought about by Mrs. Rosa Bernstein, who surrendered King after consulting with her attorney on the question of whether or not she had a right to qualify as one of King's seven sureties.

The only reason advanced by Mrs. Bernstein's lawyer in connection with her action was that she had not understood the meaning of "free and clear" property.

Mrs. Bernstein last Saturday qualified for $4000 of King's $35,000 bail. Her action invalidates the entire bond.

A 25,000-TON BATTLESHIP

Navy Department May Ask Congress For Money to Build One

Washington, Jan. 6.—Plans have been outlined by the bureau of construction of the navy for a battleship of 25,000 tons, designed to carry eight 14-inch guns. This fact became known through the making public of testimony given before the house committee on naval affairs by Rear Admiral Capps, chief constructor.

That there is in the minds of officials of the department the possibility of asking for an appropriation for a ship larger than the Dreadnaught type is attracting attention among members of congress.

There are four ships in course of construction of the 20,000-ton class, which are the largest ever authorized for the American navy.

BROWN CHOSEN PRESIDENT

New Head of New York Central Has Had Wide Experience

New York, Jan. 6.—At the meeting today of the directors of the New York Central and Hudson River railroad the senior vice president of the road, William C. Brown, was elected president to succeed William H. Newman, who resigned Dec. 22.

President Brown was born in Herkimer county, N. Y., June 29, 1853, and has been engaged in railroading since 1869. He began as a wood cutter on an Iowa railroad and has worked his way up on several systems. In 1901 he left the position of general manager of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy to become first vice president and general manager of the Lake Shore, one of the Central lines.

DOUBLE REIMBURSEMENT

Persons Who Have Property Destroyed by Fire Cannot Expect It

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 6.—Judge Reed in the superior court handed down a decision to the effect that Mrs. Sarah Carey of Kent must return the sum of $4899, the amount of insurance paid her by four companies for the loss of a hotel by fire.

Mrs. Carey claimed that the fire was set by locomotive sparks and, suing the New Haven road, got a jury judgment of $5728.87. Prior to this she had collected insurance on the place. The insurance companies contended that she had no loss after getting judgment against the road.

Untruthfulness Alleged

Manila, Jan. 6.—Colonel Louis Haus of the medical corps of the army, formerly director of the health department of the Philippine government, has filed a protest with the war department in Washington against references to his administration contained in the cholera report of Secretary Worcester of the interior of the Philippine insular government. Haus affirms that Worcester's comments are untruthful.

CHARACTER EMPHASIS.

"Why did you fire Miss Smith?" asked the Boston agent of the New York representative of a hide and leather firm.

"Yes, she got married. But how did you know she had left?"

"Could tell by the typewriting," said the Boston agent. "I knew that the last ten letters I received from this office were not written by Miss Smith. I could tell her manuscript if I saw it at the North Pole. But then there is nothing strange about that. You can tell anybody's typewriting if you make a study of it. It has almost as much individuality as handwriting. The difference lies chiefly in the manner of hitting the keys. Almost every operator strikes certain keys with particular force, while others are noticeably slighted. Miss Smith, for instance, expended most of her energy on 'a,' 'e,' 't,' and 'r.' The rest of the alphabet was treated impartially, but just let her come to one of those four letters, and she hit a tremendous thump that made a doubly heavy impression on the paper. I am guilty of the same trick myself, although I vary the letters and take especial vengeance on 'h,' 'l,' and 'n.'

"This emphasis is purely unconscious. It may be due to some habit acquired when learning to write, or to the position of the letters on the keyboard, or possibly to the attraction or repulsion of certain letters for certain persons. I think the latter explanation entirely plausible, because it is a fact that an expert can read character from typewriting. Miss Smith, for instance, was amiable and good looking. All operators who pound 'a,' 'e,' 't,' and 'r' exceptionally hard are amiable and good looking.

"How about me?" he asked. "I always slur 'b' and 'm.' What does that signify?"

"It means," was the reply, "that you are a skeptical wretch and deserve to have to look up all these important facts for yourself instead of having them fired at you in chunks by observing Boston agents."—New York Times.

MADE FORTUNE LATE IN LIFE

The Vanderbilt fortune, once the greatest financial power in the United States, probably amounts at the present moment to not far from $300,000,000. Of this, William Kissam Vanderbilt, who controls the majority of the family properties, holds in the neighborhood of $100,000,000, while 12 or 15 descendants of the commodore share among themselves the remaining $200,000,000.

Perhaps the most remarkable fact in the whole remarkable career of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt is that he did his really important work and heaped up his enormous fortune after he was 70 years old. He was born in 1794, and almost all his energies, until the outbreak of the civil war, had been absorbed in the management of his numerous steamboat and steamship lines.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, when running his steamboats up and down the Hudson river, had felt keenly the competition of the railroad along its eastern shore. Later developments led him clearly to preceive, what most of his, contemporaries saw only faintly, that transportation in this country would follow the line, not of the canal and the river, but of the steel rail. As soon as he had caught this glimpse of the future, Vanderbuilt characteristically acted upon it. Fifty years before, foreseeing the possibilities of steam travel by water, he had sold his whole sailing fleet and purchased steamboats; acting just as promptly now, he sold all his water craft and began purchasing railroad.—McClure's Magazine.

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St. Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

Miss Maud Gray of Botolph street has returned from a delightful trip to Concord, Mass., where she has been the guest of relatives.

The telephone number at the City Clerk's office at City Hall has been changed as the office is now on a line by itself. The new number is Quincy 230.

A meeting of the charter revision committee will be held Thursday evening and a mass meeting of the citizens to consider proposed changes in the City Charter Jan. 14.

The Daughters of Viking, a Swedish society, held its monthly meeting Tuesday evening at Protection hall. Refreshments were served after the meeting, followed by a social hour.

Joseph Page of Hancock street, is ill at the home of his daughters in Atlantic. His well known and familiar face is missed from his place of business in what is called the "Hollow."

Miss Ruth Bassett of Walker street returned Monday from a week end visit to New Boston, New Hampshire. The sleighing in that part of the country is excellent and the coasting a constant joy to the young folks.

Mild weather this week has evidently turned the thoughts of many toward spring cleaning for store-keepers in City square have been sprucing up a bit and their goods show up through clear windows.

Each year the Pickwick club adds another year to its age and is now preparing to observe its thirty-sixth anniversary on Wednesday evening, the 13th. Some might call it an unlucky date but we doubt it proving so to this progressive club.

Wollaston Unity club members are impatiently waiting for Friday night to come for they are to hold another "Kommers" on that evening, which promises even more jollity than the one which opened the club season.

Friday evening, Jan. 8th, the Cochato club of Braintree holds its ninth annual ball at the club house, under the diretcion of Mr. George E. Williams and music by Mullally. Quincy members are interested and special cars will be run to accommodate them.

Business is becoming brisk in Quincy centre, merchauts are taking account of stock and preparing for January sales and a big spring trade. They intend to keep business right at home. Watch the advertising columns of the Ledger for their special offerings.

Stilts are popular among the young people in Atlantic and the ungainly sticks seem to be manipulated with a great amount of dexterity by the girls as well as the boys. This fad is indicative of spring which in the absence of snow and ice, is resorted to as a last extremity of winter pastime.

☞Tuesday evening, Jan. 12th, is the date of the Plancon song-recital at Colonial hall, subscriptions for which are being received by the patronesses, also by Miss A. L. Prescott. Mr. Plancon will be assisted by Mrs. Sturtevant, soloist; Jacque Hoffmann, violinist and E. Cutter, Jr., pianist.

☞ One of the most artistic calendars of the season is that issued by the William A. Bradford Co. It is from a painting by E. Lamasure entitled "Evening in September." For several years this firm has had notably pretty calendars and typical of America. That of last year was the scene of "Home Sweet Home," which one lady said was too pretty to throw away and so she put a new pad on it for 1909.

Burned Mortgage.

Rev. Fr. Coan said the society deserved to be congratulated for two reasons—the cancelling of the mortgage on its hall and the fact that the man elected to the highest office in the gift of the citizens was a member of this organization. Rev. Fr. Coan said that he felt particularly proud of the election of Mayor Shea because of the fact that it proved the people of Quincy were willing to rise above racial and religious lines provided they had the right kind of a man to vote for and this they had in Mayor Shea. He was glad to see that the citizens of Quincy were rising above party lines in city affairs in their efforts to secure the best men for their chief executive and this state of affairs had been brought about, largely, he said, by Mayor Shea who had lived a temperate life and who was a credit to the city and this organization of which he had so long been a member.

Pres. John T. Shea of the archdiocesan total abstinence union, said it was worth a great effort to come here from Cambridge to honor the society and the Mayor of the city. He spoke of the necessity for young men to join such organizations and said it was the decision that Mayor Shea made early in life to become a member that placed him in the mayor's chair. The people of Quincy had confidence in the mayor, said Mr. Shea, because he had proved the master himself and because they knew he could master himself they had confidence in him that he could master the affairs of the city. He spoke of the spiritual, material and physical benefits to be derived from joining such a society and said that there were mortgages on many homes in this country that could be burned like the one tonight if the fathers were total abstainers instead of spending their hard-earned money for intoxicating liquors.

Dr. John H. Ash, who contributed largely towards securing the cancelling of the mortgage made a short address in which he thanked the members of the society for their hearty cooperation. He said he did not feel that any credit was due him because he had only done his duty and would be pleased to further the interests of the society in the future as it had been a pleasure for him to do in the past.

Mayor Shea was next introduced and was given a rising reception that lasted for several minutes. Mayor Shea said he was particularly happy to be present at the burning of the mortgage because he had always felt he had a hand in placing the mortgage on the hall since he was president of the society when the hall was built and dedicated 20 years ago and he was glad to get rid of the unpleasant reminder of this unpaid bill.

Mayor Shea gave a short history of the organization, saying that when it was organized by the late Fr. Francis in 1875 there were 24 members on the books while the present membership was 175. Speaking of the reception given to himself he recalled his statement of a year ago at a similar banquet to him when he said he would endeavor to give to the city the best administration possible, or, at least, that he would give an honest one. He said it was particularly gratifying to him to know that the citizens of Quincy had endorsed him because he had tried to fulfil the pledge made a year ago. "During the present year," said the mayor, "I will continue to try and give an honest administration so that when I conclude my labors as chief executive of the city, my record will be a clean one and you members of this society will have no cause to feel ashamed of me.

"Getting away from this personal subject I want to say just a word to young men and that is this—stick, stick to your total abstinence pledge. It is the best assest, the best recommendation you can carry through life. It is the only safe guard for a young man. I am called on frequently to give recommendations to young men and I am proudest when I can write that the young man I am recommending is a total abstainer from intoxicating liquors. I took that pledge something over 30 years ago—I hope the reporters will let that slip by because it might make me feel older than I realy do—and I have never regretted it. For your own sake, your material success and your moral well being, stick to your total abstinence pledge."

William H. Teasdale, one of the charter members of the society, gave a history of the organization from the start and recalled many pleasant reminiscences of the old-time members who struggled in the early days to make the society and the total abstinence movement a sucess.

Interspersed between the addresses there were vocal solos by Joseph Morrissette, Frank Mullen and Dr. Daniel B. Reardon, piano solos by Richard Shaw and Peter Morrissette, violin selections by Paul Morrissette and trios by the Morrissette brothers.

Dr. William H. Ferris of Houghs Neck, who was arrested in Boston as copartner in the Back Bay Medical Company without registering, was fined $30 in the Boston Municipal court Tuesday.

Dr. Ferris testified that he was hired by Harvey B. Wilmot for $5 per week. The contract between the two men was shown but the court found that the two men were doing business together.

Dr. Ferris is well known at Houghs Neck, where he has resided for a number of years.

Three years ago he gave up the tintype business and hung out his shingle as a physician.

Among the Clubs

Following the business meeting a most informal social hour was enjoyed which opened with a grand march through the rooms, ending at the gift basket, where on arrival each member had deposited a small gift valued at not more than ten cents.

As each drew out a gift and untied it, much merriment ensued, each being interested to see what the other got. One lady took home a pincushion to add to the collection of twelve she already had. Hot cocoa, crackers and peanuts were indulged in gathered about the big fireplace, the meeting breaking up before dark.

NEIGHBORING.

Guest night, the eleventh annual of the Brockton Woman's club was held on Monday evening and proved most delightful for club members and friends. John Kendrick Bangs spoke on "Solubrities I Have Met: Some Personal Recollections."

Miss Ellen van Volkenberg returned to Boston this week from Illinois and on Thursday of next week will be the guest of the Old Colony club of Weymouth at its annual guest night when she will give a dramatic interpretation of "Merely Mary Ann."

The housewarming on Monday afternoon of the New England Womens club at their new home in the Chauncy hall building, Boston was a thoroughly delightful affair throughout. Mrs. Julia Ward Howe the venerable and much loved president was present to receive the guest, wearing a white silk gown to honor the occasion, instead of her customary black or lavendar.

Jan. 9th the Whiton Seminary club will meet at hotel Vendome, Boston, at half past one for its regular meeting. Following the business there will be a memorial program in memory of Mrs. Estelle M. H. Merrill in charge of Miss Pike.

Mrs. Clayton wife of Henry Helm Clayton, meteorologist at the Rotch Observatory on Blue Hill, spoke before the Warren and Prescott Chapter, D. A. R. of Boston, Saturday, of her impression during an aerial flight from North Adams last August. Her account of preparing the balloon which at first looked like a tawny lion entangled in the ropes and then like a great golden globe, which sailed up and up until nearly 5000 feet above the cheering, cheering crowd, her description of the trains as they slipped in and out of Hoosac Tunnel "like sleepy dragons;" the flights of birds, far below the car, the hiss of the trailing ropes as the balloon approached the tree-tops, and the scenes when they landed safely on a hillside near Shelburne Falls were highly dramatic. It was "a day of days" to which a trip in a submarine boat, an experience with lightning, a runaway horse could not compare in excitement, yet all earthly cares seemed to slip away with the first grains of sand that were dropped over the edge. "Now that man-flight is accomplished," said Mrs. Clayton, "any woman who cares to may pilot her own airship, which, under favorable conditions, is less dangerous than motor car or ship."

MOTHERS' MEET AT BETHANY CHAPEL

Emmanual Movement and Other Topics Discussed.

Mothers' Association of Quincy held its January meeting, Wednesday afternoon in Bethany chapel with the usual large attendance.

Mrs. Doble, president, in opening, talk, spoke briefly of the Emmanual Movement, dwelling particularly on the value and powers of suggestion, in overcoming undesirable habits and tendencies in children.

A short business session followed, when a nominating committee of three, Mrs. William E. Alden, Mrs. W. G. Shaw and Mrs. V. E. Miller was appointed, to present names of officers for the ensuing year, at the February election.

Mrs. Edwin I. Beal, in the devotional exercises, took for her subject "Today," and offered many inspiring and helpful thoughts for the New Year.

Mrs. Edith Cary Page, the soloist, sang "Suffer little children to come unto me" by Hewitt, "Queen of the Earth—a mother" by Pinsuti and a "Slumber Song" by Newcomb. These songs contributed largely to the pleasure of the afternoon.

Mrs. Charles R. Safford of Atlantic, chairman of the Education Committee of the Quincy Woman's club, was the speaker for the afternoon. An appreciative audience listened with closest attention to her paper, the "Science of Motherhood and Child culture," which was intelligently and and carefully prepared, and most gracefully delivered.

GYMNASIUM NOTES.

The carnival of Basket Ball Athletics and Fun of the holiday season have been replaced this week by systematic class work. The boys have returned to class work with a will and the attendance in all classes is improved.

Music is being used this week for the larger classes and adds very much to the class work. Twenty-five employed boys attended class on Monday evening. On Tuesday at 4 P. M. there were thirty-eight juniors present while in the evening thirty senior members were in class.

The association physicians are busy examining new and old members, a free medical examination being one of the benefits of membership.

Business and professional men seem to be the hardest class to interest in the gymnasium work. Many other cities of our size are able to run a large class of business and professional men. No man can lead a sedentary life for a long period without impairing his health and usefulness. Good health and nervous vitality are as much needed in the equipment of successful men today. as any time in the world's history. These elements of success cannot be obtained except through vigorous and systematic exercise.

CONVENTION.

The Old Colony Association of Universalists met on Wednesday with the Brockton parish. It was a meeting full of inspiration. The speakers were Rev. Mr. Temple of West Medford, Rev. Hazen Conklin of New Hampshire, Rev. Mr. Fischer of Lowell and Dr. Perin of Brookline, who spoke of "Some things that were worth while." There was a large delegation from Quincy and a number from Braintree. The next meeting will be in Abington, April 12.

OPPOSED TO CHARTER REVISION

Board of Trade Thinks Change Inexpedient

The annual meeting of the Board of Trade was held Wednesday evening in their rooms in the Adams building. President Piper presided. Reports were made by the secretary, treasurer and committees showing that the membership had increased materially during the past year and that the financial conditions of the Board was on a firm basis.

President Piper, the Board's representative on the Citizens' Association sub-committee on City Charter reported what that committee had done thus far. This brought out an informal discussion on the city charter, in which several took part.

The different propositions for amendment were brought out and there seemed to be no general sentiment in favor of a change.

The Board then put its self on record by passing a unanimous vote that it was inexpedient to amend the City Charter at the present time.

Frank Fessinden Crane who represented jointly the Mayor, Board of Trade and Citizens' Association at the recent Rivers and Harbors Congress at Washington, spoke on the work and the importance of the congress.

The election of officers was then held. The following were elected:

President—John R. Richards.
Vice President—Eugene R. Stone.
Secretary—Arthur W. Stetson.
Treasurer—Charles H. Johnson.
Directors—Thomas J. Williams, Ralph W. Hobbs and James M. Nowland.

John R. Richards the new president of the Board is one of Quincy's hustling granite manufacturers. He has been prominently identified with the Board from the first. He is a member of the present City Council.

After the election of officers a vote of thanks was extended the retiring President Walter E. Piper.

AS IN MERRY ENGLAND.

English Residents of Quincy Follow Out Old Custom.

The pretty custom of singing carils from house to house on Christmas eve. which has been so popular in England for centuries is not lost sight of by the sons of merry England who have made their homes in Quincy.

The granite cutting business of Quincy has attracted quite a number of the craft from Cornwall, England, the principle centre of the granite industry of that country, and notwithstanding the arduous and exhausting nature of the trade many of the men find the old custom of serenading their kinsfolk on Christmas eve a pleasant pastime.

The chorists however have this season extended their field and did not confine themselves to Christmas eve. On Sunday the 27th they visited Sailors' Snug Harbor at Germantown and for an hour or so entertained the old sailors to a round of their musical selections, and were in turn entertained with hot coffe and crackers after which they adjourned to the old sailors smoke room and sang some of the old time carols to the great delight of the old salts who expressed their appreciation by lusty applause.

The carolists had other engagements but had to postpone them on account of the member who played the alto horn having to leave the city for a time, and also sickness of the alto singers. The singers have through their rehearsals been kindly granted the use of a room by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Newcombs.

Arthur Spiller, Fred Keast, William C. Warmington, Fred Warmington, Norman Spiller; Penryn.

Thomas Kessil, Treverva; William Eva, Princeton; Harold Williams, William H. Rendle, Albert Rendle, John Andrew, Arthur Williams and George Gustan, Quincy; Richard Reed, Wendrou; Ernest Medlin, Mabe.

MERRILL—FORSYTH.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at Norfolk Downs Wednesday evening, when Miss Nellie E. Forsyth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman L. Forsyth, became the bride of Carlton N. Merrill of Dorchester, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Merrill.

The ceremony which was witnessed by the immediate family and a few intimate friends, was followed by a reception from 7.30 to 9.30.

The reception was largely attended, the parents of the bride and groom assisting in receiving.

A wedding supper was served and Mr. and Mrs. Merrill received many beautiful and costly presents. They left at 10 o'clock for a brief wedding trip.

—The prevalence of the 13 superstitions in London is shown by the fact that there is no No. 13 in the Strand, Holborn, Threadneedle street, St. James street, Woburn square or Westbourne grove, while in Park lane it is thinly disguised as 12A. and in Upper Brook street at 15A.

TWENTY SEVEN TABLES IN PLAY

Quincy Catholic Club Holds Successful Whist Party

The Quincy Catholic club held its first whist party of the season Wednesday evening. The party was held in Colonial hall and proved to be a great sucess both in point of attendance as well as socially.

There were twenty-seven tables in play and for two hours a keen contest for the pretty souvenirs was waged.

The tables were arranged in the body of the hall and formed a pretty picture.

The young ladies to assist at the tables were Miss Emily Dinegan, Miss Carmel Brogan, Miss Anna Heaney, Miss Alice Mahoney and Miss Ethel Harkins.

Refreshments were served at 10.30.

The souvenirs were awarded to Mrs. Joseph A. Dasha, Mrs. John McGowan, Miss Murphy, Mrs. P. M. DeCoste, Dr. J. P. Murphy, Robert J. Teasdale, John J. O'Hara and Dr. James Maloney.

—Walter Clayton of Lincoln, Me., recently mounted a buck's head that beside a fine set of antlers has a small horn growing under the right eye. Now Massachusetts, not to be outdone in animal freaks, has come forward with a dog from Ware which boasts two tails.

Here's hoping it's all true about Mr. Loeb if he wants the job, also hoping he wants it.

Talk about symathetic illness. E. H. Harriman's liver went bad for a day, and all Wall street had a bilious attack.

The President isn't going to pay any more attention to Compers. Now if he will agree to pay none to Congress or the Meat Trust, he will relieve a lot of over-wrought nerves.

Congress is riled because Mr. Roosevelt ordered the old Pennsylvania Railroad Station razed. The Congress will be fortunate if he doesn't order the members all thrown into the jail soon and the jail blown up.

Tammany Hall, having been repudiated by about everything political, is now figuring to save itself by repudiating McClellan. Tammany's trouble is that the greater city of New York has outgrown it, and the fact would as well be recognized.

The Board of Trade has put its self on record as being opposed to amending the City Charter. This action was taken at the annual meeting of the Board, held Wednesday. Its opinion is voiced in the vote "That it is inexpedient to amend the city charter at the present time." This vote was passed unanimously.

As a rule perhaps the majority of the members of the Board of Trade are more familiar with the City Charter and its workings than is the Citizens' Association which is so anxious to tinker with the charter, but whether they are voicing the sentiments of the people at large is a question.

Among its members who took part in the informal discussion last night were Walter E. Piper for several years a member of the City Council and for two years it's president, Eugene R. Stone an ex-councilman, Charles H. Johnson an ex-assessor, Councilman Ralph W. Hobbs, the present President of the Council and others.

Some of these gentlemen are on special committee appointed by the Citizens' Association to discuss the proposed amendments to the charter.

The sentiment of the members present last evening was that it had not yet been pointed out wherein the charter was vitally defective. For this reason the Board passed the vote as noted above.

The necessity for determining the extent and character of the water resources of the country, if such resources are to be wisely untilized, is emphasized by the Director of the United States Geological Survey in his annual report. In this report it is pointed out that prominent engineers have long advocated the extension of Government investigations of water resources, and that the work in the United States is not commensurate with that done in many European countries. If the United States were to provide for the prosecution of water-resources investigations on a scale of thoroughness equal to that of Switzerland, for example, it would appropriate $11,000,000 annually, a sum 110 times greater than the present annual appropriation for similar work in this country.

The average annual damage by floods in the United States has never been accurately determined, but such investigations as have been made indicate that the loss must be at least $100,000,000 annually. It appears that in many parts of the United States the proper expenditure of an amount equal to one year's flood loss would prevent future floods; in parts of the country the cost would probably equal the losses of two or more years; but in every licality prevention could be accomplished by an expenditure equivalent to the losses from the floods of a few years.

In few flood regions, however, could this result be accomplished except under federal action. Most of the rivers are interstate. Their basins were defined many thousands of years before State boundaries were conceived. The proper treatment of the flood question must therefore follow the limits imposed by nature rather than the artificial lines defining the sovereignty of the various States. Prevention of floods is purely an engineering problem, and the engineers who have thoroughly investigated it realize fully the necessity for federal regulation.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

It's one of the habits of Connecticut—proverbially the land of steady habits—to choose her United States senators for herself. That is preeminently her own business, and not at all the business of a senatorial cabal at Washington that lies awake nights to hate Theodore Roosevelt and worked overtime last winter and spring to prevent the nomination of William Howard Taft.—Hartford Courant.

This Mr. C. P. Taft must have some of the qualities of sound judgment possessed by his distinguished brother. Two years from now, some things will not be so fresh in the public mind as they are at present. The public will have had a chance to become better acquainted with him. He can renew his candidacy under more auspicious and certainly under more opportune conditions.—Detroit Free Press.

According to statistics compiled by the Chicago Tribune, 8952 homicides were committed in the United States in 1908, an increase of 240 over the record of the previous year. The total looks a good deal grimmer than it really is. People constantly take the Chicago compilation to represent the murder record of the United States. While all murders are homicides, only a fraction of homicides is murder.

If a person is accidently killed in the street by an automobile the incident adds a unit to the Chicago total. If a fleeing burglar is shot dead by a policeman who is hot on his trail the homicide total swells. If a person, in sheer self-defence, kills an assailant, a cubit is added to the stature of the Chicago statistics of slayings. The figures include involuntary and commendable killings no less than homicides involving malice, express or implied. Popular failure to distinguish between murders and other classes of homicides has occasioned misconception and has induced people to paint indigo over the black. It results every year in ponderous moralizing over the assumed tendency of the United States to indulge in murder as a pastime. The truth is that, except in restricted localities, the United States is not greatly given to murder.—Boston Transcript.

George B. Cortelyou, head of the Treasury Department of the United States Government, enjoys no widespread fame as a perpetrator of jokes; the membership role of the American Press Humorists' organization does not contain his name; neither is he known as a boon companion of Mark Twain (copyrighted) or of George Ade. It is a mistake, however, to hold that the dignified cabinet officer from New York is devoid of jocularity. Witness a recent incident:

The upright Secretary of the Treasury solemnly warns the surveyor at the port of Boston that he must either resign from his Federal office or from the Republican committee of his district, for the two interests conflict. Mr. Surveyor is told he cannot serve the public faithfully and impartially while he serves his party as an active member of a political committee. There is no flaw in this argument. Yet the briefest of memories will disclose the humor of the situation.

For Mr. Cortelyou, who thus publicly commands the Boston official to choose between his Federal berth and his party committee, is the same Mr. Cortelyou who, after serving as Secretary of Commerce and Labor, was put at the head of the Republican National Committee, where his previous intimate knowledge of the big corporations could be put to the best use for his chief and his party in the contest of 1904. He is the same Mr. Cortelyou who, while acting as Postmaster General, refused or neglected to give up the chairmanship of the committee for practically two years.

The Secretary correctly analyzes the situation at Boston; the surveyor should not continue as a Republican committeeman. But when did the Secretary discover the impropriety of such a situation? Is the surveyor less likely to serve the public well while a member of a district committee than was the Postmaster General who continued at the head of the National Committee from March 7, 1905, when he went to the head of the Post Office Department, till Jan. 7, 1907?—Cleveland Pain Dealer.

I suffered for a long time from kidney trouble, the principal symptom being backache. Being advised by a friend to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store and began their use. "OLD FAITHFUL RETIRED."

Famous War Horse Will be Cared for by Uncle Sam.

"Old Faithful," of the 5th field artillery, U. S. A. has been ordered put on the retired list with all the honors due to long and faithful service. "Old Faithful," who used to be known as Putnam and later as Peking, is a horse, and there is not an officer or enlisted man in the entire service who has not listened to the stories of this old horse's wonderful intelligence and his splendid battle record.

At the beginning of the Spanish-American war Putnam, as he was then called, was young and strong, and was earning a livelihood as a draft horse in New Haven, Conn. The Yale battery was then organized, and among the animals procured for pulling the ordnance of that command was Putnam. Putnam took to army life as a duck does to water, and in less than six weeks what he didn't know about pulling an artillery gun carriage was not worth knowing.

The fame of the animal spread throughout the regular and volunteer armies, and as one of the regular commands ordered to Cuba needed a firstclass, intelligent artillery horse, Putnam was transferred to the regulars and went to Cuba in time to take part in the campaign that ended in the capitulation. He made such a fine record at El Caney and in the assaults on Santiago proper that when the war was over Putnam was brought back to the United States and sent to fort Hamilton, Brooklyn, as a "casual," to recuperate from the strenuous service he had gone through.

A few months at fort Hamilton made a new horse of Putnam, and early in 1899 he was ordered to Manila as one of the artillery horses of battery F. of the 5th field artillery, under command of Capt. Reilly. The fall of 1899 was one of the most strenuous in the history of the Philippine war, and during October and November of that year old Putnam did the work of half a dozen horses, participating in every engagement that the troops under Gen. Swan fought in the expedition through Cavite province.

The following year came the boxer outbreaks in China and the organization of the allied armies for the rescue of the peking legations. The 9th U. S. infantry and a battery of field artillery were sent to China to represent the United States in that advance, the commander of the Americans being Lieut. Gen. Adna R. Chaffee. The finest artillery horses in the Philippines were sent along to pull the field guns, and of course one of those horses was old Putnam.

Putnam shared in every one of the engagements in which the allied forces participated, and long before Peking was relieved he was the best-known horse that ever trod Chinese soil. So well did he do his work that the soldiers dropped Putnam as his name and substituted that of Peking, for it was said they knew that if any part of the allied army reached the Chinese capital it was a 10 to 1 bet that this old horse would be in at the finish, and so he was.

When the allied armies arrived in sight of Peking, the old Yale horse, with another horse, known as Corregidor, was pulling the first of the American light field guns. The American artillerymen had orders to take a position on a hill overlooking Peking, and the gun that Peking and Corregidor were pulling was the first that was ordered into position. Just as they had started up the hill the traces behind Corregidor broke, and the artillerymen were in a quandary, when one of the gunners shouted:

"Cut Corregidor loose and let Peking pull it up by himself."

There was an answering yell of approval, and a moment later, straining every muscle, Peking started up that hill, and the soldiers tell to this day how he arrived there in time for the American gun to open fire first on the troubled city. Since that time Peking has had but one name, "Old Faithful," and under this he has been ordered retired by the war department.

After the Chinese problem was solved Peking went back to his old regiment in the Philippines, where he has since served on duty every day until a few weeks ago. Then Col. Edward T. Brown, who had always taken an interest in the horse, noticed that he was getting too old and fat to do his work as well as formerly. Under the American laws no horse can be brought back to the United States from the Philippines on acount of certain diseases they are subject to on the islands, which might infect the animals at home.

Col. Brown did not want "Old Faithful" sold to the Manila cart pedlers, and he recommended to Gen. Pershing, the department commander, that the long and splendid service of "Old Faithful" entitled him to an old age of peace and comfort at the expense of the U. S. government. Gen. Pershing agreed with him, and so did Gen. Weston, the commander-in-chief in the Philippines. Now the secretary of war has acquiesced, and from now till the end of his life "Old Faithful" will be cared for by the government he has served so long and well.—New York Sun.

RECENT DEATHS.

William Carroll.

William Carroll, aged 55 years, employed at the Fore River Ship Building Co., was found dead in bed at his boarding house, 33 Winter street, Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Carroll had been about the day before in apparent good health and nothing unusual was noticed about him when he retired.

Tuesday morning he did not get up as usual. Going to his room his boarding mistress saw him in bed but supposed that he was asleep.

Later in the afternoon seeing him in bed her suspicions were aroused and investigation showed the man to be dead.

Medical Examiner Jones was notified and said he died from heart disease.

Mr. Carroll belonged in Cambridge, where he has three sons and two daughters.

Mrs. Adeline Holt.

Mrs. Adeline L., widow of Mr. Horace M. Holt, passed away Tuesday at her residence 1061 Hancock street, in her 84th year. Mrs. Holt has been in poor health for a long time.

WINS FIRST PRIZE.

The billiard and pool tournament at the Granite City club which was started last winter, was completed this week. There were about thirty players entered in each tournament and as every player had to play one game with each of the other players, a large number of games was necessary. It was a handicap tournament, the best players being set at scratch. That is they were required to make 100 points. The handicap of the other players ranged from 5 points to 75. The winner in both tournaments was Thomas J. Smith, whose handicap at billiards was 15. He was remarkably lucky in all of his games, many of which were won by one point. It has not been decided as yet what will be given him as a prize.

FARM LIFE UNSATISFACTORY.

"More city men says the St. Louis Republic turn farmers in the spring than at any other season," said a farmer who has become a city man. "There is no denying that the country looks charming at that time to the city dweller.

"The city man passes the cozy farmhouses, where the rich grass in the front yards is set off by flower beds of all sorts, while in the pasture the cows are either grazing lazily or lying down peacefully, and in the field the crops appear to be growing without attention from the farmer. Farming looks mighty easy to the city man, and the enthusiasm he stir up in his wife and children when he speaks of going to the country is not chilled by the real estate man to whom he appeals for the right kind of a little farm.

"Hundred of city-men move to the country every year, and about 99 out of every 100 go back at the end of 12 months much wiser. The one who succeeds out of each 100 has a real love for farming, and capital enough to buy or rent the right kind of a farm to experiment on. His wife and children are able to adapt themselves to the hours of farm life, going to bed at dark and getting up with the sun.

"Such a man gets a moderately good living out of farming, although he may not make a fortune out of it. He finds that nature is generous, but she will not be trifled with. She gives up her treasures when properly approached, but resents undue familarity from amateurs.

"The principal cause of the city man's failure as a farmer is lack of capital. A man who would not think of trying to support his family and lay up a competence from the proceeds of a business established with a capital of $2000 will not hesitate to engage in farming on half that or less. There have been cases in which a farmer achieved success on a small capital, or no capital, but they are few

"A farmer must buy seeds, implements and live stock, and have hired help, and he cannot begin to take his living from the soil for at least six months after he starts, and even then only a small part of it. These things cost money, and without it the city farmer will quickly find himself in debt despondency and despair.

"Even if he has the capital the city man must not think he can be a farmer without some exact knowledge of the occupation. But with a little of both a good supply of faith and courage, business common sense and love of the soil a man can safely abandon the city, with its long hours of labor, its indifference and greed for the freedom.

TO FILL VACANCIES.

Two New Firemen Appointed by Chief Williams.

Two vacancies in the permanent fire force caused by the resignation of Lieut. W. H. Corcoran of the Central station and James Dinegan of the Wollaston station have been filled by the appointment of William M. Lahey and Daniel McNeice. The new men were appointed from the civil service lists.

They have not been assigned to any particular station but will be shifted about as men are needed. At the present time Leahy is at the Central station and McNeice at Wollaston.

The vacancy in the office of Lieutenant at the Central station has not been filled as yet. When filled it will be by promotion although the man promoted will have to take a non competitive examination.

ANNUAL GUILD MEETING.

The Woman's Guild of Christ church held their annual meeting on Wednesday afternoon in the Parish house electing the following officers: President Mrs. C. Theodore Hardwick; vice president Mrs. W. W. Osborne; 2d vice president Mrs. Forrest Boyal; secretary Miss Emily C. Wilde; treasurer, Mrs. Charles Wilson. Standing committees will be elected later by the president.

Mrs. Hardwick gave a short address of acceptance and outlined the work of the year in a happy pleasing way which will doubtless result in continued good work by the Guild members. The outlook was encouraging and the meeting a very pleasant one throughout.

—In a bundle of books recently put up at auction in London there chanced to be a "find" for an East London bookseller who paid a penny apiece for the books. Stowed away among the "strays" was a fourth volume of the 1781 edition of Dr. Johnson's "Lives of the English Poets," which had on its frontispiece the following inscription: "J. Wesley, the gift of the author," and also this, "S. Wesley, the legacy of her much honored uncle, J. Wesley, 1791." The bookseller got $46 for what cost him a penny.

Brief Items of Interest From All Quarters

Big Dann McGann is a Dove no more. It's back to the corn dropper circuit for the tall Kentuckian, the big league snickersnee having fallen athwart his thorax this day, when the Cincinnati club accepted the challenge of Pres. Dovey and declined to waive claim on the big fellow.

But Dan will not linger in fast society because Cincinnati took him. Keep him? Hardly. The Reds' management did not hold onto Dan long enough to notice the color of his eyes. He was passed right along to the Milwaukee club of the American association, in part payment for catcher Frank Roth, once of the Phillies and the St. Louis Americans, who was wanted by manager Clark Griffith to help out Larry McLean and Bunny Pearce behind the bat.

Griffith also was importuned by Pres. Dovey to hand over Mike Mowrey, but there was nothing doing. The three-sided deal, involving Cincinnati, Brooklyn and Boston, was again discussed from all angles, with the Reds willing to part with Mowrey and Boston there with Dahlen; but Brooklyn failed to show anything that Cincinnati wanted. An offer of catcher Graham of Boston for Mike Mowrey also was spurned by manager Griffith.

Unless there is a general slip-up in the agreement reached by the warring factions of the minor leagues, the peace dove will be doing business at the old stand when the baseball season opens. Thanks to the lenient spirit shown, the meeting of the national commission at Cincinnati was one of nothing more serious than the dissemination of a lot of hot air.

One of the most exciting games ever bowled on the Houghs Neck Associates' alleys was played Wednesday by the Rousers and the Bulldogs of the Houghs Neck Associates league. The Bulldogs did not have a look in from start to finish. The Rousers captured every string, winning then by a large margin. There were about twenty-five rooters for each team and they certainly made a pile of noise. Dr. Ernest Maines of the Rousers was easily the best man of both teams getting the highest single and the highest total for three string. Brown of the Bulldogs, who is usually a fine bowler was way off last night, missing some easy spare leaves. Baird was sick with the grip and they bowled under a disadvantage. Frank Catarius was second high man with Joseph Brickley a strong third. The score was as follows:

BOWLER	ROUSERS
D. J. Mahoney	66	74	65	205

JOINT INSTALLATION AT ELECTA HALL

Officers of Paul Revere Post and Woman's Relief Corps Assume Office

The joint installation of the officers of Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R. and Paul Revere Woman's Relief corps was held Thursday evening at Electa hall. The Post assembled at headquarters on Hancock street at 7 o'clock and with colors flying marched to the Quincy depot to escort Past Department Commander John Gilman, the installing officer, to the hall.

As the boys in blue passed C. C. Hearn's durg store a short halt was made while Mr. Hearn presented the boys with a box of cigars for which they were duly thankful.

Commander Gilman was assisted by Waren Dunbar as officer of the day and the installation was impressively rendered.

At its close Commander Gilman addressed Comrade Dunbar briefly thanking him for the soldierly manner in which he had performed his part of the duty, reminding him of the time 45 years ago when they stood shoulder to shoulder in the same company fighting for their country.

Then turning to the newly installed Commander of the Post George L. Phillips he said it was one of the pleasantist duties of his life in installing his old comrade into office with whom he had also stood shoulder to shoulder in many a hard fought fight.

Turning to the comrades of the Post he urged them to see to it that the old flag was respected and to carefully look after the comrade or widow in want, not as an act of charity but in remembrance of those old days and all that they meant.

Commander Phillips thanked comrade Gilmore for his services as installing officer and then with trembling voice spoke of the battle of Antietam where the latter had lost his good right arm. On the morning of that battle 35 of their company had answered their name at roll call. That night when the roll was called but six answered. The others had been killed or wounded.

Two of those six were Comrades Gilman and Phillips.

This ended the ceremony of the Post.

The officers of the Post installed were:

Commander—George L. Phillips.
Senior Vice Commander—Thomas Ring.
Junior Vice Commander—Francis P. Loud.
Adjutant—Franklin Curtis.
Chaplain—Henry Chubbuck.
Quartermaster—Andrew W. Gardner.
Officer of Day—Warren Dunbar.
Officer of Guard—William M. Bird.
Patriotic Instructor—Henry Chubbuck.
Sergt. Major—James H. Webb.
Quartermaster Sergt. — Edward Richardson.

The officers of the Woman's Relief Corps then assumed the chairs to install its officers.

The ceremony at this installation was by Mrs. Elizabeth P. Sawyer, Senior Vice Department Commander assisted by Mrs. Alberta Hewson as conductress. They rendered their work in a manner that called forth many words of praise.

At the close of the ceremony the installing officers presented Mrs. Edith B. Wolfe the retiring president of the corps with a gold watch chain. Hardly had she recovered from this surprise when Mrs. Isabel A. Souther presented her with a handsome silk flag, for her son Arthur R. Wolfe who is at present in Pittsfield.

Following close upon this came the presentation to Mrs. Wolfe of a bunch of carnations.

Mrs. Wolfe was almost overwhelmed by the many tokens of good feeling and friendship that had been showered upon her. She thanked the members of the corps however for the loyal support they had given her, and said that although she had retired from office her interest in the corps would be as keen as ever.

The boys' brigade of Atlantic, after their meeting Tuesday night, made themselves felt in the vicinity of Walker, Billings and Botolph streets, by catcalls, rapping on windows and a general howling. USE OF SECRET SERVICE MEN

President Makes Startling Admission in Senate Report

Washington, Jan. 8.—By direction of President Roosevelt secret service men shadowed Senator Tillman of South Carolina, on the theory that possibly he was interested in an Oregon "land grab" and the result of that investigation is now before the senate.

The information was contained in a communication from President Roosevelt in response to a request by Senator Hale to the heads of the executive departments for a statement of the activities of secret service operatives. Exhaustive replies were made by the various departments and all of these were forwarded to Hale by the president. They have not been made public, and Hale announced that they would not be until they had been considered by a subcommittee on appropriations, which will be charged with the duty of acting upon that portion of the president's annual message relating to the secret service and criticising members of congress for their restriction of its use.

Owing to several senators having had advance information of the character of the report which was sent to the senate, it was found out that the investigation of Tillman followed an attack which he made in the senate nearly a year ago upon an Oregon land company, which used his name as one of the persons interested in the concern.

Senator Tillman said that the use of his name was without authority and as a result it is declared that several persons interested in the land grants became angered.

Some of the interested parties are reported to have sent to President Roosevelt copies of letters alleged to have been written by Tillman indicating that he had an interest either in one of the land companies or would be benefited by the land companies obtaining possession of the grants in question. After receiving this information, it is said President Roosevelt directed a secret service operative to investigate the part Tillman was alleged to have had in the land cases.

Senator Tillman was not aware that his name figured in the reports until late Thursday. He then took pains to assure himself that the reports concerning the mention of himself were well founded, but he said only that he would not make any statement until the fact of the use of his name had been officially promulgated, when he would address himself to the subject from his seat in the senate. It is known, however, that he regards the mention of his name as an attack upon himself by the president and he has indicated to friends that he will not mince matters in his reply.

For the second time within a week bogus furniture movers have successfully plied their trade in South Boston. They will be taking the houses and all next.

It is about time the Boston police or the railroad employes got after the professional beggars and bums who frequent the south terminal station.

At the present time the patrons of the station are called upon to contribute various small sums of money to well dressed, healthy looking young fellows who tell a stock in trade hard luck story. Wednesday night a resident of Quincy was approached by one of these men and although he refused to give the fellow any money, he did offer to buy him some food, which was refused in rather strong terms.

So far these men have been working their game, with apparently little interference by either railroad employes or police officials, and the people who use the trains daily are growing disgusted. If the regular officer at the station cannot catch the men, would it not be well to put plain clothes officer in the station?

According to the annual report of the railroad commissioners issued Wednesday 291 persons were killed on railroads in the state and 809 persons injured, during the past year. Of the killed 11 were passengers, 92 employes, 27 were struck at grade crossings, 146 were trespassers and othesr numbered 15. During the same period the electric roads of Massachusetts injured 6072 persons, 121 fatally.

In addition to these figures it would be interesting to know how many of the accidents were caused by carelessness on the part of the persons killed or injured.

If these facts were supplied they would undoubtedly show that a large per cent of the fatalities were due to the victims themselves and not to the railroad companies.

No matter how well a railroad is managed there are bound to be a certain number of fatal accidents, as long as the general public disregards all rules and regulations, as they do at the present time.

At the risk of appearing ungracious we venture to ask those members of the Board of Trade who gave so much of their valuable time at their annual meeting, to the discussion of whether or not the city charter should be amended, if they also considered the advisability of making a move to get any business here.

We admit that the question of amending the charter is a momentous one, but we also consider the future commercial life of Quincy equally as important.

Evidently the members of the Board of Trade do not consider the present city charter any stumbling block to the commercial growth of the city, (a point which has been hinted at, by some of our up-to-date business men, who have long marvelled at the inaction of that worthy body.) Therefore we cannot be lenient with them on this score.

The old saying, that great bodies move slowly hardly applies either, for even though great bodies move slowly, they do move, which is more then can be said of the Board of Trade. Its trikes us that the Board of Trade is more like Mr. Micawber waiting, patiently, silently waiting, for something to turn up, to give it an excuse for existing. Perhaps, like M. Micawber, it too, will sometime in the distant future, accomplish something, although at the present time there is little prospect of such a contingency.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

No better use could be offered for our warships than their going to Italy to bring what assistnce they can to the situation there. This is not the purpose, and it may be taken as a most fortunate circumstance that these ships are now in that part of the world, and so available for practical usefulness much more worthy than the purpose for which such vessels are desgined. The worst of the situation will, to be sure be over with by the time that our sailors reach the scene, but there will be much to be done, none the less, and in that work the trained efficiency of our men should be valuable. The fleet will find the ships of some other nations ahead of them— notably the Russians, who have done a splendid piece of service in the stricken country, according to the reports, and have cemented the friendship of Italy and Russia. The work to be done, by Russians, Americans and others who may be there, is of a thoroughly practical nature but underneath there lies a strong current of sentiment which may have an enduring effect on future international relations and the peace of the world.—Boston Advertiser.

AN ECCENTRIC MAN'S FORESIGHT

His Home the Only Habitable One In Messina

RESCUERS' GREAT ENDURANCE

Saved Twelve Thousand Persons From Ruins, All of Whom Have Been Provided For—Relief Work Greatly Aided by America—Dead to the Number of Thirteen Hundred Piled In One Grave

Rome, Jan. 8.—The Italian chamber of deputies opened today in extraordinary session to adopt such legislative measures as are necessary to relieve the distress and make good the damage in the earthquake district.

Speaking to The Associated Press, Premier Gioletti summarized the work accomplished by the government, and said that everything possible had been done to help the sufferers.

"In spite of what has been said and written," he said, "it is still difficult and almost impossible to realize the extent of the catastrophe and the work of succor already accomplished. Perhaps a better idea can be had from a report to me by Minister of Public Works Bertolini. Writing from Messina, Bertolini says only one house in Messina is habitable. It was constructed by a reputed eccentric, who for years past has been strengthening his residence with iron bars and other ingenious devices in order to make it strong enough to resist an earthquake.

Great Task of Rescuers

"The rescuers, during the first week, accomplished prodigies of endurance. They saved 12,000 persons, some wounded and others injured, from the ruins. At the same time all the survivors, the total running up into the tens of thousands, have been moved away, nourished, clothed and housed, all at the expense of the government.

"There are no survivors at Messina today excepting a small number being embarked on a steamer for Taormina or on board emigrant vessels placed at their disposal to convey them to a point near Syracuse. These last refugees can live for one month with the provisions on board the vessels transporting them.

"The prompt co-operation of foreign aid added much to the rapidity and thoroughness of the relief work, and in this respect America stands first."

1300 Dead In Trench

A most impressive funeral ceremony was witnessed near Messina Thursday when Archbishop Rarrigo made his way through the ruins of the city to the cemetery at Maregosso and blessed a grave one hundred feet wide and thirty feet deep containing 1300 bodies.

The dead were plied one on top of the other, and the remains have been covered with quicklime. The prelate was followed to the cemetery by a large gathering of survivors, whose lamentations mingled with the Latin words of the service.

Subsequently the archbishop walked through the ruins and blessed the military hospital, the military college, the barracks and the archbishop's house, considering the wrecked edifices as so many cemeteries. Under them were the remains of soldiers, students, policemen, priests and monks.

All the valuables found among the ruins are being taken on board the steamer Duca di Genoa in the bay. Currency to the amount of $3,600,000, including the contents of the safe of the Sicilian-American bank, was transferred to this vessel. A banker named Mauromatik, who was one of the richest residents, lost everything. Yesterday he went to the authorities barefooted and half clothed and asked for a pair of shoes and an overcoat.

With the exception of Sant' Andrea Avellino, all the churches in Messina have been destroyed.

Isolated For Many Days

The first train crawled into Villa San Giovanni yesterday, re-establishing the link with the outside world for the distracted people who, since the earthquake, have been in complete isolation. British warships, however, were here Wednesday and put ashore enormous stores to be distributed to the sufferers by the relief party. Many persons were killed at this place and practically all the houses were overthrown and the survivors have suffered greatly because of lack of shelter from the cold and rains and lack of food.

More Earthquake Shocks

Naples, Jan. 8.—Dispatches received here state that severe earthquake shocks occurred at Monteleone and Palmi last evening. The ruins of the houses were shaken down and the people were thrown into a panic.

Signore is alleged to have forged Murray's name to four notes of $100,000 each, as well as to numerous other negotiable documents.

SECOND DEGREE MURDER

Plea of Dr. Amesbury Will Be Acceptable to the Prosecution

Dedham, Mass., Jan. 8.—District Attorney Grover of Norfolk county has agreed to allow a plea of guilty of murder in the second degree from Dr. Walter R. Amesbury, charged with the murder of his wife.

Amesbury's case will come before Judge Sherman for trial here on next Monday, but it is known that the plea, which carries with it a sentence of life imprisonment, will be accepted.

The murder of Mrs. Amesbury occurred on Christmas Day, 1907, previous to a dinner which had been arranged as a reunion of the family, Amesbury and his wife having been long estranged.

MAY PROVE A BLESSING

Farmers Will Benefit by Flood Resulting From Broken Dam

Pittsfield, Mass., Jan. 8.—Undermined by heavy rains, the dam connected with the lower Ashley reservoir gave way, freeing 23,000,000 gallons of water. The immense volume of water swept down the Pittsfield valley into the Housatonic river, carrying with it a single barn. No other damage was done.

Instead of the flood proving detrimental to the land over which it passed, it is believed that it has rendered it more fertile and of more value for the growing crops. The dam was constructed at a cost of $77,000.

MARJORIE GOULD'S "COMING OUT"

She Is Formally Introduced at a Magnificent Entertainment

New York, Jan. 8.—Mr. and Mrs. George Jay Gould last night at the Plaza Hotel gave a dinner and dance for their debutante daughter, Miss Marjorie Gould, who, although she has been included at the most important entertainments of the season thus far, made her formal bow to society.

It was one of the most elaborate entertainments of the winter and not at all general, as the company assembled included mainly the young friends of Miss Gould and a few married people. Some of the features of the debut were:

Supper cost $100 a plate.

White rose bush eight feet tall, of rare grafting, flanked by smaller bushes at intervals of fifteen feet, formed principal decorations of Miss Gould's table.

Cotillon favors, inscribed gold handled riding crops for the women and gold-headed canes for the men.

Hotel rooms garlanded with 180 crates of Alabama smilax, and American Beauty roses, orchids and exotic lilies were strewn about.

Estimated cost of entire function, $100,000.

EVIDENCE KEPT FROM THE PUBLIC

Much Testimony of Scandalous Nature In Erb Shooting Case

WIDOW AND SISTER ARE FREE

Jury Finds Them Not Guilty of Murdering Captain Erb—Tragedy the Culmination of Long Series of Family Jars and Attracted Much Attention Because of Political Prominence of Man Who Was Killed

Media, Pa., Jan. 8.—Mrs. M. F. Erb, widow of Captain J. Clayton Erb, who was well known in political circles all over Pennsylvania, and her sister, Mrs. Catherine Beisel, who were charged with the murder of Captain Erb on the night of Oct. 6, 1908, walked from the Delaware county courthouse free women.

After the jury had been out nearly eighteen hours it brought in a verdict of not guilty in the case of each woman, both of whom had been charged separately and jointly with shooting the captain. Thus ends a trial that held the interest of the people for more than a week, during which much scandalous evidence was brought out, some of which did not reach the reading public.

Story of the Tragedy

Captain J. Clayton Erb was the confidential man of Israel Durham, the Republican leader of Philadelphia. His wife was a well known horsewoman, having ridden to the bounds in many fox hunting expeditions in the country surrounding Philadelphia. The Erbs had a town house and a country estate, called "Red Gables," in Delaware county, near Philadelphia.

The Erbs frequently quarrelled in the family jars. Mrs. Beisel, who worked in a bookbindery in Philadelphia, and whose husband was in the employ of the Philadelphia and Reading Railway company, always sided with her sister. Erb had forbidden Mrs. Beisel to enter his country home.

On the night of Oct. 6 Erb quarrelled with his wife and she telephoned to the village green hotel, near where Mrs. Beisel was spending the night, and summoned her to the house. The two women were on the second floor of "Red Gables" when, it is alleged, Erb left his bedroom with a revolver in his hand. Mrs. Erb, it was testified by herself, fled to her bathroom, and Mrs. Beisel, coming out of Mrs. Erb's room, was confronted by the captain. A struggle for possession of the weapon followed and resulted in the shooting of the captain by Mrs. Beisel, who said she wrenched the revolver from him in the struggle to save her own life.

IN A BLUFF OPPOSITION

Standard Oil Declared to Have Started "Independent" Concerns

New York, Jan. 8.—That the Standard Oil company had an employe whose duty it was to start supposedly independent oil companies in small towns in seeming oppositon to itself was testified by L. H. Fasenfeld, general manager of the Red "C" Oil company of Baltimore in the government suit for the dissolution of the Standard Oil company.

He said the Eagle Oil company was such a concern, and that its cuts as a rule were met by his company to hold its trade. The reductions, he said, were never made first by his company or the other independent concerns in Baltimore.

TWO CLEVER LIGHTWEIGHTS

Bout Between Murphy and Madden Promises to Be Interesting

New York, Jan. 8.—Two of the best lightweights of America will get together tonight in the ring of the National Athletic club in this city. Tommy Murphy is to face Frankie Madden in a ten round bout.

Murphy's defeat of Charley Griffin, the Australian boxer, in Boston, has sent his stock up a point or two. Madden has championship ideas and will go after some of the best men in the country if he gets the decision over Murphy.

More Comfortable In Jail

Oklahoma City, Jan. 8.—Forty-five prisoners in the city jail tunnelled their way to freedom. Getting a breath of the icy air all but three voluntarily returned. They declared they preferred prison to freedom in zero weather.

Killed by Hose Wagon

Boston, Jan. 8.—Bewildered after the rapid passage in front of him of a fire engine, James H. Cope of Germantown, Pa., aged 35, walked in the way of a hose wagon which followed the engine on its way to a fire and was instantly killed.

The Marsh Court Martial

Washington, Jan. 8.—The record of the court martial in the case of Commander Marsh of the cruiser Yankee has been received at the navy department. It will be submitted to the secretary of the navy tomorrow for final action.

ARTHUR'S GUESS.

He Tells His Chum What He Knows About the Baby.

OUR small boy, Arthur, had long believed that a baby in the family was desirable, since most of his playmates came from homes provided with this adjunct. In good time his mother told him confidentially that his oft expressed wish for a family baby would probably be gratified. The news was too good to keep, and Arthur was promptly boasting to his nearest chum.

"But when you going to have it?" demanded the friend.

"Oh, I don't know; 'fore long, I guess," answered Arthur.

"Huh!" sniffed the other. "What's the use of waiting? What good's a baby if you can't have it when you want it? Why don't you get it right away?"

"Well, you see, it's this way," explained Arthur, driven to his wits' end. "We've ordered the baby, but we haven't paid for it yet!"—Woman's Home Companion.

A Mile In the Air.

"I understand," said the lady who could do more talking in one day than six phonographs, "that if an airship ascends to the height of six miles its occupants dare not open their mouths."

"Then let's go five miles farther up," said her husband desperately.—Harper's Weekly.

Mary's Wedding.

A Maryland man recently married off his fourth daughter, the ceremonies touching whose wedding were given much attention by the "society editors" of the country papers in that region.

A week or two after the wedding a friend who had been north for some time met the father, to whom he made some jocular references in regard to the recent "event." "I see by one paper," said he, "that Mary's wedding 'well nigh beggared description.'"

"Well," said the old man, "I don't know about that, but I do know it well nigh beggared me!"—Lippincott's Magazine.

Rather Caustic.

The comedian and the leading lady stood in the observation car admiring the scenery.

"What a beautiful sunset," said the leading lady dreamily.

"Yes," laughed the comedian; "it reminds me of your exquisite complexion."

"Ah, how kind! Because it is such a beautiful pink and white?"

"No, because it is swiftly fading."

Did It Ever Strike You?

"Shinney" on the ice also includes the innocent byskater.—Kansas City Times.

The Call of the Links.

A well known Scotch author and a young friend had spent the whole day on the links and had had some close and exciting matches.

"Well," answered the youth, "I was to be married tomorrow, but I suppose I can put it off."—New York Herald.

Same Motions.

"It has always been a mystery to me," remarked the observer of events and things, "why it never tires a man to play the fiddle, but wears him out so quickly to saw a little wood."—Yonkers Statesman.

An Opportunity.

"You have had words with your chief?"

"Yes. But I'll be even with him. The next time he makes a joke I won't laugh."—Meggendorfer Blatter.

Such Is Love.

"Does Agnes ever have any words with her fiance?" "Not a word. They never speak from the time he comes in till the time he goes out."—Town und Country.

FREMONT COURT MARTIAL

Son of "The Pathfinder" In Trouble For the Third Time

Havana, Jan. 8.—The general court martial ordered by the president to assemble at Sagua La Grande to try the case of Major Francis P. Fremont of the Fifth Infantry convened there today.

MAJOR F. P. FREMONT.

Major Fremont is charged with having made misstatements concerning Major Wallace O. Clark of his own regiment. It is alleged that he said that Clark became intoxicated at Sagua and for that reason had been removed and would never again be given a separate command in Cuba. He also is charged with having denied the statement after having made it.

Major Fremont is the son of the famous General John C. Fremont, "The Pathfinder." The present occasion is his third appearance before courts martial. He was once convicted of the charge of financial irregularities and once convicted of striking an enlisted man and using improper language to him.

ASSAILS THE PRESIDENT

Culberson Wants Committee to Continue Inquiry on Steel Deal

Washington, Jan. 8.—Characterizing the action of the president in directing the attorney general not to prosecute the United States Steel Corporation for its absorption of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company as "another arbitrary and lawless act of the chief magistrate," Senator Culberson introduced a resolution in the senate instructing the committee on judiciary to report at as early a day as practicable whether in the opinion of that committee the president was authorized to permit such absorption.

Mr. Culberson criticized the president and insisted that congress has the right to give directions to a head of an executive department under certain conditions.

TO LIMIT APPROPRIATION

Naval Committee In Favor of Having Marines on Warships

Washington, Jan. 8.—After listening to an explanation by officials of the navy department as to why the marines were taken off all ships of the navy by executive order, the consensus of opinion of the members of the sub-committee of the house committee on naval affairs seemed to be that the additional cost attached to such a course did not warrant it.

It is believed that the committee will include in the naval appropriation bill a limitation on the appropriation for the marine corps, which will necessitate the marines being put back on the ships.

Canadian Pacific's Plans

Winnipeg, Jan. 8.—It is announced here that the Canadian Pacific Railway this year will spend $30,000,000 in construction work on its western lines.

ANGELL FAR FROM SORROW

Feels Fine as He Reaches Eightieth Milestone In Life's Journey

Ithaca, N. Y., Jan. 8.—"I suppose there are many who believe that when a man like myself reaches the four score mark he should be quoting from the Scriptures 'All these years are but labor and sorrow.' However, I am today of another frame of mind and nothing is farther distant from me than sorrow."

This was said by President James B. Angell, head of the University of Michigan, who has reached his eightieth birthday.

President Angell is attending the annual convention of the Association of American Universities, of which he is the head. "How do I feel? Why, take a look at me. Never in better health and feeling in tip-top condition."

President Angell certainly looked his words. His face was ruddy with health and his voice was strong, his step firm and his every action showed that there was little of physical weakness about him.

Castro's Decree Revoked

The Hague, Jan. 8.—Official notification has been received here from Caracas of the formal revocation by the Venezuelan government of the trans-shipment decree of May 14, which led to the recent Dutch naval demonstration in Venezuelan waters.

NEWS OF THE SPORTING WORLD

Brief Items of Interest From All Quarters

M. H. Sexton, the new President of the Minor League association, said after the meeting in Cincinnati this week; "The bolting leagues found they couldn't get a thing they asked for, and then got out as gracefully as possible, taking just what John H. Farrell was willing to grant them.

Manager Fred Lake of the Red Sox is now a resident of Somerville. Yesterday he spent a short time in Boston and left for home with a fine new pair of skates for Fred Jr.

John McInnis was awarded to the Athletics by the national commission on the ground that Haverhill played the boy more than 15 days without having his name on a contract. Had Haverhill put the young man on the suspension list after playing the 14th game, that club would have a legal claim to the player. Manager Mack has promised to do the right thing with Haverhill through Pres. Rich.

Charley Ganzel says that Cincinnati gave brother John a raw deal. That's what Ed Hanlon thought when Mr. Herrmann turned him down to give the berth to Mr. Ganzel.

The famous "Doc" Reisling was refused reinstatement by the national commission and the Tri-state league will be forced to carry the doctor another year at least.

Manager Frank Bowerman has worked hard during the last month to get some sort of a fair trade for players, but the sign "Nothing doing" seems to greet the Romeo boy on every hand.

The Buchanans of South Boston will play St. Mary's second team Saturday night instead of the Hinghams as announced.

Frank Kanaly of Cambridge, former amateur five-mile champion, has been selected as the third man to meet Alfred Shrubb, the champion of England, in the 12-mile relay race at Madison square garden Saturday night.

Williams has also been selected for Saturday night's race, and Fred Simpson, the Ojibway Indian, who finished sixth in the Olympic marathon at London, will be the other man on the team.

The Tufts basket ball team opened its season last night at the Goddard gymnasium with a 28-to-15 defeat by the Massachusetts institute of Technology five. The second team's game was won by the Medford team, 16 to 10.

The varsity game was M. I. T's all the way. The institute team jumped into the lead at the start and by clever passing and some close covering put the game on ice in the first half, which ended, with the score standing 14 to 4.

In the last period the team work of the Medford five improved to a great extent, but the lead was too great to overcome. The Tech five played fast and clever basket ball throughout. Wentworth alone scored 13 points.

Medford high's hockey team added another to its unbroken series of victories this winter by defeating the Melrose high hockey team on lower Mystic lake West Fedford yesterday afternoon in the opening game of the Suburban league series, 3 to 1.

The exhibition of hockey given by both teams was the best seen in years in this city, and at the close of the two regular periods of 20 minutes each the score was tied, each team having shot the puck through the other's goal once, Blakely scoring for Medford in the fire half, and Jones of Melrose tallying toward the end of the last period.

In the extra five-minute period played to decide the game the Medford high players gave a wonderful exhibition of shooting and passing. Two goals were made, one by Leo Fahey and the other by John Coulson Jr., both playing forward positions. Melrose did not score in this period.

George Bilger, third baseman for the Felix Colts, a Chicago semiprofessional team, was signed yesterday to play with the Worcester team in the New England league.

Representatives of the Bay City club of the South Michigan league have made a proposition to Jimmy Barrett, formerly of the Detroit and Boston clubs in the American league. The Bay City club wants Barrett for manager the coming season, and it is said the once great outfielder looks upon the offer with favor and probably will accept.

For the second time this week the Bull Dogs were defeated. In the third game of the schedule the Bantams trimmed the Bull Dogs of the Houghs Neck Associates league three strings, winning by a large margin. Every man on the Bantam team was in shape and they made the pins fly some. George Morey of the Bantams bowled the highest single and Guy Harvey of the same team was high man for the three string total. Brown and Ross were the best men on the Bull Dogs. The game was very exciting and drew a large attendance. The victory last night places the Bantams at the top of the league. Tonight the Rousers and the Buckos mix it up.

The score was as follows:

BOWLERS	BANTAM'S
Hudson	67	78	63	208
Sturgis	73	72	90	235
Morey	80	82	95	257
G. Harvey	84	94	82	270

About the only thing gained by the Eastern league and American association at Cincinnati was a chance to humiliate Judge Kavanaugh's high-class Southern league. Eastern league and American association teams have been barred from the ball parks of the Southern league. Although it is not known that President Kavanaugh has issued orders to that effect, the clubs of the league are refusing to make any dates to play the teams of the other two leagues during the training trips. The Rochester team of the Eastern league was refused permission to use the Memphis park and games were refused at the same time. The Little Rock club also informed manager Ganzel of the Rochester club that all of the dates for spring games had been closed.

The St. Mary's first team play the Baldwins of Boston Saturday evening.

FOREST RESOURCES.

Present Condition Little Understood by General Public.

Few people have anything like a clear idea of the amount of forest wealth left in this country. Those who think at all about this natural resources which has assisted in material development since the landing of the first settlers are usually too much influenced by the condition of that particular state or section in which they are most familiar.

If they live in a much deforested or a treeless region, the people usually imagine that the country's timber supply is even more limited than is actually the fact; on the other hand, with those whose homes are located in a section where a pinch in timber has not been experienced, the feeling is likely to be altogether the other way, and some become so indifferent at times as to think that there is really not much reason to worry about a timber problem. Both can profit by a reading of the actual facts.

The forests of the United States now cover about 550 million acres, or about one-fourth of the land of the whole country. The original forests covered not less than 850 million acres, or nearly one-half.

The forests owned by the government cover one-fourth of the total forest area, and contain one-fifth of all timber standing. Forests privately owned cover three-fourths of the area, and contain four-fifths of the standing timber. Besides having three times the area and four times the forests, the timberland privately owned is generally more valuable.

Forestry, or conservative lumbering, is practiced on 70 percent of the forests publicly owned and on less than one per cent of the forests privately owned. This covers the country's forest resources as they stand today. Senator Smoot, chairman of the section of forests of the National Conservation Commission, in outlining the future has said:

"By reasonable thrift, we can produce a constant timber supply beyond our present need, and with it conserve the usefulness of our streams for irrigation, water supply, navigation and power.

"Under right management, our forests will yield over four times as much as now. We can reduce waste in the woods and in the mill at least one-third, with present as well as future profit. We can perpetuate the naval stores industry. Preservative treatment will reduce by one-fifth the quantity of timber used in the water or in the ground. We can practically stop forest fires at a total yearly cost of one-fifth the value of the standing timber burned each year, not counting young growth.

"We shall suffer for timber to meet our needs, until our forests have had time to grow again. But if we act vigorously and at once, we shall escape permanent timber scarcity."

MISSIONARY AT T WHARF.

B. R. Brewer Tells of Work Among Fishermen.

The address of B. R. Brewer, M. D. Home Missionary to the Sailors of T wharf, Boston, before the United Presbyterian church last evening was a very interesting one. He told many incidents that had come to his observation during his fifteen years at the mission and told of several experiences he had had while ministering to the spiritual needs of those "who do down to the sea in ships and do business in great waters."

It is thought that it will be necessary to close the subscription list for the song recital next Tuesday evening at Colonial hall as it is growing beyond the limits of the hall. Mr. C. Pol Plancon will be assisted by Mrs. Sturtevant, soloist; Jacques Hoffmann, violinist from the Symphony orchestra, with E. Cutter, Jr., at the piano. It will be the finest concert of the season from a musical and social standpoint.

AT NEW HOME.

Miss Nellie Horan gave a pink tea at her new home on Hancock street last evening. The house was prettily decorated with ferns and carnations. The color scheme was carried out charmingly, the ladies present all wearing pink.

Out of town guests were present from Somerville, Weymouth, South Braintree and West Quincy. The first part of the evening, music and readings were enjoyed, in which all participated, after which the company adjourned to the tea room, where to the music of the "Merry Widow," tea and sandwiches were dispensed to the guests by the hostess. Miss Kathryn Brown poured.

CHARTER REVISIONISTS MAY "PACK" CITY HALL

Attempt to Pass Amendments at Mass Meeting Likely to be Opposed

There was a rumor about the city yesterday that it was proposed by certain interested parties, to make the public meeting to be called for next Friday evening, to consider proposed amendments to the City Charter, a kind of cut and dried affair. That is to have the meeting vote to adopt the changes proposed by the committee who have been considering them. To accomplish this end rumor says the meeting will be "packed." If it is necessary to "pack" a meeting in order to carry their point it is high time that the citizens woke up to the fact that there is to be something doing.

There is no question but what an amended charter would be a good thing but it does not seem wise to railroad a change through without due consideration. The general public has no definite idea of what the proposed changes are and if it becomes necessary to "pack" a public meeting in order to adopt the recommendations and over rule those who may honestly differ with them shows that there is something wrong somewhere. At all events the special committee should publish the changes it proposes so that the citizens could see to it that if a bill is passed by the legislature it should have a referendum clause attached to it.

Then it will come before the citizens and every voter would have an opportunity to express himself on the question. At all events there should be no "packing" of a public meeting in order to carry out any pet project, no matter how beneficial it might prove to be. Perhaps it would have been better if the proposed amendments to the charter had come through the City Council instead of some society. The City Council of 1908 gave these same citizens an opportunity to express themselves on the charter matter but no one seemed to have any desire to do so.

HOUSE REBUKES THE PRESIDENT

LANGUAGE NOT RESPECTFUL

Without Basis In Fact and Therefore Not Justified—Interpretation by Chief Executive of His Own Words Not Acceptable—Galleries of House Crowded to Fullest Capacity So Great Is the Interest

Washington, Jan. 9.—After having made President Roosevelt the object of criticism all day, with here and there words of commendation of him, the house of representatives last night, by a vote of 212 to 35, rebuked him by tabling so much of his message as reflected on members of congress in his recommendations regarding the secret service detectives.

By its action also the house declared it to be the sense of the house that it shall decline to consider any communications from any source which is not in its own judgment respectful.

With feelings of outraged dignity and hurt pride on the part of many of its members, the house gave itself up entirely Friday to a discussion of one of the most momentous questions that ever came before it—its functions as a legislative body in distinction from those of the executive branch of the government.

As had been forecasted, the report of the special committee appointed to deal with the language in the president's annual message and in his special message of last Monday bearing on the secret service relating to members of congress was submitted, and it was used as the basis for some of the most earnest and vigorous speeches ever heard in the historic chamber.

A Scathing Arraignment

The special committe says the president's language in regard to the passage of th secret service measure was not respectful, was without basis in fact and therefore not justified. The president's explanation of his own words are not accepted and the committee insists on its interpretation.

Accompanying the report was a resolution which declared it to be the sense of the house that it shall decline to consider any communication from any source which is not respectful, recommending that the objectionable portion of the president's annual message be laid on the table and that similar action be taken with respect to the message of last Monday because of its being "unresponsive to the inquiry of the house" as to what the president meant when he said, referring to the limitation placed upon the field of operations of the secret service, that the "chief argument in favor of the provision was that the congressmen themselves did not wish to be investigated."

The house was in no mood to treat the subject otherwise than seriously, but in the speeches the references to the president were almost invariably couched in parliamentary language. Nor was the president without his supporters.

In anticipation of the report, the effect of which was to rebuke the president, the attendance of members was one of the largest this session, while the galleries at all times were filled to their full capacity. To accommodate the crowds, the doors opening into the corridors were thrown open, and these were choked with persons, while standing in line behind them were hundreds of others.

There was not a moment during the day that the diplomatic gallery was not full, many of the foreign representatives being compelled to sit on the steps of the aisles. This also was true of the president's gallery, although no member of his immediate family was present. Nor was his son-in-law, Representative Longworth of Ohio, in his seat during any part of the day. So great was the interest in the proceedings that many senators came over to the house and sat for several hours.

Toward the close of the debate, Mr. Gardner of Massachusetts vainly endeavored to secure, first the adoption of a substitute for the resolution in the shape of an amendment expressing condfience in the committee of appropriations, and then the postponement of the whole matter until Monday, but he was overwhelmingly out-voted.

The house did not adjourn until 7:27 o'clock last evening.

Old Man Battered to Death

New York, Jan. 9.—Louis Meyers, 71 years old, a tailor, was murdered in his little shop here late last night. A pressing iron, covered with blood, was used to batter in the old man's face and head. Robbery was probably the motive for the crime.

Thermometer Fifty Below

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 9.—A severe snow storm is raging on the Crows Nest Pass division of the Canadian Pacific railway. The weather is intensely cold, the thermometer registering 50 degrees belw zero at many points.

SMOTHERED UNDER THE BEDCLOTHES

Jury to Decide Whether Baby Wilson Was Murdered

Berlin, N. H., Jan. 9.—All the evidence in the murder trial of Edward E. Wilson, who is charged with smothering his 3-year-old son, having been completed in the superior court, the case went to the jury late last night.

Wilson was living with his brother last May in Shelburne, his wife, from whom he had been separated, being in Bethel, Me., when one morning his son, with whom he shared his bed, was found smothered under the bedclothes. The prosecution contended that the child was intentionally smothered by his father. The defense insisted that the child's death was purely accidental.

IN TWENTY-ROUND BOUT

Britt Will Try Conclusions With French Boxing Idol

Paris, Jan. 9.—French followers of "le boxe," as they call prizefighting over here in their funny language, are using their tongues, hands and feet today in their excitement over tonight's fight between their idol, Adolphe, and Jimmy Britt, the former lightweight champion of America. Paris is fight mad just now, anyway.

Like many another formerly good man with the mitts, Britt has been over here recently getting some easy pickings, but he will have a hard nut to crack in the shifty little Frenchman.

American fighters who have seen Adolphe in his training quarters declare that he is head and shoulders over any other French fighter and has the making of a first class man.

While Britt is by no means the fighter he was several years ago, a victory for Adolphe over the former champion will give him immense prestige and undoubtedly lead to his coming to America. The fight is to go twenty rounds.

CHANGES IN MANAGEMENT

Jesse Holdom Chosen President of American Press Association

New York, Jan. 9.—The directors of the American Press Association announced today the election of the following officers to fill the vacancies caused by the death of Major Orlando J. Smith, the founder and former president and general manager of the association: Hon. Jesse Holdom, president; Courtland Smith, vice president and general manager; William G. Brogan, assistant general manager; Albert Bernet, auditor.

Courtland Smith has been the acting general manager for the past year. William G. Brogan has been the acting assistant general manager for the same period. Mr. Bernet is manager of the Columbus office. Wayne B. Stowe and Maurice F. Germond remain as secretary and treasurer respectively. William G. Brogan was elected to the vacancy in the board of directors.

SIX PERSONS INJURED

Two Engines Are Wrecked In Head-On Collision

Nashua, N. H., Jan. 9.—Six persons were injured in a collision of passenger trains at Hollis depot, eight miles south of this city. A train bound from Nashua to Worcester ran head-on into the locomotive of a train bound in the opposite direction, which had just come to a stop at Hollis depot.

The injured ones are reported to be doing well, with the exception of Baggage Master Brooks, who suffered a chill while lying in the open air at the scene of the wreck. His condition is regarded as serious.

The responsibility for the accident has not been placed. Both engines were wrecked.

HELD ON SUSPICION

Two Youths Who May Be Responsible For Numerous Burglaries

Boston, Jan. 9.—On suspicion of being responsible for numerous burglaries in Boston and vicinity Clarence E. Dern, aged 19, and Edward S. Clark, aged 20, claiming to be residents of Brooklyn, were arrested in Somerville and will be held pending an investigation by the police.

Both lads have been in Somerville for a month. Sales of goods to pawnshops by them led to their detention.

Dern told the police that he was married on Dec. 2 to a young woman of Arlington, following a three days' acquaintance.

Convicted of Causing Girl's Death

Bath, Me., Jan. 9.—The jury considering the case of Albert M. Bates of Richmond, charged with manslaughter in having caused the death, by a criminal operation, of Winnie Kincaid, 21, of the same town, returned a verdict of guilty.

Madden Easy For Murphy

New York, Jan. 9.—Tommy Murphy outpointed Frankie Madden in a ten round bout here last night. The bout was considered disappointingly tame by the big crowd present. The men met at 133 pounds. Madden was clearly outfought.

OUR HOSPITAL

INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St. Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE Young Men's Christian Association OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title—Incorporated 1852.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries

A Matter of Conventions

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

The train screamed its way through the valley, grunted up the steep incline and came to a standstill before the ramshackle little station. It paused while two passengers alighted, and then it hurried off, as if it was glad to get away from such an insignificant stopping place.

Elsie Lansing accepted her leather bag from the taciturn station agent, who at the same time pushed a suit case toward the other traveler, a tall young man buttoned up in a gray ulster.

"Not this day!" returned the agent grimly. "Jim Laidlaw, he seems to think Saturday's made special so's he can git a little drunker'n usual! If you ain't expected, you'll have to walk!" With which remark he slammed the station door and turned the key.

"Let me see—it's twelve miles to Greentop, isn't it?" asked the stranger thoughtfully.

"Twelve and a half. Straight road ahead." The agent tramped away across the platform and disappeared inside a small cottage perched on the high bank above the tracks.

Elsie Lansing looked dubiously at the frozen road stretching away between pine clad heights, faintly touched with the early morning sun. She had traveled all night and had telegraphed for her newly acquired brother-in-law to meet her.

There was no sign of the white motor car which had been a part of the bridal equipment and which was to speed her to the Eyrie, in the Green mountains, away from civilization and its attendant comforts.

"If you are going to Greentop, permit me to carry your bag," said the young man, lifting his hat. "It is a stiff walk, but perhaps it will stimulate an appetite for dinner."

"You are very good," replied Elsie pleasantly, "but my bag is not heavy, and I can easily carry it myself."

Without further conversation they left the station and made their way along the road in the shadow of the pines.

It was a crisp day, with a tang of early winter in the breath of the north wind. It was an invigorating day, with its strong scent of pine and balsom, the rattle of crisp, dry cones and the sweet purity of mountain air.

The stranger walked on ahead with long, swinging strides. His head was bent thoughtfully, and it was quite evident that he had forgotten the girl, who was struggling to keep pace with him. Suddenly he turned and perceived her.

"I must ask your pardon!" he cried commiseratively. "I forgot—that is, I did not realize how fast I was walking. Let me take your bag. You are very tired."

He took it from her unresisting hand and looked down at the delicate cheek, paler by contrast of the fringing dark lashes.

"I hope it isn't much farther," she admitted ruefully. "I have been ill, and my strength is fickle."

He stopped and looked about him. They had come to a slight opening in the forest, where the sun streamed over fallen tree trunks and glinted on the surface of a tiny brook that wound its way across the road.

"We will rest here," he said, with a note of authority in his voice. "It is a good deal farther. We have come perhaps three miles. If you will let me take you back to the station I will return to Greentop and procure a conveyance of some sort"—

"No," she objected, sinking wearily on to a fallen log. "I will be rested presently. You see, I didn't eat any breakfast, and"—

"No breakfast!" he echoed blankly. "I don't wonder you are tired. Wait a minute, please!" He knelt down before his suit case and unlocked it. From its depths of masculine apparel he brought forth a small alcohol stove, a bottle of the necessary liquid and a small tin of beef extract.

Elsie watched him with amused interest. With deft fingers he filled and lighted the lamp and opened the tin of extract. "I wonder if he is a drummer and is demonstrating some of his wares!"

But there was something in the man's thin, intellectual face, with its nearsighted blue eyes behind thick glasses, that belied her estimate. There was a vague familiarity about his movements that puzzled her.

"You are very kind indeed," she said gratefully, sipping the hot liquid. "I am afraid I am depriving you of your luncheon."

He threw back his head and laughed heartily. Elsie liked the laugh and decided that she liked the man.

"Excuse me, but you must think I'm an old maid—to be traveling about with that equipment," he said. "You see, I have an invalid aunt in Greentop. These are to rejoice her heart!"

"I have bonbons in my bag," confessed Elsie. "Shall we eat them?"

"Let's," he assented gayly.

When the empty box had been thrown away and the spirit lamp and its appurtenances had been returned to the suit case Elsie arose and drew her furs about her white throat.

"I feel like a new woman," she said gratefully.

"The Lord forbid!" he cried, with fervency.

They laughed in unison as they resumed their journey. The way seemed shorter now as they chatted of impersonal matters. Once the man referred to a certain scientific work.

"I haven't read that; I did read Professor Ray's book on the same subject."

"Ah! You have read Ray's book?" he questioned.

She nodded. "I had to!"

"Why under compulsion?" There was deep interest in his tone.

"You see, Peter Ray is my brother-in-law's elder brother."

"You know him?" he asked.

"Not at all. I have never seen him, but Bob says he is a jolly grind, and my sister says he is charming."

"See that squirrel," said the man, suddenly changing the subject. "It is a flying squirrel, and his antics are worth watching. Squirrels are perfect acrobats."

* * * * * * *

"I can't help it, Lettie! I don't know what's got into the machine! Elsie will be starved to death after this long wait. If Laidlaw isn't there she may try to walk," groaned Bob Ray dismally.

"If Peter was only here!" said Lettie gently.

"Aye, Peter could make the blamed thing go! By Jove, Lettie, look there!" He pointed ahead, where a huge log was rolled beside the path.

On it sat a man and a girl deeply interested in watching the antics of a squirrel in the pine tree overhead.

"Elsie!" cried Mrs. Ray breathlessly.

The pair on the log turned around and then arose.

For the first time that day Elsie felt embarrassed at the situation. She could explain the fact that a stranger had accompanied her on the long walk, but now to make it clear to conventional Lettie that sitting upon the log was a natural outcome of their friendly companionship?

Bob Ray saved her from Lettie's displeasure.

"Peter, old, man," he shouted gleefully, "forget all your old 'isms' and 'ologies' and get down and tinker this thing into shape! How is Elsie—tired eh?"

Elsie flushed and hesitated. Professor Ray came nobly to her aid. "I met Miss Lansing at the station. We came up on the train together, you know. There was no conveyance, so we walked. Glad you met us, though," he added mendaciously.

When the automobile had been inwardly soothed by the skillful hands of the professor they whizzed smoothly toward the Eyrie.

"I thought you and Peter had never met, Elsie?" said her sister, with an interrogative glance.

"Why—yes—we—er—met"— faltered Elsie, with a pleading glance at the nearsighted blue eyes that peered at her from the front seat.

"We me"— said the professor, whose mental insight was without flaw, "we—er—met. Is not that sufficient?"

Lettie looked at her sister's conscious face and at Peter's betraying eyes.

"I think that is sufficient," she said with a sage nod of her pretty head.

Bread and Microbes.

From experiments made by M. Rousel in Paris it appears that only the crust of bread is submitted to a sufficiently high temperature to kill all the bacteria which the loaf may contain. The inside of the loaf may therefore be contaminated by the microbes from a consumptive baker or conveyed in the water, as is the case with typhoid fever and cholera. Professor Metchnikoff was asked his opinion whether bread could not be a source of danger, and his answer was as follows: "I don't think so. The temperature to which the inside of a loaf is submitted generally exceeds 140 degrees F. At this temperature many microbes are killed—those of tuberculosis, for instance—but there are much hardier germs, such as those of anthrax, the germs of which are only killed at over 224 degrees F. But anthrax is rare, and it is hardly likely that a baker attacked by this terrible malady would continue to work once the disease had declared itself." Professor Metchnikoff advises, however, that only bread which is well baked, and therefore not crumbly, should be eaten.

What She Was Thinking Of.

The young poet had just finished what he considered to be a work of real inspiration, and, rising from his table, he hastened upstairs to where his little wife, a bride of six weeks, was sitting darning his socks.

And he began to read. He put his whole soul into the reading. His gestures were graceful; his intonation perfect. The whole spirit of his beautiful poem breathed forth as he threaded his way form the beginning to the end of his theme, and when he had finished he looked at her, awaiting her verdict.

For a time she was silent.

"Well, dear heart," he said, "tell me what you are thinking."

"I was wondering, dearest"—

"What?"

"Whether the butcher was not awfully late with that liver," she replied.—Judge.

GIRLS ARE LEFT TO THEIR FATE

But Boys Orphaned by Earthquake Are Eagerly Cared For

DIGGING IN RUINS AT REGGIO

A Thousand Bodies Recovered and Buried—Miraculous Escapes Recorded—No One Without Official Pass Allowed to Enter Messina, Where Sailors From United States Gunboat Open a Station

Reggio, Jan. 9.—The sun shines again in all its splendor, emphasizing the beauties of nature in the surrounding country. Inside Reggio, however, its warm rays fall upon only huge piles of debris.

Proportionately with other towns, Reggio gave the highest percentage of orphans as a result of the earthquake. The boys were eagerly taken care of by relations, but the girls mostly are abandoned. Fortunately, however, they have been entrusted to the ladies' committees which arrived here from all parts of Italy and doubtless will secure good homes.

All the wounded have been removed from Reggio and 8000 refugees have departed from the town. One thousand bodies have been dug from the ruins of fallen buildings and buried in improvised cemeteries.

Among others who escaped uninjured when the shock came were three children, who, after having been buried in the debris of their homes for seven days, got out unaided, burrowing like mice. A man and his wife also have been found uninjured beneath ruins where they had lain for eight days, subsisting on a pint of olive oil.

At Sinopoli all the houses were destroyed except three built after the earthquake in 1905 of hollow brick with a wire passing through them and uniting them in a vertical line, while at the top another wire united the different lines horizontally, thus making the whole building compact.

Fresh earthquake shocks are being felt here, at Brancaleone and Messina each night. They are preceded by explosions, and buildings that were not totally destroyed in the big shock are being further damaged.

Anglo-American Station

A detail of bluejackets from the United States gunboat Scorpion constructed an Anglo-American station in Messina Friday afternoon upon a space adjoining the ruined building in which the American consulate was located. Dr. Rhoades, surgeon of the Scorpion, has assumed charge.

The station is formed of several large tents. It is the intention to confine the work largely to re-dressing the wounds of a considerable number of Italians who have been in America or who have relatives there. The persons come to the attention of Dr. Rhoades while seeking out the consulate for assistance or for sending word to their relatives in America for help. Most of the applicants desire to remain in Messina in order to recover personal property.

The military cordon around Messina is complete. Hereafter no person will be allowed to enter without a pass from the authorities.

Bay State's Generous Aid

Boston, Jan. 9.—A total sum of $143,254 is in the hands of Lee, Higginson & Co., the official treasurers, and the state branch of the Red Cross, for the benefit of the sufferers in the Italian earthquake. The official Massachusetts fund amounts to $116,964, and the Red Cross has raised $26,290.

COACHMAN TAKES POISON

Mooney Had Handled the Ribbons For President and Prince

Mooney had been driver for President Roosevelt, who commended his skillful work on a visit here about four years ago, and had also driven Prince Henry of Prussia when the latter visited this city on his tour of the United States.

Mooney, who had been despondent because he was out of work, took the poison in the presence of his wife at their home. He was 53 years old.

Safe Progress In Business

New York, Jan. 9.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says that credit and confidence are again established on a firmer basis at the opening of the new year than at any time in the past fifteen months. Progress is steady and naturally slow, but is along very safe and satisfactory lines.

Admiral Potter Calls on Khedive

Port Said, Jan. 9.—Rear Admiral Potter, commanding the fourth division of the American battleship fleet, has rejoined the squadron, having been presented to the khedive of Egypt. He found the khedive extremely cordial and interested in the fleet.

Knew His Limitations.

"I proph'sied he'd make a living," Mr. Hobart said, speaking of a New York painter who spent a summer at his farm, "because he knew what he could do, little as 'twas, and didn't try to fly too high.

"Yes," Mr. Hobart continued, with a thoughtful smile, "you couldn't get him to attempt any foolish flights. All that summer he set out in the hen yard, painting hens, or else out back o' the barn, painting pigs. And when I said to him, 'Look a-here, when Abe Fowler comes to paint the house I'll get him to show you how and let you take a hack at the side end, where 'twon't show so much and allow it on your board,' he just shook his head and smiled that kind o' gentle, sorrowful smile o' his, and says he: 'I couldn't think of it, Mr. Hobart. I should just ruin the looks o' the house. I'll keep to the pigs and the hens, for I know my limitations.'

"Well, 'twas a real relief to me, for I suppose likely he would have botched the job consid'able. And I said to him then real hearty, 'Young man, you'll earn your living yet, for you ain't all et up with pride and ambition,' and my words have come true, by what I hear."—Youth's Companion.

The Retort Final.

The garrulous old lady in the stern of the boat had pestered the guide with her comments and questions ever since they had started. Her meek little husband, who was bunched toadlike in the bow, fished in silence. The old lady seemingly exhausted every possible point in fish and animal life, woodcraft and personal history when she suddenly espied one of those curious paths of oily, unbroken water frequently seen on small lakes which are ruffled by a light breeze.

"Oh, guide, guide," she exclaimed, "what makes that funny streak in the water? No, there—right over there!"

The guide was busy rebaiting the old gentleman's hook and merely mumbled, "U-m-mm."

"Guide," repeated the old lady in tones that were not to be denied, "look right over there where I'm pointing and tell me what makes that funny streak in the water."

Emerson's Memory.

Emerson was a notable sufferer from the vagaries of memory. His biographer relates that he met him one day in Boston apparently at a loss for something and asked him where he was going. "To dine," said Emerson, "with a very old and dear friend. I know where she lives, but I hope she won't ask me her name." And then he proceeded to describe her as "the mother of the wife of the young man—the tall man—who speaks so well," and so on, until his interlocutor guessed to whom he was referring. Even the names of common objects often failed him completely. On one occasion when he wanted an umbrella he said: "I can't tell its name, but I can tell its history. Strangers take it away." This failing of Emerson led to a pathetic scene when he attended Longfellow's funeral and remarked as he gazed at the coffin, "He was a sweet and beautiful soul, but I have entirely forgotten his name."

Nero's Golden House.

The "golden house" of Nero seems from all accounts to have been the most stupendous dwelling place ever built for a mortal man. Even if we regard the ancient descriptions as somewhat exaggerated it remains one of the largest royal houses ever built, and the internal decorations seem to have been incomparably magnificent. It was surrounded by parks, woods and pools of great size, which appear to have been entirely within the walls. The colonnades of the house itself extended a mile in length and crossed one of the main thoroughfares of the city. The cities of the east were ransacked for masterpieces of Greek art for the interior. The walls shone with gold and pearls, and the roof rested on marble columns of enormous size and beauty.—New York American.

Not Bull Run.

The story was told of an American who happened to be crossing the ocean some years ago on the Fourth of July, which national holiday was celebrated with great enthusiasm by the Americans on board.

"I say," asked one of the Englishmen, "what is this the anniversary of anyhow? Isn't it to celebrate the battle of Bull Run or something of that kind?"

"No," promptly spoke up an American, "not Bull Run—John Bull Run."

Takes Him Down.

"Every man has his price," quoted the wise guy.

"Well, I've noticed that a woman can generally make him feel pretty cheap," added the simple mug.—Philadelphia Record.

A Wonderful Hand.

Master—I'm sorry to hear, Pat, that your wife is dead. Patrick—Faith an' 'tis a sad day for us all, sir! The hand that rocked the cradle has kicked the bucket.

Fear and Danger.

Nervous Old Lady (to deck hand on steamboat)—Is there any fear of danger? Deck Hand (carelessly)—Plenty of fear, ma'am, but not a bit of danger.

COW FEED FOR BOWSER

As Result of Deep Study He Determines to Lead Simple Life.

BEGINS WITH RAW CARROTS.

Dismayed by Mrs. Bowser's Injunctions, He Prefers Death and Returns to Riotous Living Until Sleep Overtakes Him.

[Copyright, 1908, by T. C. McClure.]

WHEN Mrs. Bowser welcomed Mr. Bowser home the other evening she thought she detected a subtle change in him, but just what it was she had not made out when they took seats at the dinner table. Before leaving home in the morning he had said that he would like roast beef for dinner, and this was a bit of culinary art that the cook was proud of. The appetizing object was placed convenient for him to carve, but he turned from it and took from his pocket a large carrot and handed it to the cook, with the remark:

"You may wash that in cold water, if you will, and return it to me."

"What on earth are you doing with an old carrot at the dinner table?" demanded Mrs. Bowser in surprise and indignation.

"Gently, my dear. During the day I have had time to think things over. The presence of that carrot is the result."

"Oh, you are going to turn vegetarian again?"

"Not exactly. Mrs. Bowser, how have we been living for the last fifteen years?"

"The same as other people of our means."

"That may be, and yet we have been doing our best to kill our stomachs and shorten our lives. Neither one of us is much past the middle age, and yet we look and feel like people of seventy."

"You are speaking for yourself, Mr. Bowser," she retorted as the carrot came back.

"Like people of seventy and suffering with indigestion, rheumatism, lumbago, flatulency, colic, lassitude, vertigo and a dozen other things. We are trying every day to kill ourselves off."

"ADAM WALKED WHEN HE WENT ANYWHERE."

"Just because we have roast beef for dinner?"

"Bosh! Nonsense! So you've got back to that, have you? You tried it for half a day a year ago, and how did you come out?"

"I may have made a failure of it a year ago," he said as he began to nibble at the carrot, "but I shan't this time. I had not then given the subject the thought it deserves. Yes, Mrs. Bowser, the simple life will be the life for me hereafter. You will not adopt it, of course. You will go on shortening your days and making fat fees for the doctors."

"I haven't had a doctor in ten years, and you know it. My health has been and is fine, and I don't propose to wreck it by eating cow feed. Are you silly enough to think you can live on carrots?"

There was an activity in her tones that at any other time would have brought the red to Mr. Bowser's face, but he had gone back to the simple life and must stand it. He gnawed and chewed and seemed to enjoy his vegetable, and after awhile he said:

"Adam didn't even have carrots, and he got along all right. Our forefathers lived mostly on roots, and no people were more hardy and healthy."

"Our forefathers didn't do any such thing," answered Mrs. Bowser. "They had meal and meat and vegetables. Even the Indians had those things when Columbus landed here. However, I'm not going to argue with you. Go ahead with raw carrots, parsnips, onions, turnips and all the rest. If you get cow colic don't blame me. And if you are going back to the simple life take in the whole of it. Cut out your claret and cigars as well as your roast beef. Adam didn't smoke or drink wine."

Will Cut Out Luxuries.

"That's exactly what I shall do. I don't propose to adopt any halfway measures. Have the great kindness to see that there are an onion or a turnip and a glass of water in the house for my breakfast. I do not see that there is any need of discussing the subject further at this time."

That ended it. Mrs. Bowser had said all she intended to anyhow, and with malice aforethought she ate a bigger dinner than she had eaten for three months. She not only praised the coffee, the roast and the vegetables and dessert to the cook, but insisted on lingering at the table long after Mr. Bowser had filled up on carrot and was thinking he would give $10 for a smoke. When they went up to the sitting room he walked about for five minutes and then observed:

"I think I will run over to the drug store and ask Brown if he has seen any improvement in business since election."

"And I think you will stay right here," was the answer. "You have adopted the simple life, and you can't get out of the house to smoke a cigar. I want you to be a man of your word. The evening paper there will post you as to how business is going."

Mr. Bowser sat down.

Then he got up and walked around again.

Then he tried to become interested in the cat.

Then he read the paper for five minutes.

"I suppose we go to bed at 9 o'clock?" queried Mrs. Bowser as she watched him out of the tail of her eye.

"Who—what—why so?"

"Adam probably went to roost at sundown, but history tells us that our forefathers made the hour of 9 their bedtime. It is still so with the farmers—go to bed at 9 and get up at 5."

Mr. Bowser made no reply, but turned his face away to hide the lonesome look spreading over it.

"And another thing. Adam didn't belong to any clubs. You belong to three, and they give suppers and have cigars and wine. You had best write out your resignation tonight. You can't live a simple life and riot at clubs."

"But a man must have some society," protested Mr. Bowser.

"Adam had Eve, and you've got me. When night came our forefathers gathered around their own firesides and talked with each other. Had any of the husbands gone gadding around to clubs they would have been sent to the stocks."

Begins to Be Restless.

Mr. Bowser walked again. Then he sat down some more. The desire to smoke was becoming intense. He thought of that old carrot at the dinner table, and he felt a dizziness. He thought of the cold water he had imbibed in place of the claret and he shivered.

"Yes, you were right when you said we had been going the pace," continued Mrs. Bowser without looking at him. "I am the sole owner and proprietor of as many as three pairs of fifty cent stockings, and you certainly have a half dozen pairs of socks. You also have seven or eight shirts, three or four suits of underwear, three pairs of shoes, two overcoats, three or four hats and at least three full suits of clothes. Adam got along without any of those things in living his simple life. You can't do the same, but as a simple citizen you don't need the half you have. I'll overhaul your wardrobe in the morning and select out enough to stock up three tramps. You have gone into this thing, and you should be consistent. Adam walked when he went anywhere. You should quit paying street car fare. As a simple citizen you are expected to hoof it. You pay 30 cents a week to keep your shoes shined. Cut it out. Poor Adam had to even go barefooted. You have a pair of winter gloves that you paid $2 for. A fifty cent pair would have been more in keeping with the simple life. Only two weeks ago you paid $45 for a watch chain. Now that you have become a humble, simple citizen you will sell it and wear a piece of bark or leather across your vest. A week ago"—

"Woman!" shouted Mr. Bowser as he sprang to his feet.

"Well?"

"Shut up! Not another word! I decide to return to the simple life. I come home with a carrot in my pocket. I explain that the simple life will add years to our stay on earth and happiness to our days, and you—you—you"—

"Go on."

"You knock it all in the head! It is knocked! It has vanished! On you is the fearful responsibility. I shall change back. Durn carrots! Durn cold water! Durn the pace! Welcome roast beef and claret and cigars and death! I go to the dining room. I will eat and feast and gorge. I will drink a gallon of wine. I will smoke twenty cigars. Wretched woman, go to bed and come down in the morning and find my dead body on the floor! U-r-r-r! I go!"

And it was 1 o'clock in the morning when Mrs. Bowser awoke sufficiently to realize that he had tumbled into bed with a long drawn grunt of satisfaction.

Have you been mentioned for the Cabinet yet?

"Beware when God lets loose a thinker," says Emerson. "Beware when he lets loose a talker who doesn't think."

According to a report in a Maine newspaper there were 110 suicides in Maine in 1908. A pretty good record for a prohibition state.

The two senators from Norfolk county should be pleased with their important committee appointments in the Legislature, especially as both are new members. Senator E. C. Hultman of Quincy is chairman of the committee on Public Lighting, also on committee on Taxation, and committee on Harbors and Public Lands. Senator Rockwood of Franklin is chairman of the committee on Election Laws, also on committee on Public Lighting and committee on Water Supply, and committee on Bills Ordered to Third Reading. Success to the youngest member.

The official stationary of the Citizens' Association bears the following motto, "For the higher civilization and prosperity of this highly prosperous neighbor of Boston."

Now although we do not wish to appear pessimitic, we are inclined to doubt the accurancy of the phrase "this highly prosperous neighbor of Boston." Our reasons for doubting this, are many.

First: does a tax rate, as high as the tax rate in Quincy indicate a "highly prosperous" community? We do not think so.

Second: Does a "highly prosperous" City need to increase its valuation so as to extend the limit of its borrowing capacity? We do not think so.

Third: Does just barely keeping within the debt limit set by the state, denote a highly prosperous city? We do not think so.

We could give several other reasons, to back up our doubts but we think the ones we have already named sufficiently convincing. If the Citizens Association really believe it that Quincy is so prosperous then it is "up to them" to produce their proofs and we will gladly acknowledge we are in the wrong.

Until then we shall stick by our beliefs.

As a rule newspapers do not attempt to answer criticisms made upon their editorial policy, but every now and then circumstances arise which gives them an opportunity to get back at their critics with additional emphasis. Such an occasion has been presented to the Ledger and we are glad to meet it.

In one of our recent editorials we criticised the Citizens' Association, Board of Trade and City Council for making no effort to induce business men to locate here. This editorial has caused a good deal of discussion, and some unfavorable criticism. One critic, especially, accuses us of insincerity, and sarcastically asks "whether you expect the members of the Citizens' Association and the Board of Trade to go out to Brockton and move the L. S. White and the W. L. Douglas shops to Quincy." We answer no. First because we do not think from their previous inertia that they would be capable of moving the shops from Brockton to Quincy, and secondly, we doubt very much whether the owners of the shops would stand by and see their plants carried off, without a struggle.

But there are other and better ways of getting business here without committing any breach of law, and our honored critic knows it.

If a merchant wants to attract customers to his store, he does not sit quietly in his office and expect them to come in and buy, unless he can offer some inducements in the way of trade. No, if he expects to sell his goods he must show his customers that they can do better and can get more for their money at his store than anywhere else.

That is what the citizens of Quincy have got to do if they expect to have their city grow commercially. They have got to get out and show people that it is for their own interests to locate in Quincy. And who is better qualified to do this than the members of either the Board of Trade or the Citizens' Association? Both organizations were formed to promote the city's interest. But what have they done so far? Nothing. Therefore we still stand by our original criticism, no matter what may come.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

"Party designations should be eliminated at our municipal elections." Mayor Shea so remarked in his inaugural address to the incoming city government at city hall a few days ago, in referring to the controversy now raging in the city as to the advisability of amending the city charter.

Better men are an absolute necessity in the administration of our municipal affairs and the only way to get better men, really able men to become interested in making a success out of what has been regarded by many as a most conspicuous failure, is to divorce party politics and party politicians from the management of the affairs of local government.

In response to a request which I received through the mails from a voter who wanted to know just wherein the elimination of party politics would or could result in any material advantage to the community, I find in going into the subject in a thorough manner, that my views on this particular question are contained in the report of the New York commissioners of 1876 appointed "to devise a plan for the government of cities in the State of New York."

The New York commissioners in their report point out that the introduction of State and national politics into musicipal affairs is the chief cause of many of the existing evils, and in a manner which leaves no room for doubt sum up the situation as follows:

"The formation of general political parties upon differences as to general principles or methods of State policy is useful, or at all events inevitable. But it is rare indeed that any such questions, or indeed any upon which good men ought to differ, arise in connection with the conduct of municipal affairs. Good men cannot and do not differ as to whether municipal debt ought to be restricted, extravagance checked, and municipal affairs lodged in the hands of competent and faithful officers. There is no more reason why the control of the public works of a great city should be lodged in the hands of a Democrat ora Republican than there is why an adherent of one or the other of the great parties should be made the superintendent of a business corporation. Good citizens interested in honest municipal government can secure that object only by acting together. Political divisions separate them at the start, and render it impossible to secure the object desired equally by both. This obstacle to the union of good citizens shocks all ordinary efforts for good municipal government The great prizes in the shape of place and power which are offered on the broad fields of national and State politics offer the strongest incentives to ambition. Personal advancement is in these fields naturally associated with the achievement of great public objects, and neither end can be secured except through the success of a political party to which they are attached. The strife thus engendered develops into a general battle in which each side feels that it cannot allow any odds to the other. If one seeks to turn to its advantage the patronage of municipal office, the other must carry the contest into the same sphere. It is certain that the temptation will be withstood by neither. It then becomes the direct interest of the foremost men of the nation to constantly keep their forces in hostile array, and these must be led by, among other ways, the patronage to be secured by the control of local affairs. Next to this small number of leading men there is a large class who, though not dishonest or devoid of public spirit, are led by habit and temperament to take a wholly partisan view of city affairs. Their enjoyment of party struggles, their devotion to those who share with them the triumphs and defeats of the political game, are so intense that they gradually lose sight of the object for which parties exist or ought to exist, and considerable proportions of them in their devotion to politics suffer themselves to be driven from the walks of regular industry, and at last become dependent for their livelihood on the patronage in the hands of their chiefs. Mingled with them is nearly as large a number to whom politics is simply a mode of making a livelihood or a fortune, and who take part in political contests without enthusiasm, and often without the pretence of an interest in the public welfare, and devote themselves openly to the organization of the vicious elements of society in combinations strong enough to hold the balance in a closely-contested election, overcome the political leaders, and secure a fair share of the municipal patronage, or else extort immunity from the officers of the law. The rest of the community, embracing the large majority of the more thrifty classes, averse to engaging in what they deem the "low business" of politics, or hopeless of acomplishing any substantial good in the face of such powerful opposing interests, for the most part content themselves with acting in accordance with their respective parties. It is through the agency of the great political parties, organized and operating as above described, that our municipal officers are and have long been selected. It can scarcely be a matter of wonder then that the present condition of municipal affairs should present an aspect so desperate."

Want of time at this moment has compelled me to omit from the present letter many general and particularized points which might interest our citizens in dealing with the proposed changes in our city charter.

COCHATO CLUB BALL.

The annual ball of the Cochato club of Braintree is looked forward to each year for it brings together society people from all parts of Braintree, Quincy, Weymouth, and nearby towns. No expense is spared to have everything of a high order. Friday evening the ninth annual ball was held in Cochato hall under the management of Mr. G. E. Williams and all who are acquainted with him know that he does not leave a stone unturned for the success of the annual ball. The hall was so filled with club members and invited guests that during the early hours of the evening room was at a premium.

Southern laurel and pionsettia in profusion made the hall decorations beautiful and the handsome dresses on charming dancers and the gentlemen in full dress added to the success of the ball. Mullally's full orchestra dispensed their choicest music and everybody was lively and social. The grand march was led by Mr. and Mrs. George E. Williams and they were followed by nearly one hundred couples. Supper was served by Boston caterers at midnight.

Each lady present was presented with a snow white kid opera bag, gathered at the top by white cords. Inside was a little powder puff and under the bottom in a pocket an eight page, small dance order.

"A Matinee Girl" was also given, a girl who is quite familiar to all.

—Humanity has great courage, or great recklessness, or a wonderful belief in the theory that lightning does not strike twice in the same place. Messina, wrecked and shaking again almost before the original quake stopped agitating her, will without doubt be rebuilt and will find a lot of people to live within her tragic borders. The same is likely to prove true of Reggio. On the very slopes of volcanoes people build, at intervals have their property wiped out, and the survivors go back and build again and say "It won't happen again in our time." San Francisco tremulous at times even now as a shaking jelly, still sends skyscrapers high in air and people live and do business in them, despite the terrifying lessons of a time that is vivid yet in the world. Perhaps the people who run these risks figure that there is no real safety in the world and they might as well take chances where they are as to move.—Brockton Enterprise.

A WOMAN'S BACK

The Aches and Pains Will Disappear if the Advice of This Quincy Citizen is Followed.

A woman's back has many aches and pains.

Most times 'tis the kidneys' fault.

Backache is really kidney ache;

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Read what one has to say about it:

Mrs. C. L. Lewis, living at 344 Granite Street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I gladly add my endorsement to the hundreds of others in Quincy, who have been benefited by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. I suffered for a long time from kidney trouble, the principal symptom being backache. Being advised by a friend to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store and began their use. STATE HOUSE LETTER.

Boston, Jan. 6, 1909.

New conditions faced members of the legislature today in unusual number. It has been a break-up of the traditions for the committees to be announced on the day of the organization of the Senate and House. Both president and speaker were determined that a good start should be made, and it remains to be seen whether there has really been any gain by having the committees today, instead of on Friday, as usual. It gives the appearance of promptness for the committees to be given out thus early and it may have the effect of bracing up the spirit of the members so that they will keep up steam till the end of the session.

President Treadway is ready to give reasons why he made certain appointments. For instance, the nominal leadership of the Senate goes with the chairmanship of the judiciary committee and it is generally recognized that Senator Potter of Worcester has exceptional qualifications for the position and he would have been a natural selection. But there are strong Senate traditions. Senator Spalding of Middlesex was the ranking member from last year and it would never have done to jump Potter over Spalding's head. Potter gets the chairmanship of mercantile affairs, a committee of which he was formerly House chairman, and it is one of the strong committees. Cowee of Worcester continues at the head of agriculture, as last year. Ross gets the chairmanship of labor because he has long been the leading labor man in the legislature, though this is his first year in the Senate. Morse of Essex is chairman of railroads because he was ranking member, Potter of Worcester coming second. Turtle gets the chairmanship of taxation, and that is likely to be one of the most worked committees.

In the House there was some suggestion that Mr. Hobson of Palmer was slated for the chairmanship of the judiciary committee, but Mr. Bishop of Newton, son of Judge Robert R. Bishop of the superior court, was the ranking member. His record has been good and there was no tenable ground whereby Speaker Walker could promote Hobson over Bishop's head. The House chairmanship of railroads goes to Washburn of Worcester, and this is a high honor to the member, especially as he was outranked by Garcelon of Newton, who now stands second to him. Mellen of Worcester, who entertained the House with some delightful reminiscences of his service in 1877, gets a place on the committee on education, where he will have an opportunity to advocate the views which he urged upon the House at the close of his address. That address, though an innovation and very likely not to be repeated, was quite entertaining, for Mellen has a keen appreciation of the striking characteristics of prominent persons. When he was telling about the long and sharp contest for the United States Senate when George F. Hoar was elected over George S. Boutwell, he said that the Hoar men did things which would not be done by politicians in these days, and then injected in a low voice, "except by Jerry McCarthy."

Today has been the last public appearance of Curtis Guild, Jr., in his capacity as governor. This has been the immemorial custom. He is governor until the new governor takes the oath of office, but he does not appear at the exercises when his successor is inaugurated. He is in the executive department, shakes hands with the callers and makes himself as agreeable as an expiring functionary finds it in his heart to do, but as he is at his last gasp officially, interest does not center in him as it does in the rising sun. It may seem a trifle heartless, but it is the custom and though it may be as heartless as the Patagonian custom whereby dutiful children knock their aged parents on the head in order not to have to support them, yet it is a custom always observed, regardless of the sensibilities of the departing governor. But Gov. Guild was not disposed to let the occasion pass without saying something. When he had sworn in the members of the some very appropriate and touching words about the relations of the executive and legislative branch and their mutual high esteem for each other, though they might differ upon some points. By way of farewell to them and to public life, he quoted the saying of Tiny Tim: "God bless us, every one." It was something which has never been done before, and it illustrates the liking the governor has had for the men and the scenes of his official life. Certainly the liberal applause which followed the gubernatorial party up the aisle and into the corridor showed that his farewell address was appreciated. His eulogy of Mr. Draper as incoming governor, too, was fitly delivered and was a fine tribute of a governor to his successor.

It is too early to tell what will be the welcome given to President Treadway's suggestion that committee hearings be continued, for the first two months of the session, till three o'colck, with an hour out for lunch, and then that the regular sessions of Senate and House begin at 3.15. It is a perfectly practicable proposition for senators and representatives from a distance, as President Treadway is, but it is questionable whether the nearby legislators, who go home every night and constitute more than 80 percent of the legislature, will like the proposition. It is also a question whether the public would like to come in the afternoon. As President Treadway sees it, last session's experiment in holding committee hearings after the Senate and House sessions which began at two o'clock in the afternoon was not successful, and he wants to save the time which is always wasted in the first two months of the session by lack of work brought in by the committees. It would be a better reform if the committees would get at work at once and bring in reports as soon as hearings are closed. Then there would not be as much waste of time.

Both of the presiding officers seem aware of the great amount of legislation. Speaker Walker does not propose to let any worthy business be slighted. The legislature is elected to do the work of the people and attend to the popular business, he says. He was given liberal applause in the House when he said in his inaugural address that he believed in the Massachusetts way, which is different from the way in Congress and most legislatures, whereby every petition, no matter how humble, must be given respectful consideration and be acted upon. Evidently the Massachusetts system is too well grounded to be overthrown for a long time yet.

Speaker Walker, in his speech in the caucus which nominated him for speaker, asserting the wisdom and even the duty, at times of independent voting, against the party, struck a higher and purer note than has been struck in the caucuses for a long time. The tendency, since the caucus has been a republican caucus, has been to lay stress upon the duty of standing stoutly by the party. There has been no preaching of the duty of being a mugwamp, as Speaker Walker did today. It makes him more of a marked man than any other speaker has been in that respect for many years. Put this fact with what Mr. Cushing of Boston said truly of him when he made the nominating speech, that he had never known Mr. Walker to cast a single vote during the three years he has been associated with him when he was influenced by other then the highest motives, and it is evident that Speaker Walker is a man whom the state may watch with some assurance that he will put the public welfare above party. Here is evidently a principle which knocks at the door of the republican party for recognition. Perhaps it concerns the party more than it does Speaker Walker whether the door is opened and the applicant admitted.

President Treadway deserves well for his recommendation that the disgraceful presence of lobbyists upon the floor of the Senate be stopped. He let his opinion be known clearly but he gave the Senate the alternative of continuing its custom or of taking the position of the House, where lobbyists have been for a long time shut out of the corridors and reading rooms. There is only one course, in self-respect, which the Senate can take, and that is to accept President Treadway's view. Taking these things into account, it is seen that quite a hopeful beginning has been made.

"RATTLE RUN" CHURCH MURDER

Minister Suspected of Having Butchered a Carpenter

VICTIM IS FULLY IDENTIFIED

Authorities After Reward For Arrest of Rev. John Carmichael, Who Is Known to Have Been Strangely Intimate With Murdered Man and Who Has Disappeared—No Light on Motive For Crime

Port Huron, Jan. 9.—By means of two false teeth it has been definitely established that Gideon Browning of Adair village was the man who was butchered last Tuesday evening in the little "Rattle Run" Methodist church in Columbus township.

With part of the mystery which has shrouded the brutal crime thus cleared, the supervisors of St. Clair county immediately offered a reward of $500 for the arrest of Rev. John H. Carmichael of Adair, pastor of the church, and the man who was at first supposed to have been killed, dismembered and then burned in the church stoves.

The teeth which identified the dead man were found when the ashes from the stove were sifted. Dr. C. H. Browbeer of St. Clair, the dentist who recently made Browning a set of false teeth, examined them and decided that the blackened relics were part of Browning's set. His decision satisfied Prosecuting Attorney Brown that it was Browning who was killed, and the supervisors immediately offered the reward for Carmichael's arrest and sent broadcast detailed descriptions of the minister.

Carmichael is over six feet tall, weighing more than 200 pounds and the description continues: Both legs have been broken and he walks with a decided limp. Both his feet turn out noticeably, one at an angle of forty-five degrees. He has a scar on the upper lip and another on the side of his nose. His eyes are light blue or gray. There is another scar on one of his legs below the knee. When he disappeared he wore his brownish beard closely cropped at the sides. The beard and his hair, also brown, showing a little gray, had been recently trimmed.

Strenuous efforts to discover some motive for the destruction of the carpenter have been fruitless.

Mrs. Carmichael and Miss Carmichael, wife and daughter of the minister, were examined by the prosecuting attorney here, and he said afterwards that he was convinced that they knew nothing about the reason for the murder nor the man's disappearance. A statement by Mrs. Carmichael that her husband's sister is an inmate of an insane asylum in West Virginia may explain some of the horrible features of the crime, if the authorities' suspicions about Carmichael are borne out. Mrs. Carmichael also said that her husband was moody and restless the night before he disappeared and apparently was brooding over something.

It is also learned that on Monday, the day before the murder, Carmichael went to the postoffice in Adair, apparently much agitated, and received a letter which he took away without opening it. It is thought that this letter may have had some connection with the strange intimacy between the minister and the carpenter which had been noticed a number of weeks before the joint disappearance and the crime in the church.

But the motive and Carmichael's whereabouts are still unknown.

IN DEPLORABLE PLIGHT

Hundreds of Persons Starving Because of Failure of Crops

Constantinople, Jan. 9.—The distress in Anatolia because of the failure of the crops has reached an acute phase in several districts. Hundreds of persons are actually starving. The populations are without means for obtaining food and fuel, their sufferings being all the greater as the winter is the most severe on record. The government is unable to cope effectively with the wide-spread destitution.

The American Bible society has issued an appeal for funds to overtide the winter and to help the farmers to make their spring sowings.

Wilbur Wright's Disclaimer

Paris, Jan. 9.—Concerning reports connecting his name with a suit said to have been begun by a French army lieutenant for divorce, Wilbur Wright says he knows nothing of such proceedings and looks upon the whole matter as a practical joke. He says he never saw the wife of the officer mentioned as plaintiff in the suit.

Manslaughter Is Charged

Saco, Me., Jan. 9.—Seth Chambers of Sanford and Ralph Downs were hunting when Chambers' gun was discharged accidentally, killing Downs. The coroner's jury found that Chambers was guilty of gross negligence and an indictment for manslaughter, based on that charge, was returned by the grand jury.

ROYAL WELCOME TO "FIGHTING BOB"

He Tells Navy League of Trip of Battleship Fleet

New York, Jan. 9.—Rear Admiral Evans was given a royal welcome to New York by the Navy League members of this city, whom he had come to address at Carnegie Hall.

"Fighting Bob's" appearance was heralded by a trumpet blast which called a company of sixty naval battalion members to the platform, the sailors standing at attention, while the admiral, supported by crutches, slowly made his way upon the stage. The audience rose and shouted its welcome to its distinguished guest, who stood bowing until the applause had subsided.

He seated himself in a chair, begging the audience's indulgence for his sitting posture during his talk. Some "Civil war relics" necessitated this expedient, he said.

The rear admiral's address was a felicitous, breezy account, abounding in interesting incidents of the run of the battleship fleet from Hampton Roads to San Francisco under his command. He deprecated praise of himself for the success of the cruise, giving the lion's share of credit to "the man who boiled the water in the fireroom and the man who peeled potatoes in the galley."

ASKS FOR JURY TRIAL

Mrs. Thaw Feels Convinced That Son Is Not Insane

Nyack, N. Y., Jan. 9.—For the third time since the commitment of Harry K. Thaw to the state hospital for the insane at Matteawan his case came into court today, when arguments were made before Supreme Court Justice Tompkins on the writ of habeas corpus obtained by his mother, Mrs. Mary C. Thaw.

In the new proceedings Mrs. Thaw asks that her son's sanity be tested by a jury trial. She says, among other things, that her son is not a criminal, having been acquitted by a jury; that he is now sane and should not be kept a prisoner in the asylum.

In the previous attempts of Thaw to be freed from the asylum he was opposed by his mother, but after spending much time at Matteawan, visiting him daily, she is, she says, convinced that he is not insane.

MALONEY WINS MARATHON

No One Able to Push Him In Last Five Miles

New York, Jan. 9.—Matthew Maloney of Brooklyn won the amateur indoor Marathon race at Madison Square Garden last night from thirty-one other competitors in handy fashion. Maloney, who ran strongly throughout the race, won practically by himself. He was nearly half a mile ahead of James F. Crowley, the New York Marathon winner.

Sidney H. Hatch of Chicago plucked third place from Sam Kellor, the Yonkers runner, who set the pace for fifteen miles.

Maloney's time was 2:54:45 2-5, which is rather slow. It was probably due to the fact that the track was soft and that for the last five miles of the race there was no man strong enough to push the winner.

PESTS COME FROM FRANCE

Browntail Moth Found In Imported Nursery Seedlings

Albany, Jan. 9.—At a conference at the state department of agriculture it was decided to send to each nurseryman of the state a letter of warning against the browntail moth, which has been found in some importations of nursery seedlings recently arrived from France.

"This insect pest has not become established in New York state and nurserymen and orchardists who know of its depredations in Massachusetts will unite to repress it," said Commissioner of Agriculture Pearson.

REJECTS TEMPTING PRIZE

Jeffries Cannot Think of Re-entering the Ring "At Present"

Denver, Jan. 9.—The following telegram was received by the sporting editor of the Denver Times from James J. Jeffries in response to a message asking the former champion under what condition he would reenter the ring to fight Jack Johnson for the championship:

"Would not think of re-entering the ring at present under any conditions."

This apparently disposes of the reported offer of $100,000 made by a number of Mazuma, Nev., men for a fight between Johnson and Jeffries for the championship.

PUBLISHES TILLMAN PAPERS

President Says That the Senator Lied

OREGON "LAND GRAB"

Tillman Schemed to Force Government to Aid Him

MADE DENIAL IN THE SENATE

Interesting Evidence Furnished by Government Agents

Washington, Jan. 9.—President Roosevelt last night made public the details of an investigation by postoffice inspectors and secret service agents of Senator Tillman's connection with an alleged "land grab" in Oregon. As he presents the evidence to Senator Hale in response to the latter's request to the heads of the various executive departmentments for a statement upon the operations of the secret service, the president undertakes to show:

That Tillman used his influence as a senator to try to force the government to compel a railroad corporation to relinquish its control of and grants from the United States so that he and his family and his secretary, J. P. Knight, might profit by the purchase of some of the lands; that the senator used his government franking privilege in numerous instances for the conduct of private business.

The communication to Senator Hale is very long, and there is appended to it numerous exhibits, including copies of letters written by Tillman and his agent, William Lee, showing that they did make an effort to obtain several quarter sections of the Oregon land, and the reports of the postoffice inspectors who investigated the transactions of the land agents. It was owing to this investigation that the alleged interest of Tillman was brought to light and fatefully, it appears, it was at his instance that the inquiry was begun.

What the President Says

"I have requested the different departments of the government, not only those to whom you sent requests, but those to whom you did not, to give me all the information about the use of special attorneys, special agents, inspectors, etc., in their departments which will enable me to put before you all the facts which, as I understand it, your committee desire to have. I transmit those reports herewith. I call especial attention to the reports of the secretary of state, the secretary of the treasury and the attorney general.

"Let me at the outset most earnestly express my cordial agreement with the view that it is not only right, but the duty of congress, to investigate the workings of the secret service or detective agents by which alone the government can effectally safeguard itself against wrong-doing, punish crime and bring to justice criminals. I am well aware of the liability to abuse inherent in any effective detective system or secret service system. It is eminently to the public interest that there should be vigilant inquiry into the working of this agency by the heads of the executive departments and by congress.

Detectives Indispensable

"It nevertheless remains true that this system is absolutely indispensable if the popular interest is to be adequately safeguarded and wrongdoers taught to fear the law. To show how indispensable detectives are when important work of a confidential character must be done, I refer you to the experience of the immigration commission, which has found it absolutely necessary to employ detectives in order to achieve the best results."

The president says that in the investigation of specific frauds wholly unexpected phases of misconduct are sometimes come across. The frauds in the postal department which were unearthed some six years ago are referred to as a case in point. Continuing, he says:

The Tillman Case

"But a case has just arisen of a different kind, which it seems to me I should put before you as illustrating in striking fashion the way in which investigations begun by any of these various agents in the strict line of their duty may develop facts of high importance which the investigators would not in the first instance have sought to discover; which when discovered ought not to be hidden or suppressed, but the development of which may tend to create an erroneous impression that the agents in question were being used for purposes not within the line of their lawful duty.

"On Feb. 19, 1908, Senator Tillman called the attention of the senate to a circular of a syndicate firm for the sale of lands in Oregon, particularly in Coos and Douglas counties, which had been granted corporations by the government, the circular stating that the company in possession of the lands was bound to sell them for $2.50 an acre, or upon their refusal would be prosecuted by the government, and that 'among those who have spoken for a part of this land is Senator Tillman of South Carolina, the leader of the Democratic party in the senate, a man who usually gets what he goes after.'

Tillman's Denial

"Senator Tillman denied the statements of this circular and expressed a wish for an investigation, and upon his request the postoffice department through its inspectors made such an investigation. He stated in reference to this circular:

"'I have not bought any lands anywhere in the west nor undertaken to buy any. I have made some inquiries, as one naturally would, in roaming through the west. I simply want the people of the country to be put on notice that this swindler at Portland has no warrant whatever for endeavoring to inveigle others into his game.'

"I inclose this circular referred to and the report of the postoffice inspectors, under date of July 27, 1908. This is a confidential report of a type usually not furnished, but in this case the matter is so serious that I feel I should put it before you. I inclose you also photographic similes of letters and envelopes and telegrams from Senator Tillman and his agent, William E. Lee.

Tillman's Bid For Land

"It appears that on Oct. 20, 1907, Senator Tillman wrote a letter to Messrs. Reeder & Watkins of Marshfield, Oregon, who were applicants for the purchase of certain wagon road land grant; Dorr was a land agent, making his filings through Reeder & Watkins. Tillman's letter runs in part as follows:

"'I wired you from Wausau, Wis., as follows and write to confirm it: William E. Lee, my agent, will see you about land. I want nine quarters reserved. Will forward signed applications and money at once. Members of my family are entrymen. Letter follows. B. R. T.: I write now to say I wired Mr. Lee, who resides at Moscow, Idaho, to go at once to Marshfield and see you about the land, to locate quarters for the seven members of my family, who are of age and one for my private secretary, J. B. Knight, whom I desire to let into the deal and of course he wants a quarter for himself.'

Considered a "Good Gamble"

"The letter continued, stating in detail what was to be done in order to enable the senator to get the land. The William E. Lee to whom Tillman thus referred as his agent, wrote to Reeder & Watkins, under date of Dec. 7, a letter, photographic copy of which is herewith submitted. In this letter Lee explains that he had written Tillman fully as to the status of the land matter, advising him that was a 'good gamble' but that the senator was lecturing, so that he did not get Lee's letter until a week and a half previously. The letter continues:

"'In case Senator Tillman gets in on this deal with some good land in the eight quarters we want, I am satisfied that he can be of great help in getting matters started from Washington and cause the government to get busy and do something along the line you desire. He will set up such a howl that it will be impossible to do otherwise. This will be very important for your whole scheme to have a man of his influence here to aid you at this end of the line. By all means save a lot of good land for us, as we intend to be of more value than any one of the others in this matter.'

The president quotes a resolution introduced in the senate on Jan. 13, 1908, attacking the land company and directing the attorney general to take such proceedings or institute such suit or suits on behalf of the United States as may be necessary, appropriate or expedient, to insure a compliance with prescribed conditions or to restore the said lands to the public domain, or to report to congress why such action as aforesaid has not been or should not be taken. In conclusion, the president says:

A Telltale Letter

On Feb. 15, Tillman wrote to Messrs. Reeder & Watkins. A photograph of this letter is also attached. In it I call your attention to the fact that he speaks again of Lee as his agent. He states that what he has done in stirring up the question of the Oregon land grants to railroads has been done entirely apart from any personal interest he has in the matter and adds:

"'Although I never would have had my attention called to it but for the investigation as set on foot in connection with the proposed purchase by me of some of the timber land in question. Of course, if I decide to make the tender and go into the law suit, I will bear your proposition in mind, but I would have you understand that nothing I do here in the senate will be done because of any personal purchase of any of the land.

"'If I can succeed in causing the government to institute suit for the recovery of the land and make it easier for others as well as myself to obtain some of it, I shall do it without any regard to the dealing with your firm. I still want to get some of the timber land, if it is possible, and as it is probable that Lee or some other representative of mine will be in your country in the next two months, we will leave the matter of payment for the initiatory steps and subsequent proceedings in abeyance for the present.

Wanted Eight Quarter Sections

"'Any contract we might make will be entirely apart from, and independent of, my work here in the senate. I will be glad for you to hold in reserve eight of the best quarter sections of which you have definite information and I will in the meantime press the investigation and other work here which will facilitate the final purchase, and in effect obviate the necessity of your making any case in the courts at all.'

"This letter in which Tillman requested that eight of the best quarter sections be held in reserve for him was written just four days before he announced in the senate that he had not undertaken to buy any land in the west. It is unnecessary to comment upon his proposal, made in this letter, to use his influence as senator to force the government to institute a suit which would make it easy for him personally to obtain some of the land. This letter, purely pertaining to Tillman's personal and private business, was sent in a franked envelope, of which I attach photographic copy.

"The assault by Tillman upon Dorr was, according to the report of the inspectors, a wanton assault made to cover up Tillman's own transactions.

The Exhibits

The first exhibit contained in the communication is Tillman's personal explanation, made on the floor of the senate on Feb. 9, 1908, in which he complained of alleged unauthorized use of his name in a circular issued by Byran R. Dorr, president of the St. Paul and Pacific Timber Syndicate of Portland.

This circular says that Tillman was interested in an action to compel the Southern Oregon company to sell to applicants about 100,000 acres of timber lands which had been granted to the Coos Bay Wagon Road company, on condition that it should be sold in quarter sections for a price not exceeding $2.50 per acre. In the statement Tillman denied that he had bought any lands anywhere in the west and he declared further that he had not undertaken to buy any. At the request of Tillman, the postoffice department withheld mail addressed to Bryan R. Dorr and to the timber syndicate, pending an investigation of their business by Postoffice Inspectors Riches and Clement.

Report of Inspectors

The inspectors' report to G. D. Linn, inspector-in-charge at Spokane, Wash., is given by the president. It shows that a very thorough inquiry was made of the operations of Dorr and a number of other Oregon real estate agents who were receiving applications for the lands held by the Coos Bay Wagon Road company.

Among the persons and firms mentioned in the report as interested in the lands were James M. Conro of Marshfield and George J. Schaefer of Portland, and Reeder & Watkins, Marshfield. The Tillman letters were addressed chiefly to Reeder & Watkins.

In their report Riches and Clement found that there was no evidence that Reeder & Watkins were not acting in good faith in receiving applications for the land. As to the action of Dorr, against whom the case was more specifically directed, it was found that he was unwarrantably extravagant both in his statement of conditions and his terms. This was attributed to his inexperience in business, his energy and enthusiasm and his desire to make good in the west.

Justified In Using Tillman's Name

The inspectors were convinced, however, that Dorr had no criminal motives in his actions and sincerely believed he would be able to make good his promises. As to the use of Tillman's name by Dorr, the inspectors found that the facts concerning the applications of Tillman and family to purchase nine quarter sections of the land justified the real estate agent in using the senator's name as an advertisement. The action of the postoffice department in withholding from delivery mail addressed to Dorr, it was recommended, should be rescinded.

Exhibits which followed the report of the inspectors are copies of the envelopes in which letters from Tillman and his agent, Lee, were sent to Reeder & Watkins. It is shown that the letters written by Tillman were "franked" and that a letter written by Lee was upon senate stationery and enclosed in a senate envelope, although postage was paid thereon.

Wanted Operations Kept Hidden

The most striking passages from these letters are contained in excerpts quoted by the president in his communication to Senator Hale. The final exhibit is a letter written by Dorr to the postmaster general, under date of Nov. 22, 1908, in which he requests a full copy of the report of the postoffice inspectors for use in setting himself right with the people. He declares that he used the name of Tillman without knowing "that the senator desired his operations to be kept hidden and secret from general public knowledge."

He asserts that, though he was found innocent of any attempt to deceive or to defraud anyone, the investigation all but ruined his business and destroyed much of the confidence which his clients had reposed in him.

Famous Journalist Who Entered Many Fields

An Intimate Study of the Late Major Orlando Jay Smith, Founder of the American Press Association—Thinker, Philosopher and Writer Whose Life Touched Great Men as Well as Great Movements.

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

IN his day Major Orlando Jay Smith, the late president of the American Press Association, entered many fields. At twenty-two he was a major of cavalry in the Union army. At thirty-seven he was editor of one of the leading greenback and anti-monopoly papers of the country, the Chicago Express. Starting at the age of forty, he built up in a quarter of a century the largest newspaper syndicate in the United States. He was an advocate of life in the open, of the preservation of our forests and was an authority on arboriculture. He was a believer in fundamental democracy and furthered it both by books and through the other avenues at his command. He was a keen judge of character, quick to detect genius and started more young writers on the path to fame than perhaps any man of his day. Finally, his many works on science and religion attracted the attention of thinkers not only in his own land, but in India and England and throughout the world.

His life touched not only great movements, but great men. In addition to those that he helped to find themselves and their work, many of whose names are now household words, he was for many years a friend and neighbor of Robert G. Ingersoll, often entertained William J. Bryan at his home and was a particular friend of Dr. Albert Shaw, editor of the Review of Reviews. There was an especial sympathy between these two on religious and philosophical lines. At Major Smith's funeral Dr. Shaw referred feelingly to this bond and read from the books of his dead friend passages on his faith in life beyond the grave.

Touched Many Shores of Thought.

Major Smith was born on an Indiana farm and lies buried at Sleepy Hollow, N. Y., made famous by Washington Irving. At one time he was a Mississippi planter. The three extremes illustrate not only his career, but show his sympathy with all sections. The breadth of his views is indicated by the fact that he kept abreast of the advanced thought of his day and at the same time was familiar with all religions, ancient and modern. He was an intense admirer of characters as diverse as Charles Dickens and Napoleon Bonaparte. The English novelist he read over and over, and of Napoleon he had a death mask, statues and paintings, while his library was stocked with books concerning the first emperor. There could have been nothing narrow in a man who touched so many shores of thought and who had interests so wide and varied. He was a rare combination of the practical man and the idealist.

ORLANDO JAY SMITH.

Pathetic Prison Experiences.

Orlando Jay Smith was of New England ancestry and was the son of a pioneer. He was born near Terre Haute, Ind., on June 14, 1842. He graduated from Asbury college, now De Pauw university, which afterward conferred on him the degree of LL. D. Entering the Union army in April, 1861, he served until September, 1865. He enlisted as a private and rose to be second sergeant the first year. He was then mustered out with his regiment and helped to form a second regiment, in which he was commissioned second lieutenant, then served two years as captain and early in 1864 was raised to the grade of major. He participated in the Shenandoah valley campaign, the Kentucky campaign, where he fought in the battle of Richmond; the east Tennessee campaign, the Knoxville campaign and the Atlanta campaign. He commanded his regiment in the operations at the right of Kenesaw mountain.

One of his most exciting war experiences was as a participant in Stoneman's raid. He opposed Stoneman's action in surrendering the brigade of which Major Smith's regiment was a part and proved that it was unnecessary by leading his regiment in cutting its way out and escaping. He was afterward severely wounded, however, and made a prisoner near Jug Tavern, Ga. His prison experiences were most pathetic. His wound was painful throughout the entire time, he had little to eat except parched corn and lived in open stockades where there was no shelter except holes the prisoners burrowed in the ground. Three experiences that he told one of his friends are characteristic. One was the finding of an old oven door, which he lugged with him from prison to prison and used for parching his corn or for cooking any morsel he might pick up. Another was of finding enough old rails and wood to build a shanty about six feet square. This seemed like a mansion to the men, and when the very day it was completed word came that they were to be exchanged there was actual regret at leaving it. The third episode was in Charleston when the city was bombarded by the Union forces. Northern prisoners were placed where they were exposed to the fire of their own armies, Major Smith being in one of the most dangerous positions. After being exchanged in December, 1864, he was placed in command of the paroled prisoners at Camp Chase, Columbus, O. He was also assistant inspector general of the Sixth division of Wilson's cavalry corps. Being in the cavalry, Major Smith was almost constantly engaged in the dangerous work of scouting. One of his theories was that men to fight well must be well fed and cared for. He was therefore noted for his efforts for the comfort of his command. After the war Major Smith became a member of the Loyal Legion.

Baffled Three Assassins.

His exciting days did not end with being mustered out of the service. Raising cotton on a Mississippi plantation may not sound like a "hazardous occupation," but it all depends on the time in which it was done and by whom. For a northern officer to engage in the pursuit while the bitterness of the war was still fresh was not the most healthful of occupations, yet this is exactly what Major Smith did and despite unpleasant occurrences persisted in it for three years. On one occasion he was followed by three men that he felt intended to assassinate him. Suddenly wheeling his horse, he confronted them with the question, "Well, gentlemen, what do you want?" This disconcerted them, and they went their ways.

Even yet his warlike experiences were not over. In 1869 he returned to Terre Haute and started a newspaper, the Mail. So vigorous were some of his editorials that one gentleman thought himself aggrieved and thereupon began shooting at the major from behind a barrel, as a result of which the young editor carried a second bullet hole to the day of his death. Later Major Smith acquired the Terre Haute Express and launched it as a greenback organ. Six years or more were devoted to this cause, during which time Major Smith gave his whole soul to the work, writing and speaking constantly. The Express grew until in 1878 it was moved to Chicago, becoming one of the foremost papers in the movement.

It was in 1882 that Major Smith started the American Press Association. The plan on which he worked was untried and seemed to fail on the first attempt. He only changed its details and worked the harder. At last his efforts and genius for organization began to tell, and today the institution, of which he was the head until the time of his death, is the largest newspaper syndicate in America and the foremost of its kind in the world.

Brought Many Into Prominence.

In this work Major Smith employed at various times most of the well known fiction writers and many of the most brilliant newspaper men of the last quarter of a century. Some of these he picked as winners when they were unknown and brought them into prominence. It is worthy of note that he bought from Ella Wheeler Wilcox the first poem she ever sold; that he suggested the bringing of Eugene Field to Chicago, the step that established his fame; that he was a close friend and adviser of John Clark Ridpath, the historian; that he first detected the genius of the inimitable short story writer who goes under the pen name of "O. Henry;" that before Peter Finley Dunne, with his "Dooley," had jumped into fame Major Smith predicted that he would be the humorist of the Spanish-American war, and that by syndicating their work he did much to spread the popularity of such men as Bill Nye, M. Quad, Murat Halstead, T. De Witt Talmage, Champ Clark and numberless others. Among the well known writers who worked with Major Smith before becoming prominent, many of whom owe their start to his encouragement and interest, may be mentioned Tom Masson, editor of Life; Sewell Ford, the short story writer; Frederick A. Ober, the historian; Jack London, Booth Tarkington, Dexter Marshall, the syndicate writer; John H. Beadle, famous a generation ago; Howard Fielding, the novelist; Joseph R. Buchanan, now labor editor of the New York Journal; Eliza Archard Conner, the woman's writer; H. Addington Bruce, now a recognized authority on psychology; F. A. Mitchel, novelist; Richard Lloyd Jones, secretary of the Lincoln Farm association, and hosts of others throughout the land.

Major Smith was himself an author of more than national fame, both in economics and in the fields of philosophy and religion. On "Eternalism" he received a letter of thanks from a maharajah of India, and that and other works were reviewed by some of the best known critics and scientists of the day. Of a nature similar to "Eternalism" are "Balance," "A Short View of Great Questions" and "Agreement Between Science and Religion," while "The Coming Democracy" outlines a plan for a more perfect system of voting and popular government. One of the greatest essays I ever read from the pen of Major Smith appeared in the Open Court only a few months before his death.

Authority on Immortality.

Without attempting to go into his philosophy at length, it attempts to prove immortality by scientific methods; to show that there is absolute balance and adjustment in all things; that the individual is ultimatey responsible for his every act, the law of balance in his case becoming justice, thus requiring life after death for its completion and fulfillment; that the basic principles of all religions are the same, and they thus support and prove each other, and that the ideas of moral accountability, of a supreme intelligence and of some sort of communication between the living and the dead have been universally held in all times and climes, thus showing them to be instinctive in the race and furnishing the strongest presumptive evidence of their truth. These themes will be more popular a generation hence than they are today, and it is my own deliberate opinion that Orlando Jay Smith will be an authority upon them long after an army of present day writers are forgotten.

In politics Major Smith was a radical in the sense that he thought for himself and followed the utter truth as he saw it. Yet he was ever optimistic and constructive.

Trees Were His Friends.

In personal appearance Major Smith was rather tall and compactly built. His face was strong and smooth shaven, his eyes blue and direct, his hair abundant, but snow white. At home he had the same simplicity, sincerity and easy dignity that marked him everywhere. He leaves a widow, two daughters and a son, Courtland Smith, whom the father trained up to be his assistant and successor in business. Major Smith loved the open country, and the trees were his friends. He knew them well both scientifically and in a more human way.

I cannot close this article without a personal word. I never knew a man whose ideas ran more nearly parallel with my own in almost every field than did those of Major Smith. Because of personal sympathy and friendship I have refrained from saying many things that are in my heart, fearing that my own bias might make me overdraw the picture, a thing that no character sketch should do. I trust my readers to see between the lines and to discern not the mere words, but the spirit and feeling behind the words.

This much I will say: Orlando Jay Smith raised the standard of American journalism as did perhaps no other man of his time, and he believed in and furthered movements of betterment in almost every field of human thought and endeavor.

TAFT CABINET ANNOUNCEMENT

It May Not Be Made Until After the Inauguration

Augusta, Ga., Jan. 9.—The Taft-Knox cabinet conference is over. Neither the president-elect or his adviser will discuss the result, and it is strongly hinted by Taft that his cabinet will be made known for the first time when he sends the names of the men who are to compose it to the senate for confirmation.

From the early ending of the conference with Knox it seems a reasonable conclusion that the Taft cabinet is decided upon. If this is the case, it is also undoubtedly true that the men who are to compose that body are yet to be invited to become cabinet members and their answers have yet to be received.

ALIENISTS DISAGREE

Do Not Help Hains, Though Testifying In His Behalf

Flushing, N. Y., Jan. 9.—The defense in the trial of Thornton J. Hains as a principal, with his brother, Captain Peter C. Hains, in the killing of William E. Annis, has come to a close.

The defense placed two alienists on the witness stand Friday—Dr. Manson and Dr. Clark—to prove that Captain Hains suffered from impulsive insanity when he shot Annis. Their cross-examination was not calculated to aid the defense, both experts disagreeing in some main essentials of their testimony. The confusions and seeming contradictions of the alienists served to prolong their cross-examination all day.

ADVICE TO NEGROES

Taft Tells of Advantages of Industrial Education In Address at School

Augusta, Ga., Jan. 9.—Carrying out a promise made by Mr. Taft some time ago to Judson W. Lyons, former register of the treasury, who is a resident of Augusta, the president-elect delivered an address today at Hains Normal school, a local institution for negro children.

In his speech Mr. Taft dwelt on the advantages to the negro race and to the country to be derived from the industrial education of the colored workers.

Three Killed In New York Fire

New York, Jan. 9.—Three persons are dead, another was probably fatally burned and half a hundred others had narrow escapes when fire swept through a five-story tenement house at No. 666 Ninth avenue.

Daylight Theft of $200,000

Paris, Jan. 9.—A mail sack containing bonds, etc., worth $200,000, was stolen from a delivery wagon in the Chaussee D'Antin in broad daylight. The police have not the slightest clue to the thieves.

Rev. G. F. Durgin, pastor of Bromfield Street M. E. church, Boston, will speak at Hall Place M. E. church Sunday evening. Mr. Durgan is an able and interesting preacher especially to young people and will no doubt have a good audience.

There will be a special Vesper service next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock at Christ church, in place of the regular evening service. The choir will sing the story of the First Christmas by J. Barnby, with George Reynolds, tenor, John Findley, baritone and Master Verner Birnie, soprano, as the soloists.

Miss Alice H. Haskell of Hyde Park who has been organist at First church for several years has resigned and Mr. E. Landis Snyder of this city has been selected for the position. Mr. Snyder and his ability is well known throughout the city and the church is fortunate in securing his services.

A series of vesper services is being given this month at First church, the first of which was held last Sunday and largely attended. Rev. C. B. Ames, assistant pastor, gave a short practical sermon, making a most favorable impression, as many in the congregation had not heard him before. The next vesper service will be on Jan. 17.

A number of years ago when C. W. Guy of this city was in the old skating rink, he inaugurated the News Boys Benefit Day for the day before Christmas and Miss Penniman wrote the notices for the Boston papers. The day was for all time and for all places. During the last three years it is estimated that the boys have benefited by the cards given out at his Boston store to the extent of $7,000.00 and by special effort this year It is hoped to bring the amount to $12,000.00

—It the earthquake had not occurred the passage of our battleship through the Mediterranean sea would have been more or less of a parade, with naval experts on every side attentively studying our ship and our seamanship. It would have been the crowning impression produced by our fleet during its long and memorable journey. But events have changed all that. Nobody in that historic sea is now thinking of naval power or warlike capacity. The larger interest of a common humanity now fill the horizon, and the best ship is the one that carries the most and goes the fastest in the work of relief. It is an unforeseen and curious change for ship that were built to carry 12-inch guns and for crews that have been trained to shoot fast and straight but it is glorious work all the same. Both our ships and our seamanship will prove their quality as well in this race to help those who are in distress as they would if they were operating as a compact force with every gun ready for action. Many, indeed, will regard this haste to reach the sufferers in Sicily and Calabria as the finest exhibition of American sea power made during the entire battleship cruise.—Hartford Courant.

—Stoughton had a bad fire Wednesday night when the four-story factory of Charles Stretton Sons, jersey manufacturers, was totally destroyed entailing a loss of over $75,000 and throwing many people out of work.

A NOTRE DAME LADY'S APPEAL.

To all knowing sufferers of rheumatism, whether muscular or of the joints, sciatica, lumbago, backache, pains in the kidneys or neuralgia pains, to write to her for a home treatment which has repeatedly cured all of these tortures. She feels it her duty to send it to all sufferers FREE. You cure yourself at home as thousands will testify—no change of climate being necessary. This simple discovery banishes uric acid from the blood, loosens the stiffened joints, purifies the blood, and brightens the eyes, giving elasticity and tone to the whole system. If the above interests you, for proof address Mrs. M. Summers, Box R, Notre Dame, Ind.

AMUSEMENTS.

Orpheum Theatre.

Heeding the thousands of requests from Boston theatre-goers for a return engagement of Harry Lauder, the great Scotch comedian, the management of the Orpheum Theatre has arranged to have Mr. Lauder here for two weeks beginning January 11th. His last visit to Boston was for but one week, and thousands were turned away from the theatre at every performance. It is not expected that the two weeks of his second engagement will be a sufficient time to allow all who might wish to see him, but it has been imposible to secure any additional time as his bookings elsewhere make it necessary that two weeks be the limit. Mr. Lauder comes from a triumphant tour of the large American cities, which tour was made with all the magnificence that might attend the journey of a potentate, in fact it, might be said that no king ever traveled under more pleasurable auspices than those planned and carried out by William Morris, Inc., for the comfort of the popular little Scottish star.

Keith's Theater.

The number of newcomers, all of the highest character, being introduced at Keith's theatre in recent weeks, has been noticeable and the week of January 11th will be even more so, judging by the announcements already made, although the headline attarctions are old and tried favorites. One of these is that elaborate spectacle, "The Naked Truth," in which Harry Davenport and Phyllis Rankin have been making one of the biggest successes in their careers. This is one of the greatest novelties of its kind that has ever been written, the feature of which that calls for the most comment being the disrobing of the Scotch soldier in plain view of the audience, where for every lie he tells he loses part of his clothing. After a time this also happens to Miss Rankin to the great embarrassment of both herself and the audience. The entire sketch is full of good musical numbers besides the splendid comedy. There will also be a welcome for Ryan and Richfield, of "Mag Haggerty's father" fame. Others are Lisle Leigh & Co., in a sketch: Kremka Brothers; Fred Sosman; the Brittons, El Cota, Kelly and Ashby and the Van Dykes, nearly all of which are new here, coming after a great success in New York.

Castle Square Theatre.

Owing to a pressing demand from the patrons of the Castle Square theatre the great success The Circus Girl will run another week and The Bells of Haslemere, which was booked for next week, will be postponed for a week.

IS STRICKEN WHILE AT WORK

Thomas B. Tilton Victim of Heart Disease

Thomas B. Tilton a well known resident of Quincy died suddenly at his home on Bent place Saturday noon. Mr. Tilton who has suffered from time to time with heart trouble was at work in his shop near his home when he was seized with an attack of heart trouble. He evidently realized his condition and staggered toward the house.

The housekeeper saw him coming and realizing that something was wrong ran to the door to meet him. As she reached the door Mr. Tilton fell into her arms. She succeeded in getting him on a couch and a neighbor sent a telephone call for a physician. Mr. Tilton recognized his wife to whom he said "I am dying." He then lapsed into unconsciousness and expired a few minutes after the physician arived.

Mr. Tilton was born in Boston and lived in that city for a number of years. In the days of the old hand engines he was attached to an East Boston company and did yoeman service in fighting fire during those early days until steam fire engines repaced the hand tubs.

He was a wood turner by trade and for many years was employed by Charles Williams on Court street. It was here that the first Blake telephone transmitters and the Bell telephone receivers were made and Mr. Tilton was employed doing the turning work for these instruments. It was during this time that he took up his residence in Quincy.

Of late years he has been employed doing furniture repair work.

He leaves a widow, a son and two daughters. His children are Charles B. Tilton of Merymount road, Ella wife of Charles E. Snow of Mechanics street and M. Clara widow of Friend Crane who resided at home.

Mrs. J. H. Gilbert is quite ill at her home on Chestnut street.

GIVEN SIX MONTHS.

Edward J. McManus of Milton was arraigned in court Saturday for the larceny of $18 in money and a pair of shoes and stockings from Fred E. Sanborn. The alleged larceny took place last October but the police were not able to locate McManus until yesterday.

Acerding to the story told in court, Sanborn had invited McManus home with him to spend the night, an invitation which he accepted.

They both slept in the same room, but McManus was on the couch. It is alleged that he arose about 6 o'clock in the morning and after helping himself to the contents of Sanborn's pockets, he put on his shoes and stockings and like the Arabs folded his tent and quietly stole away.

Sanborn got up at 9 o'clock and found that he had been touched. McManus denied that he had taken the money but circumstances were against him. It was also shown that he had a bad court record and the court sentenced him to six months in jail.

FROM TRACK TO TURF.

Exports of American horses during the six years ending June 30, 1908, were valued at $21,000,000, while imports for the same period were valued at $10,000,000. Three-fourths of the import values represented stallions and mares of established Eureopean breeds brought in duty free for breeding purposes.

W. C. Brown, the new president of the New York Central railroad, is a capable horseman and in a year or so his colors will be seen in the futurities.

Millard Drinkwater has a 2-year-old filly by Bingen, out of Castanea, 2.19 1-4, that he considers fully as promising as was her half-brother Cochato, 2.11 1-2, at the same age.

Early Alice, 2.06 3-4, is the headliner in a small western auction in March. Someone has ventured the guess that she will not change owners.

Grant Paige has signed to train the youngsters of A. B. Coxe the Paoli, Penn., man, who is best known in the horse world as owner of the Leading Lady.

G. R. Ellis, superintendent of Peter B. Bradley's farm in Hingham, expects to beat 2.30 with a pair of trotting yearlings by Border Knight, son of Bingen, this fall.

Fred Stockman is putting in his spare time this winter on the education of the yearling by Alliewood out of his fast but unfortunate trotter, Sporty, 2.14 1-2

Baron Rogers, 2.09 3-4 has made a wonderful showing in Russia. During the last 10 years he has had 84 living foals, of which 64 faced the starter; of these 43 have records better than 2.30, 12 better than 2.20, and three in 2.15 or better. His first get commenced racing in 1902 and up to 1908 their winnings amounted to over 700,000 roubles.

Plans are being considered by the management at Peoria for a handicap that will top anything ever attended Amasa Corbin, a wealthy horseman of Gouverneur, N. Y., has offered to finance the enterprise by giving as a prize the Murray Hill hotel, located at Murray Isle, N. Y., and valued at $100,000. In addition to this big prize to the winner of the race he would give 12 prizes of $1500 each to the winners of 12 elimination races preliminary to the main contest and $4600 to horses finishing behind the winner in the final. Should his plans be caried out entries will probably close on March 1. The fee will be $300, payable in three monthly instalments.

JUST FROM THE PRESS.

It is doubtful if any book of useful information has ever been printed in the English language that stands so high in the estimation of students, lawyers, merchants, historians, professors and business men at large as does The World Almanac and Encyclopedia. Just from the press, the 1900 edition of this greatest of all ready reference books is now being distributed to its regular subscribers and to newsdealers in all parts of the United States. Every one of the 15,000 facts and figures it presents, whether about politics, commerce, weights, measures, secret societies, populations of cities, States, countries, sporting events, etc., is handily indexed so it may be turned to at a moment's notice. It is one of the few books that may be called a necessity and a luxury at one and the same time. Its 850 pages fairly bristle with facts that people want and ought to know. ENTERTAINED BY PROPRIETOR.

Guests at Hotel Greenleaf enjoy real old Fashioned Party.

"We won't go home until morning; We won't go home until morning; We won't go home until morning and we don't want to go home even then."

This refrain rang through the parlors of Hotel Greenleaf Saturday night, and the singers kept their word, for it was not until the clocks struck twelve that the guests at the peanut hunt and dance given by Proprietor and Mrs. George M. Morse, started for their various rooms, after having given the Boniface and his wife a rising vote of thanks for the good time, provided for them.

Previous to the peanut hunt Frank Nightingale the magician and card manipulater did some clever stunts which completely mystified the guests.

Mr. Nightingale was so clever in producing and transferring cards from one gentlemen's pockets to another's that a grand rush was made for the safe, with watches and other valuables.

Following Mr. Nightingale's act there were piano solos by Fred Ruch and the Misses Burke.

In the peanut hunt Warren Edwards captured first prize with twenty-seven peanuts to his credit. Fred Ruch was awarded second prize and there were three,(whose names for obvious reasons are suppressed) to receive booby prizes.

BASKET BALL SCORES.

Over 500 witnessed the two games of basket ball Saturday night at St. Mary's hall. The first game was between the St. Mary's and Baldwins of Boston and was won by the former by a score of 19 to 10. The second game was between the Buchanans and St. Mary's second team and was won by the Buchanans by a score of 20 to 19.

The St. Marys team has been greatly strengthened by Frank Mullen who was considered one of the fastest backs in New England a few weeks ago.

An adjourned meeting of the City Council will be held tonight.

John F. McGovern Wanders Into Strange House and is Fined

Miss Fannie Emery of Marsh street received a bad burglar scare early Sunday morning. It was about 2 o'clock when Miss Emery heard a noise down stairs. Her first thoughts were that it was a boarder. Then she realized that it could not be and she made an investigation. She was somewhat surprised to find a strange man blundering about.

Mr. Robinson, a boarder, was awakened and he ran to the police station and notified Sergt. Barry who was in charge.

If there is one thing more than another that Sergt. Barry likes, it is hunting burglars, especially if they can be captured red handed. So quickly buckling on his armor and taking his trusty seven-shooter in his good right hand he hiked it over the fence to Miss Emery's house.

In less time than it takes to tell, Sergt. Barry was in the house. The supposed burglar was still there, being too much overcome to get away. Sergt. Barry immediately recognized the intruder as John F. McGovern of Whitwell street.

McGovern has the habit of drinking more than is good for him at times and when overcome he loses his bearings and is likely to wander into the first house he happens to see.

A week ago while in the same condition he entered a house on Adams street in the same way.

Saturday night he had been to Boston arriving at South Quincy near midnight. He wandered about until he struck the house of Miss Emery. Finding the back door unlocked he walked in and he was lighting matches and trying to find out where he was, when Sergt. Barry gathered him in. He was made comfortable in one of these steel cages at the police station and this morning in court was fined $10 for drunkenness.

AFTER LONG ILLNESS.

Mrs. Mary Brooks Dies at Home of Son.

Mrs. Mary Brooks died on Saturday at the home of her son, Dr. William G. Brooks of Beach street, after an illness of ten weeks.

Mrs. Brooks was 72 years old and a native of Northfield, Vermont, and was the widow of Thomas Spencer Brooks, who died 20 years ago. Besides Dr. Brooks, there are four other sons, Charles H. Brooks, the Wollaston druggist, Dr. Ernest R. Brooks of West Somerville, Thomas S. Brooks of Nougles, New Mexico and George W. Brooks of Northfield, Vt., and three daughters, Mrs. May Pierce of Douglas, Arizona, Mrs. George Davenport of Randolph, Vt., and Miss Lina Brooks of Northfield. They were all at their mother's bedside except Mrs. Davenport, who was detained by illness.

Prayers were read by Rev. Edward A. Chase at 3 o'clock today and Mr. E. E. Bullock sang.

The funeral services will be held from the Congregational church in Northfield, Vermont, at one o'clock on Tuesday.

AT ST. CHRYSOSTOM'S.

Bishop Lawrence Preaches Sermon and Holds Confirmation.

Right Rev. William Lawrence D.D., preached a sermon and held confirmation in St. Chrysostom's church Sunday afternoon. Eleven persons were confirmed, making a total of nineteen within a year.

Bishop Lawrence took for his subject appreciation and faith. He said that the little faith that people have should be appreciated and so lead on to a higher faith, the same with good works, the little good that people do if properly appreciated, would lead them on to do greater good.

The mixed choir with Miss Ross, organist, rendered the musical program. The soloist was Miss Susan Nichols. The church was decorated from the chancel to the west end with Christmas greens and presented a very beautiful appearance; at the east end of the church to mark the Epiphany season was a large electric star, that was the first thing seen on entering the church.

HOUGHS NECK TO BE REPRESENTED

Large Delegation of Voters Will Attend Mass Meeting

The first meeting of the Houghs Neck Association, for the present year was held Sunday afternoon. The meeting was a special one called by President Archie F. Baird for the purpose of appointing committees for the following business. Public landing, garbage nuisance, water at Rock Island, gas at Rock Island, express and auditing of bills.

President Baird presided and quickly disposed of all matters. He appointed the following members on the committees, Public Landing, Henry W. French, chairman, John P. Moses, Frank Leavitt, Patrick F. O'Brien and Neil J. Regan. Garbage nuisance, Daniel J. Maloney, chairman; William P. Taylor and E. C. Piper. Auditing, Patrick F. O'Brien, chairman; William P. Taylor and Addison R. Hammond.

It was voted that the association send fifty representatives to the meeting to be held in City hall Saturday night for the purpose of considering changing of the City Charter.

The matter of a public landing at Houghs Neck was discussed by some of the members. Henry W. French said that the petition that was circulated last year and a bill was already at the state house and that the Senator from this district would take care of it. He outlined the manner in which the bill must be pushed through and said that he hoped to see a public landing at the Neck by next summer. The committee was instructed in what to do.

The president in appointing the committee to take care of the garbage nuisance said, "I have talked with the mayor about the condition that we are in at present and told him that many complaints had been made to me about the failure of the garbage team to collect the garbage." He then said, that he had made an appointment with the chairman of the board of health for Wednesday night to talk over the matter and remedy it.

The matter of expressage at Houghs Neck was a serious one. Two or three members told about the manner in which they were treated by a certain large express company in Quincy when they had ordered goods from Boston retail houses. One man stated that once when he had bought some goods he requested that the goods be sent by a certain express as he claimed that this company gave quick service. He said that the Boston firm refused to deliver the goods through this company and said that they were forced to give the business of their house to another company as they had a contract with them. The member then said that he had refused the goods as the company that had the contract did not give any kind of quick service. It was voted that the matter be laid on the table until next meeting when some of the express companies could have a representative present.

The meeting was than adjourned until Wednesday night at eight o'clock.

There has been no rise in the price of meat for a long time, perhaps because the packers are waiting until we get some money.

This gun-toting business seems to know no East, no West, no North, no South.

An historian says Nero was not nearly so bad as he was represented. That it what a fellow thinks of New York when he stands in the gallery of the United States Senate.

The steam railroads in Massachusetts show a deficit, and the electric companies a gain during the past year. How many years will it be before all the steam roads become electrics?

At many of the meetings held under the auspices of the citizens' Association considerable stress has been laid upon the frequent meetings held by the City Council. Anyone who is at all familiar with the charter or has read it knows that the Charter does not provide for two meetings a month of the Council. The fact is the Charter only provides for one meeting of that body.

The number of meetings of the Council is provided for by the rules of the Council, rule one which covers this point reads "Regular meetings of the Council shall be held on the first and third Mondays of each month, at 7.35 P. M."

If it is desirable to have fewer meetings that can be accomplished without any trouble for the council can amend its rules, therefore this question need not be considered in connection with the charter.

Wollaston people are unanimous in their demand for better police protection. There have been a number of breaks and attempted breaks in that section known as the hill and the residents feel that they are entitled to more protection. This same question arose last year and a petition for more police officers was forwarded to the City Council.

No action was taken by that body at that time as the Chief of Police placed an extra policeman on duty paying for the same out of his appropriation for special police. When this appropriation was exhausted the officer was taken off. While he was on duty the residents had a feeling of security.

Since the officer was taken off there have been several attempted burglaries and the residents are up in arms again.

A petition for more police has been circulated during the past few days and has been largely signed. It will probably be forwarded to the City Council tonight.

During the last fiscal year ending Jan. 30, the United States Forest Service issued to settlers in the neighborhood of National Forests in western states over 30,000 "free use" permits, under which the settlers received free about 264,000 cords of firewood, posts, poles and sawlogs, worth $169,320, or about 64 cents per cord in the forest—a low valuation.

Besides this, the different states received for school and road purposes 25 per cent of the income from the National Forests amounting last year to $447,064. The direct return to the states in lieu of taxes on the 147 million acres, the estimated area of unpatented land in the National Forests, amounted then in the last year to $616,384 in cash and "free use" timber.

In 1907, the total of "free use" material and money paid over amounted to about $253,400. The increase of the amount given to the states from 10 per cent to 25 per cent of course is largely responsible for the large return in 1908, but even had this percentage not been changed a good increase would have been shown, despite the demoralization of the lumber business caused by the financial flurry. In fact, this increase may be looked for up to many times the present amount as the demand for timber increases and the forests are developed more and more.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

The year 1909 will be famous as a centennial year, on account of the many noted people who were born 100 years ago. Interest in the Lincoln centennial promises to be predominant in this country, at least, by reason of his great service as the restorer of the Union and the emancipator of a race. Preparations for the event are already well in hand and next month will witness an almost universal recognition of his services to this country and the world. Wherever there is a Grand Army post there will be an observance, and in nearly all the schools of the northern section of our country there will be exercises in his honor and to teach the children who he was and what he accomplished. The South had no truer friend than Lincoln. Born in Kentucky, he had a fellow feeling for the people of that section and while they looked on him with distrust and disdain for four years, they realized at his death, when it was too late, that they had indeed lost their best friend. Remembering this fact and the expressions that are frequently made to this effect, it need create no surprise if it shall be known that even the children in Southern schools were trained to do him honor. If they are not quite ready to concede this much, the time is not far distant when the whole country will as freely honor him as they honor Washington.—Lynn Item.

Young People's Religious Union.

By invitation of the Universalist young people there will be a joint meeting of the Young People's Religious Union and the Young People's Christian Union on Monday, January 18, at seven o'clock, at the Second Universalist Church, Columbus Avenue, corner Clarendon Street, Boston.

The speaker will be Prof. W. W. Fenn, dean of the Harvard Divinity School, on "The Privilege of Church Membership."

Many will remember the union meeting of the Universalist and Unitarian young people last year, in the Second Congregational Church, when President William H. Hamilton of Tufts College was the speaker of the evening. This year the meeting is to be held in a Universalist church and the speaker is to be a Unitarian, the exact reverse of last year's arrangement.

This meeting is under the joint management of a committee from the Boston Federation of Unitarian young people and the Universalist League of Greater Boston, an organization among the Universalist young people similar to our Boston Federation.

A reception and social gathering with light refreshments will precede the evening's address at eight o'clock.

The committee on arrangements is planing some way of distinguishing Universalists and Unitarians, possibly by ticketing each, that we may know a little better "Who's who?"

Notice of this meeting has been received by the Unitarian and Universalist pastors in Quincy and the young people's societies.

WARM AND DRY.

The weather of December, like that of many months past, was warmer than usual, although not so warm as that of December, 1907. The highest temperature reached was 64 degrees on the 1st, which is also the highest December temperature since 1881, while the lowest was seven degrees on the 6th and 10th. The total precipitation of 3.01 inches was only about 65 per cent. of the average amount, and the smallest in December since 1900. Rain fell on 11 days and snow was recorded on six days, the total depth of the latter being four inches. Snow covered the ground from the 11th to the 24th, the greatest amount at any time being 1.5 inches on the 18th. There was less humidity and less cloudiness than usual, and the total amount of sunshine was 10 per cent. more than the average. There was less wind than usual and the predominating direction was west. The maximum velocity was 74 miles per hour from the south on the 7th.

The temperature throughout 1908 was almost continually above the normal and it was the warmest year since 1900 and, with that exception, the warmest since 1851 which is the limit of temperature record in Milton. 1908 was also the dryest year on record at Blue Hill the total precipitation of 37.28 inches being nearly 10 inches less than average amount.

TALKING ON AIR PROBLEMS TODAY

Aeronauts From Many Lands Meet In London

NO AMERICAN IS PRESENT

United States Represented by Englishman—Winning of Recent International Balloon Race, Control of Flying Machines by Automobile Clubs and Question of Right of Way Through the Air to Be Discussed

London, Jan. 11.—Of immense interest to all who are watching the progress made in flying by human beings is the meeting of the International Aeronautic federation which began here today. Delegates from every European country in which aviation is a subject of daily news interest have assembled here to discuss some of the important questions that have arisen in regard to the sport, or science, as its ardent followers prefer to term it.

In view of the prominence of the Wright brothers and other Americans in this field, regrets are expressed that no American is attending the conference. The United States has, however, a representative in the person of Roger William Wallace, the Englishman selected by the Aero club of America to look after its interests.

To Decide Winner of Race

Probably the question of greatest popular interest to be decided at the federation's meetings is the determination of the winner of the international balloon race, which started from Berlin Oct. 10. The greatest distance was covered by Schaeck, in the Swiss balloon Helvetia, but he violated the rules of the contest by landing at sea on the deck of a steamer. The rules declared that landings must be made on terra firma, and the awarding of the prize to Schaeck has been protested by the English club.

Another matter to be taken up is the attempted control of aviation by automobile clubs, which claim the right to supervise flying contests in which the motor is a factor. Flying machines with motors include "heavier than air" machines and dirigible balloons, and the aeronautic clubs declare that the upholding of the automobile clubs' contentions will leave to them only gas bags without motors.

The new question of the right of way through the air will also come before the federation. Until very recently this has been regarded by everybody as a matter for jesting, but delegates to the convention, secure in their belief in the future of flying, declare that the time has come for taking it up in earnest.

SHOT GIRL SHE LOVED

Young Woman Thought Her Affections Had Been Diverted

Chicago, Jan. 11.—"I held her love until that young man stepped between us," declared Anna Rubinswich, 23 years old, shortly before she died at a hospital of a bullet would inflicted by herself after she had shot and probably fatally wounded Bertha Yablowsky, 22 years old.

Until recently, when Miss Yablowsky became acquainted with a young man, the two girls were close friends.

Miss Rubinswich went to Miss Yablowsky's house, drew a revolver from beneath her cloak and shot her friend and herself.

HARMON TAKES REINS OF OFFICE

Lively Times Are Predicted In Buckeye State Politics

Columbus, O., Jan. 11.—With the inauguration here at noon today as governor of Ohio of Judson Harmon, Democrat, who will preside over a state government that will be Republican in its legislative end, lively times are predicted in the politics of the Buckeye State. The Democrats of the senate, who are outnumbered by the Republicans by only six members, have already served notice on their opponents that they expect to receive more consideration than is usually accorded to a legislative minority.

JUDSON HARMON.

Tomorrow the two houses in joint session will elect Theodore E. Burton of Cleveland to the senate seat which will be vacated by Joseph B. Foraker on March 4. Mr. Burton will serve out his congressional term, ending March 4. As he was re-elected last fall, a special election will be called in Cleveland soon after March 4 to determine his successor in the house of representatives.

DEATH BY SHOOTING

Grave Penalty For Those Who Disobey Law in Messina

Messina, Jan. 11.—Balmy weather has prevailed for the past few days at this place, and it is a great blessing, making it possible for the troops and survivors of the earthquake to live in the open. Occasionally there are earth shocks, but the people have become accustomed to them.

General Mazza, who is in supreme command, has adopted stringent measures to protect the people and the people's property. Besides establishing a police service around the city, he has issued orders that any person found excavating without a permit shall be shot.

General Mazza explains that the prevention of looting entailed the most rigorous measures. He declares that under the guise of rescuers many thieves were going about and committing robbery on every hand.

LEITER MINE DISASTER

Explosion of Gas Causes the Death of Twenty-Five Men

Duquoin, Ills., Jan. 11.—A disastrous gas explosion in which twenty-five men lost their lives occurred in Joseph Leiter's colliery at Zeigler. A spark from the trolley pole of an electric motor, coming in contact with a pocket of gas, is given as the cause of the explosion.

An expert who had been experimenting with the gas in the mines at Zeigler left on Wednesday, confident that he had placed the mine in safe condition to be operated.

The men entombed were engaged in clearing away the debris caused by the recent fires in the mine and it was expected that operations would be resumed this week, after two months' suspension.

LABOR MEN TALK OF SENTENCES

Cases of Leaders Before Federation Council Today

THEY WILL BE SUSTAINED

Union Men Unanimous In Calling Judgment In Boycott Matter a Violation of Federal Constitution—Unionists, Publicists and Directors to Get Together and Talk on Country's Needs

Washington, Jan. 11.—One of the most important assemblages in the history of union labor in the United States is the meeting today of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, called to consider the sentencing of three leaders of union men to jail for contempt of court.

SAMUEL GOMPERS.

Just what action the federation will take in the cases of Samuel Gompers, president; Frank Morrison, its secretary, and John Mitchell, its second vice president, is not definitely known. It is safe to say, however, that a vigorous protest will be made against the imposition of the jail sentences pronounced by Judge Wright of the District of Columbia supreme court.

Criticise Sentences

All the labor leaders gathered here for the meeting repeated their former declarations that the sentences were unjust and in contravention of the rights of free speech guaranteed by the federal constitution. None of them would forcast in advance the action of the council, but they were unanimous in the opinion that the language to be used would be forcible.

In connection with the meeting of the federation council there will be held at the department of commerce and labor the conference of important labor leaders, prominent publicists and directors of big industries to consider several questions of importance throughout the country, called by Secretary Straus.

Subjects to Be Considered

Some of the subjects which will considered are:

The prevention of the dissemination of misleading information in European countries concerning the demands for labor in the United States.

The making more effective the division of information in the work of locating immigrants who come to this country.

The problem of the unemployed during periods of financial depression such as the country experienced in the last year.

THE RATTLE RUN MYSTERY

Not Likely to Be Solved Until Carmichael Is Found

Detroit, Jan. 11.—There is no light on the Rattle Run church murder mystery in St. Clair county. Motive for the killing of Gideon Browning, whose dismembered body was burned in the church stoves, is still lacking.

Rev. J. S. Carmichael, missing pastor of the church, was reported to have been seen in Indiana, in Chicago and in Wisconsin, but verified reports of the preacher's whereabouts are still lacking.

Whipped and Shot to Death

Columbia, S. C., Jan. 11.—Arthur Davis, a young negro, was taken from his home in Florence county by a band of masked men, who, after brutally whipping him with thorny withes, shot him to death. The crime is alleged to have been the result of a disagreement between the negro and his assailants.

Fair Motorists In Race

New York, Jan. 11.—More than a dozen automobiles, driven by women, started from here at 8 o'clock this morning on a two days' run to Philadelphia and return. Not a man will be allowed in a competing car. Mechanical work may be done by a mechanician in accompanying cars, however.

Old Customs Inspector Dead

Fitchburg, Mass., Jan. 11.—Major Albert H. Andrews, aged 79, an old custom house official, died at his home in this city of heart disease. Up to a few days ago he had attended to his duties as inspector at the Boston custom house.

AMATEUR ROBBERS HAVE BUSY TIME

Break Into Five Places and Do Their Work Unmolested

Kingston, Mass., Jan. 11.—A gang of amateur burglars broke into five places here early Sunday and attempted to force entrances to four others. The total amount of the money and articles taken was insignificant.

The robbers were evidently not after large stakes and did not attempt to blow any of the safes in the places visited. Vending machines were smashed and the pennies stolen, a small amount of money taken from the till in the railroad ticket office and some cigars taken at the drug store. No stamps were stolen from the postoffice, but a number of letters were opened.

LIEUTENANT DROPS DEAD

Shocked by Unexpected Appearance of Police Inspectors

New York, Jan. 11.—Seven automobiles carrying commissioners and inspectors of the police department swept through Brooklyn Sunday, paying unexpected visits to the stations of the various precincts. Consternation was caused in many of the station houses and there was one tragedy as an indirect result of the raid.

Lieutenant Callahan of the Vernon Avenue station was taken so much by surprise when an inspection party suddenly made its appearance that he collapsed as he stood behind his desk, facing Deputy Police Commissioner Hanson. Callahan's blotter was found in such excellent condition that the commissioner had just congratulated him when the lieutenant reeled over and was dead before a physician could reach him.

The summoning of twenty-five or thirty police officers to headquarters is expected to result from the inspection tour.

THE MOUTH AND TEETH

Conference on Subject of Vital Importance to Be Held at Boston

Boston, Jan. 11.—The vital need of better care of the mouth and teeth, especially among children, and the importance of organized effort to bring this about, will be emphasized at a conference to be held in this city, from Jan. 18 to 23, inclusive, under the auspices of the Dental Hygiene council of Massachusetts.

"Ninety-six percent of the school children have decayed teeth," says a statement issued by the council. "A foul mouth is a frequent cause of tuberculosis, pneumonia and other diseases. The throat, the nose, the ears and the eyes are frequently affected by diseased teeth.

"Neglect of the teeth in the early years of life frequently is the first cause of physical, mental and moral defects."

FRENCH VS. AMERICAN ROADS.

A recent official report from Consul-General R. P. Skinner of Marseilles, France, gives some highly important information regarding the public roads of that country. As is generally known, France has the best and most complete road system in the world, and its splendid public highways fill with envy and admiration all foreigners, particularly those from the United States, where the roads in general are about the worst in any country professing to be civilized.

The superiority of the French road system is stated by Consul-General Skinner to be due to the fact that the construction and maintenance of the principal roads is carried on under the supervision of a corps of experts in road-construction, who find in their profession opportunities for advancement and distinction such as could not and does not exist under a local road administration. French roads are good, not because of any superiority of road-making material, nor because the French people possess any special talent for road building, but because the initiative in matters pertaining to the public highways is taken by highly-trained engineers and administrators, under the direction of the National Government.

All the principal French highways, or "national routes," of which there are 23,656 miles, are constructed and maintained by the National Government, which has expended on them over $300,000,000. The superiority of these roads over those constructed or maintained by the local authorities is very marked, but even the local roads are kept in good condition, so that the standard French road is one upon which in a rolling country a draft horse hauling a load of 3,300 pounds is expected to travel about 20 miles per day. This fact alone will serve to indicate the difference between the roads in France and those of the United States; where the load hauled by one horse over the average level country road is only 1,400 pounds, and on roads with 5 per cent grades only 1,000 pounds.

The basis of the French highway system is the School of Bridges and Roads, one of the finest technical colleges in the world, where engineers are trained for positions in the public road administrative system. These engineers co-operate with the local authorities, and the result is that there is available for the work of road construction an effective body of competent administrators, whose inflence extends throughout the whole country.

THE TOY INDUSTRY.

One of the best informed men in the toy business says Colliers predicts that within a few years most of the stores that now sell toys chiefly during the holiday season will carry them all the year. Perhaps no industry has developed faster in recent years than that of making, importing and selling toys. Parents and educators seem to be awakening to a big fundamental fact in regard to toys and their bearing upon the child's development. It is coming to be understood that toys are more than mere amusements—that they are to children what literature, travel, art, business and social life are to grown people. The child learns to deal with things first in idea, which the toys represent— animals, men, women, babies, soldiers, engines, trains and so on. These things, because he can grasp a comprehensive idea of their external nature and relationship, mean more to him than the real thing would mean. He can understand a toy horse and wagon better than he could a $3000 Clydesdale, and because he can understand it it is worth more to him. And it means as much to him in September as it does the day after Christmas. The active and imaginative child mind needs to be acquiring its general impression of the things of the world, and there is absolutely nothing on earth that will take the place of toys in his wholesome mental development. It is the comparatively recent recognition of this psychological fact that has given such a notable impetus to the toy industry.

TROUBLE MIGHT MEAN DEATH

Hale Asked Roosevelt to Let Up on Tillman

REFUSAL BY THE PRESIDENT

No Question That Condition of South Carolinian's Health Is Serious—Opinion That If Facts In Charges Are as Represented the Senator's Offense Was One of Impropriety and Indiscretion

Washington, Jan. 11.—No subject has been gossiped about recently at the Capitol with such fervor as President Roosevelt's disclosure of Senator Tillman's alleged connection with an Oregon land deal, but the colleagues of the South Carolinian are inclined to withhold judgment until he has had an opportunity to explain.

Many expressions of dissatisfaction are heard because of the manner in which the president made public the material gathered by postoffice inspectors about Tillman. It is pointed out by senators that the matter sent to Senator Hale was not in response to the latter's request to the heads of the executive departments for a statement of the operations of the secret service, because the investigation of Tillman's alleged effort to obtain Oregon lands was wholly under the postoffice department and was prosecuted by the inspectors of that department.

One senate leader expressed the opinion that if the president had in his possession for several months the information gathered about Tillman it was his duty to instigate a prosecution if he believed the facts warranted action in the courts.

Hale's Intercession

It is rumored at the Capitol that the president told a friend, who repeated the remark, that an effort was made by Senators Hale and Aldrich to suppress the facts about Tillman. Undoubtedly this impression was gained at the White House by a visit to the president by Hale, who suggested that the matter relating to Tillman should be withdrawn.

It is said that Hale did not base the request upon the ground that it was not properly a reply to a demand for information about the secret service, but because of the fact that Tillman is in poor health and the charge was liable to rouse him to a pitch of excitement dangerous to his life.

President Roosevelt declined to withdraw the reference to Tillman, and when Hale would not make it public he decided to do so himself.

Tillman In Nervous State

There is no question that the condition of Tillman's health is serious. When he went to Europe last March he was in a highly nervous state. The trip resulted in a marked improvement, but for some time his friends have noticed that his nervousness was returning. Close friends of Tillman admit their anxiety over the effect the president's charges may have upon the South Carolina senator.

Some of the senators who have examined all of the evidence produced by the president and the postoffice inspectors say that if the facts are as represented the offense was one of impropriety and indiscretion, but that no criminality is involved. It is said that Tillman might have introduced his resolution calling upon the department of justice to begin proceedings to compel the sale of the Oregon land at $2.50 an acre, in accordance with the original grant, and, at the same time, apply for some of the land without making himself the target for severe criticism.

A Deplorable Feature

The feature of the disclosure most deplored by the colleagues of Tillman is the appearance of an effort to hide the fact that he was an applicant for nine quarter sections under the terms of the original grant. In his statement in February last, the senator said that he did not buy any western land and did not undertake to buy any.

The evidence submitted by the president shows that prior to this statement Tillman made application for nine quarter sections. Defending himself against the appearance of having made a misleading statement, Tillman has told his friends that he should have said on the floor that he did not "contract" to buy any land, and that the whole case against him was built upon the interpretation placed upon the word "undertaken."

The Culberson Resolution

Washington, Jan. 11.—When the senate committee on the judiciary meets today is is expected that a sub-committee will be appointed to consider the Culberson resolution, directing an inquiry into President Roosevelt's authority to permit the absorption of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company by the United States Steel Corporation.

News from Cincinati brought by magnates returning from the peace conference indicates that at the February meeting in Chicago, when the schedules will be issued, an effort will be made by owners of some second division club in both major leagues to put through a salary limit.

Several owners have been trying to crystalize sentiment against constantly rising salaries of ball players and will endeavor to force both leagues to act.

It is said that the Eastern league has already taken action and will make an effort to keep salaries down to $1500.

The signed contract of Fred G. Ehman has been received at the American league headquarters. Ehman pitched for the champion Akrons of the O. and P. league last season with a record of 25 games won and 8 lost, and hit for 2.70. He comes highly recommended by scout Huff.

Starr Parsons of Lynn one of he company controlling the Lynn New England league team and one of the heaviest stockholders, is to dispose of his financial interests in the club and become a plain fan.

Mr. Parsons said yesterday that he did this simply because the cares of the position were wearing on him and because it prevented him from enjoying his summer vacation.

Mr. Parson was one of the first to become interested in the matter of getting a New England league team in Lynn and he incorporated it.

PLEDGED TO WALK IN JESUS' STEPS

Movement at Cleveland Has Assumed Large Proportions

Cleveland, Jan. 11.—The movement begun a week ago by 1800 young people of this city to live for two weeks as Jesus would has assumed a scope far beyond the expectations of its promoters. Fully 10,000 volunteers have unofficially joined the movement by attempting the test and pledging themselves to walk in His steps. Even city officials are taking an interest and ruminating on what Jesus would do if He were a city officer.

Discussions are rife in homes, in churches, in clubs and in newspapers as to what Jesus would do under all manner of circumstances and what His attitude would be toward the common forms of amusement and human endeavor. Most of the arguments center about the theatre, card playing, dancing and baseball, with supporters on either side.

LOSES FIFTEEN NUMBERS

Commander of Cruiser Yankee Found Guilty of Negligence

Washington, Jan. 11.—Commander Charles C. Marsh, who was in charge of the cruiser Yankee when that vessel grounded on Spindle rock, in Buzzards Bay, while trying to avoid a collision with the steamer New Hampshire last September, and who was charged with negligence, was found guilty by the courtmartial which tried him at the Boston navy yard and sentenced to be publicly reprimanded and to lose forty numbers in rank.

Upon recommendation of two members of the court for clemency, and in view of the previous good record of Marsh and his zeal in connection with the submarine flotilla, the secretary of the navy reduced the sentence to the loss of fifteen numbers.

ANCIENT CHURCH FALLS

At Least Forty Persons Killed and Sixty Badly Injured

Berne, Switzerland, Jan. 11.—During divine services Sunday an ancient church near Sion suddenly collapsed, burying the worshippers in the ruins. Practically all the members of the congregation were killed or injured.

Forty corpses have been extricated, but it is believed that there are still more under the timbers. Sixty persons were badly injured.

The collapse of the church was caused by the time worn pillars in the underground crypt giving way.

SMALLWOOD VS. DORANDO

Welshman and Italian Scheduled to Run Marathon Race

St. Louis, Jan. 11.—The acute attack of "marathonitis" from which the Mound City is suffering will come to a head tonight when the starter's pistol sends Percy Smallwood, the Welsh runner, and Dorando Pietri, the famous Italian, off on their long run.

PERCY SMALLWOOD.

The race will be run in the Coliseum and will be for the full Marathon distance, 26 miles and 385 yards. The track is ten laps to the mile and has been built especially for tonight's race. Both of the runners have met Tom Longboat, the champion professional Marathon runner, Smallwood having beaten him in a ten mile race in Philadelphia and Dorando having lost one Marathon race to him in New York and another in Buffalo.

Tariff Will Be Discussed

New York, Jan. 11.—Discussion of tariff schedules is likely to play a prominent part in the proceedings of the National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' association's fourth annual convention, which opens here today.

MISS PECK'S RECORD CLIMB.

Miss Annie S. Peck of Providence, R. I., the noted mountain climber, who recently returned to New York from South America on the Panama liner Allianca, is going to write a book on her experiences in climbing to the summit of Mount Huascaran, in the Peruvian Andes, 24,000 feet above sea level, but she consented to tell beforehand of one thrilling incident of her ascent. She said:

We reached the summit on Sept. 2, and the following night as we were making our way down Taugwalder, the guide who was leading, slipped and carried me with him over the edge of a fissure. The other guide, Gabriel zum Taugwald, fortunately for us, had seen the misstep and had braced himself with his alpenstock, so that when the rope that bound us all together yanked taut he retained sufficient purchase in the ice not to be carried off his feet by our combined weight. He called down to us instructions to dig ourselves footholds that would lighten the strain both on the rope and himself and gradually pulled us both back to him. It was the closest call I ever had. The accident was due to the fact that Taugwalder had frozen both hands and a foot on the way up, so that the going with him was especially difficult. He had lost his gloves and has since had to have one hand amputated as a result.

Miss Peck ascribed much of her success to the two Swiss guides. "The altitude of 24,000 feet, which marks the summit of Mount Huascaran," she said, "surpasses, I believe, that reached by any one before me. Heretofore the record has been held by W. W. Graham, whose ascent of one of the Himalaya peaks is set down as a climb of 23,800 feet."

In Miss Peck's first attempt to scale Mount Huascaran, made last August, the party was compelled to camp on the ice for nine days. On this occasion the same guide who on the second and unsuccessful attempt imperiled the caravan by falling into a crevasse was taken ill with "mountain sickness," which Miss Peck says is in every respect similar to seasickness, and the ascent had to be abandoned after a height of 16,000 feet had been reached.

Miss Peck, who is nearing fifty years of age and whose physique is anything but amazonian, gives sound lungs and heart as the greatest desiderata in mountain climbing.

BEST NEW YEAR RESOLUTION

To Live More Faithfully by the Golden Rule, Says Edwin Markham.

The noblest resolution that any citizen could make for the New Year would be the resolution to live more faithfully by the Golden Rule, that sublime principle of conduct for this world and for all worlds. Failure to live by this law causes the chief sorrows and collisions among men.

Let each earnest man search into his words and ways, determined to find the special manner in which he breaks the golden law, his special habit that works injustice or unhappiness in his shop, his office, his home, his city, says Edwin Markham in Success Magazine for January. He will find perhaps that in the shop he is in the habit of misplacing tools, and this hinders the work of his comrades; that in the office he is in the habit of being late in keeping appointments and thus steals other people's time; that in the club he is in the habit of belittling worthy competitors and thus joins the gang of thieves who steal reputations; that in the home he is in the habit of monopolizing the conversation and thus fails to draw out the powers of others; that in the city he is in the habit of spitting on the sidewalk and thus spoils the comfort of his townsmen; that in business he is in the habit of misrepresenting his goods and thus robs under the cover of custom.

These are problems in the Golden Rule, and here are ample space and verge for New Year resolutions, space and verge for building character—character which is the greatest thing in man.

CARACAS REVOLUTION.

Samuel Hopkins Adams, the author, who recently returned to New York, was in Caracas, Venezuela, when President Castro sailed for Europe and saw the rioting in Caracas Dec. 14, which constituted a revolution, he thinks, that lifted Acting President Gomez into the permanent place of president, so far as any office is permanent in Venezuela. The "revolution" was like an opera bouffe to Mr. Adams and other foreign observers.

"Few believe that Castro will ever return to Venezuela," said Mr. Adams. "He is really sick with liver and kidney trouble, and, besides, he must soon know that it would be foolhardy to go back there now. He carried with him and sent out before he started some $8,000,000 which he had squeezed out of the country.

"Castro is very unpopular with his own people. He ruled for private profit. In the nine years that he had been president, so far as I could find out, he put his hand upon every sort of trade or enterprise out of which money could be made, calling it a government monopoly and taking money for it. Thus the necessities of life were made monopolies and farmed out, sometimes for political profit, more often for private profit."

World's Biggest Log Raft.

What will unquestionably be the biggest log raft ever set afloat will be towed from the Columbia river to San Diego, Cal., next summer. The raft will be a cigar shaped bundle of big Oregon fir sticks and will be 1,000 feet long by 60 feet wide, with the top rising about ten feet out of the water. It will contain about 7,000,000 feet of lumber.

Presented Altar Service Book.

In connection with the 8 o'clock service at St. Chrysostom's church Sunday morning a beautiful altar service book was presented and blessed by the rector Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg.

The book is handsomely bound in red and is the gift of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Bean of Atlantic. It was given on the occasion of their daughter Dorothy's confirmation, and in humble thanks given for the preservation through sickness of their two eldest daughters.

The officers of Quincy Council, Knights of Columbus, will be installed Friday evening.

WILL ASK LEGISLATURE TO AMEND CHARTER

City Council Passes Order After Members Indulge in Spirited Debate.

An important meeting of the City Council was held Monday evening. Several orders introduced on inauguration day were passed and a number of new orders introduced. The latter included an order for $50,000 for the erection of two industrial buildings and an order fixing the pay of city laborers at $2 per day of eight hours. There was also quite a spirited debate on the passage of the order requesting the Mayor to petition the legislature to amend the City Charter so that the Mayor shall be chairman of the School Committee.

Councilmen Freeman, Gilson and Russell were absent.

PETITIONS.

A petition was received from South Quincy residents to abate the smoke and spark nuisance from passing locomotives. Referred to the Executive Department.

Councilman Bryant by request presented a petition for the acceptance of Norfolk street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

A petition was received for additional police officer at Wollaston. The petitioners want a day officer and two night officers. Referred to the Committee on Police.

A number of applications for minor licenses were received and referred to the Committee on Licenses.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Finance reported ought to pass on the following orders which were passed under suspension of the rules.

Authorizing the City Treasurer to borrow $500,000 in anticipation of taxes.

Authorizing the Mayor to have his inaugural address printed.

Authorizing the Clerk of the Council to have the rules and list of Committees printed.

Authorizing the Mayor to have the annual reports printed.

The Committee on Ordinances reported ought to pass on the order requesting the Mayor to petition the legislature to amend the City Charter so as to provide that the Mayor shall be chairman ex-officio of the School Committee.

Councilmen Richards and Nowland of the committee presented a minority report that the order ought not to pass.

Councilman Richards moved the substitution of the minority for the majority report.

Councilman Walsh opposed the minority report. The only objection that developed in the Committee was that other changes were being advocated and it would not look well to go to the legislature in a piece meal way.

Councilman Abele favored the minority. This move to amend the charter was rather sudden. There should be some good reason given before we pass such an order. All agree certain changes should be made. There should be more cooporation between the School Committee and the Council. If we are to make changes we should make those that will accomplish this.

Councilman Walsh—The relations between the School Committee and Council over the Atlantic school were anything but pleasant. If the Mayor could have appeared before them at that time more would have been accomplished and more time saved.

Councilman Whiton favored the passage of the order. The Atlantic school was not a circumstance to the High school. He did not believe he should be a member unless impowered to vote. There was no question but what the Mayor and President of the Council should be members of this board.

Councilman Nowland. This can not go into effect this year. It should go before the people before accepted. The Mayor in his inaugural recommended certain changes in the charter. A mass meeting will be held this week to discuss other changes. This order is uncalled for. There is no reason to rush it through.

Councilman Richards in reply to a question by Councilman Bryant said. My impression is that it is not justifiable or opportune at this time. It is singling out the School Committee. A committee is considering several changes in the charter and it seemed best to hold off until after the hearing on other matters.

Councilman Bryant opposed the minority. This is no new question. He had seen a representative of the School Committee come before this body and state as chairman what the committee wanted but who would not state his individual opinion. If you were running a business would you want any department of which you knew nothing about? The city is a corporation and its head is the Mayor. He is the head of all departments but the School Committee. The School Committee has nine members. If he is allowed to vote it would make 10. If chairman all he does, is to preside and gets the information he should have. He has no idea what they will ask for in their budget. He knows the city can borrow so much money. All he can do now is to guess what amount the School Committee will ask for. If he was chairman he would know. We want to see how we can divide the money. Knowing all these facts he can make his budget understandingly. There can be no politics in it. He sometimes thought there was more politics in the School Committee than in the Council. The School Committee can make its rules just as the Council does.

We do not want this matter divided The Mayor recommends this change in his inagural so that he can be in touch with every department. It is not taking any power from the School Committee. What we want is for the Mayor to sit with them and know what is going on. It is merely a business proposition.

Look over the members of that committee who are trying to amend the charter. How many are intimately acquainted with the ins and outs of the charter? If we take the charter as it really is there would be need of but very little revision. He could not see any obpection to allowing the Mayor to preside.

Councilman Cherrington was hardly prepared to say how he would vote. There had been only one meeting for discussion. He did not wish to see the matter killed but would like to have it go over to another meeting. The Charter says all departments shall report to the Executive its estimates. He questioned if the School Committee is not such a department.

Councilman Bryant the School Committee is not obliged to report to the Mayor. That is an absolute fact.

Councilman Nowland asked if this goes to the legislature would the bill pass without going to the people.

Councilman Bryant—If those who appear before the legislative committee want a referendum they would probably report one.

On a rising vote the motion was lost three voting yes and 15 no.

The Majority report was then accepted and the order adopted.

LIGHTS WANTED.

Councilman Flynn offered an order for two lights on Newcomb place.

Councilman Cherrington offered an order for a special committee of five to revise the Ordinances. Referred to Committee on Ordinances.

INDUSTRIAL BUILDINGS.

Councilman McDevitt offered an order appropriating $50,000 for the erection of two industrial buildings with five years free taxes on each plant. Said plants to be used as business inducements to the first and second industries employing over 200 hands, removing or locating within the city. The offer to be advertised for one year. Referred to Committee on Public Buildings.

Councilman McDevitt offered an order providing that all city laborers be paid $2 per day of eight hours after April 1. Referred to Finance Committee.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Councilman Moir offered an order for the Commissioner of Public Works to furnish the Council with certain information as to the repair of a certain part of Squantum street. Adopted.

HOLD ANNUAL PARISH MEETING

Members of St. Chrysostom's Church Elect New Officers.

The annual parish meeting of St. Chrysostom's church was held Monday evening in the parish rooms. The regular election took place and necessary business transacted. Reports of the different organizations were read. Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg, the rector, was in the chair.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

Senior Warden—Frank E. Cleveland.

Junior Warden—Percy L. Davidson.

Treasurer—John W. Atkins.

Clerk—Theodore Parker.

Vestryman—Henry B. Barham, D. M. Wetmore, Herbert H. Albee, Woodford Ketchum, Robert W. Whiteacre.

Delegates to Diocesan Convention—F. E. Cleveland, V. S. Brokaw and George Curran.

Delegates to Archdeaconry Convention—Henry W. Mattfield, Charles A. Kolsted, Theodore Parker.

Rev. Mr. Clatterburg made mention of the altar service book the gift of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Bean of Atlantic in humble thanksgiving for preservation through sickness of their two oldest daughters Ruth and Dorothy. George Deans has rewired the church and installed new lights from the ceiling giving his services for which he was heartily thanked.

Miss Nichols, the choir mother has aided the choir in many ways. Miss Louise Allison Ross the organist too deserves commendation, and does much more work than she if paid for. A member of the Altar Guild gave to the church in September a silk purple burse and chalice veil beautifully embroidered.

Out of 175 Sunday schools in the Diocese only 13 gave more in the Lenten offering than our school did which is remarkable considering the small number in comparison with the large schools in Boston.

Refreshment were served by the Woman's Guild, Mrs. Daniel C. Miller chairman after which a social hour was enjoyed.

QUINCY POLICE CAPTURE ALLEGED HIGHWAYMEN

The quick work of Officer Curtin landed four Italians charged with a hold-up at Hingham, behind the bars. The four men gave their names as Guiseppe Dalu aged 19 years, Nickolo Dalu aged 27 years, Abbot Guisside aged 25 years and Nickolo Ferraro aged 21 years.

It is alleged by the police of Hingham that they held up Domenic Nule aged 30 years on Rockland street and after severely beating him took $20 from him and made away.

Nule, who suffered a fractured rib and multiple bruises, knew the men and says that they held him up and beat him because he would not join a blackhand society. The Hingham police were notified soon after the hold-up and got after the four men.

They received a tip that the men would jump the town by train. When the train arrived at Hingham station the conductor was interviewed but the men were not aboard at that time. They, however, boarded the train at West Hingham, the next station, and were immediately spotted by the conductor.

When the train reached Braintree he telephoned to Quincy Adams, where he knew there was an officer. As the train pulled into Quincy Adams, Officer Curtin boarded it and placed all four under arrest.

The Hingham police were notified and they came to Quincy after the four men. The last train for Hingham had gone so they chartered a special electric which left for Hingham at 12.15.

THOMAS B. TILTON BURIED.

The funeral of Thomas B. Tilton was held Monday afternoon from his late home on Bent place. Rev. Dr. Edwin N. Hardy conducted the services which were of a simple nature. Many beautiful floral tributes surrounded the casket. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

—It is reported that the rock of Scylla has sunk form sight on the east coast of Messina strait, and that even the whirling currents of Charybdis opposite have disappeared. These landmarks above and below the water go back to the very dawn of human history, and till now have withstood all the cataclysms which have visited that region in 30 centuries o rmore. Yet we are accustomed to think that such great disturbances to the earth's crust belong rather to prehistoric times than our own.—Milford Gazette.

Though it isn't able to vote, Washington has all kinds of funny politics.

Suppressing imperial interviews at $50,000 is right expensive for the German Government.

If the Frenchmen keep on winning and dining Wilbur Wright he may get too fat to fly in that airship.

No doubt the Presidential chair found it difficult to look cheerful when it thought of what was coming.

North Dakota has doubled the residence period required for a divorce, so that now instead of securing a divorce between trains you have to stay all night.

In the last forty years, the United States has made some interesting and important contributions to penological science. It has introduced the indeterminate sentence, developed a reformatory system for adults, shown through suspended sentence and probation the possibility of correcting many thousands of offenders without imprisonment. Finally it has crowned all by the establishment of children's courts, a Chicago idea which is rapidly spreading over the United States and Europe.

Of all the proposed amendments to the City Charter the one reducing the council and extending the members term of office and the one extending the mayor's term are by far the most important and, should be carefully studied by all the voters, so that when the amendments are made no one can say he could not vote because he did not know what he was voting for.

At the present time all over the country there is a strong leaning to a small and representative form of municipal government and so far, the smaller the municipal bodies are the better and cleaner the cities.

Whether the citizens of Quincy are ready for the proposed changes or not will not be known until after the meeting Saturday. But no matter whether the meeting goes for or against the amendments, let it be by a majority vote, and not through any "stacking" or "packing" business. It is the duty of every citizen who is a qualified voter to turn out Saturday night, and cast his vote for what he considers to be for the best interests of this city regardless of party likes or dislikes.

At the meeting of the Board of Directors of the National Rifle Association the officers of the Association for the coming year will be elected. It is not expected there will be any change in the roster with the possible exception of the executive committee. One of the most important subjects to be considered is the international Rifle meeting under the auspices of the Association to be held in September next. Nineteen nations have been invited to participate and it is hoped the meeting will be the most successful ever held. From ten to twenty thousand dollars will be necessary to handle this match properly and this money must be raised by popular subscription. Another question of importance is the time and place of holding the next annual meeting of the Association. For several years past it has been held either immediately before or immediately after the National Rifle Matches, which are under the quasi-supervision of the National Board of Promotion of Rifle Practice. Owing to the growth of the National Matches and other causes the opinion is expressed that it would be wise to separate the two meetings. Others hold opposite views and an interesting discussion is expected. The National Rifle Association will also be called upon this year to replace several valuable trophies which passed into the permanent possession of the winners at the meeting at Camp Perry, Ohio, in August last.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

Many persons are not aware that we have a law which prevents cigar boxes from being used a second time. Every cigar box is practically destroyed after it has been once filled with cigars. This seems to be a useless waste of valuable timber and labor, and some time it must have an end. Why all this talk about saving our timber when thousands of feet of very valuable material are thus foolishly thrown away?

If the next Congress would change this law in the interest of economy and good common sense it would render a valuable service to the country. —Philadelphia North American.

The State conference on aural and dental hygiene which is to be here next week will deal with questions of public and fundamental importance, even if the programme should fail to arouse much popular enthusiasm. It is a cause for wonder that civilization has waited so long before realizing the part that the teeth play in the general scheme of health. The proper place to start a reform is at the beginning, and the teeth are almost the initial feature to be considered in the proper care of the body. They guard the portal. If they are weak or treacherous sentinels, if they perform the duties of their office badly, all the other functions of the body must suffer.

If the statement issued by the Dental Hygiene Council is to be trusted, ninety-six per cent of the school children have decayed teeth, and that neglect in the early years of life is frequently the first cause of physical, mental and moral defects, then parents and the school authorities are confronted with a serious responsibility. Only to a small extent does this question belong to the domain of public charity. Of the nearly total number of children who attend our public schools, the great majority belong to parents able to pay for proper attention to the physical defects of their families, and in the long run they will find it to their advantage.

Nothing has contributed more to the lengthening of the life average than the better care of the teeth which has been one of the developments of the last generation, but this has been confined largely to adults. In too many cases after the baby cuts its teeth, little more attention is paid to them until long after the second set have grown and pain follows decay, while the poison carried through the body from that source long before the warning signals are given, is ignored. If the noted educators and health officials who are to speak at next week's meetings can start a genuine revival with respect to this matter it will prove one of the most beneficent achievements of the year. —Boston Transcript.

UNITED STATES JOINS CANADA

Treaty Aiming at Settlement of Existing Difficulties

SIGNED BY ROOT AND BRYCE

Provides For Machinery Which Will Dispose of Questions Arising In the Future—Regulations as to the Use of Waters on Boundaries and Other Complex Disputes Will Be Amicably Settled Without Further Friction

Washington, Jan. 12.—After long, hard, patient work, which, on some features, ran into years, Secretary of State Root and Ambassador Bryce of Great Britain signed a treaty last night for the settlement of international differences between the United States and Canada.

This is the agreement which has been popularly alluded to as the "waterways treaty," but its scope is broader than that designation implies, because it contemplates a disposition of everything in the nature of differences between the two countries and machinery for questions which may arise along certain lines in the future. Provision is made for a joint high commission to be made permanent in character.

Dependent upon the final ratification of the treaty by the United States and Great Britain rests the settlement of numerous complex questions connected with the water boundaries along the northern border which have been the source of more or less friction at different times.

Included in these are regulations as to the use of the waters of the Great Lakes, with the secondary but none the less important question of the diversion of the waters on these boundaries, including Niagara Falls, which involve the amount of water to be taken out for power purposes, the navigation of the St. John river between Maine and New Brunswick and the use of the Milk river in the northwest.

The International Boundary

To some extent the operations of the treaty will supersede the work of the international waterways commission, made up of representatives of the United States and Canada, whose duty includes, among other things, the ascertainment and re-establishment of that portion of the international boundary between the United States and Canada passing through the Great Lakes system.

That feature of its work, however, will be continued by the waterways commission until it is completed—its other functions gradually being absorbed by the joint high commission, to be appointed in accordance with the treaty signed last night.

Although no official statement is obtainable, it is the understanding that the contracting powers have agreed upon a certain line of principles which are to guide the commission in its work, leaving to it the interpretation of those principles as applicable to the questions that may require settlement immediately and for those which arise from time to time.

This takes from the joint high commission any functions of a treaty-making body and confines its duties simply to that of determining to what extent the principles already laid down shall be applicable to any particular case.

CHARGED WITH MURDER

Arrest of Italian For Whom Police Have Been Hunting

Ipswich, Mass., Jan. 12.—Michael Tannazzo, aged 27, wanted here in connection with the murder of Wladyslw Dolonsjewics, a Polander, last Christmas night, was arrested in Lawrence and brought to Ipswich last night. He will be arraigned in the local court on the charge of murder.

Dolonsjewicz died of stab wounds received in a quarrel with several Italians.

TWENTY-SIX DEAD

Cause of Disaster In Leiter Mine Not Officially Determined

Zeigler, Ills., Jan. 12.—Of twenty-eight workmen in the mine owned by Joseph Leiter, twenty-six were killed by the explosion Sunday, according to official information given out at the mining office.

The cause of the disaster has not been officially determined yet. The mine is now declared to be in good condition.

Dorando Beats Smallwood

St. Louis, Jan. 12.—Dorando Pietri won a Marathon race last night, Percy Smallwood quitting the race after covering twelve miles and eight laps because his left leg hurt him. Dorando's time was 2:44:32 2-5—ten seconds slower than the world's indoor record. He finished strong.

Crooked Justice of Peace

Camden, N. J., Jan. 12.—Conrad Waldvogel, a justice of the peace, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment by Judge Joline on the charge of retaining about $120 which he had levied upon automobile owners for violating the speed laws.

TAFT AT BARBECUE AND 'POSSUM SPREAD

Winds Up the Day With an Address to Lawyers

Augusta, Ga., Jan. 12.—President-elect Taft did full justice Monday afternoon to the barbecue of Charles S. Bohler, given on his big cotton plantation about ten miles from town, and last night he faced a spread of 'possum and 'taters, besides a menu of other heavy dimensions, as the guest of the local bar association.

M. Taft had to divide the honors. At the barbecue he distinguished himself by eating, while at the banquet he ate sparingly, but came in strongly on the oratory.

Mr. Taft's after dinner speech was a medley of interesting comments on law and the legal profession. He described the attractions of the lawyer's life and of the life of the judge and expressed his regret on leaving that life. He spoke of the importance of the lawyer to the community in which he lived, of the necessity of enforcing the law and of the dire results of a laxness in this direction.

SHOCKS IN NORTHWEST

Many Cities In Washington Are Shaken by an Earthquake

Bellingham, Wash., Jan. 12.—Bellingham was shaken by an earthquake at 3:45 Monday afternoon. Buildings in all parts of town were jarred, but no damage was done.

Hundreds of people rushed into the streets. The duration of the shock was about ten seconds. Brick buildings were so badly shaken that the plaster fell to the floor and there was a panic.

Shocks at Other Points

Seattle, Jan. 12.—Reports of a slight earthquake shock came last night from Vancouver, Victoria, Sumas and Tacoma.

The same shock was felt here at 3:44 o'clock and lasted several seconds. No damage was done, but persons rushed from buildings.

Unearthing Earthquake Victims

Messina, Jan. 12.—The bodies of nearly a hundred men employed in the orange and lemon stores were taken from the ruins Monday, all in an advanced stage of putrifaction. At Reggio, however, firemen during their excavations came upon a 5-year-old boy who was apparently uninjured. He had no idea of the length of time he had been buried, and it is possible that he was entombed by debris in one of the later shocks. The boy was in excellent condition.

SWISS BALLOON WON

Awarded Trophy For International Race In Germany

London, Jan. 12.—After a lively discussion of five hours, the International Association of Aeronauts, at its first session here, by a vote of 38 to 13 decided in favor of the Swiss balloon Helvetia as the winner of the international balloon race for the Bennett trophy in Germany last October.

The question came upon a protest filed by the Aero Club of Great Britain against the German decision awarding first place to Commander Schaeck of the Helvetia, the claim being made that the British balloon Banshee was the rightful winner, because she made the descent on land while the Helvetia was picked up in the North sea after having been towed for two hours.

The decision was based on the fact that the rule disqualifying competitors for descent on the sea was made three months after the entries for the race were received.

OFFER OF $10,800,000

Value Placed Upon Two Turkish Provinces by Austro-Hungary

Constantinople, Jan. 12.—The reply of the Turkish government to the Austro-Hungarian offer of £2,500,000 Turkish ($10,800,000) as indemnity for the annexation of the provinces of Bosnia and Herzegovnia will probably be delivered today to the Austro-Hungarian ambassador.

Although the amount is generally thought by members of the Turkish government to be too small, it is believed that the negotiations will lead ultimately to an agreement.

CLERGYMAN ADMITS MURDER

Carmichael Blames "Hypnotic Influence" For Weird Crime

VICTIM MADE HIM A COWARD

Perpetrator of Battle Run Crime Cuts His Throat In Illinois After Leaving a Letter Confessing the Slaying of Browning—Leaves Many Questions of the Tragedy Unsolved—Mind Was Perhaps Unsound

Carthage, Ills., Jan. 12.—Rev. John H. Carmichael, pastor of three Methodist churches in and near Adair, Mich., confessed slayer of Gideon Browning, a neighbor, whom he slew with a hatchet and cremated last Tuesday night in Rattle Run church, committed suicide Monday in the toilet room of Miss Miranda Hughes' boarding house by cutting his throat with a pocket-knife.

The preacher left a letter to the sheriff of Adair, Mich., giving details of the murder, dismembering and incineration of Browning, and attributing the act to self-defense and moral cowardice because of the hypnotic influence that Browning, an illiterate carpenter, held over him.

While the confession is rather long and on some points minute, it leaves many questions regarding the tragedy unsolved. Admitting that the statements of the clergyman are true, some portions of the letter tend to cause the impression that the confession is really the production of an unsound mind.

The preacher does not explain satisfactorily how he and Browning came to the Rattle Run church, or why both seemed bent on keeping their presence there secret except to say that Browning wanted the minister to officiate at Browning's wedding that night. This account does not explain the fact that the clergyman evidently knew that Browning already had one wife, if not two.

Nothing more than Carmichael's letter to the Michigan sheriff has thus far been discovered in Carthage tending to explain the mysterious tragedy.

Carmichael died without regaining consciousness. He had prepared to leave Carthage and went to the toilet room in the yard before starting for the railway station. There, about two hours later, Miss Hughes discovered him bleeding and frozen. He had cut his throat, but the wound was not fatal except that long bleeding and the low temperature had sapped his life.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict late last night as follows:

"We, the jurors, find that the supposed John H. Carmichael came to his death by his own hand and exposure to cold."

ON A BRIBERY CHARGE

Descendant of Famous Statesman Faces Court For Trial

San Francisco, Jan. 12.—This city witnessed today the unusual spectacle of the calling for trial on a criminal charge of a grandson of a vice president of the United States and the bearer of one of the greatest names in the history of American statesmanship.

The accused man is Patrick Calhoun of New York, San Francisco, Cleveland, Pittsburg and other cities, grandson of John C. Calhoun and probably the most prominent figure in the street railroad world of the United States.

The charge against Calhoun is bribery in connection with the granting of a franchise to his San Francisco company by the board of supervisors. The case was called before Judge Lawlor in the superior court.

Calhoun is president of the United Railroads of San Francisco. The bribery with which his name is connected has caused the conviction and sentence to imprisonment of Abraham Ruef, former "boss" of San Francisco, and Eugene Schmitz, former mayor of the city.

Lieutenant Fulton's Sentence

New York, Jan. 12.—Six months' confinement at Fort Dupont, Del., the forfeiture of $50 a month of his pay for the same period, and a reprimand from Major General Wood was the sentence of the courtmartial before which Lieutenant James M. DARTS IN THE EXECUTIVE HIDE

Tillman Declares That They Have Quivered and Stung

HE HAS BROKEN NO LAW

President's "Dear Friend" Harriman Should Be Made to Disgorge Public Land Which He Holds In Defiance of Law—Says Roosevelt Has Vainly Tried to Destroy Him and Courts Investigation of His Acts

Washington Jan. 12.—Being greeted by applause from the galleries when he entered the senate chamber to reply to President Roosevelt's strictures respecting his connection with Oregon timber land transactions, Senator Tillman of South Carolina proceeded to read his prepared remarks with little attempt at oratorical effect.

"In my public work here," said Senator Tillman, "I have not hesitated to criticise and comment on the official actions and utterances of President Roosevelt, and I have doubtless given him good cause to seek revenge. I have, at various times, arraigned him in the senate for tyrannical invasion of the rights of congress, for usurpation of authority not given him by the constitution, for disobedience of the law and the neglect of duty, and particularly in the case of Mrs. Morris, for brutal and cruel conduct toward a helpless woman.

"I was not aware that these darts of mine had quivered in the executive hide and stung him so, but the eagerness and intensity with which he has presented his case against me, indicates that Theodore Roosevelt enjoys to the limit the feeling of getting even with Ben Tillman and lay on the 'big stick' with the keenest relish, doubtless believing that the 'pitchfork' has gone out of business."

Used Press With Skill

He declared that the president was an adept at advertising and had used the press with more skill than any man in American politics.

Quoting from the president's message to the house on Jan. 4, in which he said he had no charges of corruption against congress nor against any member of the present house, Tillman said:

"It follows that he found no grounds for indicting me in the courts, which no doubt would have rejoiced him over much, and all this fuss, fury and fustion about the seriousness of the case and the gravity of the offense with which he charges me can be attributed to personal malice alone.

"Just what law did I break? What wrong did I do or contemplate? According to the report of the attorney general in answer to the resolution which I introduced and which passed the senate, Harriman, the president's dear friend, still holds in defiance of law upwards of 2,000,000 acres of the best lands in Oregon and California and refuses to sell them at any price.

"I never expected and could not under the terms of the law, as I construed it, get more than seven quarter-sections for myself and family, one for my private secretary and one for Mr. Lee, making nine in all.

Harriman Should Disgorge

"Will the president undertake to say that I have lost my right to buy land because I am a senator? Can the president deny that my activity secured the passage of the resolution instructing the attorney general to bring suit for the recovery of this land for the use of actual settlers? If Harriman and others like him are made to disgorge by reason of these suits shall the fact that I was endeavoring to buy a little pittance of the land be used as the basis of a charge of being a liar and a corrupt senator to be disgraced?

"Through my action attention has been directed in a compelling way to the need of prompt action by the department of justice. Whether I ever get any of the land or not does not matter if Harriman and others of that ilk are made to disgorge the large holdings, which they have stolen and are attempting to hold.

"Of course the president is sure that I have done something very discreditable and outrageous. He hates me and would destroy me if he could.

"The president, having convicted Tillman, proceeded to clear Dorr in both cases contrary to the facts and smilingly stares from the center of the stage, which it is his greatest delight to occupy, and complacently looks to have the American people and the senate give their approval to his verdict. I await the verdict calmly and without fear and will gladly abide by it."

JAPANESE ARE AGAIN STIRRED

Suspect That America Is Showing an Unfriendly Spirit

Tokio, Jan. 12.—Upon the receipt of special cable dispatches from San Francisco, relating to bills now pending before the California legislature, Japanese newspapers elaborate on the strained relations which may arise from the passage of bills and the enactment of laws forbidding the ownership of land and the attendance of public schools by Japanese residents of California.

The situation is seriously embarrassing to Americans living in Japan.

Some of the editorials of the opposition press, becoming violent, are likely temporarily to inflame popular opinion and seriously hamper the exercise of American influence in Japan for many years.

ONLY TWO COURSES

Labor Federation Must Adopt One to Fight Wright's Decision

Washington, Jan. 12.—President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor is in favor either of making an appeal to labor and its friends for voluntary funds to be used in prosecuting an appeal from the recent decision of Judge Wright in the contempt case, or abandoning it altogether.

This decision was made known by Gompers in the comprehensive report which he read at the meeting here of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor. In making the appeal, Gompers declared the Federation has practically exhausted all of its available funds; that the money in the defense fund is unavailable and that only one of two courses was open to them.

President Gompers said that counsel for the Buck Stove and Range company, some months ago, boasted of his achievement that the legal expense of the Federation in these suits had already amounted to $19,000 and yet more to come.

RINEHART BREAKS DOWN

Former Banker's Counsel Admits Discrepancies In Bank's Books

Pittsburg, Jan. 12.—J. B. F. Rinehart, vice president and former cashier of the closed Farmers' and Drovers' National bank of Waynesburg, on trial here for alleged peculations which resulted in wrecking the institution, broke down and cried bitterly while his attorney outlined his defense.

Admitting that there are discrepancies in the bank's books and the reports to the comptroller, Rinehart's attorney said it would be proven to the jury that these were merely mistakes and that there was no intent to defraud.

Incensed at what he regards as desertion by those he has befriended, Rinehart proposes to disclose some startling political history when he goes on the stand.

The actual valuation of New York city real estate has not yet been computed, but it is expected that it will be nearly $140,000,000 higher than last year's total of $6,772,000,000.

HUMAN BEINGS AFFECTED

Startling Facts Concerning the Foot and Mouth Disease

Washington, Jan. 12.—Behind closed doors, Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture told the house committee on agriculture some startling facts about the fight against the foot and mouth disease, which has existed for several weeks in Michigan, Pennsylvania and Maryland.

It is believed that human beings have developed the disease, if not from the serum for vaccination, in which the disease is believed to have been imported from abroad, then from eating meat of diseased cattle.

They recommend a new bridge be built 60 feet wide with steel girders set in cement. The bridge to have an eight foot sidewalk and a roadway 44 feet wide. They also recommend that provision be made for two car tracks in the centre, a new draw to be operated by electricity and that the draw be located over the new channel. They also recommend the extension of the Columbia road boulevard to the bridge.

WEAK KIDNEYS MAKE WEAK BODIES.

As one weak link weakens a chain, so weak kidneys weaken the whole body and hasten the final breaking down.

Overwork, strains, colds and other causes injure the kidneys, and when their activity is lessened the whole body suffers from the excess of uric poison circulated in the blood.

John R. Duffy, living at 14 Copeland St., Quincy, Mass., says: "I am so favorably impressed with Doan's Kidney Pills that it gives me pleasure to recommend them to anyone suffering from kidney complaint. The Man Who Weakened

[Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.]

We all realize how hard it is to be good, but are not often reminded of how hard it is to be bad. The truth is that our lives are like the gyroscope, that paradoxical toy which, once set revolving in a certain place, resists being turned into any other plane.

Michael Tiernan had been sent to school when a boy, had been brought up religiously, and his associates were respectable people of the working class. Mike was a good workman, but when the commercial panic of 1907 came on, with thousands of others, he dropped out of employment. Having a wife and several children, his heartstrings were strained by a terrific tension. To see his little ones hungry, paling every day for the want of necessary sustenance, to be driven with his family from one lodging to another, each successive rooftree being more rotten and shabby than its predecessor, was crucifying to the poor man's sensibilities.

Mike's boy, Little Mike, four years old, was the apple of his father's eye. Little Mike became ill, and temptation came to his father at the same time. Little Mike's calling for food that was not to be had, needing medical attendance that was only for the prosperous, was too much for Mike. He was approached by two men who were entering houses and appropriating the contents. They wanted a third to assist them and made him a proposition. The question "What should he do?" is one that has puzzled the best intellects. In the eye of society there is but one answer.

A few days later the three men, Pat Dolan, Jim Murphy and Mike, broke into a dwelling in the center of large grounds, far enough from other houses to enable them to work without being heard by the neighbors. One of the women of the family, awakened by a bright light being flashed in her face, began to scream. Dolan ordered her to keep quiet, meanwhile feeling for the electric switch, and when he found it he lighted up the whole floor. The master of the house jumped out of bed to see what was the matter and ran into Murphy's arms. Dolan knocked the screaming woman senseless, then, placing Mike on guard over every one on the floor, went downstairs to collect the valuables there, while Murphy ransacked the bedrooms.

Mike found himself in a position that he had not counted on. He had prepared himself to be brave and had partially satisfied his conscience that he was doing no wrong in taking what another did not especially need to keep life in his darling boy. But he had not prepared himself to pose as a burglar. The situation to the inmates of the house was appalling. The woman who had been stilled had fainted, and the master of the house was trying to revive her. He turned to Mike and said:

"You are not even respectable burglars. None but the most contemptable will injure a woman."

"We're driven to it, sir," said Mike. "We can't get work, and our families are starving."

At that moment a door opened and a little boy in a white nightie, tumbled curls falling over his forehead, under which his eyes blinked in the sudden light, came out into the hall.

"Papa," he said, "what has this man a false face on for?"

This was too much for Mike. He snatched the boy in his arms, crying at the same time:

"I've got one like him at home."

Without a word Dolan rushed upstairs. Mike heard him coming and put down the child. Dolan ran up to Mike and hammered him with the butt of his revolver. Then, having quieted, as he supposed, the better nature of his assistant, he resumed his pillaging. An hour after entering the premises the burglars left with the usual threat to kill any one giving an alarm within a certain time.

The next morning Dolan read an account of the robbery in the morning papers and noted a statement that hopes were entertained that the burglar who had weakened if offered immunity might be induced to turn state's evidence. Dolan paled. The three had separated before daylight, and he could not reach Mike till evening. During the day he resolved to put his assistant where he would tell no tales—under the sod—and revolved in his mind methods for doing so. Mike did not read the account of his weakening, but his mind was made up as to his future course. Scarcely had the plundered family finished breakfast when it was announced that a man was outside with information concerning the robbery. It proved to be Mike, who then and there confessed his share in the robbery.

Mike Tiernan was not prosecuted. The man whose property he had been instrumental in restoring gave him employment, and the Tiernan family is now living in comparative comfort. Mike has no fears till Dolan and Murphy shall have served a twenty year sentence, but that is a long while. In the meantime he is working hard, the only sore spot in his mind being his one connection with criminals.

Mike Tiernan was turned to crime through an unselfish motive, love for his child. He was turned away from crime by being reminded of his boy by the child he had taken in his arms. Surely the innocence of childhood is all powerful.

Brief Items of Interest From All Quarters

The signed contract of Denton T. Young of Paoli, O., was received at the Boston American league headquarters yesterday and thus all doubt was set aside as to where Old Cy would play ball next season.

This is Young's ninth contract with the Boston Americans, and no doubt he will open the season as usual, for his good right arm is just as strong as ever.

The salary limit of the American association has been fixed at $4500 per month.

The Detroit Tigers will train at San Antonio, Tex., and will leave for there, March 10.

Manager John O'Brien of the Fall River club was in Boston yesterday to arrange some spring exhibition dates for his club. He would like to get Hugh Duffy's Providence club for Patriots' day.

Harry Niles will be a fixture with the Boston Red Sox next season. Having speed and being a natural fielder and batsman, Harry is more than likely to displace some of the boys who made a fairly good impression last season.

In one of the hardest fought for games of the season the Rousers defeated the strong Bantums of the Houghs Neck Associates league last night at the Associates alleys, Houghs Neck, two out of three strings. The Bantams won the second string by a large margin but were given a bad licking in the third string. The Rousers broke the single string record of the league getting 432 Frank Catarius of the Rousers was high for the three string total and Dr. Mains of the same team got the highest single. The victory last night places the Rousers in second place, in place of the Bantams. Tonight the Bull dogs bowl the Bucko's. French has dropped out of the Bulldogs and his place will be taken by LaBrecque.

STORY OF A ROBBER

Simply Couldn't Help Relieving "Easy Marks" of Valuables

Chicago, Jan. 12.—Sixty burglaries and hold-ups of which he was the perpetrator were admitted by Leo Adams, according to the police. Adams told his story in a matter-of-fact way. He said that sometimes the routine of "doing jobs" palled on him and then he would get legitimate employment.

"But I couldn't earn enough to have a good time," he continued, "and when an 'easy mark' came along I just naturally had to relieve him of his valuables."

LOCAL OFFICERS IDENTIFY PROPERTY

Quincy Loot Discovered in Room of Charles Davis.

The arrest of Charles Davis, alias Colier in Boston Sunday night will probably solve the mystery as to who has been doing the breaking and entering in Quincy during the past few weeks.

During this period several places have been entered but the police have been unable to find any trace of the stolen property in any of the pawnshops.

When the room occupied by Davis was searched by the Boston police they found a large amount of goods. Inspector McKay looked these over Monday and identified a number of articles that had been stolen in Quincy.

He found a gold bracelet and two rings taken from the house of Forbes Craig. A gold thimble and revolver taken from the house of H. P. Fitton and a berry spoon taken from the house of Arthur Stanley.

There were many other articles some of which probably came from Quincy which Inspector McKay could not identify.

This afternoon, he will accompany some of the people whose houses have been entered, to police headquarters to see if they can identify any more of their property.

SCHOOL SAVINGS BANKS DEVELOP THRIFT

Quincy Has Accomplished Much In This Line Says Louis G. Brandeis

The severe weather Tuesday evening did not prevent the usual attendance at the monthly dinner and meeting of the Wollaston Unitarian club. President Plummer presided and the guests included Mayor Shea, John C. Murray president of the Granite Manufacturers' Association, Horace F. Spear, cashier of the Mt. Wollaston bank, Charles A. Howland president of the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Co., and the speaker of the evening Lewis G. Brandeis. A hot roast beef dinner was served following which Mr. Brandeis gave an address on old age insurance and pensions. Mr. Brandeis is probably the best informed man on Savings Bank insurance of which old age insurance is a feature.

In opening his talk the speaker said that the case of superanuated working men was being discussed all over the world.

The first step in this line was taken by Germany in 1889 where a compulsory old age insurance was established. This was a system where the government made it compulsory for a certain part of a man's wages to be taken each week so that when he reached the age of 70 years he would have an annuity. The step taken by Germany was followed by other countries. Denmark provided a pension. Belgium adopted a system to induce people to save for themselves by having the government contribute an amount equal to that saved.

Jan. 1, England established a system after twenty years of study by providing a pension. England found that of all men and women who reached the age of 65 years one fifth were dependent on public charity, one fifth would be dependent but for sacrifices made by their own families and friends and private charity.

As yous age increases the number of dependents increases. These are not the result of peculiar conditions for there has been a steady movement for the betterment of the workingman.

In America we are better off although the conditions here are the same the only difference being in percentage. This question is forcing itself upon as. All over the country great corporations are taking up the question and are preparing some system among their workmen.

Every business man knows that each year a certain amount must be charged off to depreciation. What is true of machinery in this respect is true of the individual. The cost of living when men can work is a part of the cost of living when they can not work. A wage that does not make that possible is not a living wage. Every man from an economic standpoint dies too late or too early.

How are we going to meet this condition? In England the pension at 70 years is five shillings a week, and it is estimated it will result in an annual charge of two million dollars of its national revenue. Here in Massachusetts we have a financial problem far more serious than in England. If we have that system here we will have to pay for it out of taxes which would double the state tax.

We believe it possible to provide the people of Massachusetts an opportunity for providing for our old age. Deposits in Savings Banks are not adequate for old age. The interest is not enough to support a man

"Hoch der Kaiser." He took his medicine like a little man.

Every time a little colony gets mad with its papa, it threatens to run away and get annexed to the United States.

As we understand a large section of the Democratic press, it doesn't want Mr. Bryan to be the party standard bearer in 1912—not that it loves Bryan less, but that it loves pie more.

Senator Chauncey M. Depew does not regard with pleasure the movement to make Secretary Root successor of Senator Platt, looking upon it as preliminary to disposing of himself in the same way by Governor Hughes in 1911.

At the meeting of the City Council Monday night, an order was introduced by councilman McDevitt, appropriating $50,000 for the erection of two industrial buildings. These buildings when completed to be offered exempt from taxes for five years, to the first two industries employing over 200 hands, locating in Quincy. This order if passed, with certain necessary modifications, would do much to put Quincy in the way of a healthy business growth, and it should be considered carefully before being thrown down, which seems to be the usual way of disposing of orders tending to improve industrial conditions in Quincy.

Other cities have done the same thing and the scheme has proved to be a good investment, in more ways than one.

Although there is little likelihood of any definite action being taken in the matter of revising the city charter at the mass meeting Saturday night, it would have been better if the city council had refrained from passing the order, requesting the Mayor to petition the legislature to amend the charter, so as to allow him to become chairman of the school committee until after the meeting. For if the voters do reach any definite conclusion, two petitions will have to be presented to the legislature unless the voters agree to the order passed by the council. As there is much opposition to this order, it is very doubtful whether the voters will agree to it, without a struggle. At the present time the school department is the only municipal depatrment which lives within its appropriation.

The committee manages its affairs in an efficient and business like way and there really seems to be no logical reason for changing the make-up of the committee. If the mayor was to be appointed chairman the political element would enter in, and it is doubtful if the committee could do as efficient work as it can at the present time. Politics should be kept out of our schools as much as possible, therefore an order, such as the one passed by the council should be carefully considered and should not be allowed to pass, without the referendum clause attached to it.

MIGHTY RUMBLE UNDERGROUND

Announces Second Horror In Big Mines In Virginia

MORE THAN A HUNDRED DEAD

Experienced Mine Men Had Just Completed Inspection and Declared Everything to Be Safe—Smoke and Flames Gushed From Ill-Fated Place a Distance of Four Miles From the Main Entrance

Bluefield, W. Va., Jan. 13.—Again there was a terrific explosion in the mines of the Lick Branch colliery, and more than one hundred lives were lost. It was in these same mines two weeks ago to a day that fifty miners were killed by a similar explosion.

In the quiet of the early morning there came like the sound of thunder a mighty rumbling from the mines which reverberated along the miles of corridors and air-passages crowded with those who work there, while from the mine mouth there came a cloud of flame, soot, dust and debris, heavy timbers, broken mine cars and even a massive motor used to haul the heavily laden cars from the depth.

Scarcely had the detonation died away before a throng of terrorized women and children rushed to the mine mouth and implored those there to allow them to aid in the effort to save some of their loved ones who might still be alive within.

Mine Foreman Bowers, who was near the entrance, was blown from his feet, but managed to crawl out safely, as also did Robert Smith, a miner. A miner named Holliday, who was with Bowers, was blown over. A rescue party, organized on the moment, rushed in the jaws of the smoking mine and tried to rescue him, but was driven back by the deadly fumes of the after-gas and was compelled to leave him to his fate.

A train was rushed from this city to the scene of the disaster, twenty-five miles away, carrying bratticing and other material to be used in the work of exploration and rescue.

The explosion was in a different part of the mine from that of two weeks ago. Since that catastrophe the mine had been inspected by government officials and by the most experienced mine men in the region and all, it is said, expressed the opinion that it was safe.

A late estimate of the number of men entombed is more than 100. That all of them are dead there can be no doubt. The force of the explosion, the fire in the mine and the deadly gases preclude any chance that any of the men are alive.

The main entrance of the mine is five miles long, running from one side of the mountain to the other. Debris also was blown from both entries, which gives some idea of the force of the explosion. The fans were not disabled and are forcing fresh air into the mines.

State Mine Inspectors Phillips and Nicholson are at the mine and are directing the work of rescue. Crews have been formed and are venturing in as far as the air is pure enough to breathe.

Bystanders at the time of the explosion say that immense clouds of soot and smoke gushed out of the mine almost simultaneously with the detonation, and immediately were sucked back in enormous volumes to the mine.

On the Tug river side, four miles from the main entrance, the smoke and flames gushed from the entry, burning the twigs and small limbs from trees that grew near. The damage to the mine cannot be estimated.

The explosion was the most terrific that has ever occurred in this region. In 1884, at the South West Virginia Improvement company mine, 360 were killed in an explosion. Tuesday's horror is the most disastrous that has occurred since. The mine is owned by the Pocahontas Consolidated Collieries company.

FOR CONSERVATION OF OUR FORESTS

Men Interested In Movement In Session at Washington

Washington, Jan. 13.—In line with President Roosevelt and other authorites, federal and state, on the matter of the conservation of the national resources, is the American Forestry association, which began a two days' session here today. The meeting was opened by Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, the retiring president of the association.

The object of the association is "the promotion of a businesslike and conservative use and treatment of the forest resources of the country." The association was organized in 1882. There are branch associations in twenty states.

Among the speakers who will address the association's meeting are Gifford Pinchot, chief of the federal forest service; Dr. Albert Shaw, editor of the Review of Reviews; Professor H. S. Graves of the Yale Forestry school and J. E. Ransdall of Louisiana, president of the national rivers and harbors congress.

VILLAGES OF HUTS

They Are Fast Springing Up Amid the Ruins of Messina

Messina, Jan. 13.—While thousands still are buried under the ruins, any signs of the revival of the city are greeted with enthusiasm by the survivors, who are determined that Messina shall rise again. A fruit merchant, who was the first to reship yesterday a hundred cases of fruit for the Far East, was saluted like a hero, while the appearance of two cabs on the streets was considered an historic event.

In the meantime, amid the ruins of the city, villages of huts are springing up. One of these villages includes not less than 3000 huts, extending for a distance of two miles.

Three water pipes have been reestablished, and at night the principal streets and squares are illuminated. Slight, but frequent, earth shocks continue.

Extraordinary Indeed

Reggio, Jan. 13.—An extraordinary disinterment took place Tuesday, a 3-year-old girl being taken from the ruins alive and uninjured, after sixteen days' burial. The possibility of the girl's having had nourishment is excluded, and it is believed that part of the time she was in a cataleptic state.

FORAKER RENEWS ATTACK

Senator Denounces the Use of Detectives In Brownsville

Washington, Jan. 13.—A speech by Senator Foraker on the use of private detectives in investigating the Brownville affair was the feature in the senate Tuesday. Foraker laid aside his manuscript several times during his address to inject remarks that were pointedly aimed at the president.

Evidently referring to the president, he declared that men who make charges and insinuations will some time "be where they can be called to account."

Mr. Lodge replied to Foraker's remarks, declaring that the use of the $3,000,000 fund appropriated in 1899 as an emergency war fund for the president during the Spanish war in the employment of detectives on the Brownville case was not in violation of law.

Mr. Foraker endeavored unavailingly to have a day fixed for voting on his bill for the re-elistment of the discharged soldiers.

TENNESSEE LIQUOR BAN

No Selling Permitted Within Four Miles of Any Schoolhouse

Nashville, Jan. 13.—The senate bill providing for the prohibition of the sale of liquor within four miles of any schoolhouse in Tennessee passed the third and final reading in the senate. It is expected that the house will pass the bill today.

Immediately after this vote was announced the wildest disorder prevailed. As soon as a motion to adjourn could be carried a frantic crowd surrounded the prohibition senators and the celebration took the form of a love feast.

Ashtabula, O., Jan. 13.—City Councilman George Aunder was indicted on two counts by the grand jury for alleged solicitation of a bribe of $1200 in coinnection with an ordinance for the extension of the franchise of the Ashtabula Gas company. His bond was fixed at $1000 in each count.

EVANS TELLS SOME SECRETS

Says Peace Cruise of Battleships Had a String to It

HOW HE RECEIVED ORDERS

Makes Sarcastic Reference to Men Who "Sit In Swivel Chairs" and Could Tell In Two Hours How Fleet Should Be Taken Around the World —Of No Use For Him to Ask Questions of President

Boston, Jan. 13.—"President Roosevelt always said that the fleet was bound on a practice cruise with a peace purpose, but there was always a little string attached to the peace purpose," said Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans at Symphony hall last night.

"Fighting Bob" kept his audience at high tension throughout the evening, for remarks like the one quoted above were juggled at with the hand of a master, amongst others which bore the tang of the salt sea air, half humorous, half serious, in which President Roosevelt figured.

Rear Admiral Evans was speaking, for he does not desire to have it called lecturing, in aid of the Infants' hospital.

He first gave the critics of the navy a body blow when he said that they did not know what they were talking about. When people criticized the navy department they criticized the whole navy, he said, and he characterized this as unfair and unjust.

"The critics of the navy are unfair, unjust; and I could use stronger language if there were not women present."

The speaker then told of how the squadrons were formed and later the formation of the Atlantic fleet.

He said: "I was called to Washington and told to get the fleet of sixteen battleships ready for the trip to the Pacific.

"President Roosevelt told me this confidentially, and then I confidentially set about my work. Of course it would be a very easy job for some to sit in swivel chairs and figure out in two hours how it is to be done. Oh, yes, it was a very easy job. Six of the ships did not have any batteries on them and they had to be put in. There were many other things. The ships had never drilled together as a fleet, and I knew that if they were not drilled before we went to sea they would be running over each other.

"I received a message to come to Oyster Bay, and then I knew I would be told how it was to be done. I was. The secretary of the navy was there, together with the president. Several times I was about to ask questions, but it was all planned. I was to take the fleet on a peaceful practice cruise, with a peaceful purpose, but to be ready for anything else that might occur. There was a string on the peaceful purpose.

"Then I had to plan about the feeding and equipment of the fleet. Of course, that would have been perfectly easy for the fellows in the swivel chairs to do, but I tell you it took some hard thinking.

"I never asked the president why he was sending the fleet on the cruise. I had known him for more than twenty years, and I knew it would be no use."

THE KILLING OF STERLING

Dame Claims That He Committed the Act In Self-Defense

Dover, N. H., Jan. 13.—All of the evidence for the state was presented Tuesday at the trial here of John E. Dame, charged with the murder of Patrolman Walter S. Sterling in this city.

The principal feature of the session was the evidence of City Marshal Adams, who told of an alleged confession made by the defendant. In this confession, according to the witness, Dame said that he shot Sterling in self-defense after Sterling had attacked him and had struck him over the head with a broom.

The four thus grouped for honors are: Mrs. J. Cuneo; Mrs. A. W. Seaman; Mrs. E. M. Beochman and Mrs. Alise H. Ramsey.

CITY OFFICIALS LEAD STRENUOUS LIVES

Department Heads Kept Busy Guarding the City's Interests.

The question is often asked, especially by some of the more recent residents of the city, What do the officials who occupy the offices at City Hall do to earn the salary which the city has to pay them? This question becomes more of a mystery to them when they remember that under a town form of government much of the work done by the different departments was performed by three men known as Selectmen. The management of the affairs of a city however are much more difficult than those of a town. There is a great deal of detail work to be done which requires much time. At the present time all of the departments of the city with the exception of the School Department have their offices in City Hall.

Room 1 on the first or street floor is the office of the Commissioner of Public Works whose duties are many. In the first place he has the care of all the public buildings of the city and sees to it that they are kept in proper repair. He also has the entire charge of the streets of the city and the citizens look to him to have the streets kept in good condition. In winter he must see that in case of a heavy snow storm the sidewalks are made passable, and if streets are blocked by banks of snow it is up to him to see that these banks are broken down so that teams may pass. He must also see to it that no obstacles remain in the streets such as would make the city liable to a suit at law for damages. If a street is in poor condition he is the man above all others at whose door the blame is laid.

Aside from the streets he is also the head of the water and sewer departments of the city and all work done by these departments is under his supervision. Public health demands that there shall be no failure of the sewers to be in proper working condition and that there shall at all times be an adequate water supply.

A lack of a sufficient water supply would also mean great danger in case of fire. Under this head also comes the care of the fire hydrants of the city which safety demands shall be ready for use at all times.

It will be readily seen therefor that he must have numerous clerks and foremen to look after the detail work which he supervises. In his own office in room 1, he has a clerk and stenographer who look after such correspondence as relates to the streets, public buildings, general supplies etc., as well as to keep the books of the department so that he can tell at all times what balances of any appropriation he may have on hand.

Adjoining this office and connected by a door is room 3, known as the water office. Two clerks are employed here and at times three clerks. They look after all matters pertaining to the water department of the city. All bills for water are made out here in duplicate under the present system of accounting. The shut off and turn on orders issued, and the orders for services and records of the same kept.

In room 14, which is in the basement is the office of the sewer department. Here all books and papers pertaining to this department are kept and the correspondence of this department done by its one clerk. All plans of sewers already built are here and the sewer assessments are made out by this clerk.

In room 8, which is the City Engineer's office, which also indirectly comes under the direction of the Commissioner of Public Works all plans of the city are made. Not only are the records and plans of all streets surveyed and laid out here, but all plans are made for the street department, the sewer department and the assessors department.

In this office there is an engineer in charge and he has several assisstants. The Commissioner also has a general foreman in the street department, the water department and the sewer department.

Room 2 on the first floor is the office of the City Treasurer who employes one clerk. In this office all bills against the city are paid and all bills due the city other than tax bills are paid. If the city owes you money here is where you must go to get it. If you owe the city money you must also go here to pay it.

Room 4, is the office of the City Clerk who also has a clerk. Here all the records are kept and it is one of the busiest offices in City Hall. All records of births, marriages and deaths are kept here. All applications for the barious licenses are also made here and the City Clerk must attest all orders passed by the City Council and approved by the Mayor. He must also see to the perparing of of the ballots for the caucuses and for the municipal election. In all of these things it is absolutely necessary that accuracy must be maintained. Notices of all hearings on pole locations, records of all ordinances, of street layouts etc., are also kept here. In fact the duties of the City Clerk are almost multiple in number.

Room 5, is occupied by the tax collector and his two and sometimes three clerks. All bills for taxes are paid at this office and then turned over to the City Treasurer. It is to this office that the citizens look to have the taxes levied collected promptly.

Room 6, is the office of the City Messenger. It is his duty to collect the mail from the different offices and deposit it in the post office as well as to take to City Hall the great amount of mail matter that arrives during the day. He also must perform such messenger service as the Mayor may desire or the City Council by whom he is elected desires.

Room 7 is that of the Board of Assessors. Here there are three clerks at all times and sometimes four. The Assessors in the month of May each year make a tour of the city and assess the value of all real and personal estate. They must all be tabulated on the card system in use as well as copied in the large book for public reference a duplicate of which must be forwarded to the state. Under the new system of accounting all tax bills are now made out in this office.

Room 9 is the Mayor's office and here is where citizens who have complaints to make or who desire to consult the Chief Executive go. The Mayor is the practical head of every department and the duties of the office require a great deal of time. The office of the City Solicitor, the legal advisor of the city is also in the office of the Mayor and upon him devolves the duty of scrutinizing all orders sent to the Mayor for approval to determine their legal aspect. In case of suits brought against the city he is the counsel for the city.

In the basement in room 10, is the office of the Overseer of the Poor. Here it is that all persons seeking aid from the city apply. The Overseer has entire charge of the home provided by the city for its poor and sees to the distribution of supplies to those in want. He gives his whole time to the duties of the office. It is of the greatest importance that the Overseer know where the persons which the city aid have their settlement otherwise the city would annually be called upon to pay many thounsands of dollars that is now charged up to other cities and towns of the commonwealth.

In room 11, is the office of the Managers of Public Burial Places. They have the entire charge of the public burial places of the city. This board is composed of six members of which only the secretary receives a salary. Here are also kept a complete record of all burials in the public cemeteries of the city.

Room 12, is that of the Board of Health. This board is composed of three members. It has a clerk in its office also a sanitary inspector and an inspector of plumbing. All of the laws of the city and of the commonwealth relating to the health of the city are enforced by this board. Before a burial in this city is possible a permit from this office is necessary. In fact everything that will tend to protect the health of the citizens at large is in the care of this board.

Room 13, is the office of the Inspector of Buildings. This room is also used by the engineers of the sewer department as a draughting room. Under the present ordinance no building can be erected in the city without first obtaining a permit from this inspector.

Room 14, is the office of the sewer department which as stated above is under the direct supervision of the Commissioner of Public Works. One clerk is employed in this office and the foreman of the department also has his office here.

There are two offices on the council chamber floor. One of these is that of the City Auditor through whose hands all bills against the city must pass before they are paid by the City Treasurer.

The other office is that of the Clerk of the Council and Clerk of Committees. It is in this room that meetings of all council committees are held with the exception of the Finance committee which meets in the office of the Auditor.

In the rear of the basement is a small office used by the Inspector of Milk and the Sealer of Weights and Measures. They are not in their offices every day but have certain hours each week in which they can be found there.

The Inspector of Milk issues all permits to sell milk and the Sealer of Weights and Measures seals all scales etc., used by the stores and others who have goods to sell by weight or measure.

SPROULE WINS GOLF MEDAL.

R. E. Sproule of the Wollaston golf club, also a member of the Royal Portrush club, Ireland, captured the qualification gold medal heading a record field of 141 players in the qualification round of the sixth annual midwinter golf tournament at Pinehurst, N. C., yesterday. Sproule had the fine card of 77, five strokes in the lead of his nearest opponents, going out in 40 and coming home in a record 37.

In the second place was a triple tie at 82, including E. J. Spaulding of the Waubannakee club, Vermont; John J. Hazen of Fox Hills and J. P. Knapp of Garden City. C. L. Becker of Woodland was the only other Massachusetts man to make this division, finishing in a tie for sixth position. with L. A. Hamilton.

Qualification play was under the Pinehurst system, inaugurated in connection with this tournament in 1907, the entrants being classed in six divisions by the tournament committee and the 16 best scores in each division qualifying, it being necessary for a player to advance into a higher division, but not possible to drop into a lower. A special class of three divisions of eight each will provide for the overflow field, which will qualify after the usual method today.

The day was perfect and all but very few of the contestants finished the round. Mr. Sproule withdraws from the turnament because he has "over-golfed," as he expresses it, but he has signified his intention of participating in the Advertising Men's tournament, which begins Wednesday, and remaining in to the finish.

The scores of all players qualifying for the chief trophy and of all New Englanders in the other divisions, with their ranks in those divisions, follow:

The Motor of the Wright Aeroplane.

Wilbur Wright, undoubtedly the most successful of all aeroplanists, used in his flights in France last Fall, a gasoline motor of greater weight and lower power than the engines of any of his foreign rivals, thus proving conclusively that it is not necessary to possess a special engine in order to fly. Although the Wright power plant cannot be classed as an automobile engine, it is the least removed from motor-car standards of any aeronautical motor in existence. Its four separately cast, water-cooled cylinders have a bore of 4 inches and a stroke of 4 1-2 inches, the normal engine speed being 1,100 revolutions per minute. This gives a normal rating of 30 horse power. All valves are in the cylinder heads, the exhaust valves being operated by overhead rocker arms and the inlets operating automatically. One of the most distinctive features of this engine is that the fuel charge is supplied by direct injection, gravity carrying the gasoline down from the tank to a pump within the crank case which is driven by helicoidal gears off the cam shaft. Lubrication is positive by means of a plunger pump located within the crank case and also driven off the cam shaft. The engine is water cooled by means of forced circulation, the pump being driven from the forward end of the crank shaft. The radiator is an ingenious arrangement of flat aluminium tubes arranged vertically in four series of six each, united at the top by two collectors and at the base by two smaller ones, the tubes themselves being placed on either side of one of the upright supports connecting the two planes of the aeroplane. An Eisemann high tension magneto, with separate high tension coil, has been adopted exclusively for ignition. The magneto is driven directly off the cam shaft by exposed gears.—W. F. Bradley and H. W. Perry in The Engineering Magazine for January.

(Legal Title - Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. CAY, will be happy to answer inquiries

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

After a month's recess the Quincy Women's club came together again on Tuesday afternoon and although it was stormy and disagreeable there was a large assemblage of members. Mrs. Morton, president called the meeting together promptly at half past two. Reports were given by the secretaries and treasurer, also a report of the doings of the executive board at its meeting Jan. 7th.

The Arts and Crafts committee reported that the classes in millinery and dressmaking were just ending and a new term would be begun if club members desired to form classes. Cooking classes had not been formed as a sufficient number had not signified their intention to join. Classes might be formed later if sufficient interest was manifested. The committee most generously offered to weave silk hangings for the club house if members would contribute the silk cut and sewed in the proper width and lengths. An offer accepted by the club to be arranged for later. Announcement was made that Miss Louisa P. Merritt, who gave such a delightful lecture for the committee the first of December was to come to Quincy Jan. 25 and give her lecture on "Palestine" for the benefit of the King's Daughters.

Educational committee announced an entertainment at First Church chapel on Thursday evening of this week, the proceeds to be used in entertaining the school teachers of Quincy. The entertainment was a series of Living Pictures of Famous Masterpieces" under the direction of Mr. John Arnold assisted by some forty to fifty well known people.

The Musical committee announced the annual musicale on Jan. 26th when the Westland quartet would sing. In this quartet are two club members, Mrs. Frank J. Moore and Miss Alice Gertrude Coe and members anticipate a musical treat. The committee is also arranging for an evening musicale in March when Mr. Alvah Glover Salmon, pianist will give a program of Russian music.

An interesting report was given by the Philanthropy committee. By conference of Charity Workers the committee had been able to relieve several needy cases. More workers were wantd to act as friendly visitors, that is after the cases are investigated to visit the people in a friendly way from time to time. An entertainment was given at the Quincy Home at Thanksgiving which was enjoyed and appreciated by the inmates. Through the kindness of ladies of the Wollaston churches comfortable rocking chairs had been provided for the women of the Quincy Home and it was also hoped to provide some for the men's room. Christmas boxes had been distributed to a few needy families. Classes would be formed in first aid to the injured, 9 lessons for $2 if members were sufficiently interested. Lectures would be by local physicians.

Mrs. Chandler W. Smith and Mrs. Robert E. Park were chosen delegates to represent the club at the Federation meeting at Medford in February.

At the conclusion of the business of the club the program opened with two solos by Miss Alice Gertrude Coe, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Chandler W. Smith. It was a real treat as it is seldom club members have the pleasure of hearing Miss Coe in solos. She rendered "My Friend" by Wekerlin and "Without Thee" by D'Hardolet, with artistic interpretation which called forth a hearty and merited encore.

The program committee presented as the speaker of the afternoon Dr. Richard Burton of the University of Minnesota whose fame had preceded him and who received a cordial greeting as he stepped upon the platform. His subject, "The Novel of Today," proved an interesting one and his audience was with him throughout the lecture.

The novel had its beginning in club or social life in the coffee houses of England where men gathered to discuss the play or affairs of the day. Novel as its name implies meant something new not a past myth. It was the Cinderella of the family of drama, essay and poetry until released by the fairy prince into real thought and growth by an interest in the human being and its welfare. The novel can be divided into three periods that of personality—the backbone of all novels; democracy—where writers began to write of the social conditions of humanity, overthrowing the predjudice which had clung to those on the under side; truth—when writers began to write about men and women as they lived.

A novel to live must have action. life and human interest.

Dr. Burton gave several illustrations of his ideas regarding good and bad form in novel writing, with frank criticism of some of the earlier writers and appreciative tribute to recent novelists, Robert Louis Stevenson and Kipling and some of the delightful stories of today such as "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch."

All good things have an end and so with Dr. Burton's lecture, it had to stop, although his audience would have enjoyed hearing him much longer and expressed their appreciation in hearty applause. After the meeting many expressed their pleasure personally.

PLANCON RECITAL AT COLONIAL HALL

Quincy Music Lovers Enjoy Rare Treat

Although the weather was far from pleasant, Colonial hall Tuesday night was filled with music lovers who braved the elements in order to attend the song recital given by C. Pol Plancon. That the audience was well repaid for all the discomfiture experienced was a self evident fact.

Mr. Plancon was assisted by Jacques Hoffmann, violinist and E. Cutter accompanist. Mrs. Laurance H. Stutrevant whose name was down on the program, was suffering from a severe cold and was unable to appear.

The program last night was varied and interesting and gave Mr. Plancon a chance to display his splendid voice to great advantage. He is so well known in Quincy that there is little need to recall the ample voice and style, the warmth of feeling and tone with which Mr. Plancon sings.

He is first of all a dramatizing singer, whose voice has the qualities of imagination and experssion that make his songs, no matter what they may be, vivid to his hearers. At all times he is the singing actor.

As an illustration of this power one has but to take two of the songs sung by Mr. Plancon last night. "Coolan Dhu" by Leoni and "The Two Grenadiers" by Schumann.

In the first song the singer is called upon to interpret the part of a lover singing a soft plaintive strain while "The Two Grendiers" has a martial ring, with an undercurrent of sorrow running through it. As the lover Mr. Plancon was perfect, the subtle tones of his voice showing his splendid powers of expression.

In "The Two Grenadiers" he was every inch the soldier, sorowing because his "leader" had been imprisoned. His voice had the pathos and the fire that rings true, and the audience were fairly on edge.

Mr. Hoffmann is a member of the Symphony orcehstra and is a violinist of exceptional ability. His is the power not merely to interest, but to stir and transport his hearers, to stimulate their emotional and win their musical senses. His playing of the Faust Fantaisie by Wieniowski showed his wonderful mastery of the violin.

Mr. Cutter the accompanist was all that could be desired. Throughout the entire program he was in complete sympathy with the artists and followed each varying expression with a remarkable brilliancy of execution.

Following is the program:

Caro Mio Ben	Giordani
Don Juan Serenade	Tschaikowsky
Coolan Dhu	Leoni
I Love and the World is Mine	Johns

SAVINGS BANK DEVELOP THRIFT

in his old age. Financial independence in old age ought to be a thing for a man to look forward to. Something he ought to have.

We want it so that charity will be exceptional and not general. First what a man earns must get the most that money can buy. It must be invested and managed with the greatest possible economy. It must be such a system that the smallest amount may be made currently from the earnings.

They must not only take care of the money but they must have absolute confidence in the management. The certainty that the institution may be run for the people who use it. These we have in our Savings banks. Here we have an institution for furnishing an old age annuity.

The Savings banks that adopt the insurance plan may have as many agencies as it desires. We believe the time will come when there will be no trade union or large employer who will not have these agencies. The plan is to do this by voluntary act and not by compulsion. To reach this condition must be by education. You will find a large percentage of the misery about you is because the contingencies of life have not been provided for. If one part of the energy given to automobiles was given to the study of the social problem we would have no social problem today. It behooves us to remember that it is a happy chance if we are better off than others.

No place offers a better opportunity for making provision for old age insurance than right here in Quincy. The very movement of school savings banks shows how it is possible to develop this thrift. You have done in a few months what other places have taken years to do. The insurance idea is an educational movement. The horror of people is a pauper burial. A pauper living is worse.

At the conclusion of his talk Mr. Brandeis was asked several questions which he gladly answered. He was then given a rising vote of thanks.

CALLS TESTIMONY MANIFESTLY FALSE

Startling Charges by Counsel For Thornton Hains

Flushing, N. Y., Jan. 13.—Charges that the testimony of the members of the Bayside Yacht club was manufactured and that witnesses were withdrawn from the stand because their evidence was not sufficiently rehearsed were made by Lawyer John F. McIntyre in summing up the defense in the trial of Thornton J. Hains.

Mr. McIntyre pointed out discrepancies which, he asserted, showed that much of the testimony of the state had been rehearsed in an instruction school. He declared that a portion of the testimony of Mrs. William E. Annis, whose husband was shot and killed by Captain Peter C. Hains, was "manifestly false and that her story had not been sufficiently rehearsed."

Mr. McIntyre and Prosecutor Darrin had several verbal clashes during McIntyre's dramatic recital.

TO SPEAK AT FIRST CHURCH.

Rev. E. W. Kenyon Evangelist well known to many of the people of First United Presbyterian church of this city is to speak in the church this evening at 7.30. Rev. Mr. Kenyon is a most successful Evangelist, and the people of the church have very kind recollections of him, as he conducted a very successful revival campaign here some five years ago.

MAKARIA FRATERNITY HOLDS FOURTH ANNUAL

"Affinities" and "Alliances" Chief Themes of After Dinner Speakers.

The fourth annual banquet of Makaria Fraternity was held Wednesday evening at Bethany church. The attendance this year was larger than at any of the previous banquets and it was the universal opinion that this was the most successful of any.

The dinner was excellent and well served. The speaking good. Largely in a humorous vein with just enough serious thought to make it interesting. From 6 to 6.30 there was a reception in the chapel. In the receiving line were Dr. Hardy pastor of the church, Dr. Howard A. Bridgman, editor of the Congregationalist and Charles E. Grassick President of the fraternity. The ushers were members of the fraternity.

During the reception music was furnished by the Y. M. C. A. orchestra, who also furnished music during the dinner. Just a word in passing about the orchestra. Several instruments have been added since its public appearance at the no-license rally last fall. This gave it a heavier accompaniment and proved a great addition. Their selections were well chosen and rendered with the vim of veterans.

At 6.30 a march was taken to the lower room where the tables had been laid. At one end of the room was the large fraternity flag and over each of the tables were arches trimmed with red and green crepe paper. The lights also had crepe paper shades giving the room a soft tone.

Delcevare King was the toastmaster and with a few words of welcome introduced Dr. Hardy who asked the blessing. Then came the command, be seated and attack, which all did with a will.

The waiters were some of the charming young ladies of the church and included Miss Addie J. Park, Miss Emma M. Spaulding, Miss Catherine D. Laing, Miss Mary L. Murray, Miss Carrie E. Parker, Miss Alice E. Webb, Miss Dulah E. Miller, Miss Louis E. Williams, Miss Edith M. Lovejoy, Miss Sarah B. Parker, Miss Lillian Abele, Mrs. Breta M. Pierce, Miss Ethel Grant, Miss Jessie Gardner and Miss Marion Mitchell.

They proved themselves admirable waitresses and if any of the fellows have not as yet found their affinity they should not overlook these misses.

Delcevare King as usual proved himself an admirable toastmaster and at the conclusion of the dinner introduced President Grassick as the first speaker. In opening he said that he never knew before that the fellows had so many affinities. He could compliment them however on their choice. He remembered the bachelors table of last year. Look on my left and I think you will agree I have made some progress. The fraternity was now taking up Bible lessons under the leadership of Dr. Hardy and Mr. King. He appreciated what they were doing. He also referred to C. W. Ganzel who carries the christian spirit into the ball field and Harry Brooks one of the best of workers.

To him is due in a great measure the credit of this banquet. He also referred to E. W. Branch. With such leaders why should not the fraternity prosper. He extended an invitation to all young men not connected with other churches to come to the meetings. He was sure they would help them.

Dr. Hardy the second speaker was at his best. He seemed to be possessed of a fund of humorous stories which he told in his inimitable way. These affinities he said pleased him greatly. This was one of the finest church banquets ever held and great credit was due Mr. Brooks for his management. Coming to a more serious point he told of a poor woman and her four good sons who had been brought up under the three rules, prayer, manners and to work.

This was his theme. It was well to start the new year by being right with God. It was a good thing to have your windows open toward Jerusalem. You will make no mistake if they are. There is nothing that can not be accomplished with hard work. There is nothing so sure to make success for men and women than hard work. Never be afraid of hard work. Work for your officers, the church, the home and for the betterment of the world.

W. G. Shaw proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Brooks which was given by a rising vote.

Dr. Bridgman the speaker of the evening also had a large fund of stories which he derw from in opening his remarks which prepared his hearers for the more serious thoughts that followed. We hear much today, said Dr. Bridgman, of alliances. A measure for better understanding and mutual support. Fortunate is the young man starting in business or going into politics who has strong allies. When man turns his eye inward to his aspirations, to God's will, he may well consider his allies. He is a vain fellow who thinks he needs no assistance in character building.

We need an alliance first of all with two or three great forces, by which we can climb toward that great goal.

The first of these alliances is the home. The greatest of all activity. The home is a great help in character building. A man will get much help in the confidence he gets within those four walls of home. Here he gets over estimated but it is a great stimulant for a man to try and live up to it. He said he could hardly think of a religious leader whose power was not largely due to the home. The best work we can do in the world is in the making of a God's home. The speaker also said he wanted to say a word about holding high the work of the church.

FATAL ACCIDENT AT SUBMARINE PLANT

One Man Killed and Three Others Badly Injured.

One man was fatally injured and three others more or less injured Wednesday afternoon by the explosion of a tank in a small building used by the Electrical Boat Co. for experimental purposes. The four men were at work in the building, which is a small one, testing a tank with compressed air. Suddenly without warning the tank exploded, throwing the men in all directions and completely wrecking the building.

The yard fire alarm was sounded and willing hands were soon on the scene, to rescue the four men who were known to have been in the building. It was seen that but one of the men was dangerously injured. That was Carl Bergstrom of South street. He was immediately taken to the yard hospital, where after first aid had been given him he was sent to the City Hospital, where he died several hours later. He was frightfully burned and bruised about the head and body. The unfortunate man was about 35 years of age and leaves a widow.

The other men injured were Gregory C. Davidson of Hingham, recently Lieut. Commander in the U. S. N. Commander Davidson was stationed at the Newport torpedo station and was an expert. When he was retired from the navy he was immediately engaged by the Electric Boat Co.

He was more or less bruised and cut and possibly received injuries to the drum of his ear. C. H. Bedell of Wollaston and B. L. Glenn of South street were also cut and bruised to a more or less extent, although it is not thought that the injuries of these three men will result seriously.

These men were taken to their homes in carriages and were attended by their own physicians.

The explosion took place shortly before 4 o'clock and was the occasion of many wild rumors. But little information could be obtained from the Electric Boat Co. as to the cause of the accident. This company is engaged in the building of several submarines for the government and the uttermost secrecy is maintained as to the work on these vessels.

From other sources, however, it was learned that the men were engaged in an experiment of some kind and were using compressed air when the tank that was being experimented upon, exploded.

THE DOG IS DEAD.

The dog is dead and one more trouble is off of the mind of Mayor Shea. For some days past red hot complaints have come over the Mayor's telephone wire into his honor's ear complaining of this collie dog.

The last straw was added Wednesday night when a telephone message was received from a man who said his name was George W. Jones. It was another hot complaint about that dog and ended by saying that the dog had just chewed up a $3.50 rug.

The Mayor was not asked to make that rug good although it was intimated that a new rug would be acceptable.

"I am very sorry George, I'll attend to that dog immediately and will see you later at the club." The Mayor said nothing about paying for the rug but a few minutes later the police station wire got red hot. This morning the Mayor smiles again. Ask him the reason and he will answer "the dog is dead."

A New York minister has divided the 'Ananias Club" into two sections. One he calls "liars," while the other he calls "messengers of eternal truth."

Fish cooked in a hundred different ways will be served in the Alaska building at the Seattle Exposition next year. This will be done to demonstrate the value of Alaska fish as a food product.

At Salem yesterday a member of the Saratoga, N. J., pony polo team was fined $50. for cruelty to a polo pony in a polo game at Hamilton last September. It is sincerly to be hoped that judges in other parts of the country will follow the precedent established by Judge Sears. Polo at best is hard on a pony and everything possible in the way of kindness should be accorded these gamey little beasts.

That the Citizens' of Quincy are waking up to the fact that it is "up to them" to make our city "better and busier" is evident from the letters it receives daily by the Ledger. We are glad to receive such letters and shall be glad to publish as many of them as we can, providing they bear the signature of the person who wrote them. These signatures we do not always publish but simply require them as a matter of good faith.

Since the last meeting of the special committee on charter revision, wild rumors have been floating around town to the effect that a certain clique of men had vowed to pass certain proposed amendments to the charter, if they had to "pack" City hall to do so. Other rumors have been current to the effect that certain men had approached the members of a local organization asking them to vote yes on certain amendments and no on certain others. Still another persistent rumor is, that an entirely new proposition will be brought up containing practically all the important changes recommended by the special committee only the draft will be worded in such a manner, as to convey a different meaning

Since the Mayor issued the call for the mass meeting Saturday night, the voters have had a chance to study the various recommendations made by the committee on revision and a strong opposition to some of them has developed.

The principal objection comes from the labor men who, (although no official statement has been made) are known to be opposed to such a small council, as the proposed amendment calls for. The Socialist club is also opposed to the recommendation, claiming that it places the city government in the hands of a few and not in the hands of the people.

Another objectionable recommendation to many is, the proposed extension of the mayor's term of office from one to three years. Some people favor two and some favor an annual election.

The Board of Trade has placed itself on record as opposed to revision and it is said that the majority of the members will vote to this effect Saturday.

Therefore with all the various elements working in apparent opposition to each other it looks rather black for the champions of revision, although they claim everything will be smooth sailing, when people understand just what they are aiming at, and how much the City will be benefited by the proposed changes. At any rate whether the revisionists gain their point or not there is bound to be a test of strength in which the strongest will win the battle. If the revisionists win then the mayor will be requested to petition the legislature for a new or revised charter, while if the opposition wins the charter will remain as it is for some time to come.

KING TO LABOR FOR THE STATE

Prison Will Be His Home For at Least Ten Years

DOWNFALL OF THE FINANCIER

He Attributes It to Lawson's Alleged Secret Fighting Against Him—Man Who Occupied Palatial Offices and Did Extensive Business Disappeared and Returned Only to Be Convicted on Many Charges

Boston, Jan. 14.—Cardenio Flavius King, former financial agent and broker, occupying palatial offices in Boston and New York, and for a short time publisher of a daily paper in Boston, was last night sentenced by Judge Schofield in the superior criminal court to serve a term of not less than ten and not more than fourteen years, at hard labor, in the state prison, having been convicted in twenty-one counts on the charges of larceny, embezzlement and securing on false pretences the sum of $22,000 from his customers.

The sentence imposed upon King followed a most dramatic recital, in which King reviewed the story of his life, his flight from Boston and his travels in London, Paris and Ceylon, declaring that he was innocent of wrong intent in any of his acts and closing by accusing Thomas W. Lawson of secretly fighting him and bringing him to financial ruin.

Mrs. King and her two sons sat inside the rail, close to the prisoner, as sentence was pronounced. King was immediately taken to the Charles street jail and then to the Charlestown state prison, where he began his sentence last night.

King's Financial Career

King began his financial operations in Boston late in 1904, when he opened extensive offices. Through extensive and unique advertising he attracted many investors to his office and as well did a big business by correspondence. Among other offers he presented combinations of blocks of stock of companies promoted by himself, with listed stocks.

His business increasing, he opened even more lavishly furnished offices in New York city and early in 1907 began the publication of the Boston Daily Tribune. The New York offices failed to pay and the paper was discontinued after it had run for several months, having cost its promoter, it was claimed, nearly half a million dollars.

Early in 1908 customers of King began making complaints that listed stocks for which they had sent him money were not forwarded to them. Suddenly on Feb. 21, 1908, it was announced that King had placed all his property and affairs in the hands of trustees. A meeting of creditors soon followed and King was declared a bankrupt and Lee M. Friedman appointed trustee by the creditors. An investigation showed liabilities of $297,881.25 and assets of $13,668.78.

King in the meantime had disappeared and following an investigation by the authorities a warrant was issued for his arrest. On June 12, he appeared at police headquarters and surrendered himself. He was placed under arrest but later released, on securing bail in the sum of $25,000.

His trial began on Dec. 14, the charge being in thirty-one counts and alleging larceny, embezzlement and false pretences. On Dec. 29 King was found guilty on twenty-one of the counts. Bail was increased to $35,000 and King was released, pending a motion for exceptions. Two days later he was surrendered by one of his bondsmen and, failing to again secure proper securities, had been in jail until his sentence.

DAME'S DEFENSE

Says He Shot Sterling That He Might Save His Own Life

Dover, N. H., Jan. 14.—The evidence in the trial of John E. Dame, charged with the murder of Policeman Walter S. Sterling, has been concluded and it is expected that the case will go to the jury today.

Dame testified Wednesday in his own behalf, saying that he shot Sterling in self-defense after Sterling had attacked him and threatened to kill him.

Other witnesses declared that Sterling, for some time previous to the shooting, had been dangerously insane.

KERN IN THE LEAD IN FIRST BALLOTS

Shively Overtakes Him In Indiana Senatorial Contest

Indianapolis, Jan. 14.—The caucus of the Democratic members of the Indiana legislature which met last night to choose a United States senator failed to make a choice up to this morning, when thirteen ballots had been taken.

John W. Kern had a good lead on the first eight ballots and on the third he increased his vote to thirty-four, only eight more being necessary to win, but they were not forthcoming. B. F. Shively made gains throughout the balloting and passed Kern on the fourteenth ballot. Edward G. Hoffman's supporters have stood solidly by him, but he has so far been unable to make any headway outside of his district.

The result of the fourteenth ballot follows: Kern, 29; Shively, 31; Slack, 4; Lamb, 7; Hoffman, 5; Menzies, 4½; Niblack, 1½; Zearing, 1.

A LACK OF PROPRIETY

Results In Suffragette Being Ejected From Banquet Hall

Birmingham, Jan. 13.—The constantly varying tactics of the woman suffragists developed an extraordinary scene at a political banquet given here last night to Winston S. Churchill, president of the board of trade, and caused much embarrassment to a large company of men and women who attended the function.

During the dinner a woman in evening dress went to the table where Churchill was sitting and commenced to argue with him in favor of votes for women. The conversation was carried on for some time, the woman standing, facing Mr. Churchill, who, with his wife, remained seated, eating his dinner.

Finally the official insisted that the woman leave the dining hall and, upon refusing to do so, she was taken by the shoulders and escorted to the door, meanwhile shouting suffragette battle cries.

JUROR BADLY BATTERED

His Pluck Saves the Hains Case From a Mistrial

Flushing, N. Y., Jan. 14.—Only the pluck of Juror Thomas Walsh saved the Hains case from mistrial and postponement Wednesday. Battered almost beyond recognition from a fall from a street car Tuesday night, Walsh came from the hospital to the court and sat through the day's trial, though at times he appeared to suffer greatly and Justice Crane took frequent recesses that the injured juror might recover his strength.

When court adjourned Juror Walsh was placed in the care of a physician by Justice Crane, that his injuries might not cause a mistrial of the case.

Counsel for the defense concluded their summing up Wednesday afternoon and Prosecutor Darrin began his address to the jury.

SECOND DEGREE MURDER

New York, Jan. 14.—Enrique Delars, the 17-year-old San Dominican student who fatally shot Rev. Arturo Asencio in Central Park, pleaded guilty in the supreme court to murder in the second degree for the killing of the priest. He was remanded until Jan. 25 for sentence.

The priest met the lad on a steamer which was bringing them from San Domingo and befriended him after their arrival here, the two living together. On the night of the tragedy the two men went walking in the park, where Delara shot his benefactor and robbed him of $15 in cash.

GHASTLY SIGHTS AT LICK BRANCH

Victims of Explosion Mangled Beyond Recognition

Bluefield, W. Va., Jan. 14.—A total of thirty-five bodies have been taken from the ill-fated mine at Lick Branch.

It is difficult, the rescue crews declare, to distinguish between white and black men in the mine because they are so frightfully burned. Some bodies taken from the mine resemble charred masses of flesh more than human beings. From some bodies the legs are gone, from others the arms. One was completely headless.

Experienced mine men are authority for the statement that this is the first case on record where two explosions took place in the same mine in such a short space of time, and are unable to explain its cause.

AWFUL WORK WITH KNIFE

Crazy Man Attacks Wife, Brother and Four Other Persons

Hamilton, O., Jan. 14.—Rudolph Wirtz, secretary of the Wirtz Transfer company, a prominent business man, went insane and ran amuck. Wirtz assailed his wife with a penknife at home. He cut and stabbed the woman forty-four times, cutting out her left eye and severing her right thumb.

Wirtz was beaten almost insensible before being disarmed. He slashed his brother Julius twelve times and injured four other men, but they will recover.

The woman's screams attracted several men, who tried to disarm the maniac. A terrific encounter took place in the parlor of the Wirtz home. The interior of the room was almost covered with blood.

WEAK KIDNEYS MAKE WEAK BODIES.

As one weak link weakens a chain, so weak kidneys weaken the whole body and hasten the final breaking down.

Overwork, strains, colds and other causes injure the kidneys, and when their activity is lessened the whole body suffers from the excess of uric poison circulated in the blood.

Aches and pains and languor and urinary ills come, and there is an ever-increasing tendency towards diabetes and fatal Bright's disease. There is no real help for the sufferer except kidney help.

John R. Duffy, living at 14 Copeland St., Quincy, Mass., says: "I am so favorably impressed with Doan's Kidney Pills that it gives me pleasure to recommend them to anyone suffering from kidney complaint. I am fully convinced that this remedy will do all that it is claimed for. If anyone would like to obtain further details regarding my case, I will be glad to answer any question. SEVENTEEN LONG HOURS IN SADDLE

Roosevelt Rides Ninety-Eight Miles Over Virginia Roads

AN OBJECT LESSON TO CRITICS

Physical Test of Army and Navy Officers, Who Are Supposed to Be Always In Best of Physical Condition, Outdone by President—Thirty Miles of the Journey In Sleet and Rain—Returns In Fine Condition

Washington, Jan. 14.—President Roosevelt rode ninety-eight miles on horseback yesterday, and when he dismounted last night at the White House door, more than seventeen hours after having departed therefrom, he did not show any marked signs of weariness.

The object of his long day in the saddle, he explained to a representative of The Associated Press after his return, was to "prove to the critics who have found fault with the recent order requiring all army and navy officers to take a physical test, that if a president who is not in training can ride ninety miles plus in one day without being laid up in bed thereby, it should not be too much to ask the men who are supposed to be in the best of physical training all the time, to ride ninety miles in three days."

Mounting his faithful rider and jumper "Roswell" in front of the White House door at 3:30 o'clock in the morning, the president dismounted at the same place at 8:40 o'clock last night. The journey was to Warrenton, Va., and back. "And Virginia roads in the winter time," said the president, "are not usually in the best condition."

On the return trip the last thirty miles of the journey were made in sleet and rain, while the last fifteen miles were in almost pitch darkness. When the president dismounted his coat and hat were frozen stiff with sleet and ice.

Four Relays of Horses

There were four relays of horses, the first stage of the journey out and the last in being made by the president on "Roswell;" the second out and the third in being on "Georgia," while the other two were on army horses which the president had never before mounted.

Both the outward and the return trip lay through Fairfax Court House to Warrenton. Arriving at the latter place about 11 o'clock, where the president's coming had been heralded before his arrival, he was greeted by a gathering of citizens and schoolchildren, to whom he spoke a few words of greeting. They took luncheon at the Warren Green Hotel.

In less than an hour after returning to the White House the president had changed his ice-coated clothing for evening dress and appeared in the dining room, ready for as hearty a meal as he has eaten for a long time.

PAPERS FROM ANY DEPARTMENT

Senator Bacon Says Congress Has Power to Demand Them

Washington, Jan. 14.—The authority of congress to direct heads of executive departments to send to the senate or house information in their possession was the subject of an extended speech in the senate by Senator Bacon of Georgia.

Mr. Bacon took the broad view that congress had absolute power to demand from heads of departments any information within their possession and even to require them to give reasons for their action or non-action on any matter coming before them.

Senator Lodge questioned the power of congress to demand papers on file in diplomatic matters and insisted upon the right of the president to exercise discretion in such matters. Senator Hale stated that he would regret seeing congress and the president lock horns on the quesition of the power of congress to procure information in possession of the executive departments.

Several senators joined in the debate, all of them upholding the power of the senate in the matter under consideration.

FAVOR BIRD FIGHTING

Cuban Liberals Will Also Introduce Bill For National Lottery

Havana, Jan. 14.—Bills legalizing cock-fighting and the establishment of a national lottery will be among the first measures before the new congress.

The Liberal party, which has an overwhelming majority in both senate and house, is said to favor a lottery, and its members are openly announcing that they will rush a cock-fighting bill through.

There was little public interest manifested in the gathering of the legislators, the purpose of the meeting being merely to pass upon the credentials of members.

BY SUBSTANTIAL MARGIN

State Wide Prohibition Bill Passed by Tennessee Assembly

Nashville, Jan. 14.—The bill to prohibit the sale of all intoxicating liquor in Tennessee after July 1, 1909, passed the lower house of the general assembly last night by a vote of 62 to 36.

The measure now goes to Governor Patterson, who, it is expected, will veto it. Under the constitution, his veto only operates as a suggestion, not as a stay, and a bare majority may pass a bill over the executive's unfavorable action.

The "State Widers" are jubilantly asserting that the bill will be passed over the governor's veto.

Miss Helen Coombs of Boston was a guest of Miss Florence Hill of Walker street last week.

The Men's club of Christ church will hold their annual banquet at the Parish house, Wednesday evening, Jan. 20.

Mrs. William Cummings of Clive street entertained her sister, Miss French of Cambridge over the week end.

Commissioner Bainbridge is taking the necessary steps to provide skating ponds in each of the wards of the city.

Miss Lisabelle Linnell of Davis street entertained several of her college classmates Monday evening in honor of Miss Annie Peters of Watertown, N. Y., who announced her engagement New Year's day.

At the evening service of Memorial Congregational church last Sunday, there were one hunderd and thirty-eight in the congregation the largest attendance at any one service for many years.

The Quincy Socialist club at their meeting Tuesday night discussed the proposed change in the City Charter and voted that it was not in favor of the proposed changes as putting too much power in the hands of the few.

The Quincy Choral society has already held eight rehearsals and the ninth is announced for Thursday evening, Jan. 21st, at Colonial hall, The society continues to gain in membership, both active and associate. The prospects of having a chorus in the near future that will compare favorably with the best in the state seems assured.

The Men's club of Atlantic has drawn several new members within its fold and its meetings are interesting in the extreme. The meeting last week was attended by seventy-five representatives and Mr. J. R. Neal spoke most eloquently on the "Division of the Street Railway System." The next meeting will be on the 3d Thursday of this month and will be addressed by Mr. Robert Luce of Somerville.

Mrs. Edmund Wade, teacher of cooking at the Quincy Mansion school, gave one of her popular lectures in the culinary art in Atlantic Music hall on January sixth. The hall was filed with cooking enthusiasts. Mrs. Wade's illustrations were extremely interesting as she is unquestionably familiar with her subject and those who were fortunate enough to be among the novices of the audience learned many valuable lessons.

A prominent Atlantic citizen has evinced sudden interest in a local skating pond and if he would only put his theories into practice this good cold weather, could be doing wonders in the way of preparing the ice. Several sites have been mentioned, among the most popular is the Atlantic playground, which is the skating rendevous for other suburbs. If any action is to be taken in this matter it ought to be instantaneous as the winter months are rapidly on the wane.

A fine looking man called at a house on Walker street Tuesday afternoon and asked for any kind of work, especially that in the cellar. He did not look like one accustomed to sift ashes or shovel coal, and the woman who chanced to be alone, did not open the door, but talked to him through the glass. At her refusal to admit him, the man turned abruptly and walked rapidly down the street. He called at no other house and looked neither right nor left on his way to the station. Just what his real object was in calling at that special house remains a mystery.

BRITISH CHARITY BALL.

Great interest is being manifested in the British Charity ball to be held in the new Intercolonial club house, Boston, on Friday evening, February 19th, the entire clubhouse being engaged for that occasion. The success of the ball is already assured by the active co-operation of all the British and colonial societies and clubs in Boston and vicinity. The objects of the ball are to raise funds to be dispensed through the agency of the British Charitable society and its woman's auxiliary among worthy Britishers who become destitute in the city of Boston and also especially to promote social intercouse among the many thousands in Boston and vicinity of British birth or connection. The British Charitable society is now in the 93d year of its existence, and is one of the oldest charitable organizations in America. Its membership is composed of natives of the British Empire throughout the world and their immediate descendants, and American citizens of British origin are equally welcomed and urged to become members. The aggregate membership of all the Societies and Clubs interested numbers fully 8,000. Tickets on sale at office T. T. Stokes, secretary, 5 Park square, or at office Dominion Atlantic Ry. NEWTOWNE CLUB THEATRICALS.

The "Rose of India," which the Newtowne club of Cambridge is to present during the first week of February, is an unusually humorous play. The scene is laid in the hill town of Poonah, British India, where amid picturesque surroundings the native life and that of the British garrison mingle in vivid contrast. Bradley Burke a hustling rug buyer for a New York house, hearing that the Nyszm, the native ruler possesses a priceless rug, comes to Poonah in search of it. He falls in love at first sight with Nadia, a beautiful Nautch dancer. Nadia, having great influence with the Nyzan, enters into a compact with Burke to lend her assistance in securing the rug. The quest of the rug leads to many amusing and complicated situations. There are sword dancers, snake dancers, gun dancers, whirling dervish dancers, rose maidens, priests, fakirs and all types of native life, forming a riot of color and a continuous feast for the eye. The scenery is all new, being assembled especially for the "Rose of India" and the cast including such prominent amateurs as Watler E. Anderton, Sam Shannon, W. L. Mercer, Jr., and H. S. Mode should necessitate the use of the "S. R. O." sign every night of the play. The "Rose of India" will be played February 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6th, an extra night being added this year owing to the popularity of the piece as shown by the advance sale of tickets.

While driving in a pony cart on Bellevue road East Braintree Wednesday afternoon Miss Dorothy Edwards 10 year old daughter of superintendent Edwards of the Fore River Ship Building Company and William F. LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

The Quincy Daily Ledger,
Quincy, Mass.

Gentlemen:—It was with a great deal of satisfaction that the writer persued the articles published recently in your editorial columns relative to the tax question, and especially to the idea of the business men of Quincy waking up toward the end of starting commercial progress.

Without doubt there are a great many men who would willingly back any business proposition providing some responsible parties would take the initiative toward a "bigger and busier Quincy," commercially.

Your articles are certainly worthy of more than a passing consideration, and it is sincerely hoped will be followed up until some concerted action is taken to start the spirit of business enthusiasm.

The average business man of today whenever approached in a commercial way asks, what is your proposition; and can we say truthfully, that any manufacturing enterprise has been approached with a proposition to settle here.

The boards of Trades and business men of most Cities or Towns, are constantly on the lookout to accept propositions which will promote the commercial welfare of their communities, and to do so are constantly advertising, and talking the industrial advantages of their own centers.

Very recently many shoe factories have moved away from Lynn and Brockton, and why couldn't they have been induced to settle here instead of Bridgewater, Weymouth, Nashua and Chelsea? The answer is easy, they could; but our Board of Trade probably did not approach them, and I don't believe ever broached the matter at one of their meetings.

Will not ask to have this letter published, but trust you will find it consistent to do so, hoping a start may be made in the right direction.

Would respectfully suggest soliciting correspondence through your editorial columns, and printing letters when received so we may all lend a hand in starting the movement of commercial progress.

Sincerely yours
A Reader.

WHIST AT GRANITE CITY CLUB.

Although there were many social events on the calendar for Wednesday evening there was a good attendance at the weekly whist tournament at the rooms of the Granite City club. The best scores of the evening were made by James H. Peniman and J. H. Johnson. The tie in the November monthly booby price between Charles C. Hearn and Warren H. Rideout was settled Wednesday evening it being established beyond a doubt that Mr. Rideout was entitled to the trophy for being the poorest player. After the play refreshments were served by Henry P. Furnald.

DARTMOUTH ALUMNI ASSO.

Notable plans are afoot for the annual dinner of the Dartmouth Alumni Association, of Boston, which is to be held Friday evening, January 22, at Hotel Somerset. The post-prandial layout this year promises to be of exceptional strength. Most notable of all, to many, will be the presence of President Tucker, who was kept away last January by illness. Another college president will be in attendance and talk to the "boys"—Charles W. Eliot, of Harvard. Whatever President Eliot says nowadays is of interest, and he is expected to touch upon some topic of special importance. Other speakers will be Hon. Charles A. Prouty, of the Interstate Commerce Commission; Hon. Samuel L. Powers, who will respond for the trustees; Prof. Julius A. Brown, a great grandson of President Brown of the college, who will speak for the faculty; E. K. Hall, of the football rules committee; and Dr. John C. O'Connor, the famous coach, who will talk on athletic developments, and in all probability Judge David Cross, of the class of '41, Dartmouth's "Old Man Eloquent," who will give what has long been known as the "benediction." There will be plenty of rousing songs under the direction of Harry McDevitt, aided and abetted by a cohort of melodists from Hanover. Incidentally the famous "Round Table" will enliven the evening in its own inimitable way.

FROM ALL QUARTERS.

Happy exceptions to the fire record for 1908 are to be found in the cases of Barre, Vt, where the loss, which greater than in 1907, was only $7267, and Portsmouth, N. H., where it was barely over $1000.

There died this week at Cumberland, Md. Lewis Edmundson, aged 98, believed to have been the oldest newsboy in the world. He was once a slave, but escaped and acted as scout for the union forces in the civil war.

A veritable prodigy is Stanislaw Bochenko of Graniteville, a son of a Polish couple, who at the age of 5 years is master of four languages. Beside English and his native Polish he can talk fluently in French and Italian, and often serves as interpreter about the town.

The city of Bellefontoine, O, experienced a famine the other day It was famine, however, not of food or water but of pins, every store in the city by a strange coincidence being out of them.

The fattest man in New England is declared to be Arthur H. Moulton of Portland, Me. He weighs 415 1-2 pounds and is president of the New England fat men's club.

Curious reasons assigned for the decline of the pottery trade in England are that in many London hotels the German employes gives the preference to Germany in ordering their ware, and that among Londoners the growth of the habit of dining out has caused a marked diminution in the demand for dinner sets.

—The marriage rate in the United States according to the Census Department in the year 1900 was 93 per 10,000 population. Based upon the adult unmarried (single widowed, or divorced) population, the rate becomes 321 per 10,000, indicating that in each year something over 3 per cent of the unmarried adult population marry. The marriage rate based on the total population is higher in the United States than in any other country for which reliable statistics are available. But taking the marriageable population as the basis—that is the population which is of marriageable age but not married—the rate in the United States is not as high as it is in Hungary, is about the same as it is in Saxony, but is still higher than in any of the other countries included in the comparison.

WANT BETTER EXPRESS SERVICE

Houghs Neck Associates to Take Matter to Boston.

The Houghs Neck Associates, incorporated, held their first regular bi-monthly meeting last night at their club house at Houghs Neck. The meeting was very well attended and some very sharp debates on several questions took place.

President Archie F. Baird presided. The first business of the evening was the reading of the records of the last meeting. The Auditing committee made a report showing that the association was in debt for a small sum. The auditors reported several bills that they considered exorbitant and suggested that a committee be appointed for each bill and inspect them. The gas bill was placed into the hands of Archie F. Baird, and the printing bill be taken care of by Alfred N. LaBrecque. The supper committee of December 31 reported that after all bills had been paid there was a balance of seven dollars. It was voted that the balance be turned into the treasury.

The matter of expressage at Houghs Neck was discussed at length by many of the members. Mr. Murphy of West Quincy was present and explained the conditions of the express business as carried on by the Boston department stores. President Baird appointed the following committee to wait on the heads of the big stores in Boston with the view of getting better service on expressage, Henry W. French, chairman, John P. Moses, Patrick F. O'Brien and Archie F. Baird ex-officio. The committee on garbage nuisance reported that the Board of Health had ordered a garbage wagon to make a trip to the Neck every second Monday.

FOURTH ANNUAL BANQUET

It behoves us to ask what we can do for the church. Are we giving it a place of prominence in our lives? You young men need the quiet hours of Sunday morning worship. There is no place where better English is used than in the pulpit. The church is your ally. It will give you what nothing else will.

Every man should also form an alliance with a personal faith. He had rather leave to his children personal faith in Jesus Christ than an education. It will save us from our sins. It will be our guide and master, day by day. Make the Home, Church and Faith your allies for the next year.

Ernest W. Branch had a word to say about a course of Bible reading classes, after which he destributed tickets for the first evening to those present. He also told a number of amusing stories.

Bert Miller, an ex-president of the fraternity, told of the work of the fraternity. A good rule to follow was work. He hoped that the present year would be a prosperous one for the class.

Dr. Darney brought the greetings of the Page class, 350 strong of Roxbury, and Mr. Bishop brought the greetings of the Baraca class of the Dorchester church.

Harry Curtis told of the plans of the ball team for the coming year and of the high standard of the work of Ganzel.

Harry Brooks then presented Dr. Hardy with a turkey and Charles Howard, the manager of the ball team, with a silver loving cup. Mr. Howard voiced his thanks in a few brief words.

E. G. Gay had a word to say of the close alliance between the fraternity and the Y. M. C. A.

The last speaker was Walter Nichols, who was assigned to speak for the ladies. Mr. Nichols paid a high compliment to them and said he was sure that there was never a gathering with so many attractive ladies present as at this banquet.

Today's Court.

NEW CODDINGTON SCHOOL OFFICIALLY ACCEPTED

Dedication Exercises Held In Assembly Hall Thursday Evening

Appropriate exercises marked the official delivery of the new Coddington school building by the builders to the city. The exercises were held Thursday evening in the assembly hall at the new building. Although the weather was bad a goodly number braved the elements to be present.

In the audience were many who had a tender spot in their hearts that was touched by the knowledge that the old building which has done service for so many years had given place to a new and model building, recognized by all to be the best school building in the city.

These included many former pupils and teachers. Miss Julia E. Underwood who for nearly 54 years has instilled into young minds their first insight into the wonders of an education was prominent among these teachers. The oldest pupil present perhaps was Thomas P. Healy of 346 Adams street who entered the school as a pupil the same year that Miss Underwood entered as a teacher. His daughter who also began her education there was present with him.

Seated on the platform were Mayor Shea, Dr. Hunting, chairman of the school committee, John J. O'Hara, Dexter E. Wadsworth, Herbert S. Parker, James F. Burke and Dr. E. H. Bushnell of the School Board and Superintendent of Schools Frank E. Parlin.

Others on the platform were Dr. John A. Gordon and Dr. Henry C. Hallowell both of whom were for several years chairmen of the Coddington sub-Committee. Commissioner of Public Works Randolph Bainbridge, Truant Officer Charles H. Johnson. Frederick W. Plummer master of the Woodward Institute Leslie L. Cleveland master of the High school. Rupert F. Claflin, James H. Elcock, Walter H. Bentley Master of the Coddington school. Charles A. Brigham, architect of the new building. Dennis F. Crowley the contractor of the building, his brother Cornelius Crowley the general foreman and Michael Crowley his father and John Harkins one of the sub-contractors.

The decorations for the occasion were several American flags.

The exercises opened with two selections sung by the school children under the direction of E. Landis Snyder the supervisor of music.

Mayor William T. Shea then made the opening address. Glancing about the hall for a minute to take in its appointments he said:

"I have been called upon, during my term of office as mayor of this city, to be present at various and diverse functions, but no event has occurred during my official life to give me more real pleasure than to be here tonight to assist in the dedication of this new school building. An occasion like this brings out the best side of our city government. You and I have heard many times, no doubt, that this or that action was undertaken for the sake of the political effect that might result. We will probably continue to hear remarks like this so long as popular government shall continue to exist but here tonight we all stand side by side in one of the finest and most unselfish demonstrations that one can witness in our municipal life; the dedication of a splendid school building and to whom?

To the school children of the city, the great, voiceless majority who have nothing to say as to how they shall be governed but who depend as trustfully upon the city for their educational advantages as they do on their parents for their homes and their food and clothing. If we had constructed this building for men or women this work would have been followed with keen eyes and many suggestions but on the part of the little ones who are to occupy it they have been unable to say a word as to what they would like. They have simply sat at their little desks day after day, trusting to those in authority over them that the work might be worthy of the effort. Bearing in mind the helplessness of the little ones who were to be the occupants of this building, I want to assure them, that in so far as the city has been able to do it, this building has been constructed with the idea in mind that for the comfort and safeguarding of the little ones entering this building or those who may come after, the city of Quincy has put forth its best efforts to secure for them the best school house that it was possible to get for the money at our command.

Tonight the city of Quincy gives to the school children a fine, new building. Let us hope the boys and girls who are to occupy it, these men and women of the future, will not soon forget the sacrifices the citizens have made to erect this building, nor the generosity of the city council which prepared the way. I hope this building will long continue to be an object of admiration to all who see it, as it is at the present time. I have heard builders and architects say that the new Coddington is one of the finest school houses in the state and I hope it will long continue to be so. The architect and builder have reason to be proud of their work. The citizens of Quincy have reason to be proud that nearly every bit of work was performed by Quincy tradesmen and that the erection was carried to completion without the vexatious delays that marked the construction of some of our other public buildings. I hope the principal and the other teachers, those men and women who do more than any other civic force to set our boys and girls on the road to decent living and upright citizenship, will continue long to enjoy the benefits of this building and will ever inculcate in

PRIZE DUTCHMAN AT FAXON HALL

Indian Maid, "Tommy Atkins" and Bride on Exhibition.

CLOWNS, PRINCESSES AND OTHERS ALSO PRESENT.

Fourth Annual Ball of Manet Encampment I. O. O. F. a Success.

"Oh! listen to the band
How merrily it plays."

With a rat a tat, tat and boom, boom, boom, boom, the Manet encampment band headed by the graceful drum major, E. L. Goodridge, jauntily balancing his stick, lead the grand march at the annual masquerade ball of Manet Encampment I. O. O. F.

Following the band came Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Flowers and over one hundred couples.

There were tramps, with a hungry look, chorus with a funny look, princesses with a haughty look, milkmaids with a coy look and scores of others, with scores of looks, making a weird and fantastic picture.

Princesses in shimmering satin and fluffy laces were leaning on the arms of gallant knights of the road, while shy and blushing milkmaids had velvet coated, bejewelled swashbucklers for their escorts.

And then after the grand march came the unmasking. The dashing beaux, the hungry hoboes, and the funny clowns were recognized as a next door neighbor or a brother from Wollaston, while the haughty princesses, the coy milkmaids were neighbor Blank's wife or brother John's daughter from West Quincy, and so on. And then after everybody had complimented everybody else on the cleverness of their costume, the dignified judges awarded prizes.

For the best "get up" Fred Williams as a Dutchman and Miss Bessie Pratt as an Indian maid, were awarded first prize. The second gentleman's prize was awarded James S. Baker as "Tommy Atkins" while the second ladies' prize went to Mrs. Thomas Johnson who was dressed in a bridal costume.

Then after the prizes had been awarded the leader of the orchestra waved his baton and the dance continued again.

Those in charge of the floor were Walter P. Hill floor director, and Frank W. Flowers, assistant floor director. Music was by Wilson's orchestra.

EIGHTY-FIVE EAT TURKEY

COMMITTEE AND NEW MEMBERS BANQUETED.

FAMOUS MARATHON RUNNER SPEAKER OF THE EVENING.

Tells Personal Recollections and Experiences at Olympic Games.

Eighty-five new members, and the committee men who secured them sat down to a bountiful turkey supper at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday evening. The occasion was the culmination of a canvass for a new members started the last week in November with the goal as 100. While this mark was not fully realized a good and substantial increase was made which brings the total membership now to 470. Continued effort will be made to raise it to 500 before March first.

Edward Newcomb, Harold Miller and Charles McDonald the fellows securing the largest number of new members were each presented with a fountain pen.

The occasion was one of enthusiasm and indicated splendid progress in the year's work. The supper was served by the Women's Auxiliary and was an unusually good one.

The speaker of the evening was A. Roy Welton of Lawrence. Probably the best known Y. M. C. A. athlete in the world today. His opening remarks will long be remembered by those present. He opened his talk by congratulating the new members on joining such an organization as the Young Men's Christian Association. He told of the Marathon race and the Olympic games. Welton was one of the American team and finished fifth. There were fifty-four starters in this great race which started at Windsor castle. The course was twenty-six miles, three hundred and eighty-five yards long.

Welton said that if ever a man felt proud of his country it was in an event such as this. During the race he felt like giving up, but when he saw an American flag it gave him a new determination and reminded him that he was not representing himself but the United States of America.

At the close of his talk an American flag was dropped from the balcony and three rousing cheers were given by those present. Three cheers for Welton ended the event.

"LIVING PICTURES OF FAMOUS PAINTINGS"

Inclement weather did not prevent over one hundred and fifty gathering in the chapel of First church Thursday evening for the presentation of "Living Pictures of Famous Paintings," given by the Educational committee of the Quincy Women's club.

After a few words of greeting by Mrs. Charles R. Safford, chairman of the committee, the program opened with a selection by the Quincy Y. M. C. A. Mandolin club which was finely rendered. The unison and rhythm of the playing of this club make them prime favorites and a pleasure always to listen to.

The pictures were admirably well done the color scheme being perfect as was also the pose; the black background and broad gilt frame making a good setting.

Miss Edith Randall, Miss Florence Faxon and Miss Georgiana C. Lane grouped the pictures. Mrs. Otho A. Hayward as accompanist for the soloists played with fine interpretation. Mrs. Saville, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Gurney, Mrs. Page and Mr. J. Barraja-Frauenfelder all contributed much to the program.

La Fornarina, Del Piombo—Miss Gerna Saville.
The Little Dauphin, LeBrun—Robert Davis.
The Madonna of the Chair, Raphael—Miss Elizabeth Hubbard and Edith Remick.

The Music Lesson, Leighton—Miss Catherine Saville and Martha Robinson.

The pictures were introduced with brief descriptions by Mr. John Arnold, under whose direction they were given and by readings and songs. The Mandolin club of the Y. M. C. A. also added much to the entertainment. The introductory program to the pictures was:

If President Roosevelt is to be loved for the enemies he has made he is sure to be the idol of his country.

Dr. Clara Scott of New York says that "nobody with brains will kiss in the days to come." Well what have brains got to do with kissing, anyway?

Senator Jeff Davis is ill from the effects of vaccination. There are a few members of the Senate who wish they had nothing worse than small pox to fear.

Prospects according to the Metropolitan Park Commission are that a new bridge will be laid across Neponset river. This question which has long been agitated in both Quincy and Boston seems at last in a fair way of being definitely settled. If this new bridge is constructed by early summer, it will mean a great influx of travel along the Atlantic boulevard as the report recommends a bridge 60 feet wide, with sidewalks 8 feet wide. This will allow for all kinds of travel and its long felt necessity will add to its being a popular thoroughfare by the Atlantic boulevard to Quincy.

One of the principal questions to be discussed at the citizens' mass meeting tomorow night will be the question of abolishing all party designations in future municipal elections. Now there is no question but what party designations are bad in a city as small as Quincy, still will the elimination of party names change the future candidates themselves. If a candidate is a republican at heart, will he be anything else, even though de does not call himself a republican? Will a man who has been a life long democrat, who has always voted the straight democratic ticket in national, state and city elections, drop his party allegiance, and become merely a citizens voter in municipal elections?

Seldom in the history of the Capitol has there been such occasion for equal excitement at the announcement of a speech as that shown early Monday morning when Mr. Tillman, the Senator from South Carolina made his response to the charges brought against him by the President. A large audience which had no interest in Mr. Tillman and no interest in the President's charges but merely a passion for sensationalism assembled before they had had breakfast and by ten o'clock the galleries were packed and the door-keepers were all but exhausted from the effort to keep back the crowds. When the public galleries were thrown open the crush made it appear for a few moments that an uncontrollable mob had taken possession of the Capitol and as women screaming and fainting with their clothes torn were pushed forward into the aisles by the crowd pressing behind, it looked for a short time as though some serious accident were imminent. Special officers from the police force were called in to protect the doors of the galleries which the regular doorkeepers were helpless in holding and it was only with difficulty that the crowd was controlled. On the appearance of Mr. Tillman there was a demonstration from the galleries and when he arose to speak there was so much applause that the vice President was compelled to suspend his address until the public had been warned that such a repetition would result in the galleries being cleared. When it was all over and the anticipated defense had been made, a very orderly and subdued crowd quietly dispersed with a general comment that it had not been worth while.

is one of the most desirable things in life. How fine it is to walk with head erect, to feel the blood coursing freely through the veins; to have the glow of health in one's cheeks, bright eyes and freedom from ache or pain! It is good to be alive. Given such a state of health, a man or woman can look out upon life and its work and pleasure with confidence. Work will be welcome and no longer a drudgery; while pleasures can be enjoyed to the full capacity. There can be no buoyancy, however, without health, which alas, many do not possess. Good health

Comes After Using

Beecham's Pills, a medicine of proved worth as thousands can testify. These pills are specially prepared to counteract and remove all irregularities of the organs of assimilation and digestion—the seat of most of "the ills that flesh is heir to." There never was a time like the present when the hurry and worry of life was so great, and it is small wonder, therefore, if beneath the stress and strain of modern conditions, the hardest-worked organs of the body are the first to get out of order. A dose of Beecham's Pills will, however, speedily tone up the system. The periodical use of this well-tried medicine will obviate sick-headache, biliousness, and other distressing results of irregular action of the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys. If you are wise you will never be without a box of

John W. Faircloth a veteran of the Civil war and a long and well known resident of Quincy died Thursday morning at his home 171 Phipps street aged 75 years. Mr. Faircloth served his country throughout the Civil war and was taken prisoner and was confined for a time in that famous rebel prison at Andersonville.

He was a member of Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R. He leaves six sons and two daughters. His funeral will be held from St. John's church Saturday morning.

INVENTOR OF THE TELEPOST.

Many of the prominent men of the time began their careers in the comparatively humble calling of the telegraph operator. One of the most successful of these is Mr. Patrick Bernard Delany, of New York, whose inventions in improving telegraphy have attracted world-wide attention. Born in Ireland, Mr. Delany was brought to this country when a lad, became an excellent telegraph operator at the age of sixteen, and at eighteen was one of the most expert press operators in the land. Afterward he rose to high positions in various telegraph companies, and later was associated with Mr. Edison in rapid telegraphy experiments and began his work as an inventor. He devised the famous "anti-Page relay," for which he received a considerable sum, and invented the anti-induction cable, the patents of which netted him over $100,000. Turning his attention to synchronous multiplex telegraphy, he perfected a system whereby six Morse circuits were obtained from a single wire, and was awarded for it the highest prize at the International Inventions Exhibition in London in London in 1885. Mr. Delany, twenty-one years ago, equipped a laboratory at South Orange, N. J., and devoted his time to automatic rapid telegraphy, in which he has had great success, his apparatus transmitting one thousand words a minute over a single wire. This is regarded by experts as one of the greatest achievements in the telegraphic line. Mr. Delany is now experimenting in wireless telegraphy.—Leslie's Weekly.

CASTRO'S PRESS AGENTS BUSY.

New York, January 15:—In a statement made yesterday by a representative of the claimants against Venezuela, attention is called to the fact that the New York partners in some of Ex-President Castro's business schemes are still circulating through a press bureau newspaper articles designed to uphold the Castro regime.

"The obvious purpose of these articles," the statement says, "is to create a prejudice against the American claims in the hope that redress may be further delayed, and Castro's associates left free to continue the exploitation of American properties.

"In one article a correspondent alleged to be 'close to the administration' is quoted to prove that Secretary Root does not believe in the justice of the American claims, although the records of the State Department show that Mr. Root has repeatedly and most emphatically upheld these claims in demanding that they be submitted to arbitration.

"Such a disposition of the claims is all that has been asked for, and it is not believed that the present efforts to prevent a fair settlement can be of any effect. The press and public may safely be left to judge of the importance of these efforts when it is understood that they emanate from the desire of Castro's American allies to retain some of the spoils of his administration, even after Castro himself has been driven out of power by the Venezuelan people."

"He will live to be 100 years old," said Biggar, "by these simple rules: First, he avoids all worry; second, he takes plenty of exercise in the open air; third, he never overloads his stomach and always gets up from the table a little hungry. If men would follow Mr. Rockefeller's physical methods, we would all be young at 70."

the minds of the children given to their charge a wholesome respect for this old historic city which has been for years in the front rank of educational excellence."

Dennis F. Crowley, the contractor said it was a great pleasure for him to have been one of the parties in the building and dedication. The building represented to him a hard battle from the turning of the first sward last April until the pupils entered the building the first of this month. The sub-contractors were nearly all local men as were most of the workmen. All had done their work in a satisfactory manner and everything had been harmonious. The plans were the simplest he ever worked by and the specifications were very clear. The architect was always on hand for any suggestions and was a great help. It was now a great pleasure for him to turn over the keys and the responsibility that went with them.

He then handed a bunch of 17 keys tied with blue ribbon to Commissioner Bainbridge. The Commissioner said this was a very pleasant duty for him although he was not a public speaker. He then talked to the children and reminded them that it would always be to their advantage in after life if while in school they took part in debates and learned to speak in public. He then handed the keys over to Dr. Hunting chairman of the school committee.

Dr. Hunting said it was a great pleasure for him to receive the keys and to thank the Commissioner, the builders and citizens for the building which sets a new standard for school buildings in Quincy.

Here we have a hall, something no other building has. It will give an opportunity to bring all the pupils together. There was also a room in the basement where he hoped some time to train boys to work their hands.

Dr. Hunting then passed the keys along to Dr. E. H. Bushnell chairman of the Coddington sub-committee.

Dr. Bushnell said the citizens of Quincy and children of Ward One were to be congratulated. The citizens never falter when it comes to providing school buildings. He then gave a brief history of the long line of masters from the first up to Miss Dearborn and Walter H. Bentley the present master.

He also referred to the long service of Miss Underwood. At the mention of her name there was a spontaneous outburst of applause.

Passing the keys along to Mr. Bentley the Master of the school Dr. Bushnell expressed the wish that the newbuilding might be an impulse to further good work.

Mr. Bentley said all things come to him who waits. This was a particularly gratifying occasion to him. He had watched the progress of the building from the very first down to the time it became a material fact and he took off his coat and helped fill the first tip cart.

Since that time he had followed the work closely. He believed the citizens should be congratulated on the ownership of such a building. He had never seen one so well planned and built and so well adapted by having every square foot available. It was chiefly on behalf of the children that he was glad to have an assembly hall. It was hard for one to realize how the surroundings influence children in their work and health. On behalf of the children he wished to thank the citizens and the builder.

Mr. Bentley then said the walls of the building afforded a splendid opportunity for decoration and nothing would be more appropriate than to have pictures hung there.

He had found there was a peculiar school spirit at the Coddington and believed this building would aid and increase that spirit. He hoped all had a feeling of personal interest in the building. Citizens would always be welcomed and it was not only a duty for them but a pleasure for him to have them come at all times.

Dr. Hunting said that Mr. Brigham was present but asked to be excused from speaking.

Supt. Parlin then gave a brief historical sketch of William Coddington for whom the school was named.

Much of the history of William Coddington given by Mr. Parlin was new. He said the Mr. Coddington was born in England in 1600. He was appointed assistant of the Masachusetts Bay colony in 1629, and two years later came to Boston with Gov. Winthrop and the charter.

He served for several years in that office and was for some time treasurer of the colony. He became one of the leading merchants of Boston and had the reputation of being a man of wealth. On March 14, 1636 he received a grant of land in that part of Braintree which is now Quincy, and although he built a house here he never resided here. On March 12, 1637, not being in harmony with the religious views of the colony, he was adjudged guilty of sedition and contempt and with several others was ordered by the general court to leave the colony. He went to Rhode Island where he founded a new colony, and for seven years was its chief ruler. In 1647 he assisted in forming a body of laws which have since been the foundation of the constitution and government of Rhode Island. In 1651 he received a commission from England to be the governor of the island but on account of some trouble which arose under the charter he laid down his commission and for a long time retired from active participation in public affairs. Near the close of his life he was again prevailed upon to asume the burdens of government. He had the honor of being the first judge and governor of Rhode Island. He was also governor at the time of his death Nov. 1, 1678.

Soon after going to Rhode Island he gave his large estate, consisting of what is now a part of the City farm, Mt. Wollaston cemetery and meadow lands at Rock Island to the town "for the purpose of establishing and maintaining the public schools, in order that future generations might reap the benefit of a liberal education, and thus see the folly of excommunicating from society individuals for their honest religious belief."

In 1792 when Quincy was set off from Braintree the school lands were divided between the towns. Quincy was given one lot of forty acres, the upland of Rock Island and four acres of marshland. Quincy now has of the gift a part of the city farm, Mt. Wollaston cemetery and the Rock Island fund of $1,000 besides a tract of undeveloped land. For more than two hundred years Quincy schools have been benefited by the income from this gift.

Mr. Parlin then spoke of the Coddington school buildings the story of which is found in Pattee's history of Quincy.

The last speaker was Dr. John A. Gordon who told of the days when he was a member of the school committee. To the time when the schools of Quincy became famous all over the world. Of the changes that had been made in the school building. Of the time when the Coddington being nearest the depot became the centre of attraction for visitors studying the famous Quincy system. He also referred to these visitors taking away some of Quincy's best teachers by offering them larger salaries. Some of the best teachers however they could not get among whom he mentioned Miss Dearborn and Miss Underwood. In closing Dr. Gordon speaking to the pupils present said may you all enjoy it to its fullest extent.

Then came the salute to the flag by the children and the exercises closed by all rising and singing America.

It was announced that the building would be open for public inspection Saturday.

The singing during the exercises was by the children of the VII and XIII grades under the direction of E. Landis Snyder. The selections sung were:

Come thou Almighty King, Heavenly Father, Sovereign Lord, God ever glorious. Battle hymn of the Republic, The Lord is my Shepherd, Praise the Lord, and America.

D. secretary of the State Board of Education heartily welcomes Mrs. Davis to Boston and will make an address.

LONG IN RUSSIAN NAVAL SERVICE

Admiral Rojestvensky Succumbs to Neuralgia of Heart

HEAD OF ILL-FATED FLEET

Caught In Japanese Naval Ambuscade and All His Ships Either Captured or Disabled, His Flagship Being Blown Up—Valiantly Shouldered Blame For Defeat, Absolving His Sub-Officers and Men

St. Petersburg, Jan. 15.—Vice-Admiral Rojestvensky died in St. Petersburg last evening from neuralgia of the heart.

Sinovi P. Rojestvensky, who was 60 years old, had been in the Russian naval service the greater part of his life.

In 1904, after the disasters which had befallen the Russian warships in their conflicts with the Japanese, Rojestvensky was given personal command of the Russian Baltic fleet, with orders to take it to Vladivostok. The fleet sailed from Libau Oct. 16, 1904.

The Dogger Bank Incident

Owing to persistent rumors that the Japanese would attack it en route, a careful outlook was kept by the Russians, and when the fleet was off the Dogger Banks, in the North sea, it came upon the North sea fishing fleet. The lights of the trawlers caused alarm on some of the Russian vessels, and they fired upon the fishermen. The steam trawler Crane was sunk, and two others of the fishing fleet were injured, while two men of the trawlers were killed and a number were seriously wounded.

This action resulted in strained relations between Great Britain and Russia and, although an international commission at Paris technically excused Rojestvensky, though condemning the firing upon the trawlers, the Russian government was assessed $320,000 as damages.

Sailed to Disaster

Rojestvensky, meanwhile, with the main division of his fleet, sailed around the Cape of Good Hope and was met off Madagascar by the other vessels which had proceeded through the Red sea.

The Japanese during the voyage had captured Port Arthur and sunk or captured most of the Russian warships that had been bottled up there, and this caused Rojestvensky to take his fleet northward to Vladivostok.

Advancing into the China sea, where coal and provisions were taken on board, Rojestvensky, in May, 1905, was joined by Admiral Nebogatoff's division, and the combined fleet started through the Straits of Korea on the way to Vladivostok.

Between Korea and Japan, in the Straits of Tsu-Shima, on May 27, the Russians ran into Vice Admiral Togo's naval ambuscade, and in the conflict Togo captured or disabled eight battleships, nine cruisers, three coast defense ships, nine destroyers, one auxiliary cruiser, six special service steamers and two hospital ships. The Russians lost 4000 men killed and 7300 taken prisoners. Japan lost three torpedo boats and 116 men killed and 538 wounded.

Flagship Blown Up

The battleship Kniaz Souvaroff, Rojestvensky's flagship, was blown up in the battle and the vice admiral sustained several severe wounds. He was then conveyed to the destroyer Biedovy, which surrendered to a Japanese battleship. Rojestvensky and the officers were taken ashore and the admiral was placed in a hospital. He was held prisoner until the war ended.

Returning to Russia after his release, Rojestvensky applied for retirement, saying that his health was shattered. An indictment was found against Rojestvensky and the officers of the Biedovy, charging the admiral with surrendering to an enemy and the officers with cowardice and demoralization. Rojestvensky pleaded guilty in order to save the officers, but he was declared to be not guilty. The officers were condemned to death, but their sentences afterward were commuted.

The Social Realm

Into the basket of thy day
Put each thing good and each thing gay
That thou canst find along the way.

Neglect no joy, however small,
And it shall verily befall
That day can scarcely hold them all.

Within the basket of thy day
Let nothing evil find its way,
And let no frets and worries stay.

So shall each day be brave and fair,
Holding of joy its happy share,
And finding blessings everywhere.

SAVILLE STREET A PUBLIC WAY

Old Residents Claim it was Used Before Railroad.

The arguments before the special commission appointed to determine the methods of separating the grade crossings at Water and Saville streets was resumed this morning in the Council chamber at City Hall.

The first part of the morning was taken up by the introduction of evidence to show that Saville street was a public way. Napoleon B. Furnald and James T. Penniman two of Quincy's old residents testified to the many years Saville street had been used Mr. Peniman who will be 90 years of age next June testifying to its use by the public prior to the building of the railroad.

Counsel for the Commonwealth asked a number of questions of Mr. Penniman but could not shake his testimony. He desired to present a letter form Mr. Minchin a gate tender at this crossing for many years.

Col. Benton of the railroad objected to the introduction of the letter. He claimed the commission was not clothed with the power to determine the question as to whether it was a private or public way.

The commission said that the evidence was not legal evidence but it was admitted. The commission then ruled that it would not admit any evidence that was not legal. The letter was then refused admittance on objection of Col. Benton.

Counsel for the Commonwealth asked for a ruling that Saville street was not a public way under the meaning of the grade crossing law.

The Commission said it would take the request under consideration.

Counsel for Commonwealth contended that Saville street was not more than an open private way and that there was no evidence that the city had ever expended any money on the street.

H also referred to the private way signs. All evidence shows permissiomal use of the street and no documents to show it was a public way had been introduced.

City Solicitor McAnarney said the Cananagh plans had been gone over by Prof. Breed and the estimated cost was $947,000. This included both crossings.

Suit Against Standard Oil Will Go Down In History

EVIDENCE IS ABOUT ALL IN

Monumental Mass of Testimony and Court Records Already Comprise Twenty-Two Printed Volumes, With More to Come—Exhibits Alone Consist of Over 73,500 Groups of Words and Figures

New York, Jan. 16.—With the examination of W. W. Pilkington, in charge of the records of the Standard Oil company's pipe lines, on matters relating to the shipping of Lima, Indiana and Oklahoma oil, the government's suit for dissolution of the Standard Oil company came to a close here.

There are still two or three witnesses to be heard on rebuttal, but these will be examined in Chicago next Tuesday. The case, which practically ended so far as the submission of evidence is concerned, will undoubtedly go down in legal history as the greatest civil action ever brought before the tribunals of the country.

The record already comprises twenty-two printed volumes and represents a cost to the litigants of nearly $10,000,000. The filing of briefs by counsel will add another million or so words to the already monumental mass of testimony and court records. Arguments of both sides next April before the full bench of the United States circuit court sitting in St. Louis will further enlarge the record, and as the case is to be taken to the supreme court of the United States, no matter what the decision of the circuit court is, the final bulk of the record in the case promises to be appalling.

History of the Case

The suit to dissolve the Standard Oil company of New Jersey was commenced on Dec. 6, 1906, with the filing of a complaint in the federal court of St. Louis. Besides the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, sixty-nine subsidiary companies and seven individuals were named as defendants. The latter were John D. Rockefeller, John D. Archbold, William Rockefeller, H. H. Rogers, H. M. Flagler, O. H. Payne and Charles M. Pratt.

In all 192 witnesses were called by the government and 140 by the defense. The record of the testimony proper totals up 4,500,000 words. The exhibits, consisting of over 73,500 groups of words and figures, adds another 10,000,000 words. The printing office in Washington has been kept busy day and night for months completing the record, which when bound will make twenty-two printed volumes. The maps showing the company's pipe lines and oil fields are printed in four colors, a procedure heretofore unknown in legal record-making.

From the printer's viewpoint, it is the greatest case in legal history. The array of counsel in the case has been unusually notable.

GREAT ATHLETES ENTERED

Contests In Brooklyn Promise to Be of Great Interest

New York, Jan. 16.—Some of the country's leading athletes, men who have upheld the athletic fame of America in England and other lands, will meet tonight in Brooklyn at the games of the Postoffice clerks' association.

The program calls for twenty-six events. Many members of the American Olympic team will be on hand to contest for the diamond prizes, including all of the six famous athletes who were reinstated by the registration committee last week—Bellairs, Shepard, Bacon, Porter, Lee and Bonhag.

HAD A "BULLY" TIME

Taft's Digestion Not Impaired by His Possum and Tater Feast

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 16.—Quoting his former chief to the extent of saying that he had had a "bully" time in Atlanta, President Elect Taft left here today for Augusta, his temporary home. Last night's great banquet had no ill effects, he said.

He declared that he regretted his inability to remain here longer. He had, however, promised to pay a visit to the state university at Athens, and he will visit that place before he returns to Augusta.

Sixty-Five Killed In Mine

Bluefield, W. Va., Jan. 16.—State Mine Inspector Phillips came out of the ill-fated Lick Branch mine after a thorough exploration and announced that the bodies of the victims were all out. Elght were taken out Friday, making a total of sixty-five dead.

Dr. Wiley Is Commended

New York, Jan. 16.—The Consumers' League, at a meeting here, took up the cudgels in defense of Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry at Washington, against whom considerable criticism has recently been made.

HUGE AUDITORIUM PROJECT.

Hope to Have Washington Structure Ready March 4.

A great auditorium for the use of national conventions and for the holding of inaugural balls and other large functions is to be constructed in Washington if the plans of a committee of well known men are carried out. Robert Bacon of New York, assistant secretary of state, heads the list of projectors. Secretary Root, John R. McLean and others may be connected later with the project, which contemplates the formation of a corporation with $1,500,000 capital.

The auditorium when completed will seat 12,000 persons and will be so arranged that it can be used for almost any purpose. At present the national capital is sadly in need of a large hall, especially for convention uses and for the inaugural balls. Usually the inaugural balls are given in the pension building, which is quite inadequate for the purpose and which cannot be used without the permission of congress. The building project is just now in the hands of a committee of twelve, which is to be increased to fifty, and it is hoped the organization of the company and collection of subscriptions may be so expedited that the auditorium will be ready for use by March 4.

"NO TIP" CLUB AT A HOTEL.

Its Members Have a Room Where All Gratuities Are Barred.

The first step toward the abolition of tipping in hotels was taken at the Plaza hotel, in New York, the other day when in opening the new clubroom there explicit orders were issued by Frederick Sterry, managing director of the hotel, that no servant employed in this room should accept a gratuity of any sort from its patrons.

While the rule does not apply to other parts of the hotel, it was made at the behest of patrons of the hotel, who have formed a "No Tip" club. This new club has been assigned to a room, which in reality is a lobby, between the grill and a flight of stairs leading from the basement to the office floor. The apartment has been comfortably furnished with big lounging chairs, tables, writing desks, and contains all the features of a men's club.

Servants assigned to this room receive better wages than those whose duties lie in other departments of the hotel, although it is said there was much grumbling on the part of the servitors when they were warned against accepting a tip of any sort while on duty in the clubroom. The club is for the exclusive use of the patrons of the hotel.

MAYOR'S WHISKY LEGACY.

New Jersey Wit Wills $5 to Buy Drinks For Temperance Workers.

Charles A. Murray, a civil war veteran of Vineland, N. J., who died a few days ago, left a will which is quite odd.

It has been admitted to probate by Surrogate Thompson. Murray lived for years in prohibition Vineland, over which Dr. Joseph A. Conwell formerly presided as mayor, and among other provisions the will contains this one:

"I give and bequeath to my pious Presbyterian friend, mayor, doctor, druggist, preacher and 'all around saint,' Joseph Conwell, the sum of $5 to buy two gallons of fair to middling whisky for the use and delectation of himself and sanctimonious brethren. It may be a revelation to some of them and possibly give them the rudiments of a liberal education."

Murray was popular with his comrades of the war, and he made them this bequest:

"I give, bequeath and devise to Lyon post, No. 10, department of New Jersey, G. A. R., the sum of $25 to buy some fun, even if they have to jump into the aquarium to get it. Their time is getting short, so they had better get a move on."

COCKING MAIN IN COURTHOUSE

Pit to Be Built on Judge's Rostrum In Frankfort, Ky.

In a pit built on the judge's rostrum in the courthouse in Frankfort, Ky., there will be several cockfights in the first week in December for the purpose of determining the best gamecock in Kentucky. This is a new departure in judging cocks at a poultry exhibition, for heretofore it has been beauty, size and style that have won the blue ribbon, but this year the best and gamest "scrapper" will be rewarded.

The fights will be conducted in the presence of all comers, men, women and children, and they will have an opportunity to see, many of them for the first time in their lives, the principal pastime of southern men.

It is a felony to fight cocks in Kentucky, so that when the county officials are among the spectators the cocks will spar with muffs, but when the county officials are not on duty there will be something doing in the oldest courthouse in Kentucky.

Star Shaped Muffs Now.

Such liberties as the fashion makers are taking with that staid article of winter costume, the fur muff! The big pillow effect of two years past was bad enough, but this winter comes the star shaped muff, which usually is made of ermine or mink, says a writer in the New York Press. The points of the star are wired stiffly and end with tiny mink heads or ermine, with little tails projecting in three ways. The body of the muff is made of three layers of the fur and sometimes of three different varieties of pelt. As for seal, only those who cling to black silk for their best gowns ever appear in it.

What DO YOU DO for Quincy?

A Little Wad of Common Sense.

A New Aid Fable.

This is not a George Ade fable, though it may sling some slang. It is a Home Aid fable.

Once there was a Geezer, who sat around and cut Kindling too small for Cook Stove purposes. He Whittled against Time and Flabbergasted against his Town. The town was No Good, he said—strictly on the Blink. Yes, it was N. G. Why, hadn't he lived Here since '84 and found that the Place was Punky? Sure, Mike!

Look at that town over in the next County. Grown like Jonah's Gourd. Must be a Jonah here. We've grown some, but I don't see that we're knocking any particularly Big Persimmons. That's the way this Gazaboo knocked his town.

One day a Sarcastic Stranger floated into the Town that was Knocked from the burg that had Blossomed like Jonah's Gourd. He Heard some of the Flabbergasting and Dropped to the situation.

"Look here, you," he remarked to the citizen who was Handing Out the Knocks. "What do you do for this town? Are you doing your part to put this Burg on the Upgrade? What's that hefty Bunch of literature sticking out of your Clothes?"

"That's a Mail Order Catalogue from Chicago—a town that is a town," replied the Geezer.

"So I thought," said the Impertinent Arrival. "Now let me hand you out a nice little Wad of common sense. For the past ten years you have been sending your money to the Chicago Mail Order houses instead of spending it among your home merchants. What would have happened to Chicago fifty years ago if all the First Settlers had shipped their Loose Coin to New York on catalogue inducements? Why, you'd have to use a sand dredger now to find the Original Site of Chicago. Now, in the Burg from which I have just Blown in we got over all this Bum Business years ago. We passed Resolutions that we would trade at home and help our own town to Spread out so that you could Sight it on the map without using Opera Glasses. But you and a Bunch of other folks in this town have wasted your Substance in Riotous Expenditures in Chicago by mail and let the sheriff hang out the 'Nothing Doing' sign in front of some of your own town's mercantile Emporiums. Look at our Town and then look at yours. What makes the Difference?"

Whereupon the Whittling Gazaboo threw a few well chosen Thoughts into his mental makeup and went down to the village store to Annex a linen collar in place of the Paper Circles which he had bought from Chicago at Two Bits a Box.

MORAL: If you want your town to grow, patronize home enterprises.

Now that YOU KNOW the Difference

Kilburn Led World In Making Stereoscopic Pictures

Littleton, N. H., Jan. 16.—Benjamin W. Kilburn, one of the pioneers in the art of stereoscopic photography and the largest manufacturer of such pictures in the world, died at his home here of Bright's disease, aged 81. He leaves a widow and a daughter, Mrs. Daniel C. Remick.

Mr. Kilburn first became prominent through his extensive views of his native White Mountains, but he widened the scope of his operations gradually and had agents in nearly every country in the world, picturing native scenery and costumes for the instruction of American people.

Mr. Kilburn served one term in the state legislature. He was known locally as the town's greatest benefactor, and was prominent because of his various public-spirited endeavors.

MANY ALIENS DEPARTING

Those Recently Arriving Expected to Be of the Best Class

Washington, Jan. 16.—For the year ended Oct. 31, last, the number of aliens arriving in this country was 655,263, while departing aliens in the same period numbered 701,839, a net loss to the country of 46,576, according to a statement made by Secretary Straus.

Another interesting fact to Straus, who spoke to the president regarding it, was that in the month of October, 1908, the immigration to this country was larger from Great Britain than from any other country of the world, amounting to 8334. From British North America there came the second largest number, 6501.

Mr. Straus thought these figures indicated a tendency toward new arrivals of the best class for some time to come.

CLOSE TO A MIRACLE

Child Buried Under Debris Eighteen Days Is Rescued Uninjured

Reggio, Jan. 16.—A child of five years was taken from the ruins of a building here, entirely uninjured, having lain beneath the debris for eighteen days.

An officer in passing heard the low moaning of the child and immediately began a search, delving in the direction from which the cries came. As he worked a wall fell and he was seriously injured, but even this did not deter him in his courageous efforts, and he continued his task until he had rescued the imprisoned child.

The work of excavation and the exhumation of bodies continues. The population is calm.

READY FOR INITIATION

Hughes Will Get All That Is Coming to Him Tonight

Syracuse, N. Y., Jan. 16.—Tonight Charles Evans Hughes will lay aside his dignity as governor of the great Empire State and will become for a few hours a plain citizen while he is undergoing initiation into the Krewe of Ko-Noon-No.

Members of the order, which is an adjunct of the state fair, will not divulge, of course, what is going to happen to the governor tonight. They are all wearing mysterious grins, however, which is taken as an indication that the goat's horns have been given an extra point and the boiling pitch raised to a higher degree of heat than usual.

IN MEMORY OF WHYTE

Senators Suspend Public Business to Listen to Eulogies

Washington, Jan. 16.—Today does not exist on the calendar of the United States senate so far as the transaction of public business is concerned. Differences with the president, with the house of representatives and other causes of vexation were forgotten in the homage paid to the memory of the late William Pinkney Whyte, senator from Maryland, woh died last March at the age of 84, after long public service.

The address of euology was delivered by Senator Rayner of Maryland, colleague of the late statesman.

BANKER A PERJUROR

One of Kentucky's Foremost Citizens Is Sent to Prison

Owensboro, Ky., Jan. 16.—T. S. Anderson, former president of the defunct Davies County Bank and Trust company, was found guilty of swearing falsely to a statement of the bank's condition and was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary.

Anderson is 66 years of age. He was one of the most prominent men in the state, being active in church, social and banking circles.

Business Steadily Improves

New York, Jan. 16.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says that trade during the first half of January shows expected progress. New undertakings are encouraged by the more settled policy regarding large financial and industrial affairs, and ample funds are available. Leading industries are gradually increasing working forces and output.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)

INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE

Young Men's Christian Association

OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title - Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clivs Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

CELEBRATING POE CENTENARY

Exercises Begun Today at University of Virginia

WILL CONTINUE FOUR DAYS

Next Tuesday Marks One Hundredth Anniversary or the Birth of the Author of "The Raven" and "The Bells"—Boston, Providence, New York and Baltimore to Join In Paying Honor to His Memory

Washington, Jan. 16.—With the opening today of the room of Edgar Allan Poe museum the national celebration of the centenary of the great writer's birth began.

There will be no one great central celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the poet's birth, which occurs Jan. 19. A number of separate celebrations, however, will be held in his honor—one in Boston, where he was born; one at the University of Virginia, where he was educated; another in Providence, R. I., where, after the death of his wife, he wooed Mrs. Sarah Helen Whitman, also a poet; another in New York, where he lived the closing years of his life, and one in Baltimore, where he died threescore years ago.

EDGAR ALLEN POE

University's Celebration

At the University of Virginia the celebration proper will begin this evening, when the Jefferson Literary society, of which the university's greatest literary genius was a member, will hold appropriate exercises. Tomorrow evening the Rev. W. A. Barr of Lynchburg, Va., will preach in the college chapel.

On Jan. 19 the celebration at the university will reach its climax and assume an international importance. Poe's influence not only on American literature and letters, but on foreign literature, will be the subject of addresses by prominent men.

Exercises In Poe Cottage

Two celebrations will be held in New York city on Jan. 19, one at Columbia university, where Thomas Nelson Page, the Virginia author, will be one of the speakers, and another at Fordham cottage and New York university.

The exercises at Poe's cottage at Fordham will consist of a reception in the poet's tiny cottage where his wife died, and the dedication of a tablet in Poe park. This will be followed by a memorial meeting in the auditorium of New York university.

Professor George E. Woodberry, a biographer of Poe, will preside, while the speakers will be Dr. Hamilton Wright Mabie and Henry Noble MacCracken. A poem written for the occasion will be read by its author, Edwin Markham.

DESIRABLE IMMIGRANTS

Canadian Northwest Welcomes Coming Invasion by American Farmers

Montreal, Jan. 16.—Second Vice President White of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who is here arranging for extensive expenditures for improvements in the west this year, says all records for the emigration of American farmers to the Canadian northwest will be broken the coming spring.

"These people are just the sort we want," said White. "They come with money, experience and equipment."

Persian Prince a Suicide

St. Petersburg, Jan. 16.—Shafi Khan, a Persian prince in Russian service, committed suicide here because he had been relieved of the command of the Fifteenth Dragoons.

$234,000,000 For Postoffices

Washington, Jan. 16.—The postoffice appropriation bill, carrying an aggregate appropriation of $234,000,000, was reported to the house of representatives.

GRAVE SUSPICIONS ARE AROUSED

Dismissal of Yuan Shi Kai Is Considered Unfortunate

Washington, Jan. 16.—It is authoritatively denied in responsible quarters as indicated in the Pekin dispatch that intervention in Chinese affairs is contemplated by any action taken by Mr. Rockhill, who has been frequently in consultation with the British minister regarding the changed political conditions in China.

Like other governments, the United States has felt it a very delicate matter to approach the Chinese government on the dismissal of Yuan Shi Kai, holding this to be a matter of international administration, but at the same time it has felt that his removal was unfortunate and calculated to arouse grave supicions as to the future intentions of the new government both in its internal and external progressive policy.

THE HATMAKERS' STRIKE

Disagreement Between Manufacturers and Workmen Over Union Label

New York, Jan. 16.—A general strike of hatmakers, that may involve some 25,000 workers, was begun in the hat manufacturing centres of the country upon a decision by the Associated Hat Manufacturers to discontinue the use of the union label in the factories represented in the association.

The manufacturers, in explaining their order about the union label, said it was due to the failure of the union to keep a working agreement with the Guyer Hat company of Philadelphia.

The leaders of the hatters insist that the step is the first one in an organized and general plan of employers in all lines to do away with the union label and that union labor is prepared to combat it.

MANY CLAIMS CONTESTED

Unique Legal Instrument Filed by Jamestown Exposition Receivers

Norfolk, Jan. 16.—The receivers of the Jamestown Exposition company filed a consolidated bill in the federal court in which 1272 delinquent Jamestown exposition stock subscribers are sued for balances due.

The bill is the most unique legal instrument of the kind ever filed in the courts of this state. The amounts sued for range from a few dollars to $39,575 due on one total subscription in common stock of $50,000.

Many of the claims are contested and some of the defendants claim the exposition company owes them more than they owe it.

HER HUSBAND'S SLAYER

New York Woman Identifies a Convict as Alleged Murderer

Boston, Jan. 16.—Mrs. Abraham Reeder, accompanied by a New York officer, came here and visited the state prison, where Mrs. Reeder identified a prisoner listed under the name of George Judd as William Mason, the alleged slayer of her husband.

The convict was sentenced from Fall River last June to serve not less than three nor more than five years fur burglary.

Mason's extradition will be asked by the New York authorities. Mason was formerly in Reeder's employ and killed him, it is charged, in an endeavor to obtain rent money he had seen paid to him.

RINEHART FOUND GUILTY

Bank Wrecker Sentenced to Fifteen Years In the Penitentiary

Pittsburg, Jan. 16.—J. B. F. Rinehart, former cashier and vice president of the Farmers' and Drovers' National bank of Waynesburg, which institution failed over two years ago for $2,000,000, was found guilty of wrecking the bank and was immediately sentenced to serve fifteen years in the penitentiary.

The jury found Rinehart guilty of making false reports to the comptroller of the currency, false entries and abstracting in transactions connected with the Green county political campaign of 1905.

Money In College Sports

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 16.—That the receipts from baseball and football are sufficient to pay the expenses of all the other sports engaged in by Princeton university and still leave a balance of $1075.75 is shown by the financial statement of the Athletic association, issued last night, for the year ending July 1, 1908.

Troops Charge Rioters

Oporto, Portugal, Jan. 16.—The distress in the port wine growing regions, arising from a crisis in the wine trade, culminated in rioting. At Regoa the troops that were preserving order were fired on by an infuriated mob and replied with a bayonet charge.

Courtesies to Presidents' Widows

Washington, Jan. 16.—By unanimous vote, the house of representatives granted the franking privileges to Mrs. Benjamin Harrison and Mrs. Grover Cleveland, widows of former presidents.

Hunting a Homemaker.

By LULU JOHNSON.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

A mere toddler of a boy stood on the bank above the railroad track. In his hand was a stone. Aiming blindly, he tossed the stone upon the track, and it snuggled against the gleaming rail.

In less than forty-eight hours that stone, tossed by a baby hand, had thrown Wall street and the money market of the country into a panic.

The single track of the little western road afforded rough traveling. Not many of the travelers aboard that particular train even noticed the somewhat harder jolt when the car wheel struck the stone.

But Gilbert Fairbain, smoking a "good night" cigar as he leaned alone against the railing of the observation car's platform, felt the jar—and then felt nothing more.

And it was two weeks before Wall street learned that Fairbain, the one man who could have stopped the panic, had been found beside the tracks and removed to a farmhouse on the quarter section nearest the road.

For ten days he had been unconscious, and for two days or more he had been in no condition to be left alone. There was but one inmate of that farmhouse besides himself, and she had been too busy nursing him to make the trip to the nearest town to report that he had been found.

As soon as his whereabouts had been discovered the lonesome little town was overrun with people. Grave and learned physicians from the east were hurried westward on special trains and a regiment of nurses attended them, but Fairbain waved them all away.

"I don't need you," he said irritably. "Little Mrs. Bodington pulled me through without a lot of palaver or thousand dollar doctors to help her. Leave a couple of nurses to wait on her, and the rest of you go away."

"There is an excellent hospital not fifty miles from here," suggested the family physician. "I can look after you with better assurance of successful treatment."

"Sugden, you're an ass," declared Fairbain irritably. "This little woman nursed me single handed through an attack of brain fever. I guess she can attend to the convalescence."

"I will not undertake to be responsible for the consequences," said Sugden, with ponderous emphasis.

"You don't have to be," was the acrid response. "You are going to be packed out of here, the whole lot of you. I've spent most of my life with a doctor on one side of me and a lawyer on the other. I'm sick of it all, and I'm entitled to a rest."

He looked contentedly about the tiny room. The outlook from the narrow paned windows was dreary, and the room itself was walled with rough plaster and decorated with cheap prints in homemade frames.

The bed on which he rested was a wooden affair with a cotton mattress and coarse cotton sheets, but the sheets were immaculately clean, and there was an air of hominess about the place that Fairbain had not known in years.

He closed his eyes contentedly and dozed off. Sugden, mindful of his fat fees, waited in deferential silence during the half hour the nap lasted. Fairbain's glance fell first on him as his eyes opened again.

"You still here!" he cried. "Sugden, if you don't take the first train back to New York I'll make you sue for whatever I owe you and I'll take it on appeal and appeal until you spend every cent you ever made off of me. Now get out of here."

Sugden took his departure, vowing that his patient was insane, but Fairbain only smiled contentedly and turned to the sweet faced woman who sat beside the bed.

"That's the way to talk to those sharks," he declared. "I have a headache, and Sugden gives me something to make it worse. Then he doctors me for the new 'disease' and sends in a bill a yard long. This is the time I fooled him."

"I am glad that you were not moved," said the woman softly. "I think that the excitement would have been bad for you."

"It is not the trip I was dreading," admitted Fairbain frankly. "I like it here, and I want to stay a little while. My secretary will stay over in town and bring my important mail every day, and the two nurses will relieve you of the watchful nights.

"If you want anything else, buy it or hire it or something. Wilson will give you what money I need. Wilson is a fine fellow," he added. "He came into my office this fall as a clerk, and I took a fancy to him and made him my confidential man. He took to the job as though he had known me and my affairs since he was born."

"It must be very nice to have some one to do your work the way you want it done," she said softly. "I am glad that you are so pleased with him."

"I'm pleased with him," said Fairbain meaningly, "so long as you are not too well pleased with him. You won't be pleased with him?" he pleaded.

"No more than I am now," she promised, and with that Fairbain was content. He was convinced that money was omnipotent and that even here on the prairie it could purchase the love of the little woman who had made him so comfortable.

Fairbain was in love with his newly found home comforts rather than with the woman herself, but this he did not know, although, when there was no longer any pretext for prolonging the stay, he spoke bravely enough.

"I need you very much," he said earnestly. "I have a house that covers half a square in the most expensive residential district in New York. I have three yachts, something like a dozen automobiles and all that sort of thing, but I have no home. Not since I was a boy have I realized what home was like. My wife was no homemaker, and when she died I never dared repeat the experiment with the women in the set I lived in. You are different. For years I have been hungry. Don't you think that you can come and make it for me?"

The little woman paused for a moment and scanned the face of the multimillionaire as earnestly as though she had not devoted weeks in that pursuit.

There was no ardent affection in tone or look. Fairbain discussed the matter with as much feeling as though he was discussing the making of some railroad deal with his fellow magnates. He was not the young lover, but the elderly widower in need of a homemaker.

The girl—she was little more than that—nodded her head in an affirmative.

"I'll make the home for you, but not as your wife. I am not a widow, you see!"

"I am married," continued the girl hurriedly. "I married when I was on the stage. I married a boy who never had had a home, and I made one for him—out here where nothing matters. He was home hungry. I knew that I would spoil all his chances if I married him. I also knew that he would spoil his own chances if I didn't, so I married him.

"After our boy was born—that was the second year we were here—he went back east and took a name that was neither his nor mine to show his father that he was able to work for the woman he loved. I am married to your son, Mr. Fairbain. I guess you've forgotten that Gregory married Martha Bodington. From what Gregory told me, you called me everything but my right name at that last interview."

"Perhaps I did," was the shamefaced reply. "I guess I did not know what I was saying, and I'm certain that I didn't know the sort of a girl I was talking about."

"We'll forget that now," offered Martha. "Let the past be forgotten for the sake of the boy."

"But Gregory?" asked Fairbain.

"There," Martha pointed out over the prairie, where the secretary was to be seen riding across the section with the mail.

"And Wilson is Gregory? You mean to say I didn't know my own boy when I hired him?" asked Fairbain, with a chuckle. "To think that all the time he has been here I've been fretting because I feared that you might learn to love him. And all that time you were married to him. I'm rather glad, my dear, that I made my second marriage by proxy, so long as you will make a home for Greg and the boy and me."

"I was so afraid that you would recognize Greg," said Martha as she regarded the tall figure of the secretary with a look of frank admiration.

"He assumed an excellent disguise," reminded Fairbain. "I never thought to find my son a worker, my dear. That's another thing I have to thank you for," and Fairbain sighed with relief. He had found a home while retaining his domestic independence, and the son for whom his heart cried out was restored to him again.

Changes In Boston.

In 1636 one of the suburbs of Boston was Newe Towne, which in 1638 was changed to Cambridge and as the seat of Harvard university has an international reputation today. Since the early lines were fixed Cambridge obtained by annexation a part of Charlestown, but has ceded land to the towns of Waltham, Brighton, Watertown, Belmont and West Cambridge, the latter now known as Arlington.

The Boston of 1630, called Tri-Mountain, was very different from the Boston of today. Its area was not extensive, although it included the larger portion of Quincy, out of which the town of Braintree was made at a later period. The first annexations to Boston were Noddles island (East Boston) and the territory now covered by Chelsea.

In 1640 Boston lost its rights in Quincy, which were acquired by the town of Braintree. Subsequent additions to Boston have been Roxbury, Dorchester, West Roxbury, Brighton, Charlestown and a part of Brookline.

As an independent municipality Charlestown, which was settled as early as Boston, gave birth to Somerville, Woburn, Malden, Stoneham and Mulford and furnished land to Cambridge.—Boston Post.

Value of the Architect.

The members of a country club, the building and decoration of whose clubhouse had been placed entirely in the hands of the architect, even to the minutest furnishings, found themselves in need of new window shades and a few other small household necessities. Instead of buying the things themselves, they sent for the architect to come out and look things over and order appropriate fittings.

"That is not at all an unusual case," said the architect. "I can show you houses that I planned more than twenty-five years ago that have never been furnished with so much as a new chair without my being consulted first. Having deferred entirely to my judgment in the first place, those confiding patrons are afraid to trust their own taste in the smallest matter, and they will probably continue to ask my advice in every little detail of decoration as long as they occupy the house."—New York Globe.

There seems to be an epidemic of charter revisions sweeping through Massachusetts at the present time.

A man's choice of religion is his personal concern; but his morality is always the concern of the public whose suffrage he seeks.

Luther Burbank, plant wixard, will make an exhibit of spineless cactus at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition in 1909. Burbank says that the cactus fruit industry will in time rival the orange industry. Cactus fruit can be produced for ten cents per acre. Recently in Seattle there was a banquet at which every dish served was made from spineless cactus.

Before another issue it will probably be definitely known whether or not the voters of Quincy wish to retain the present charter as it already stands or whether they will vote to request the mayor to petition the legislature to revise the charter. Which ever the case may be the majority should rule, therefore it is to be hoped that a goodly number will attend the meeting. If the citizens vote to amend the charter, it is necessary that the meeting tonight should be a representative one for one of the first questions the legislative committee is likely to ask is, was the meeting a representative one? If the petitioners say yes, the hearing on the petition will continue, but if they say no proceedings would probably be brought to an abrupt end. Let the meeting tonight be a representative one and let the matter of revising the charter be settled, and not hang fire for several months longer.

The following editorial clipped from the Haverhill Gazette shows what a live Board of Trade can do, and how the services of such a board are appreciated by the general public. Unfortunately the Quincy Board of Trade is not a doer of deeds, but a dreamer of dreams therefore the articles does not apply to them.

Doers of deeds, not dreamers, are on the membership roll of the board of trade. There can be no doubt about that. The record of its activities in twelve months, revealed by the report of Secretary Child, is a most remarkable one. Under the careful and conservative guidance of its former president, Judge John J. Ryan, and aided by the commendable enterprise and liberal policies of an able directorate, Secretary Child has worked marvels. The purposes of the institution are well defined. They sound the demand for a Greater Haverhill. That was the slogan that gave birth to the New Charter idea. The true policy of the board is much broader than the popular idea.

It is a remarkable record, indeed, that of 1908. Through the Haverhill Building association it has added 125,000 square feet of floor space for manufacturing purposes where 1000 people will be employed within the next three months, and, aided by the liberal contributions of the board, the W. L. Douglas company has been induced to locate in the Chick factory. That swells the salary roll of Haverhill's industrial establishments to nearly $40,000 a week and raises the value of her industrial products nearly $4,000,000 a year.

Mr. Fred D. McGregor, the new president of the board, enters upon his duties well equipped for the work. He is a successful business man, loyal to his city and measurers up to the high standards of the Greater Haverhill idea. He will pursue the progressive policies and liberal purposes outlined in the utterances that marked the retirement of Judge Ryan, who, in expressing the popular view of the board, said that the commendable work of the organization in assisting in the establishment of ample facilities for new industries and the encouragement of various enterprises looking to a larger local trade, is perhaps the work most easily appreciated because the results are apparent.

But there is no reason why this great, democratic, non-political, representative body should not serve as an arbiter on questions of sanitation in the factories, public playgrounds, public health, good roads, good government, in fact any matter of public import that would tend to make and keep Haverhill a progressive, enterprising community.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

The people who pay out good money for tips on how to make money and how to win success would as a rule do vastly better by cutting out the visiting professional advice givers on every and any subject you want to know about. In every town there are successful professional and business men. How have they won success? What has been their history? What are their methods? Upon what do they depend for the victories they win? There are people who can tell; the men themselves might often tell if they were asked. Anyway, watching them and asking about them will not cost hard-earned money; there will be that much in it at the least. We imagine there would be good houses drawn if a number of successful men in any city could be induced to appear of an evening and tell other people how they obtained their grip and mastery on the affairs of this life. It would be useful and helpful, and in a way fascinating; and of course it wouldn't be essential to tell everything in every case.—Brockton Enterprise.

Dr. Hale's advice to invest private funds in forestry is wise and timely. Money for long-time investment can profitably be so invested, and the men with idle money to invest will perhaps in time see this. In the race for quick returns this field for investment has been overlooked, but with a soberer investment policy, which is coming, the case may be different. This investment of funds in forestry, however, must be dependent to a large extent upon the degree of protection afforded against the fire danger. Investment in property takes into account the unavoidable and the avoidable risks. The fire risk in forestry is now too great. Conditions in that regard must be altered. State Forester Rane has emphasized, in his report and in the work done towards the upbuilding the state's forests, the grave fire danger, a danger increasing with the greater population of the state and with the expensive timber operations now going forward. So much emphasis has been placed upon the necessity of guarding the forests from the axe that the fire danger has been to some extent overlooked. Yet here is an ever-present menace to the forests, and Forester Rane does well in focusing attention upon the point. —Boston Advertiser.

A Boston paper having stated that Governor Draper is the forty-fourth man to bear the title, a correspondent suggested that he is the fifty-second, because eight lieutenant governors had succeeded to the higher place. The paper rejoins by referring to article 3, chapter 2, of the Constitution of Massachusetts, which provides that whenever the chair of the governor shall be vacant, by reason of his death, or absence from the Commonwealth, or otherwise, the lieutenant governor for the time being, shall, during such vacancy, perform all the duties incumbent upon the governor, and shall have and exercise all the powers and authorities which, by the Constitution, the governor is vested with, when personally present. From this it would appear that the lieutenant governor in the case supposed would be governor in everything but the name. He ought to be entitled to that honor, and a change in the Constitution to give him that distinction would seem to be in order. The lieutenant governor should stand in relation to the governor the same as the Vice President of the United States does to the President, and this is a good time for some member of the Legislature to distinguish himself by taking the initiatory. —Lynn Item.

While in all its details the measure introduced by Senator Potter of Worcester for the Consolidation of the State Board of Education with the special Commission on Industrial Education may not be wise, its general purpose is wholesome and its aim is in the right direction. These two educational agencies should be coordinated not so much for economy —although that is an important factor—as in the interest of results. Teachers in the various vocational, manual training and industrial schools are complaining that the pupil is now coming to them unprepared for the work which they want him to take up. They feel that there should be some dovetailing of the regular educational institutions, with which the public is familiar, and the special schools upon which the Commonwealth is now making a start, somewhat experimentally to be sure, but with the purpose of real accomplishment. That welding is, under present auspices, not readily secured..

It is probable that such a reorganized State Board of Education would have one bureau on general education and another on "technical education," or whatever the new departure may be called; that one corps of agents would then serve both interests instead of having two sets of representatives, as is now the case, working to some extent at cross purposes. Not only should economy in travelling expenses and in clerk hire come to pass, but the general efficiency of the State's control ought to be greatly increased. The consolidation would, besides, terminate a controversy which has been for some years lurking in the education circles of the State.

Whether Governor Draper should be limited in the selection of a new commission to taking a certain number of persons from either or both of the old boards may be much doubted. The most effective persons in each body he would almost of necessity reappoint. That he could complete the task to better advantage with a free hand seems reasonably probable. It is also possible that some of the provisions of the Potter bill in relation to traveling expenses—doubtless aimed at the Commission on Industrial Education —and to textbook and other interests, if any necessity for them exists, rather than by making them a part of the organtic act creating the new Board of Education. A sense of propriety on the part of the persons asigned to this unpaid board should, if the selection were properly made, suffice to protect the interests of the Commonwealth. The best textbook writer, for example, is likely to be the person in closest touch with educational progress, and it is not strange that such a person graviates towards the State Board of Education or into its service. It might deprive the Board at times of some highly desirable material rigidly to exclude from it anybody who had any relation to private educational service. Probably these details will be worked out as the bill progresses in the Legislature. In substance and in aim the projected consolidation is meritorious.—Boston Transcript.

MURDER CHARGE NOT SUSTAINED

Conclusion of Jury In the Trial of Thornton J. Hains

LONG TIME REACHING VERDICT

Deliberates Twenty-Two Hours and Takes Fifteen Ballots Before Reaching a Verdict, the Announcement of Which Is Greeted With Vigorous Applause—Peter Hains' Case May Never Come to Trial

Flushing, N. Y., Jan. 16.—After reviewing the evidence for twenty-two hours and taking fifteen ballots before all agreed, the jury in the trial of the author and magazine writer, Thornton Jenkins Hains, found the prisoner not guilty as a principal with his brother, Captain Peter C. Hains, Jr., in the killing of William E. Annis.

For the second time in his life Hains has been acquitted of the charge of murder, having been cleared of the charge of shooting a companion named Edward A. Hannigan, in an open boat in Hampton Roads, seventeen years ago.

T. JENKINS HAINS.

Hains had an affecting greeting with Captain Hains in the Long Island jail, whither he hurried in a motor car, after the verdict, to take his brother the news. General Hains and his wife, who had been anxiously awaiting to learn the verdict in the Hotel Astor, in Manhattan, since the jury went out, heard the news from Thornton, who telephoned his parents as soon as he left the courtroom.

After spending an hour with Captain Hains in the jail, Thornton Hains went to the Hotel Astor, where he remained through the evening and night with his father and mother.

The Prosecutor's Comment

"Under this verdict it is perfectly safe for any person who is ingenious enough to frame up a defense to go out and kill. Private vengeance seems to have taken precedence over the people's law," was the only comment that Prosecutor Darrin had to make on the jury's return.

Haines was overjoyed at the verdict, which came unexpectedly, and at a time when Justice Crane, believing that a disagreement was likely, had sent for the jurors to learn what progress had been made toward a finding. The former defendant smiled and tears filled his eyes, and hurrying to the jury box after the court had discharged the jurors, he seized their hands and thanked them. Hains declared himself to be the happiest of men.

Cheers In Courtroom

Rarely in any court of law has such a demonstration been witnessed as that which occurred when the jury made known its verdict. The packed courtroom rose and cheered and applauded with such vigor that the blows with his gavel by Justice Crane on his desk could not be heard. Before proceeding further Justice Crane ordered the trial chamber cleared and the spectators put out into the street.

Mr. McIntyre said: "I never worked harder for a client in my life and I am just about knocked out. They had to find Thornton innocent. When Thornton says he is the happiest man on earth, I am the second happiest."

Officials of the district attorney's office in Queens county are quoted as saying that the verdict probably means that Captain Hains will never be brought to trial and that he will be surrendered to the care of his family or to the federal government.

"Lion" Afraid of Gotch

FOUR CHILDREN WITHOUT A HOME

Connecticut May Ship Them Off to New Jersey

New Haven, Jan. 16.—After an investigation covering about ten days, this city turned over to state authorities, through the charity department, the case of four children belonging in Orange, N. J.

The children were left here when the father, Louis Albino, and their mother were arrested and taken back to New Jersey by a Newark detective on charges of theft and concealment of goods. It is expected the state will promptly order the children sent back to New Jersey.

FOR SAKE OF CHILDREN

Equal Suffrage For Women Advocated by Mrs. Clarence Mackay

New York, Jan. 16.—Mrs. Clarence Mackay, whose fame heretofore has rested upon her achievements as a social leader, has gathered fresh laurels as a political exponent and public speaker.

Before an audience made up of society women and woman suffrage advocates, Mrs. Mackay, who has just been elected president of the Equal Franchise League, strongly advocated the right of franchise for women on the theory that "it is impossible for the half to express the whole.

"Equal suffrage, the vote for all, is demanded, not so much for the sake of the women as for the sake of the children," she said. "The mother will consider far more even than the father what sort of a man shall be put in office to make and enforce the laws under which her sons and daughters shall live."

TO AMEND HOUSE RULES

"Insurgents" Have Not Given Up Efforts In That Direction

Washington, Jan. 16.—Another meeting of the "insurgents" of the house, seeking to amend the rules of that body, will be held next Monday night. The meeting was called immediately after the return from the isthmian canal zone of Mr. Hepburn, who has presided at all the formal meetings of the "insurgents."

Whether the "insurgents" will be able to agree upon a course of action is regarded as problematical. Owing to the absence of several members in the zone there has been little discussion of a program since the holidays.

BOSTON AS AN EXAMPLE

Dr. Eliot Points Out an Ideal Board of Education

New York, Jan. 16.—President Eliot of Harvard, in an address before the Public Education association, said that the city of New York, with its cosmopolitan population and enormous school attendance, was a particularly fine field for the development of the ideal board of education.

"It is contended by some," Eliot said, "that the great obstacle in the way of school reform is the great racial and religious differences that exist here. But why couldn't a board of seven members be elected at large here, where there is such a diversity of religious opinion and racial attributes.

"Take Boston, which has now become a Catholic city. The Catholics constitute a majority of the voting population. And yet in this Catholic city the school committee elected at large is composed of two Catholics, two Protestants and one Jew.

"Who shall say, then, that religious differences will prevent harmonious co-operation of great bodies of electors in choosing at large members of a school board? And this is no peculiarity of that old New England city."

Body Cooked In Bathtub

Denver, Jan. 16.—John C. Beatty, aged 65, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., was found dead in a hotel bathtub into which hot water was running. The body had evidently been in the water over twelve hours and was cooked. It is believed that he was stricken with heart failure while in the tub.

Disputes Near an End

Washington, Jan. 16.—Venezuela and the United States have agreed to the bases of a settlement of the disputes between them and a protocol is being drawn up. Presumably the cases in dispute will be referred to The Hague for arbitration.

STATE HOUSE LETTER.

Boston, Jan. 13, 1909.

Without a jar the new executive department succeeded to the old and the State's business is running just as if it had experienced no conscious change. Gov. Draper had been acting governor so much that it was no novelty to him when he took the helm in his own full right. There has been no change in the personnel of the executive approaches. Private Secretary Frank L. Dean of Worcester continues to sit at the secretarial desk, but he had not been spoken to only a few days before the Draper administration began as to whether he should go on as with Gov. Guild. The two McDonalds who are not at all related continue in their assisting capacity and stenographer Southworth in the outer hall goes on with his typewriter work there now supported by the presence of Executive Clerk Captain Edward F. Hamlin who has been compelled by the exigencies of finding office room for the lieutenant governor to sacrifice his desk and go into the outer apartment. This outer room is what the old friends of the state house would locate as the speaker's room. But the partitions were cut down to utilize every possible bit of space. The new room for the lieutenant governor made for Mr. Draper and now occupied by Lieut. Gov. Frothingham is the south end of the former corridor partitioned off. But the partition makes the room within so dark that the door is left open most of the time. In the glass part of the door is the coat of arms of the state in as handsome a tint of blue glass as the human eye ever rested upon, when the bright light comes through it, but the fine effect is constantly lost because the door does not stand so the light comes through. The room is plainly furnished and has a portrait of an ancient worthy whom nobody ever heard of in these days, but is labeled as quite a figure in his time.

This pressure for additional room in the executive department illustrates what is going on all over the state house as the state business increases and more workers are needed to do the state's business. The gas and electric light commission has just moved to the Ford building, on Ashburton place, just east of the state house, where the highway commission, the commission on the blind and the industrial commission are already located, and the state board of health will spread so as to occupy all of the gas commission's former quarters, with the exception of the little room formerly used by Chairman Barker as his private room. That little room has been designated as the hearing room for the committees on military affairs and the state house, as they are among the least worked committees, while their former room, No. 242 on the floor above, is given up to the inheritance tax department of the tax commissioners' office. The new law for a direct inheritance tax, which is largely responsible for the unearthing of about $31,000,000 of taxable personal property this year, has made necessary the employment of seven additional clerks, and more room had to be taken by this department. The health board was much overcrowded with clerks and several typewriters all going at once so that it was more like a machine shop than a quiet private office. As it is, the new room will be none too large, and there is complaint of crowding about all around. It is being more and more realized, too, that there was too much of an idea of making a grand architectural monument of the state house extension, and too little of making it a working office building. Of course the dignity of the state capitol had to be recognized, but there might have been improvement. Now the demand grows for the projected east wing, to be followed by the west wing later, making an imposing front extending parallel with Beacon street.

Never before has the legislature made such a flying start as this year. On the very first day the committees were announced. If there had been a contest for president or speaker, this would have been impossible. But the certainty of the election of President Treadway and Speaker Walker left ample opportunity to make up the lists beforehand and they rose to the full height of their opportunity. Then the House committee on ways and means got at work with unprecedented celerity and had the first appropriation bill, that for the salaries and expenses of the members of the legislature and for legislative proceedings reported on the earliest opportunity, and others followed in due order. Of course, in regard to the miscellaneous petitions, time must elapse for advertising them to the public, but everything has started in the most energetic way possible.

Another favorable condition is that there is absolute confidence in the ability and character of the presiding officers as men who will do everything they can for the service of the state and that they will put the public welfare higher than their personal ambition. There is a purity and strength in the entire administration this year which was never better at any period in the past. It can only be hoped that this condition will continue to the end of the session. It cannot be better than now, hence the one aim to be kept in view is that there shall be no disappointment as the session proceeds. Speaker Walker displays a dexterity and familiarity an ease of carriage and capacity to dispatch business quickly and accurately, which more than justifies the expectations of his friends. He was in the chair very little last session and the quickness with which he has come up to the apparent expert standard is reassuring. President Treadway necessarily carries a heavier load of senatorial dignity, but he cuts needless forms short and starts well.

For two years, it will be remembered, the leading subject at the legislature in combative interest has been the merger bill ,and the prospect is that the subject will be up again in the form which it took last year, namely, the consolidation of the steam and electric interests in Berkshire county. The business men of the county, almost to the last man, favor the consolidation, for the New Haven road has given great satisfaction with the operation of the trolley lines and the citizens there feel strongly that the prosperity of that part of the state depends upon the extension of the same policy. At the meeting yesterday of the Massachusetts state board of trade, they refused to approve a motion for the appointment of a committee to oppose legislation for the consolidation of electric and steam lines. The action was not clear cut, but it, at least, showed that the opposition to the merger has lost ground and that this miscellaneous gathering of business men is more disposed to consider each proposition for consolidation upon its merits by itself, apart from the general question for the state. This shows that the Berkshire case has made an impression and that there is more prospect than there was last year that some form of consolidation bill will be enacted.

Sunday legislation is at the front once more. One of the petitions provides for the retail sale of meat, butter and eggs on Sunday, without restriction of hours, the same as soda water and ice cream are sold now. Other proposed Sunday legislation in the same line is pending. It is to be noticed, also, that the druggists want more authority to sell liquor. So it seems as if the moral element would not be lacking from the committee hearings or from the debates in the Senate and House. There is no reason yet to believe that the standards will be lowered.

The state highway commission's recommendation to the legislature today that there be levied a graded fee on automobile owners according to the horse power of their machines is expected to produce a prodigious protest on the part of the owners of the great machines. The commission, in their report, discuss at length the great damage to the state roads which is caused by the automobiles, and they come to the conclusion that the men who do the damage ought to pay the bills. It was a noticeable fact about the delivery of Gov. Drapers inaugural address that the most applause of all was given for the passage which recommended that heavier dues be taken in some way from the automobile owners to make them pay for their damage. To that extent the public has an idea of the attitude of the legislature beforehand. Besides, it is a very popular occupation to bait the millionaires. They never call out any sympathy ,especially when it is remembered how they are often caught dodging taxes. It is probable that anything to squeeze money out of them will be popular in Senate and House.

At the meeting of the state board of agriculture today they acted favorably upon a proposition introduced by ex-Senator Frank Gerrett of Greenfield, that farmers may have the right to protect their property from depredations by wild deer to the extent of being allowed upon their own premises, to shoot deer with a rifle, instead of with a shot gun, and that they may be allowed to retain the body, instead of delivering it up to the local authorities. If the legislature should act favorably upon such a proposition it would enable the farmers in some places to lay in a good supply of deer meat. Gov. Draper addressed the board, telling them of the importance of apple culture, in which he is much interested. Lieut. Gov. Frothingham told them of his general interest in agriculture. Rule.

BIG CONTEMPT CASE.

How Labor Leaders Regard Judge Wright's Decision.

MAY RESULT IN JURY TRIAL.

San Francisco Man Believes Sentencing of Gompers, Morrison and Mitchell to Imprisonment Will Arouse the People—J. R. Buchanan Says Decision Will Tend to Solidify Labor.

The sentence of imprisonment for contempt in disregarding the injunction of the court in the boycott of the Buck's Stove and Range company imposed by Judge Daniel H. E, Wright of the supreme court of the District of Columbia on Samuel Gompers, the president of the American Federation of Labor; on Frank Morrison, secretary of that body, and on John Mitchell, former head of the Miners' federation, has brought out a number of opinions by labor leaders. Here are a few:

"The sentencing of Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison to terms of imprisonment in the Buck's injunction case will, in my opinion, be of benefit rather than harmful to the trades union movement in America," says Joseph R. Buchanan, a well known labor leader and writer on labor questions.

"It will draw together and solidify the elements which have been antagonistic. These antagonisms have grown out of disagreements upon questions of policy, particularly with relation to trade and intertrade matters. These disagreements have defeated the complete solidarity of the trades unions. But attacks upon the men in high official positions by forces entirely outside of the movement invariably obliterate the recollection of grievances on the inside, and all divisions of the army of organized labor rally to the support of those attacked.

"A recent illustration of this truth was furnished at the Norfolk convention of the American Federation of Labor in November, 1907. Until that convention Mr. Gompers had never been elected president without opposition, and the Socialist element was sometimes bitter in its fight upon him. Because of the attacks made upon Mr. Gompers by the National Association of Manufacturers the Socialists took the lead in a unity movement which resulted in his unanimous re-election at Norfolk. I could cite many instances similar to this one, all of which convince me that the trades union movement will not suffer because of the verdict of the supreme court."

Charles H. Moyer of Denver, president of the Western Federation of Miners, in speaking of the punishment of Gompers and others said:

"The decision of the supreme court of the District of Columbia against Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison further bears out what I have for a long time preached—that it is no use for the working class to legislate without having the courts first reformed."

Henry Abrahams, secretary of the Boston Central Labor union, said: "It seems as though the judges have gone mad. Slowly and insidiously our people have been deprived of their liberties. This sentence is a blow at the freedom of the press."

W. D. Ryan of Indianapolis, national secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers, of which John Mitchell was president when the alleged boycott resolution was acted on at the miners' convention a year ago, sent the following telegram to President Roosevelt:

"As an official representative of the United Mine Workers of America I emphatically protest against the court decision sending Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison to jail. I know of no law that has been violated by Gompers or Morrison in connection with the case in question, and I am positive that Mitchell is absolutely innocent."

George W. Perkins of Chicago, president of the Cigarmakers' International union, Mr. Gompers' own organization, said:

"I hold that the decision was unjust and uncalled for and not in keeping with the ethics of even handed justice. The judge appeared to be spiteful and bitter in imposing the sentence. I hold that Mr. Gompers and his companions committed no crime in the sense in which that term is applied and used. Mr. Gompers believed he had a constitutional inherent right as a citizen to do the things which he openly and in broad daylight had done."

P. H. Morrissey of Cleveland, O., until recently grand master of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, discussing the decision of Judge Wright, said:

"In the light of this decision and others that have been rendered against labor in injunction cases it is not strange that labor organizations should demand the passage of laws guaranteeing trial by jury in contempt cases. This decision will surely emphasize the need of such a law and in that respect will serve a useful purpose."

Walter MacArthur of San Francisco, editor of the Coast Seaman's Journal, said:

"I regard that sentence as an epoch making event in the history not only of labor, but of civilization. No sympathy need be expressed for those immediate victims of government by injunction, since the result of their imprisonment is bound to be beneficial in the sense that it will arouse the people to a realization of the dangers to human liberty which are inherent in a system of government by injunction."

Carving Scissors.

"I thought I knew all about scissors," said the man. "I had seen tailors' scissors for cutting heavy cloth, dressmakers' scissors for cutting flimsy fabrics and lace and still other scissors for cutting paper, finger nails, grapevines, all kinds of metals and even for shearing sheep, but in spite of that wide knowledge of scissors I was puzzled when I saw the large, peculiarly shaped pair of scissors lying in the showcase.

"'What are these scissors for?' I asked the clerk.

"'Carving meat,' he said. 'With scissors of this kind carving becomes mere child's play.'

"'I never saw anybody use them,' said I.

"'Nobody does use them,' said the clerk—'that is, only a very few. In Europe carving scissers are popular because they cut right through meat, gristle, bone and all, but it takes a little practice to learn to manipulate the things, and nobody in this country has patience enough for that.'"—Exchange.

The Talking Pots.

"Yes, these pots of mine are all right," said the potter. "They don't talk, though."

"No pots do."

"Don't they? Look here."

He took from the shelf a strange, crude pot daubed yellow and blue that had the shape of a duck. He filled it with water; then he poured the water out again. "Quack, quack, quack!" said the pot distinctly. Every gurgle was a distinct quack. "There's art for you," said the potter. "Every gurgle of that duck pot is a quack. Wonderful Aztec art! And I have an Aztec pig pot that grunts like a pig and a dog pot that barks like a dog. Wonderful chaps, those Aztec potter fellows! I wish I knew their secret. Imagine an Aztec banquet," he said after a pause. "Pots filled, you know, with wine. And every time you pour yourself a drink 'Quack!' go the ducks, 'Bowwow!' go the dogs. Regular pandemonium!"—New York Press.

The Light of the Firefly.

When man will attain the perfect vacuum, then the rude ether blush of the electric light bulb will give forth many times more light, purified and heatless, soft and healing, as the light of the stars, penetrating as the sun. An examination of the firefly when emitting flames or light shows bodily movements that cannot be understood to mean anything else than vacuum producing. The lights are always seen in the vacuum sack on the back. Immediately before emitting light the insect will flatten the body, draw the legs in, droop the head, seemingly contracting in all directions; then with the relaxation come the flame and light. The bodies of the glowworm and firefly always are transparent when filled with flame. The blades of grass or other debris are seen plainly through the bodies. Here are cases of nature dealing with X rays.—Chicago Tribune.

How Marshall Field Made Money.

In the early eighties, when the First National bank of Wallawalla was not as big as it is now, I pretty nearly had my breath taken away one day by a good looking stranger hailing from Chicago. He threw a letter of credit for $80,000 from a Chicago bank on my desk and quietly said, "Can you cash that?" I looked him over once or twice, made a quick estimate of all the loose cash I thought we could scrape up and said: "Yes. How do you want it?" He gave a smile, sat down and said, "I think I'll take it in land." In a month's time, as his authorized agent, I bought about 30,000 acres of cheap railroad land for my Chicago friend, taking the deeds in my name at his request, paying an average of $2.65 an acre. He cleared over $1,000,000 on this one deal. His name was Marshall Field.—Senator Ankeny's Reminiscences in Leslie's Weekly.

In Great Luck.

"I have been looking over my financial operations," said Mr. Easigo. "I must say they are more successful than usual."

"Have you been making large profits?"

"No. I don't expect anything like that."

"But you say you were successful?"

"Comparatively successful. During the month I have loaned money to five friends, and only three of them have quit speaking to me."—Washington Star.

PLUGGING ALONG.

Did ever you try it, Bill?
Just finding enough to drink and eat,
And keeping the children off the street,
And having a place to rest your feet,
Take patience and labor and skill.

Providing a small and modest shack
And skillfully keeping at bay
The rude and rather insistent gent
Who comes at the end of the month for the rent
And will take, if you let him, your last red cent
Can hardly be called child's play.

Earning enough from day to day
To juggle some bread and pie
And to purchase a dress and a pair of shoes
And all of the things that the children use
Is a stunt that will outfit a man with the blues,
But he hasn't the time to cry.

Scheming around for a better job
While holding the one you've got
Is a task that is trying to body and mind,
For the job that you want you can seldom find,
And to slip is the old one, alas, inclined,
And presently neither is not.

Making a living and plugging along
Is a man size job, you bet,
Earning a little and spending the same,
Hoping to win in the nerve wracking game,
Beating about like a moth round a flame,
And that is as far as you get.

Might Have a Relapse.

"Father, you mustn't go out with Uncle Bill tonight."

"Why not? I want to show him the town."

"Yes, father, but you know Uncle Bill comes from prohibition territory."

Getting Off.

"Paid your wheel tax yet?"

"No. I don't own an automobile."

"No?"

"Nor a wheelbarrow."

"That's so. Wheels in the head are exempt, aren't they?"

Knew His Limit.

"What is the price of that fine big range?"

"That is $95. Isn't she a beauty?"

"Yes. Gimme a nickel's worth of stove polish."

Funny.

"He is a funny man."

"What's funny about him?"

"That's his business."

"Seems to be on to his own jokes from the way he doesn't laugh."

More Than His Share.

"I always try to get what is coming to me."

"Yes, but if you would only stop at that."

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

When you meet a very charming stranger do not take too confidently to him. He may be in very urgent need of that dollar you have in your pocket.

There are people in this world who are always firmly convinced that if you are not concealing something you ought to be.

You can't tell how much a girl knows by the way she looks nor how hard she can stamp by the size of her oxford.

If some people aren't idiots they are wonderfully clever in concealing their brains.

Wait with patience. If your turn doesn't come at least some philanthropical person may pass your way and note what a beautiful example of faith unshaken you are.

The man who starts out to play politics should first prepare for the game by learning how to play possum.

Don't be sparing of the feelings of the man who thinks he has a corner upon all the knowledge in the world. He has it coming to him.

With the baseball season over and the election a closed incident, what in the world is a sane and cultured public to talk about?

The apostle of what he is going to do makes a mighty poor handy man around the house.

Of course there isn't any sense in getting mad about it, but who cares a rap for sense at such a time anyway?

Miss Markland's Method.

[Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.]

Miss Markland never ran up against stone walls. If she wished to go where the path was difficult she smiled, and, presto, there were flowers for her to step on. If it was necessary to plan she could plan admirably. Indeed, she was very resourceful.

Miss Markland was looking for a husband. Not that she was devoid of offers. Indeed, her main business in life seemed to be to avoid proposals. She felt that it was time for her to marry, and she had not met the man she wanted. She scouted those she had been brought up with. Most girls do. She went abroad and met many foreigners, none of whom appealed to her. At last in France she found the man she wanted in an American, a little pale faced, spectacled, red headed creature entirely unlike the host of suitors she had declined.

Professor Mikleman was an archaeologist. It may be thought that Miss Markland wanted him on account of the ideality of the work that absorbed him. Not at all. She was not ideal or intellectual and considered the professor a mere digger. The reason she coveted him was because she had no attraction for him, while a hip bone 2,000 years old, a piece of broken pottery, a coin so worn that only the nose of some dead barbarian king could be discovered on it, were enough to make him dance in wild delight. Miss Markland, tactful, sympathetic, ingenious, instead of quarreling with Professor Mikleman because he preferred these things to her, resolved to win him through her successful rivals.

Professor Mikleman's work at the time was hunting for a town of the ancient Gauls, Nelodunum, in what had been the province of the Senones. It was but a short distance from Paris, which city the professor made his headquarters. Miss Markland manifested an interest in the work and formed a party to visit it. She found the professor bossing a gang of men who were making holes in the ground at points designated by their employer, who spent his leisure time studying maps, books in the Latin language and copious memoranda. Though the digging had gone on a month, nothing had been found but the jawbone of a woman, which the professor pronounced Gallic.

The professor was getting discouraged. Miss Markland sympathized with him. She asked him what kind of things he hoped to find. He told her that the Romans had campaigned in the province and it had become Roman. He therefore looked for Roman articles, such as armor, weapons, pottery, coins. That was all Miss Markland wanted to know.

The party, all except Professor Mikleman, returned to Paris. Miss Markland wrote the professor encouraging him to dig on. She knew he was brave and would not give up. He did give up and came back to Paris. Miss Markland induced him to revise his work pertaining to the location of Nelodunum. He consented and spent a month in the Paris libraries. He found a new record indicating that the town lay several hundred yards from where he had been digging. He was about to hurry again to his work when Miss Markland persuaded him to guide a party to some of his other excavations. He consented.

The day before the departure Miss Markland received several boxes by express. Their arrival was announced to her when Professor Mikleman was with her. He looked curious, whereupon she told him they contained tombstones that she had ordered for her family lot in a cemetery in America.

On the return to Paris after a ten days' absence examining Professor Mikleman's excavations he announced that he was going to dig for Nelodunum on the new site. Miss Markland persuaded him to consult with other eminent excavators, and this further delayed him. When he was ready to proceed Miss Markland induced her brother, who was a graduate of an American university and a great scholar, to take an interest in the matter, and the two went with the professor to the spot to be excavated. He ordered several holes dug when Miss Markland suggested digging on a spot near where some one had driven in a peg. The professor did not notice the peg, for Miss Markland was standing on it. The workmen went down six feet and brought up a Roman helmet, a piece of broken statuary and half a dozen arrows in quick succession.

The professor was much excited.

A number of coins, mostly Roman; an earthen pitcher, a greave and a Roman short sword came next.

The professor was in ecstasies.

The next article was evidently quite large, for the workmen were obliged to dig about it. Finally they got it out. When the professor saw it he danced about, crying, "The head of a ram!" and, not knowing what he did, threw his arms about Miss Markland's neck. It was some time before she could quiet him sufficiently for him to explain that the ram's head was a Roman weapon for battering walls.

Well, Professor Mikleman, though he found articles only within a limited region, became famous for correcting noted excavators as to the location of Nelodunum. He attributed his success to Miss Markland and told her he could not possibly live without her.

Shortly before the wedding Miss Markland paid two bills—one to Giovanni Cuitimari, a relic dealer, for four boxes of relics, the other to Jean Gautier, contractor, for burying the articles. SALLIE MENDUM.

TO AMEND COUNCIL RULES.

Motion to be Acted Upon at Meeting Monday Night

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held Monday evening. The Mayor will probably forward at that time the balance of his appointments at this meeting. The officials to be appointed are: Park Commissioners, Trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library, Managers of the Adams Academy and Managers of Public Burial Places.

But few, if any changes, are looked for in the make-up of these boards.

It is also necessary that the City Council elect two of its members as trustees of the City Hospital and one Manager of the Woodward Fund and Property, not a member of the Council.

The only other matter that is sure to come up is action on the motion to amend the rules of the Council.

The amendment provides that no application for a license to collect junk or for a permit to transport liquor will be received after May 1. When this comes up it may be amended so as to make it read that these applications will not be received after the first Monday of April.

This means that whatever squabbles there will be over junk licenses and transportation permits will be during the month of April. Any license granted now would have to be renewed May first, but licenses granted in April run to May 1, 1910.

SAVILLE STREET A PRIVATE WAY

He also said the Cavanagh plan wiped out the freight yard. He then pointed out some other defects in this plan.

The Field plan he considered a dangerous proposition. He said he did not want to be obliged to go under the railrad tracks and dead end Water street.

He had, had the property damaged by the railroad plan, figured for Water street and it amounted to $67,763 and it worked a hardship on the property owners.

Mr. McAnarney pointed out in detail his objections to the Field and railroad plans.

He then compared the railroad and city plans to show wherein the city considered its plan the best and its reason for desiring a sixty foot street. We give a better grade, save the spur tracks, and abolish crossings. We do not damage any man who will not have a right for redress.

The difference in the cost of the two plans was a mere matter of $20,000.

As to Saville street the problem was different. Our plan is an expensive one, involving something over $300,000. No one questions the desirability of depressing the tracks.

It is the modern way of abolishing crossings where it can be done.

West of the track is the residential sections. Saville street is the only practical method of crossing the tracks between Granite and Dimmock streets a distance of 1,700 feet.

If the city is reasonable in its request in asking for a way for vehicles to cross that is all there is to it. If we are right in asking for a crossing is there any reason why we can not have this street continued?

The only solution for a crossing other than the city plan is the Whitman plan, by which the street runs on an angle the city objects to this plan.

The city plan is endorsed by all as the proper plan. The only objection is the expense.

The railroad is responsible for the cost of abolishing this crossing because of the way Dimmock and Granite streets were left.

The city plan gives us what we are entitled to.

Saville street he considered a public way in the meaning of this act.

Mr. McAnarney also claimed that the railroad plan did not meet the requirements of the statutes when it abolished a crossing and gives a subway as a substitute.

Mr. Burdett counsel for the street railway said a large proportion of citizens was interested in street railroad traffic. What is good for the railway from an operative point of view is good for the people. He would not consider the Cavanagh plan as it was evident it would be very expensive and no estimate had been given.

The Field plan has some merits as it is entirely on the surface but from the street railway point of view its objections are serious. It abandons the present crossing of Water street and put a subway under the tracks. It puts the cars into a pocket so that the motorman is unable to see teams approaching the neck of the bottle.

The grades by the railroad plans are heavy from a street railway point of view which condemns it. It also gives us some very sharp turns.

The city plan grades are very satisfactory. The city plan preserves the present straight away direction so that the motorman's view is unobstructed.

A car can also be seen approaching.

Mr. Burdett argued on the matter of assessment of the costs. The statutes say street railway shall not pay more than 15 percent. His idea seemed to be the 25 percent to be paid by the commonwealth and street railway in this case should be apportioned so that the assessment on the street railway should be more reasonable.

Col. Benton for the railroad made the closing argument. He spoke in general of abolishing crossings an the pleasant manner in which the hearings had been held.

You are to decide what the interests of the entire public are and the future needs of the city, railway and railroad.

He argued it was not reasonable to expend over $200,000 on Saville street.

At Water street the city plan effects 32 estates and 40 buildings.

The difficulty in the city plan is that fact, and provides a street 60 feet wide which is simply two street and effects many more estates. He also argued against the bridge proposed by the city. The railroad plans avoids this.

Why not have the three engineers take these plans and see if they can not work out a scheme that will not have these objections.

The hearings were then closed.

Rabbi Schindler gave a talk before the Thursday evening club this week.

The alarm from Box 68 Monday evening was for a chimney fire at the house of James Smith, Granite place.

Monday evening Joseph Barry, the genial clerk at Hodges' pharmacy, was pleasantly surprised at the home of William Hodges by a number of his friends. Joe, who is a West Quincy boy, has dispensed soda, cigars, etc., at this old stand for years, during which time he has made friends of all with whom he came in contact. Recently he accepted a position with the American Soda Fountain Co. at Pinehurst, N. C. Thus on the eve of Joe's departure the boys burst in upon him and presented him with a handsome traveling bag, Jesse Bunton Baxter expressing th high esteem and regard in which those present held him. Joe was overcome and unable for the moment to reply, but later fittingly responded. After a collation was served by caterer B. Stepheno, and the cigars passed, the party gathered in the parlor and each in his turn furnished some sort of entertainment. There proved to be an abundance. Dannie O'Connell was the particular star, rending comic songs and piano accompaniments; the Eaton brothers quartette made a hit with coon songs and dances; F. M. Richardson in a monologue, and Willard A. Hodges in accordion solos were heartily applauded. The gathering broke up at 12 o'clock, all joining in singing Auld Lang Syne and wishing Joe a bon voyage.

Jesse B. Baxter '93 and William Thurber '89 attended the alumni banquet of the Institute of Technology on Thursday evening.

AMUSEMENTS.

Keith's Theatre.

The week of January 18th at Keith's theatre will see at the head of an exceptionally strong bill the latest of the Lasky productions a musical spectable called "Birdland." The demand for acts of this kind in vaudeville has become so great that Mr. Lasky has been obliged to outdo all his previous efforts and in the present instance he has certainly done so. All the characters in the piece take the form of feathered songsters of one kind or other and there is a pretty story running through it. It is one of the most pretentious acts of the kind and certainly one of the most tuneful. Another feature new to Boston will be a sketch that has been making a tremendous hit in New York. It is called "Awake at the Switch and was written by Sowell Collins. The action of the piece takes place in a hotel lobby and the telephone operator is the heroine. The story is very interesting always snappy and works up to a splendid climax. The same week will see the return of the famous Mr. Rynack with his wonderful changes of wearing apparel. Although he has been doing transformations of this kind for several years no one has ever attempted to imitate him, simply for the reason that he stands alone. That he still has the ingenuity to devise new surprises will be shown by his present act, which is entirely different from that in which he formerly appeared.

Castle Square Theatre.

Nothing like the great success of "The Circus Girl" has ever been known at the Castle Square. It has been running for three weeks to crowded houses, and so great is the popular demand that Mr. Craig has been compelled to change all his other plans and to give that lively musical comedy for still another week. Miss Young will continue in her fascinating role of Lucille and Mr. Craig, Mr. Friebus, Mr. Meek, Miss Finley, Miss Cleveland and all other members of the company will continue their merry making twice a day through the coming week. The advance sale of seats is so large that immediate application should be made at the box office.

Colonial Theatre.

The biggest show that has ever been borught to Boston, Klaw & Erlanger's gigantic production of "Little Nemo," will be seen at the Colonial theatre for five short weeks beginning Monday, Jan. 25th, with Wednesday and Saturday matinees. hTe entertainment, which is the most elaborate musical comedy that has ever been presented in the world, is the greatest sensation in theatricals for years, and in New York and Philadelphia, the only cities that have witnessed it thus far, the play-houses in which it was booked were not large enough to hold the crowds it attracted. So great is its scope, so immense its organization and scenic equipment, that it will only be played in the largest cities throughout the country. The only opportunity New England people will have to witness it will be at the Colonial theatre in Boston, as it will be presented in no other New England city.

Hollis Street Theatre.

Beginning Monday evening, January 18, at the Hollis Street theatre, Henry W. Savage will offer for the first time in Boston the only authorized version of Franz Molnar's sensational success, "The Devil." Elwin Stevens will be seen as his Satanic Majesty, supported by the original organization which ran for more than five months at the Garden theatre, New York. Among the notable people in the cast in addition to Mr. Stevens are Jane Caker, Marion Lorne, Paul McAllister, W. Christy Miller, Arthur Hoyt, Maude Truax, Esther Evans, Tina Marshall and John Van Nasse. "The Devil" has created a sensation unparalleled in the history of the modern stage. Originally produced in Vienna, it immediately attained wide fame, eventually coming to the astute atention of Mr. Savage who purchased direct form the author the rights of the play for America. Contrary to general impression this wonderful play of Molnar's is in no way akin to Mephisto, but rather is a drama of the purest symbolism, dealing with a new thought, an entirely new phase of human existence and human endeavor. The Boston engagement will be for two weeks oply, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

Rev. Philip M. Rinelander of Cambridge Theological school is to preach Sunday morning at 10.30 at St. Chrysostom's church.

REVISION OF CHARTER INDEFINITELY POSTPONED

Citizens Mass Meeting at City Hall Controlled By Oppositionists

Was the meeting of the citizens called to consider proposed changes in the City Charter "packed?" If so who did the "packing?" It was certainly not those who favored amending the charter for they were overwhelmingly downed on every one of the amendments brought up for consideration other than those proposed by Mayor Shea.

The meeting was held Saturday night in the Council chamber, City Hall. There was a large crowd present. Equally as large as the crowd that gathers on inauguration day.

Mayor Shea called the meeting to order and stated that some time ago the Citizens' Association held a mass meeting at which the advisability of changing the charter was discussed. The different clubs and organizations of the city were represented and a committee was appointed to consider the subject.

This committee has come to certain conclusions and this meeting was called for a full and free discussion of them. As it was a continuation of the first meeting he would ask Mr. Blackmur and Mr. Crane to conduct the meeting.

As soon as Mr. Blackmur took the chair Mayor Shea proposed a resolution to the effect that the legislature be petitioned to authorize the City of Quincy to have the name of candidates for municipal offices appear on the ballot without party designation.

The second part of his resolution was that any amendments the legislature decided advantagous to make should not become operative until adopted by voters.

Ex-councilman Walter F. Nichols the first speaker said he was not prepared to say that he understood the full meaning of the resolution. Does the adoption of this resolution commit this meeting? If this meeting desides it inadvisable to take any action he could not understand what stand this resolution would have.

Mr. Blackmur said at a previous meeting it was voted that the charter be amended relative to party designations at municipal elections.

City Solicitor McAnarney said the effect of this resolution does not make any change in the charter. Only that politics be eliminated and business methods prevail in municipal election.

Ex-Councilman Walter S. Pinkham thought it best to divide the resolutions and vote for the second part first.

Mayor Shea believed the interests of the city would be better served by the adoption of the resolution. The city is a large corporation with money to expend and there should be no party issues in City affairs.

Ex-representative Frank E. Badger believed it best to eliminate political parties from municipal elections.

Archie Thayer was in sympathy with the movement. It was what he had been advocating. He then launched Mayor Shea's candidacy for Governor two years hence.

Ex-Councilman Walter E. Piper could not see why the resolution did not commit the meeting to petition the legislature for a revision of the charter. He said he was not opposed to the idea but was opposed to committing this meeting to any action.

Mayor Shea said it was the intention of his resolution to petition the legislature to carry the resolution into effect. We do commit ourselves he said if we pass this resolution.

W. F. Cummings, "I think it better to lay the resolution on the table until it is decided what we ar e to do with the charter. He so moved.

Mr. Pinkham, the first part of the resolution is not to revise the charter but a revision of the election laws.

The motion to lay on the table was then voted down.

After some further discussion during which Representative Thomas sought some information as to how the names would get onto the ballot if party names were eleminated. both parts of the resolution was adopted.

Mr. Pinkham then read the suggestions arrived at by the committee. They were as follows:

Voted:—That in Section No. 15, which relates to the laying out and repairing highways, the authority now vested in the City Council shall belong to the executive department solely.

Voted:—That the granting of all franchises be vested in the executive branch, subject to adequate notice to the citizens and opportunity for referendum.

Voted:—That the City Council shall consist of nine members, to serve three years, three elected each year. One from each ward and three at large.

Voted:—That the term of Mayor shall be three years subject to recall after two years.

Voted:—That the granting of victuallers, auctioneers and junk licenses be taken from City Council and placed in the hands of the executive.

Voted:—That the salary of the Mayor be not less than two thousand nor more than twenty-five hundred dollars per year.

Voted:—That the School Committee shall furnish plans for all school buildings and additions thereto.

Voted:—That the selections of sites for school buildings be placed in the hands of the School Committee.

Voted:—That repairs for school buildings shall be under the direction of the School Committee.

Voted:—That the School Committee shall consist of five members, all elected at large. Term of office three years.

Voted:—That the Mayor shall be ex-officio a member of the School Committee without the power of voting.

Voted:—That the Board of Assessors be appointed by the Mayor for three years, one to retire each year.

Voted:—That Assessors may be removed only for cause and after hearing given by Mayor.

Voted:—That the Board of Managers of Woodward Fund be composed of five members. The Mayor and City Treasurer, ex-officiis and three citizens appointed by the Mayor for term of three years, one to retire each year. The three appointees to be confirmed by the City Council.

Ex-City Treasurer H. G. Fay said it was his recollection of the vote in the Citizens' Association for a new form of charter. The clerk however said it was not so voted.

The committee's report was then accepted and Mr. Pinkham moved the articles or votes of recommendations be taken up one by one.

Ex-Mayor James Thompson moved as an amendment that one and two be taken up together. The motion as amended was voted.

Ex-Representative James F. Burke asked members of committee to explain reason for the change.

Mr. Pinkham favored number two but not number one. He did not believe the laying out of streets should be placed in the hands of the Mayor. As to the Mayor granting franchises. They would have to be advertised and then granted unless the citizens petitioned to have the question referred to them.

City Solicitor McAnarney favored number two but was against number one. The proposed change gives the Mayor power to accept any street he wants to. It was a great power to give one man, he said and we ought not to put ourselves where the wrong man can do us wrong.

Councilman John J. McDevitt was opposed to both propositions. There was too much opportunity for graft. Franchises were too important for any one man to grant.

Ex-Mayor Thompson thought it a waste of time to further consider number one. He was also strongly against number two. He believed it a dangerous precedent to place in the hands of any one man the right to grant franchises. He was free to state that he could not place much faith in the referendum except at regular elections.

Brooks Adams—"This question is one on which any amendment to the charter must turn. The question is whether we want the government carried on as now or put on a business basis. If you want a political basis it is all right as it is now. This is a simple issue. This is the most important business section of the city. Work on streets has got to be done on a scientific system. If you want streets carried on in a business way you must have a system. We might as well decide it on these issues. We must make up our minds to run it on business principles and take it out of politics.

Ex-Councilman John Q. A. Field. If these motions are accepted we shall be in a great deal of trouble. If a mayor should refuse to lay out a street you can not do anything. One man power would stop all progression. He said he believed in having three commissioners and letting them manage the whole matter.

Upon motion of Mr. Pinkham action on number one was indifinitely postponed.

Mr. Pinkham moved number two be laid on the table. The chair said he was in doubt as to the vote which called forth some hisses. He then asked those in favor of laying the matter on the table to rise. A half dozen did. A hundred or more arose in opposition and the motion to lay on the table was lost.

William Kelly moved on adjournment but was not recognized.

A motion to take up number four was lost.

Number three was indefinitely postponed.

Councilman Joseph L. Whiton Jr., moved the whole matter be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Pinkham, in reply said, he thought it only fair to the committee that had devoted so much time to this matter to take it up intelligently. He hoped the citizens would appreciate the fact that changes are bound to come.

Mr. Burke hoped that the article relative to the term of office of the Mayor would be considered. He said there were nothing but words of praise for a charter that had stood the test for twenty years.

There was no especial need of revision except in this particular instance.

Mr. Whiton then withdrew his motion and number four was taken up.

Mr. Whiton moved it read two years instead of three.

Ex-Mayor John O. Hall had found no fault with the charter in general. The fault was in the administration of it. He agreed to the two year plan.

Upon motion of Rrepresentative Thomas the time of debate was limitted to fifteen minutes and three minutes to each person.

Ex-Representative Badger thought the City Council should be included.

Councilman John R. Richards opposed a two year term for the Mayor. He could see no benefit to be derived by change.

Councilman McDevitt opposed a two year term.

The meeting then voted down the proposition to have a two year term for the Mayor.

Upon motion of William Kelley the meeting voted to adjourn.

FORMER SOCIALIST SPEAKS BEFORE K. OF C.

David Goldstein Denounces Principles of Socialism as Menace to State

The members of the Quincy Council, Knights of Columbus, were addressed Sunday in Colonial Hall by David Goldstein of Boston on the interesting subject of Socialism.

Mr. Goldstein was formerly one of the leaders of the Socialist movement in this part of the country and has a thorough knowledge of the subject.

After remaining in the party for years and making a careful and systematic study of the question, Mr. Goldstein in 1903 left the movement, and now is an earnest worker against Socialism, which he says "stands for the abolition of the State and considers the family as only a passing phase."

Deputy Grand Knight Lawrence W. Lyons presided, in the absence of Grand Knight Edward J. Murphy, and after a few words of welcome introduced Mr. Goldstein. Rev. John J. Coan and Mayor William T. Shea sat on the stage and were interested auditors.

The two main points taken up by Mr. Goldstein were the relation of Socialism to religion and the relation to the family. He explained these two points very fully, showing by examples and illustrations what the Socialists believed, in regard to religion and the family.

The doctrine of "Economical Determinism" was also explained by the speaker, who stated that this was the fundamental doctrine of the Socialist movement. This doctrine looks very good one who does not know much abut Socialism, but when explained by one who has studied the subject, it does not look so good.

Mr. Goldstein wished it to be understood that he was not speaking of Socialism in a superficial way, as it is understood by the majority of people, but as it is understood by those who know, by those who are authorities in the Socialist movement.

The talk was very interesting and instructive, those present hearing many things about Socialism that they never knew before. Mr. Goldstein is a philosopher, has studied the philosphical and religious arguments for and against the movement and stands ready to meet anyone upon the subject of Socialism.

A burst of applause filled the hall as Mr. Goldstein finished and on a motion of John J. O'Hara, he was given a rising vote of thanks. The meeting then adjourned.

MICHAEL D. CAWLEY BURIED.

The funeral of Michael D. Cawley who died Saturday at the City Hospital was held this morning from his late residence 387 Water street. A requiem high mass was celebrated at 9 o'clock in St. John's church by Rev. John J. Coan, the pastor.

The Gregorian mass was sung by the regular choir with John Mahon at the organ. Miss Mary McConarty sang the Pie Jesu. The funeral was attended by delegations from Div. 5, A. O. H. and the Stone Cutters' union of which organizations the deceased was a member.

There were many beautiful floral tributes from relatives and friends, among them being a standing cross from Div. 5, A. O. H., and standing wreaths from the degree staff and officers of the Abigail Adams Circle, of which Mrs. Cawley was a member and the Stone Cutters' union.

Mr. Cawley was born in Ireland 36 years ago and has been a well known resident of Quincy for 17 years. He was a stone cutter by trade. He is survived by a wife and four children. The burial was in the family lot in St. Mary's cemetery, West Quincy.

The bearers were James Murphy, John Curry, James McVey, Charles Osborne, Albert Richards and John McDonald.

KILLED BY EXPLOSION.

M. V. Thayer of Onset Had Relatives in Quincy.

Martin V. Thayer, aged 72, who was instantly killed Sunday night by a gas explosion at his home, was a brother of the late Thomas J. H. Thayer of Quincy.

Mrs. Thayer, whose maiden name was McLellan, was formerly a resident of Quincy Point, where she at one time taught school. She is an invalid and it is thought that the shock may cause her death.

Mr. Thayer has a private gas plant which furnished his house with light and last night, as lights did not work just right, went looking for a leak. The resulting explosion killed him instantly and shook the earth for many miles around.

CITY CLERK SUMMONED.

ACCIDENT VICTIM BURIED.

The funeral of Carl D. Bergstrom, who lost his life by an explosion at the Electric Boat Co. plant last week, was held Sunday from his late home on South street. Services were conducted by Rev. The deceased was a member of the crew of this boat during her trials. Members of a Knights of Malta lodge from Boston were present. Burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

Japan is afraid to kick China while the other nations are looking.

The House Committee really can't expect a highly protected manufacturer to urge tariff revision.

The bestowal of medals for length of faithful service on the Panama Canal will be a worthy recognition of good work, and will show that peace has her decorations as well as victories no less renowned than war.

Now that the matter of revising the charter has been definitely settled, for a time at least, would it not be well for the Citizens' Association to appoint a special committee to formulate plans to push the commercial growth of the city? Other associations of a similar character, in other cities are doing splendid work along industrial lines, the members individually and collectively are exerting every effort to create a healthy commercial growth, and in most cases are succeeding. Why shouldn't the Citizen's association do the same? If inducements are offered there are many firms who would undoubtedly locate in Quincy, but the question is, who will start the movement? The Board of Trade has shown no signs of ininteresting itself in the future of the city therefore nothing can be expected of them. The Citizens' Association does claim to have an interest therefore, they should take the initiative.

The total number of marriages recorded in the United States during the twenty years from 1887 to 1906, inclusive, was 12,832,044. The number annually reported increased from 483,069 in the year 1887 to 853,290 in the year 1906. The increase year by year was by no means uniform. The marriage rate is quickly responsive to changes in economic conditions. A small increase shown for 1893 and an actual decrease in the succeeding year reflect the influence of the panic of 1892, and normal conditions do not appear to have been restored in the matrimonial market until the year 1899. It is computed that if average annual increase in marriages during the five years ending with 1892 had continued for the next six years, the aggregate number of marriages contracted during the latter period would have been greater than it was by 259,813. It is to be presumed that a considerable number of persons in this large total never contracted marriage. This suggested a loss to the community heretofore little considered in connection with periods of financial depression.

Although the mass meeting Saturday night was hardly satisfactory from a charter revisionists standpoint the citizens in passing the motion to petition the Legislature to amend the state law, so as to abolish party designations in municipal elections in this city, did accomplish one thing advocated by the special committee. From the size of the vote there was apparently little opposition to the motion, although, all the other amendments were voted down by a large majority. With the exception of a few scattering votes the opposition was out in full force, and had practically everything its own way. The reduced council and other amendments recommended by the committee were obviously too radical to be accepted, by the majority of citizens present. Then again the split in the special committee undoubtedly helped the opposition. The vote recommending the extension of the mayor's tenure of office seemed to meet with a certain amount of favor, although not as much as was expected, in the light of Mayor Shea's popularity. The principal reason this amendment was not passed, seemed to be from the fact that the voters did not consider the time ripe for any special changes. Although the recommendations were laid on the table for an indefinite time the champions of revision intend to keep on working until they have accomplished their purpose; the revision of the charter.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

We believe that the constitution ought to be amended so as to provide for an educational qualification for suffrage. An amendment seems to be necessary, for it has been held that the Legislature cannot change the qualifications for voters as fixed by the constitution. It is no injustice to anyone to require that the man who votes should at least be able to read and mark his ballot. We do not mean to say that the mere ability to read and write necessarily fits a man to vote. But we do say that a man who has that ability is more able than a man who is without it to fit himself for suffrage. Further than this we think that in a State where universal compulsory education is the rule an educational qualification is almost necessarily implied. Our theory is that a man cannot be a good citizen without education—hence we aducate him. If that is so, men who cannot read and write ought not to vote, for they, according to our educational theory, are not good citizens. To raise this bar against voting would put a premium on education, and so it would have a good effect in every way.

Certainly we should change the constitution so as to exclude the foreigner till he is a full-fledged citizen. Nor should he be permitted to become a citizen till he has lived in the country long enough to learn at least what an election is. We do not allow the most intelligent young man who is born in the land to vote till he is twenty-one years old till he has had twenty-one years of contact with our national life, and with our institutions. Yet the most ignorant foreigner may vote on his mere declaration of his intention to become a citizen, without ever becoming a citizen, after a residence of one year in the country and six months in the State, although he may not have the least knowledge of our laws and institutions—may not know even for whom he is voting. This is no party question. Political bosses of both parties have worked this naturalization scheme. Now one party profits by it and now the other. We owe our foolish constitutional rule to the Democrats. The question thus is one in which the people, without distinction of party, are deeply interested, for the evil which is now so obvious their dearest interests.—Indianapolis News.

ARTS AND THE HUMAN SPIRIT.

"Art and the Human Spirit" is the general subject of the annual Boston course of Professor Edward Howard Griggs. The lectures will be given as usual in Tremont Temple, on successive Saturday mornings at eleven o'clock, beginning January 30th. The subjects of the lectures are: The Expression and Interpretation of Human Life in Art; The Primitive Sources of Art; The Race, the Epoch, and the Individual in Art; The Meaning and Function of Sculpture and Paintings; The Meaning and Function of Music; The Meaning and Function of Poetry; Literature and Liberal Culture; Beauty and the Culture of the Spirit. The course will present as fully and searchingly as possible the place and meaning of the Fine Arts in relation to the spirit of man. It will begin with the study of the unity of the Fine Arts, their expression and interpretation in common of the universal elements of human experience. Then the historical sources of the Arts and the great forces that determine the specific characteristics of a masterpiece will be presented. The heart of the course, however will be an effort to define the particular meaning and function of each of the arts, the way in which it can express and interpret some phase of the common human life more effectively than any other. Finally the course will close with a lecture showing the ministry of the Arts to man's spirit and their place in culture.

WILL CONDUCT "OPEN SHOP"

Hat Manufacturers Say They Will Not Yield to Strikers

TWENTY THOUSAND MEN OUT

Assertion That Their Places Will Eventually Be Filled, as Many Non-Union Men Are Out of Employment—Claim That Workmen Have Treated Employers Unfairly—Will Not Use Union Label

New York, Jan. 18.—The "open shop" and a fight to the finish was the action decided upon by the Hat Manufacturers' association at a meeting held here to discuss the hatters' strike which began Friday.

An effect of the strike, according to the manufacturers, will be a rise in the price of hats, for the trouble has occurred in the busy season.

Twelve members, comprising the board of directors of the Mat Manufacturers' association, attended the meeting. President Mundheim said the number of strikers was between 15,000 and 20,000, but that there were many non-union hatters out of employment and that eventually the places of the strikers would be filled.

"The manufacturers feel that they have not been treated fairly," he said. "The strikers should have given us notice, according to their agreement, and the action should have been taken by a vote of the union."

Discussing discontinuance of the union label by the manufacturers, which precipitated the strike, he said:

"The label is of no advantage to the manufacturers, and indeed is not wanted. Very few people who buy hats notice whether the label is in them or not."

AUTO GIRL IS FOUND

Miss Charlesworth Was Not Killed by Falling Over a Sea Wall

London, Jan. 18.—Misss Violet G. Charlesworth, whose mysterious disappearance a short time ago caused a great deal of excitement, because of her remarkable career and her intimate association with extensive stock deals, has been found and identified at Oban, Scotland.

It was reported that Miss Charlesworth, who lived with her parents in Wales, was killed while automobiling with her sister and the chauffeur, about two weeks ago. The young woman was said to have been hurled over a sea wall. Her sister and the chauffeur escaped injury.

Investigation failed to show any indications that a body had fallen over the cliffs. This gave rise to suspicion and search for the missing woman has been continued zealously.

TALE TOLD BY WRECKAGE

Schooner and Her Crew Lost Off the Shore of Long Island

New York, Jan. 18.—In a biting, driving snowstorm off the Long Island shore, near the Blue Point lifesaving station, schooner Swallow of St. John's and her crew paid the toll of the sea so often demanded of those who ply their trade there.

The story of the wreck, or as much as is known of it, was told by the sea itself, for it strewed the beach east of Fire Island for several miles with wreckage from the ship and her cargo.

Of the crew, probably five or six men, judging from the schooner's size, there was no trace. But from the wildly tossing seas and the howling gale, the beach patrols knew the men's fate. No human power could have aided them.

HEADED FOR ALBANY

But Chinamen From Montreal Will Not Reach Desired Destination

Montreal, Jan. 18.—Ten Chinamen were found in a baggage car bound for Albany Sunday. The car was loaded with theatrical scenery Saturday and the door secured with a seal.

Inspectors found the seal had been broken and upon opening the door to examine the car's contents, found the ten Chinamen.

It is suspected that this underground route for getting Chinamen into the United States has been used before.

British Steamer Wrecked

Cuxhaven, Jan. 18.—The British steamer Fidra has been wrecked off Amrun and is a total loss. The Fidra carried a crew of eighteen, and it is believed that most of them perished while trying to make the shore, the boats being smashed by the heavy breakers. Several bodies have been washed up.

Frightened to Death by Fire

Boston, Jan. 18.—John D. Weld, aged 60, a wealthy retired merchant, lost his life in a fire which wrecked the furnishings of his room on the ninth floor of the Hotel Lenox. Death is ascribed to syncope, due to fright caused by the fire. The exact cause of the fire is unknown.

FOR ADVANCEMENT OF THE FINE ARTS

Roosevelt Takes Steps Toward a Governmental Council

Washington, Jan. 18.—Appreciating the plea that the fine arts have been denied that governmental consideration so generally shown by other nations, as suggested by the American Institute of Architects, President Roosevelt has taken the first steps looking to their recognition by this government.

In response to a report from the American Istitution of Architects, the president has asked the institute to designate the names of thirty men, representing all parts of the country, to compose a counsel of the fine arts.

The object of the council will be to advise upon the character and design of all public works of which the art of design forms an integral part; and to make suggestions and recommendations for the conservation of all historic monuments.

The president says he will direct members of his cabinet to refer to the proposed council of fine arts for their expert advice all matters in their charge embracing architecture, selection of sites and landscape work, sculpture and painting.

METHODIST MISSIONS

Seventy-Fifth Anniversary of Their Establishment to Be Celebrated

Washington, Jan. 18.—In the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal church in this city Methodist Episcopalians will celebrate with prayer and music and addresses the diamond jubilee of the beginning of the missionary movement of the church. Seventy-five years ago the church sent out its first missionary in the person of Melville B. Cox, who landed on the west coast of Africa in Liberia, and began the work which has now spread to all parts of the civilized and uncivilized world.

President Roosevelt and Vice president Fairbanks will speak at tonight's celebration. Other speakers will be Earl Cranston, Methodist Episcopal bishop of Washington, and Joseph C. Hartzell, missionary bishop to Africa since 1896.

One purpose of the celebration is the starting of a fund to equip in better manner the stations of the Methodist Episcopal church in Africa. There are six of these in different parts of the continent, and the sum of $300,000 is needed to aid in the spreading of their work. Members of the church will be asked tonight to contribute that sum in commemoration of the diamond jubilee, in addition to their regular offerings.

MASS SAID IN REGGIO

Altar Set Up Amid Picturesque and Pastoral Surroundings

Reggio, Jan. 18.—For the first time since the earthquake disaster of Dec. 28 mass was said in Reggio yesterday under conditions that recalled the early days of the church. Processions passed through the streets of the city ringing bells and calling the people to the service, which was held in an orange and lemon grove near the shore.

On the outskirts of the crowd before the improvised altar were several shepherds in the midst of their flocks, standing erect in their characteristic dress with hands crossed over the top of their crooks, upon which they rested their chins.

FRONT OF HOUSE WRECKED

Explosion Kills a Man and Is Felt For Miles Around

Onset, Mass., Jan. 18.—The act of Martin Thayer, aged 65, a retired business man, in carrying a lighted lantern into a private acetylene plant connected with his home here, resulted in his death, an explosion being caused by escaping gas meeting the flame of the lantern.

The explosion wrecked the front of the house, blowing the entire wall out, and started a fire, but the property loss was small.

The shock was felt for several miles around, windows being shattered and articles on mantelpieces and in cupboards falling to the ground.

DEATH RELIEVES WORRY

Lord Amherst, Who Recently Lost Fortune, Succumbs to Apoplexy

London, Jan. 18.—Lord Amherst of Hackney, whose famous library was sold recently at public auction in London, was stricken with apoplexy and died within a few hours after the stroke.

His health had been poor for some time past, and the members of his family do not attribute the attack to worry over his loss of about $1,250,000 through the defalcations of his solicitor, which forced him to sell his library and involved him in legal proceedings.

Twenty-Five Men Drowned

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 18.—It is reported that twenty-five laborers were drowned by the destruction, in a flood, of a railroad trestle between Sacramento and Davis.

PATIENTS HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

Fire Destroys a Private Hospital While Blizzard Is Raging

ALL ARE SAFELY REMOVED

Firemen Handicapped by Extreme Cold and Nothing Is Left of Nearly Fireproof Building but the Walls and Roof—Institution Was Burned Less Than Three Years Ago and Had Been Rebuilt

Biddeford, Me., Jan. 18.—For the second time within three years, the Trull hospital, a private institution owned by Dr. J. F. Trull, was destroyed by fire, the fifteen patients being removed to places of safety barely in time to save their lives. The total loss is estimated at $47,000 and is partly covered by insurance.

On account of a severe blizzard which was raging the firemen had great difficulty in getting the flames under control and many firemen suffered from frost bites and from injuries caused by slipping on the icy timbers.

On March 14, 1906, the hospital was partly burned and the work of rebuilding after that fire was completed less than two years ago.

The fire Sunday was discovered in the basement by Dr. Randall, the house physician. He attempted to put it out with a hand fire extinguisher, but was overcome by the smoke and the fumes from the extinguisher so that it was not until several minutes after he had managed to work his way out of the cellar that the assistance of the fire department was called by telephone.

Groped Through Smoke

Meanwhile Randall, assisted by W. H. Tibbetts, who lives near the hospital, and the nurses had busied themselves in bringing the fifteen patients down to the first floor. The smoke had grown so dense throughout the building by that time that they were obliged to grope their way down the stairs. Ambulances were summoned and all the patients, wrapped up to protect them from the snow and the icy wind, were carried to the nurses' home, only a short distance away. All of them are reported to be resting comfortably, showing no ill effects from the excitement and exposure.

The firemen found the blaze a particularly difficult one, partly because of the extreme cold and partly because the building was so nearly fireproof in its construction that the flames could not be reached easily between the walls. Only the walls and part of the roof are left as a shell.

The hospital was first opened in June, 1900, and was burned on March 14, 1906. It was reopened and dedicated again in February, 1907. The previous fire was a sensational one because the surgeons, who were in the midst of an operation on the top floor of the building, remained and finished their delicate work, while the fire engines hummed outside and attendants held umbrellas over the physicians and the patient to keep off the water coming through the roof from the firemen's streams.

BOSTON HAS $800,000 FIRE

Three Hundred and Fifty Automobiles Are Reduced to Ruins

Boston, Jan. 18.—A puff of flame shot up from the rear of the most extensive automobile storage and repair plant in the city, located near Park square, shortly before dawn, and one-half an hour later 350 automobiles, valued at $750,000, were a mass of tangled steel and iron.

The fire also spread to the old train shed of the Park square railroad station and destroyed the bicycle track and a large pavilion used for exhibition purposes. It is expected that the damage to these buildings will bring the total loss to above $800,000.

There were six garages, including several used chiefly for repairs, in the big storage plant which was formerly the station freight shed.

According to the watchman, the fire shot up from the vicinity of the boiler room. It seemed but an instant before the flames swept through the building, which was a one story affair, bursting through from one section to another and fed with gasolene soaked floors and quantities of that fluid stored in tanks in different sections of the shed.

The fire practically cleaned out all the building of the Park square terminal station, left when the railroad gave up the site. The real estate men of the city are inclined to regard the fire as a blessing in disguise and a chance for the immediate improvement of the locality.

A Rising Fall.

A certain member of the British government who was admittedly a great failure was being discussed by two of his colleagues.

"And now," concluded one, "they want to make him a peer!"

"No," said the other, with greater acumen; "they want to make him disappear."

TEETH AND MOUTH SHOULD BE CLEAN

Workers In Dentistry and Hygiene Confer at Boston

Boston, Jan. 18.—In an effort "to educate the public as to the necessity of keeping the mouth and teeth clean and healthy, to establish dental hygiene in schools as a part of public education, to prevent the spread of infectious diseases, to prevent pain and increase the mental and physical efficiency of school people and to establish infirmaries for the treatment of diseased conditions of the mouth and teeth," the Massachusetts state conference on oral and dental hygiene begun a six days' session here last night.

The leaders of the conference declare that the importance of dental hygiene has never been understood or appreciated by the public at large. Many of them mention with approval the theory of Dr. Henry Upson, a Cleveland neurologist, who announced a few days ago his discovery that there is a direct connection between defects in dentition on the one hand and criminal instincts and nervous disorders on the other.

MEDALS FOR SAILORS

Made Rescue Under Conditions Regarded as Precluding Success

Gloucester, Mass., Jan. 18.—Captain Robert Giffin and the five members of the crew of the schooner Conquerer of this port have received notice of the award to them of a silver medal and $15 apiece by the Massachusetts Lifesaving association as the reward for their heroism and valor in rescuing the crew of schooner Eric, off Nauset, in December. In addition Giffin will receive the formal certificate of the society.

Sighting signals of distress from the Eric, Giffin attempted to approach the distressed schooner from the leeward. This was impossible, and he immediately had the dories directed toward the windward side of the Eric.

At first it was impossible to reach the sides of the schooner from this direction. Obtaining a quantity of oil, however, the dories managed to barely reach the Eric's side and succeeded in taking off all on board.

This is one of the few times in the annals of rescues at sea that an approach from windward under such conditions has been successful.

PRACTICAL ASSISTANCE

America Sending Building Supplies For Thousands In Stricken Messina

New York, Jan. 18.—Loaded with lumber and materials sufficient to construct 500 houses to shelter the homeless in stricken Messina, steamer Eva will sail from the Brooklyn navy yard dock today for Italy.

Within two hours of the receipt on Saturday of the orders from Washington, given at President Roosevelt's instance, to purchase, load and ship building supplies to the devastated districts, J. A. Mudd, the navy purchasing and disbursing officer here, had chartered the Eva and began loading. Joists, beams, bevelled pine siding, roofing tar paper, locks, bolts, window glass, sashes and nails, were assembled and rapidly loaded.

The houses to be constructed will be fifteen feet by twenty, and every second house will be divided by a partition into two rooms. All tools necessary for erecting the houses go with the materials. By the end of the week two more vessels, carrying materials for the remaining 2500 houses provided for by the congressional appropriation of $500,000, will be en route for Messina.

TRAGEDY IN BOSTON STREET

Sicilian Is Shot and Killed by a Fellow Countryman

Boston, Jan. 18.—Galligo DeLucio, aged 25, a fruit pedlar, was shot and almost instantly killed on a street here last night and the police arrested Francesco Chincolla, aged 54, charged with the shooting.

The two men are Sicilians and, it is alleged, have had difficulties over business. Chincolla met DeLucio as the latter was going to a Court street theatre and accosted him, asking him if he had anything to say. DeLucio attempted to pass and was shot once in the neck, dying in a few minutes.

The body of Martin Hathaway, a janitor, of Somerville, Mass., was found on the railroad tracks near his home, death having been caused by being struck by a train.

The tie-up on the Great Western railway of Brazil is complete, but there has been little violence.

IN A LIBEL SUIT

Subject of Interested Discussion Among Washington Lawyers

STATEMENTS ABOUT PANAMA

Lead to Serving Subpoenas Upon Several Newspaper Men—Suggestion That President Roosevelt Is Real Complainant In Case Which Promises to Be of a Most Remarkable Character

Washington, Jan. 18.—The latest and most interesting suggestion regarding sensational developments involving the service of subpoenas upon a number of newspaper men in this city and elsewhere in connection with published statements regarding the Panama canal purchase is that an individual, and not the United States government, is the real plaintiff in the case.

It is true that the subpoenas served here read "the United States vs. The Press Publishing company," but if the proposed action is criminal in character, as is generally assumed to be the case, that would be the form of a subpoena even where an individual is the complainant, according to the practice in the District of Columbia.

The identity of the individual or individuals—for there may be more than one of them—is purely a matter of speculation, for the public will have to await the promised statement of Attorney General Bonaparte to have any accurate understanding of this remarkable case.

Possibly President Roosevelt himself is the complainant, or it may be that the action was begun by William N. Cromwell, or by Douglas Robinson, or any of the persons named in the original newspaper publications in an individual way. A significant fact is that Cromwell was in Washington when the subpoenas were served, though he left during Saturday night for New York.

Lawyers Are Interested

Local lawyers are discussing the case with interest, and already sharp differences of opinion appear as to the right of the United States government to prosecute a criminal libel proceeding against either an individual or a newspaper, which is after all the bone of contention, for there can be no question of the right of an individual to bring such an action.

It is pointed out that the supreme court is on record in the Goodwin case as denying the power of a United States circuit court to take jurisdiction in a criminal libel case.

On the other hand, while it is admitted that there is no statutory law warranting such an action by the government, it certainly does enjoy such a right under the common law as an absolutely necessary measure of power to protect the existence of the government.

The officials here remain mute and there is nothing to be learned. The district attorney remains snowbound in his country home, inaccessible to reporters and cut off from the telephone; the attorney general of the United States is at home in Baltimore, and at the White House there is a flat refusal to discuss the matter.

SHIFTER RUNS AWAY

Bumps Into Passenger Engine and Many Persons Are Hurt

Portland, Me., Jan. 18.—A shifting engine running wild through the yards of the Maine Central railroad here caused a collision with a Boston passenger train.

No person was injured seriously, although several train hands received slight bruises and cuts and a number of the pasengers were badly shaken up.

Both locomotives were placed out of commission by the accident, the shifting engine being thrown clear of the tracks.

Responsibility for the accident has not yet been placed.

WANTED TO SEE THE GOVERNOR

Insane Man Who Was After $500,000 Sent to an Asylum

Boston, Mass., Jan. 18.—An insane man said to be Moses Speats, aged 47 years, made his way into the anteroom of the office of Governor Draper at the state house and to Frank Hardigan of the state police, who was the first to accost him, declared he had come to demand $500,000.

In making his demand for money he also stated he had lost three children by death, one in Canada and two in this country. The man was committed to the city prison, where Dr. Jelly declared him insane and ordered him committed to the Taunton Insane Asylum.

The man was removed so quietly from the state house that Governor Draper was unaware that anything unusual had happened, and no particular trouble was caused by the unfortunate man.

It is claimed that Cummings ordered the glue from the Boston firm, giving the name of a customer he claimed to have secured for the order. The bill being presented to the alleged customer it was found that the party had never received the glue.

WOMAN BACK TO OLD SPHERE.

Have Found the Beating Typewriter no Better than Beating Omelet.

New York, Jan. 18—The tendency of the "new" woman to avoid home duties, to enter the professions and occupations of men and to regard marriage as hampering a "broader" and "more intellectual" career represents merely the extreme swing of the pendulum in the movement which has brought to women many rights and opporaunities not formerly enjoyed by them, according to Annie N. Meyer, who is one of the prominent conservative leaders of women's movements. In this respect she likens women to the American negroes after they were freed from slavery when they wanted to do only the things that they had been forbidden to do previously. Following a similar impulse women have been ambitious in their new-found freedom to rival men in education and business and have looked with distaste on the work which they were better fitted to perform.

"The problem of the future will be how best to fit women for more effective service in the tasks that have never been denied them," says Appleton's magazine in an article by Mrs. Meyer. "They will have to be led back gently but firmly from following false gods. They have to discard the notion that because something was denied them in the past it must necessarily be just what they want. Why is it that the home is so comparatively little a creation of scientific progress and the store, the factory and the hotel are quick to take advantage of every advance? Why is the home with its power, its influences, its human interest, considered narrow, while the counting-house with its greater routine, its duller details, is considered bread? Is the man who plods all day over columns of figures doing so much more interesting work than the woman who hangs over a cradle? Is pounding a typewriter more intellectual than beating an omelet? These are questions that are beginning to be asked.

"Slowly and by degrees," the Appleton article declares, "through wiser and more extended industrial education, through scientific training for homemaking and child-rearing, the old, old duties of womanhood, the scorned, belittled duties, will be enthroned in their rightful place. The cry to 'enfranchise the home' will come to connote something quite different from what it now implies. It will not be brought about by dragging the home to the polls, but by consecrating to the home the accumulated result of scientific knowledge and moral progress. Then, and then only, will women find the direction of the home to quote the President of the University of Wisconsin: 'A high intellectual pleasure, rather than a wearisome routine.' Then, and then only, will enfranchised woman come fully and freely into 'her own.'"

SLIDE AND WADE.

Churchgoers Have Hard Time to Keep out of Slush and off of Ice.

Sunday was one of the most disagreeable days this winter. There was a light snow Saturday night and Sunday morning, which turned to rain during Sunday morning. The result was that the snow turned to slush and walking was very disagreeable. As the day wore on the rain increased in violence and the slush became deeper. Walking without getting the feet wet was next to impossible. The street railway kept its big plows and sand cars going all day so that its lines were kept open.

Pedestrians found it much better walking in the street car tracks than on the sidewalks although to get from the sidewalk to the street meant a long jump or a wade through six inches of slush. Late in the afternoon the rain ceased and the temperature dropped to below the freezing point. The water on the trees froze transforming them into things of beauty. The sun came out clear this morning but the air remained cold. The city teams were out early and the slippery sidewalks had been sanded before most pedestrians were out.

In Atlantic an electric light pole was blown down and branches blown off of several trees on Atlantic and Hancock streets.

BIBLE READING CLUB.

It is planned to read the whole Bible in course, the first as a foundation for special topical study in the future. The readings have been carefully arranged in chronological order under a monthly schedule. The course of lectures arranged will be as a supplement to the readings and will add greatly to their profit and interest. The lectures will be given by some of the best authorities on Biblical and Oriental study.

No charge is made for enrollment in the club, the lectures being open to all whether members of the church or not. The leaders in the church are giving their hearty cooperation and this is very encouraging to those who are at the head of the club. The officers of the club are, president, Deacon E. W. Branch; vice president, Rev. E. N. Hardy, Ph D; secretary and treasurer, Walter E. Blanchard. The directors are, Miss Alice S. Hatch, Miss Amelia Bumpus, Miss Augusta T. Crance, Carl R. Japanese Alert.

The Japanese also have looked over the contents of their industrial stores and have decided that something must be done toward conserving their remaining supplies of raw material for paper making. In Japan, paper is used for almost everything from the silver-figured partitions of the Buddhist temple to the rude hut walls of the laborer; from the silk-like vestments of the priest down to the rain-proof shield of the traveler. In fact, the ingenuity of the Japanese is only matched by the varities of uses to which paper may be adapted.

The work of the United States Government toward determining the amount of paper materials used and the source of future supply, is being followed by the Japanese, according to an advice from U. S. Consul John H. Snodgrass, at Kobe. The imminence of the danger is apparent from the fact that the Japanese authorities have requested the paper mills department of the Mitsu Bishi Kaisha to take over some 7,500 acres of the bamboo forests of Formosa.

It is known that the bamboo tree has been the raw material from which the Japanese have recently made the larger portion of their paper products; so it is thought that, by introducing the improved methods of forest cultivation and harvesting, this tract of woods will furnish yearly 10,000,000 bamboos, adapted for conversion into paper pulp. No matter whether company will establish its mills in Formosa or ship the bamboo to Japan in a partly finished state, the development of this new source of raw material will be of high importance and may overcome the necessity of the Island Empire looking to foreign countries for the future supply of paper pulp.

PARK THEATRE.

At last England has done the handsome thing by us in sending to Boston Fannie Ward with her beauty, her Americaisms and her talent in full bloom and her artistic measurement of such considerable importance as to insure her a welcome and popularity greater than that achieved by any of the younger stars of note who have delighted London before they caught the fancy of their native slaves. "The New Lady Bantock" comes as a brand new comedy idea from the inventive brain of Jerome K. Jerome, who has made millions laugh with his "Three Men in a Boat" and other books, and it is one of the most amusing and interesting plays seen in years.

Miss Ward made the greatest kind of a hit. She is a dear, and entirely unspoiled by her foreign absorption, and comes back as blithely native, as American as prairie golden-rod, and prettier than any rose. She is a serious little comedienne with arch humor and great comedy gifts. Her beauty is flower-like and radiant of the petite and bewitching sort which made Lotta the prettiest little mischief in the land for so many years of American triumph. She is better than Lotta, because she is more natural.

"Pilgrim's Progress."

[Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.]

One day soon after the close of the civil war, while in Savannah, Ga., I drifted into a secondhand bookstore in search of something with which to while away the time during an enforced sojourn in that city. While there the proprietor told me this story:

"One day during the summer of 1863 Tom Clark, a man whom we knew to be opposed to secession, but who had always lived here and proposed to stay, he said, at least till the Union was restored, came into this store and began nosing among my books. He said he wanted something for an old aunt of his who took no interest in anything except religion. I had Baxter's 'Saint's Rest,' Headley's 'Sacred Mountains,' 'Pilgrim's Progress' and several others the names of which I have forgotten. He told me that he would like to take the lot to his aunt, let her pick out those she fancied and he would bring back the rest, paying for those he kept. I let him take all he wanted, and he went away with them. In a few days he came in and paid for all except 'Pilgrim's Progress,' which he returned, saying that his aunt had a copy and had read it through many times. 'Besides,' he added, 'the book is too heavy for an old woman to hold anyway. The covers alone must weigh a pound.'

"Soon after this a mulatto came into the shop, handed me a scrap of paper with the words 'Pilgrim's Progress' written on it and asked if I had the book, saying that his mistress, who lived on a plantation between here and Augusta, had sent him for it. I showed him the book, but he said he couldn't read and asked if there were any pictures in it. I showed him pictures of the giant Despair, Apollyon, the Celestial City and other illustrations, which satisfied him, for his mistress, it seemed, had told him that in this way he might identify the book. He paid me $10 for it in Confederate money—less than a dollar in greenbacks—and took it away with him.

Somehow or another the darky excited my distrust. While I had been at the other end of the store I had caught sight of him turning the pages of "Pilgrim's Progress" as though he was reading it. When I joined him I asked him if he wasn't deceiving me about not being able to read, but he denied doing so with all the voluble "Fo de Lords!" and "On ma wo'd of honahs!" for which the colored race are noted. However, I didn't care whether he could or couldn't read, and five minutes after he had gone I forgot all about him.

There were a few Yankee prisoners of war in this town at the time who had been captured the autumn before at a big fight that had occurred on the railroad between here and Charleston. They were confined in the jail that had always been used for criminals. Captain Dan Mobray, a popinjay, had charge of them, and he boasted that if any Yank could break jail when he was in command he was welcome to do so. He had a theory that most escapes of prisoners are effected by some one smuggling in to them articles to assist them in getting away, so he wouldn't let any one get near them without being first searched.

Despite Captain Dan's precautions one fine morning when the guard went to feed the prisoners he found every mother's son of them had gone during the night. All the bars necessary to their escape had been sawed through. When Captain Dan came to the jail and saw what had been done he liked to have had a fit. He summoned every one who had had access to the prisoners—there were only two or three persons in all—and questioned them closely, but gained no clew. Never was a man more puzzled. He cursed and swore, and if any of the Yanks had remained I think he would have tortured them to make them tell how the tools had been smuggled into the jail. What bothered him most was that he was satisfied that no person who had visited the prisoners had done the smuggling. A few eatables had been sent in, but they had all been so carefully examined that by no possibility could they have contained tools. From something I heard during the talk about the escape I got on to a clew.

What I heard was this: Only one article except food had been sent to the prisoners. A pious old lady living up the river had sent them a copy of Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress." But the book had been well shaken and care exercised that nothing should be concealed between the leaves. It was not suspected that the book had contained saws or files. The only singular part of this matter was that the prisoners had taken the "Pilgrim's Progress" with them.

After the close of the war I learned the secret. It seems that after the escape one of the Yankees was concealed for a time on the plantation of Tom Clark. Clark's daughter Helen fell in love with the fellow and he with her. Six months after the loss of our cause this Yankee came down and married Helen Clark. While here he told the story of how he and his comrades got their tools. Clark, who was rank Union, took home the "Pilgrim's Progress" on purpose to put saws into the thick covers. He didn't dare send the book direct to the prisoners, expecting that such an act would implicate him. He brought it back to me and induced an old lady to buy it and send it to the prisoners. When she consented Clark, not willing to rely on an ordinary messenger, got one of his sons to make up for a darky, buy the book and carry it to the jail.

NEW CITY COUNCIL GETS DOWN TO WORK

Several Important Measures Discussed at Regular Meeting

There was considerable debate first and last at Monday nights meeting of the City Council and it was made apparent that matters would not be railroaded through this council as they have through some previous years.

There were a number of spectators at the meeting which included Mayor Allen of the Noah Torrey school city of Braintree, the Chief Justice, sheriff Chief of Police and a number of lesser lights. They were accompanied by the master of the school and were given seats in the inclosure reserved for city officials.

Councilman Flaherty was the only absent member.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing George Craig, Jr., Alfred J. LaBrecque and George S. Waterhouse as constables. Confirmed.

Under unfinished business the amendment to the council rules fixing the time at which applications for junk collectors licenses and permits to transport liquor could be received came up.

Councilman Bryant moved to amend by making the date the first Monday of April.

Councilman Whiton opposed. The licenses did not expire until May 1, and applicants should be given until that time.

Councilman Bryant said that by having all applications filed by the first of April the committee could act on them at one time and facilitate business.

The amendment of Councilman Bryant was adopted and the amendment to the rules was adopted.

Several applications for minor licenses were received and referred.

A petition was received for a fire alarm box near the Quincy Mansion school. Laid on the table until later when Councilman Bryant offered an order for a fire alarm box near the Quincy Mansion school and one at the foot of Beach street. Referred to the Executive.

A petition was received from storekeepers and merchants urging action to prevent the sale of merchandise by outside peddlers and hawkers.

Councilman Bryant asked the City Solicitor if the Council could pass an order so that outside people could not peddle here?

City Solicitor McAnarney said that if the party held a state license he should hesitate to say. If the peddler is obliged to get a license here reasonable restrictions could be imposed. If he is a peddler that does not require a local license it was doubtful if the city could stop him from peddling here.

Petition referred to Ordinance Committee.

Councilman Carey presented a petition for lights on Dysart street. Referred to Executive.

Councilman Richards presented a petition for the acceptance of Taber street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

The Committee on Ordinances reported ought to pass on the order for a special committee to revise the ordinances. Order adopted.

The Committee on Police reported an order appropriating $300 for the purchase of a horse for the Police Department. Referred to Finance Committee.

The Commmittee on Fire Department asked for further time on order for a new steamer. Granted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES

The Committee on Streets reported orders for public hearings Feb. 1, on petitions of the Electric Light Co., and the Telephone Co., for a location for poles and for attachments.

POLICE ORDINANCE.

The Committee on Fire Department and Police reporting on the petitions for additional police at Wollaston say that in order to provide the necessary policemen required to enable the Chief to place more men on duty at Wollaston the number of permanent men will have to be increased. The Committee therefore reported an order amending the Police Ordinance which aims to place the department on a metropolitan basis. The amendment provides that there shall be a Chief of police, an Inspector with rank of Captain, two lieutenants, one sergeant, twenty-two patrolmen and a reserve force of seven men.

The purport of the order is that it promotes the present lieutenant to the rank of captain and the two sergeants to the rank of lieutenants and creates a vacancy in the office of sergeant. It also increases the number of permanent men from twenty to twenty-two.

Referred to Special Committee to revise Ordinances.

Councilman Bryant moved reference be withdrawn and the order laid on the table. Voted.

The Committee on Ordinances reported reference to the special committee on revising Ordinances, of the order of 1908 for the revision of the ordinances. Councilman Bryant moved to lay on the table. Voted.

Under motion Councilman Bryant moved reconsideration of the vote adopting the order for a special committee to revise the Ordinances. Voted.

Councilman Bryant then moved all the matter on the table be referred back to the Committee on Ordinances.

Councilman Cherrington opposed. If it goes to a special committee it could be acted upon better. The ordinance committee was not shirking.

Councilman Bryant did not say they were shirking, but it belonged to the Ordinance committee and he was confident they would do their work faithfully.

The motion to refer the three matters to the Ordinance committee was then voted.

Councilman Bryant offered on order for a police signal box at the foot of Beach street. Referred to Executive.

Councilman McDevitt offered an order for two lights on California avenue. Referred to Executive.

Councilman Flynn offered an order for lights on Beach street Ward two. and on Wharf street. Referred to Executive.

Councilman Richards offered an order for a special committee of three to consider the advisability of revising the City Charter.

In support of the order he said it should be considered here. The proper persons had been ignored. Any revision should be done by the representatives of the people. The resolutions reported by the Citizens' committee did not cover the case. There was more or less criticism of the charter.

The whole sense of these resolutions was not to reduce power but to give more power. They want to reduce representation. People are looking for more representation. It was evident the people do want some change in the charter. It will not do any harm to see if something can not be done for the benefit of the people.

Councilman Freeman. There was a special committee last year who gave a public hearing and but one person appeared. This committee gave notice that they would give a hearing at any time but no one appeared.

Councilman Nowland said there must be some sentiment for a change when all clubs bring in a report.

The order was adopted. Vote doubted. On a rising vote the order was refused 6 voting yes and 10 no.

Councilman Smith offered an order for two lights on Filbert street. Referred to the Executive.

The Council then proceeded to the election of two trustees of the City Hospital by ballot. Councilmen Gilson and Whiton were elected.

George A. Sidelinger was elected a manager of the Woodward Fund and Property.

Councilman Richards moved a reconsideration of the vote rejecting the order for a special committee on the charter.

Councilman Freeman moved the motion be laid on the table. Motion lost.

The motion to reconsider was voted. The order was then laid on the table.

Adjourned at 8.51 until Feb. 1.

VOTE TO ACCEPT AMENDMENTS

Hospital Corporation Transacts Important Business

The annual meeting of the Quincy City Hospital corporation was held Monday evening at Colonial hall. The meeting, however, was not largely attended. Encouraging reports were made by the trustees and treasurer.

Several amendments to the by-laws came up for action. These amendments were adopted after some discussion.

The amendments were as follows:

Article 3. Amend by adding the words "or more" between twelve and Trustees on the second line so it shall read "twelve or more Trustees."

Article 5. Strike out the words "from town" so it will read "In case of the absence or disability of the President."

Article 9. Add the words "except as provided in Article 6" after the words "They shall have care of the real estate and other property of the Corporation."

Article 9. Strike out the word "Matron" wherever it occurs in the article and substitute the word "Superintendent" in its place.

Article 12. Strike out the word "pay" in the last clause and substitute the words "expense to the hospital."

Article 16. Strike out the whole article and substitute the following "Any inmate may request the visit of any spiritual adviser whom he may desire, and the Executive Committee shall respect such request."

The election of clerk and trustees was then held. Warren W. Adams was elected as clerk. The trustees elected as follows: George E. Adams, James F. Burke, Daniel L. F. Chase, Richard D. Chase, Joseph A. Dashe, Alexander Falconer, Henry M. Faxon, John A. Gordon M. D., Wendell H. Hull, Eugene C. Hultman, Nathaniel S. Hunting, M. D., Charles P. Hutchins, Henry McGrath, Arthur W. Newcomb, Nathan G. Othy Reed, Fred B. Rice, William B. Rice, Frank P. Waterhouse, John F. Welch, M. D., Henry G. Fay.

GRADE CROSSING PROBLEM.

Satisfactory Progress Made at Hearing at Braintree.

Satisfactory progress was made at Braintree Monday in getting together on a solution of the grade crossing problem. It was an adjourned hearing held at the Town hall by the special commission of which ex-Governor Bates is chairman.

The town plans were favored by all the townspeople who spoke namely lawyer Mellen, J. Marcus Arnold, Selectman Gage, H. F. Kneeland, Herbert A. Bryant, H. A. Rhoades, W. W. Mayhew, Selectman Storm, Selectman Woodsum, Civil Engineer Barbour and others.

Mr. Barbour contended that there was a difference of less than $50,000 in the estimate for the town plans and the estimate for the railroad plan when worked out for Elm, River and Union streets.

An adjournment was made until Thursday Jan. 28 at the State house when the town promises to submit details as to the cost by its plan including land damages etc.

EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN.

Suburban Churches Around Boston Active Participants.

A great evangelistic campaign for Boston and vicinity under the leadership of Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman of New York, the well-known Presbyterian preacher, is to open on Tuesday Jan. 26 in Tremont Temple. Charles M. Alexander, the gospel singer who has stirred great audiences throughout this country and England will be heard daily throughout the campaign.

Dr. Chapman will have a large corps of able and successful pastors to assist him in the movement in all the leading suburban centers about Boston, more than 150 churches are co-operating heartily to make this the greatest campaign for evangelism in the history of the church.

At least nine of Quincy's leading churches are to participate in union meetings during the weeks from Jan. 26 to Feb. 21 in the Bethany Congregational church. The local pastors will be assisted by Rev. J. W. Weddell, D. D. of Cleveland, Ohio. Dr. Weddell who is successful pastor of a large church, will preach every evening during the campaign.

The singing will be one of the striking features. A strong gospel singer will come with Dr. Weddell and will have the leadership of a large chorus choir which will sing at all of the meetings.

The movement already indicates unusual interest in Boston and in the suburban cities north of Boston and will undoubtedly stir Quincy through the great power of the general movement and through a wise conservative handling in our own midst.

BOOKS ON ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

Large Collection in Quincy Public Library.

On February 12th will occur the 100th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln also that of Charles Darwin. The year 1909 is rich in centenary anniversaries, the birthday of the poet Poe being on January 19, of Mendelssohn on February 3, of Elizabeth Browning on March 6, of Tennyson on August 6, of Oliver Wendell Holmes on August 29, and of W. E. Gladstone on December 29.

In the north corner of the reading room at the Public Library will be found works by or about Lincoln which patrons are free to consult. Those wishing to borrow for home reading will kindly carry the volume to the delivery desk to be charged. A list of the above books will appear in this weeks Patriot and the Saturday Ledger. The number of pages is given in most cases and the date of publication. For magazine articles apply to the desk.

A large broadside of Lincoln's Gettysburg address printed upon a sheet of heavy cream paper, 29 by 40 inches, has been framed and hung in the children's room.

Another shelf in the reading room has been given up to Poe's works which will be easily found by their bright binding in three quarters red leather.

Readers are again reminded that Wednesday morning is a most excellent time to come to the Library for study or reference work, the High school being then in session; for we regret to say that those pupils are proving more troublesome than the smaller children.

ARRAIGNED ON TWO COMPLAINTS

Men Arrested in Boston Held for Grand Jury

Charles Davis, alias Charles Collier and Harry Lee, alias John Ench, the two men arrested in Roxbury some days ago for wholesale breaking and entering, were brought to Quincy this morning on a capias for breaking and entering at Quincy.

After the arrest of the men in Boston, a searchof their rooms brought to light a miscellaneous assortment of articles, among which were some of those stolen from the residence of Forbes Craig at South Quincy Dec. 24, and from the house of Henry P. Fitton of Wollaston, Jan. 1.

The two men were held in Boston and in order to get them to Quincy, it was necessary to get a capias from the court. This, Inspector McKay obtained and this morning the men were brought to Quincy by Wardens McLeisley and Towle of the Charles street jail.

Special officers, Keen and Reiser of Station 9, Boston, also accompanied the prisoners who were chained together.

The two men were each arraigned on two complaints for breaking and entering in the night time and larceny.

They waived examinations in this court and were held in $4,000 each for the grand jury.

Davis and Ench are believed to be the two men who are responsible for the numerous breaks the latter part of last year in Boston and surrounding towns.

Officers from several towns have identified articles found in the room occupied by the men, as having been stolen from their towns and new evidence is constantly piling up against them.

One of the first things burglars do is to try and dispose of their loot at pawnshops, where it has been recovered by the police. In the case of these men, however, this was not done and although the pawnshops were closely watched, none of the articles were recovered in that way.

Developments after their arrest showed that the men hoarded the loot in their rooms.

It is believed that these men were concerned in other breaks in Quincy, aside from the Craig and Fitton houses, but Inspector McKay has not been able to fasten any others upon them up to the present time.

MRS. C. WALSH BURIED.

Mrs. Catherine Walsh, one of Quincy's oldest and best known residents, was buried this morning. The funeral was held from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Whelan, 58 Gass place, and a requiem high mass was celebrated at 9 o'clock by Rev. Julian E. Johnstone.

The Gregorian requiem mass was sung by the regular choir, Miss Mary McConarty singing the Pie Jesu. John Mahon was at the organ and sang the Domine Jesu. The churchwas well filled with relatives and friends of the deceased.

Mrs. Walsh was born in Ireland in 1839 and came to this country 45 years ago and settled in Milford, Mass. She was the wife of Thomas F. Walsh and has resided in Quincy over 40 years. She was the mother of a family of thirteen children, seven of whom mourn her loss.

She was also the great-grandmother and grandmother of 85 children, the majority of whom are still living.

There was an abundance of flowers from relatives and friends. The burial was in the family lot in St. Mary's cemetery, West Quincy. The bearers were Frank McLaughlin, Henry Cordett, Thomas McLaughlin, James Byrne, Thomas Walsh and Patrick Gahan.

Today's Court.

Patrick Brasin was sent to the state farm for being a tramp at Randolph.

John Cooney was fined $15 and $10 on two complaints for drunkenness at Quincy and Weymouth.

President Roosevelt will have no difficulty in shooting a white rhinocerous in South Africa. We are informed that the rhinocerous tribe is even now turning pale with fear.

The question is not, Does the Constitution follow the flag? But, does the Constitution even stay at home with the flag?

Up to a late hour last night neither house of Congress had telegraphed for one of those machines that tells whether a man is telling the truth.

Those scientists who have started a fight against the Hon. James Wilson should go home and read again the story of the gentleman who fought the windmill.

Even if Mr. Hitchcock surrenders the national committee chairmanship, it is a safe bet that he will keep the steam roller concealed about his office for emergency calls.

Now the American Peace Society of Boston is protesting against any increase in the navy. Some persons may recall the loud cries for protection that came from Boston in 1898.

Congress did the only sensible thing, when it refused to permit Congressman Willit to continue his sensational and bitter attack on President Roosevelt. The President is impulsive, tactless, and arbitrary at times, but he is honest and the public know it, therefore such attacks as the one made by Congressman Willit will have very little weight.

In view of the decisive action of the citizens at the mass meeting last Saturday evening it is somewhat surprising that Councilman Richards should spring an order at Monday night's meeting of the City Council for the appointment of a special committee to consider the advisability of revising the City Charter. Not only was Mr. Richards present at Saturday night's meeting and personally voted with the majority but he is also President of the Board of Trade which a few nights ago voted that it was inexpedient to amend the charter.

In view of these facts it is hard to understand Mr. Richards sudden change of feeling. In his argument before the City Council he is quoted as saying that there was more or less criticism of the charter and that it was agreed that the citizens do want some changes made.

We are inclined to doubt the above assertion, basing our doubts on the action of the citizens at the mass meeting. If they had thought there was any need of revising the charter they would hardly have voted as they did.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

The Treadway anti-lobby rule was acceptable to the joint Committee on Rules and was presented Thursday. It was not adopted, because Senator Spalding of Cambridge thought it did not go far enough, so he had it put over for a day for further consideration. His request was a reasonable one. The rule would exclude the agent or agents of the petitioner seeking legislation, but there is no provision for the exclusion of the principals themselves. He contended that Merrill, Tuttle, Bancroft, or any other of the railroad Presidents, or heads of corporations, could come into the Senate on the invitation of a member and appeal direct to the Senators. But the gentlemen referred to,, and others of their class, are not likely to take the time for lobbying, and with the rule of the House adopted by the Senate, the professional lobbyists will be kept out, and that is a long step in the way of reform. If the rule does not accomplish what President Treadway desires it will be an easy matter to strengthen it next year. On Friday the rule was adopted and its efficiency will now be tested—Lynn Item.

A few two-month and three-month jail sentences for men caught begging on the streets of the city, such as were meted out to three of this sort in the municipal court in the past week, will put an effectual stop to this assault upon the undiscriminating public. These beggers, for the most part, are utterly worthless—or as nearly worthless as a man can be—and money given to them is money given where it will be unworthily used. If once in a while there appears on the streets, asking for alms, a man in honest need, there is no necessity for the begging. He will be adequately and promptly taken care of by existing organizations, which do most thoroughly and effectively relieve distress. In a city such as Boston there is no excuse for street begging. It is a question whether the public will ever be so educated that begging will not be profitable, but the law can protect the public from these frauds, and in this city, through the work of the police department, it does so. And severe jail sentences backing up the police will completely rid the city of these beggars.—Boston Advertiser.

The Messiah business flourishes with the green goods game and the gold brick swindle, but it counts the deluded by multitudes instead of the individuals. Apparently a considerable part of the population of every city and village is the willing prey of every sharper who comes along with a new crack of doom prophecy, providing he has long hair and a frouzy beard. Undoubtedly the business is profitable to the charlatan, and it requires less of genius than it takes to promote fake mining companies. Generally most of the "faithful" are women, and many of them belong to families that otherwise are regarded as normal in their communities. What it is that causes the never-failing following of a glib talker with a calamity howl or a new "religion" is an intensely interesting problem for the psychologists.

In a manner this latest and other ous. They are not entirely so, however, and if the Messiah charlatanry cannot be reached otherwise, a few examples made of "prophtets" by the evenly balanced relatives of the "faithful" would be wholesomely discouraging to the whole industry, which has come to be a public nuisance. In a recent case in the West the fanaticism wrought by a fake preacher resulted in a battle between his followers and the police, in which two or three persons were killed.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Imagine getting up about 2.30 of a cold frosty morning and swinging the clubs for a few minutes and splashing in the cold tub and sitting down to breakfast at 3.15. Imagine galloping off in the direction of Worcester in the darkness and ploying through the rain and sleet in time to reach Wellesley at daybreak. Then, after a change of mounts, more plowing through the storm; more galloping by deserted farms and through wonder-stricken towns; and then, as a climax, a dashing ride into Worcester just as the Worcesterites were beginning to think of dinner and of how they would or could get home to it. But what is a storm to one who can get up before 3 in the morning and start out for a ninety-mile round trip on horseback to Worcester and back? Can a storm frazzle a rough rider? Not much. Then, after a short, snappy, steaming dinner and a short, snappy, steaming speech to the shivering populace, a fine dash back to Boston over the rough roads and through the invigorating snow and sleet. Finale—home again at 8.30, covered with ice, like a liner in from the Banks, but smiling and delighted nevertheless. Nothing like taking a day off once in a while to get rid of ennui and give the Miss Nancys a lesson.

But we doubt very much that this imaginary ride from Boston to Worcester and back will ever be taken. It is something to be dreamed; something to be spoken of as a nightmare. Also we doubt very much whether any other President but Mr. Roosevelt would attempt anything like it. If Judge Taft will try, and succeed, then will the army officers have to admit that the jig is up—Boston Journal.

EXPERIMENTS IN MENTAL SCIENCE

Most Gratifying Results In the Case of Charles Osten

CLOSE TO HYPNOTIC MIRACLE

Treatment of Patient In New Haven Hospital Enables Him to Recall His Past, Which Had Been a Blank, Even to the Extent of Knowing His Own Name—Tells Doctor of His "Dream" While Sub-Conscious

New Haven, Jan. 19.—Through a remarkable series of hypnotic experiments conducted under the direction of Dr. A. R. Diefendorf of the Yale medical school, it is now thought that the identity may be established of a man who has been at Grace hospital since Dec. 10 last, and whose mind has been a complete blank so far as his name or anything connected with his past life has been concerned.

He is Charles Osten, of Forty-Second street, New York city, according to the story told by him in his hypnotic state, and has a wife and little daughter in that city. His story is being investigated in New York.

The vital test was made at the hospital in the presence of the staff physicians. The man was placed in a hypnotic state, and while so composed, in answer to questions or suggestions by Dr. Diefendorf, the man said his name was Charles Osten, told of having a wife and child, of being born at Berlin, and of coming to this country at the age of 24 years.

He said he went from New York to San Francisco, told of living there and of a later residence in Chicago, and of working for a John Klein, Grand street, New York.

After recovering from the hypnotic state he was interrogated by Dr. Diefendorf and told the physician that he had dreamed of being in Berlin, San Francisco and New York the night before.

In his normal state, while apparently willing to answer any questions put to him, he seemed unable to do so. He was then placed in a hypnotic state and answered the questions readily.

WANT CHURCH TO BE ADJUDGED BANKRUPT

Petitions of Unusual Character Filed at Pittsburg

Pittsburg, Jan. 19.—Petitions were filed in the United States district court here asking that the church of the Holy Name of Mary, at Donora, Pa., be adjudged bankrupt. The action is said to be unprecedented in bankruptcy proceedings and is an outgrowth of the financial dealings of P. J. Kieran with Catholic church members and institutions.

The petitioners, who represent claims of $9000, base their hope of recovery on the claim that a church is not a corporation and can be thrown into involuntary bankruptcy and on the further claim that judgments for $17,000 against the church expire today unsatisfied.

WILLET ON THE WARPATH

Calls President Harsh Names and Is Rebuked by House

Washington, Jan. 19.—A sensational and bitter attack on President Roosevelt was made in the house of representatives by Mr. Willett of New York. His remarks, which were delivered under the license of general debate on the pension appropriation bill, were cut short by a vote of the house that it would hear no more of them.

The president was characterized as a "gargoyle, tyrant, pigmy descendant of Dutch trades people, hay tedder, fountain of Billingsgate, a jocularity, imitation of a king, and bogus hero."

Willett had completed the reading of about three-fourths of his speech when, after repeated appeals to the chair by numerous Republicans that he be called to order, he was compelled to take his seat. It was on a motion by Mr. Candler (Miss.) that Willett be allowed to proceed "in order" that the house voted him off the floor, 78 to 126.

Mr. Willett freely remarked on the floor that the action of the body "put an end to free speech."

A DISTRESSING BURDEN

Clergymen of Greater Boston Think Our Navy Is Large Enough

Boston, Jan. 19.—A remonstrance against further increase of the United States navy, signed by 224 clergymen of various denominations in Boston and its vicinity, has been sent to congress.

It is the belief of the ministers that naval preparations have grown so enormously as to become a distressing burden upon the richest nations and an actual menace to the peace of the world.

The remonstrance asked congress to heed the wishes of the multitude of citizens who believe that education, mutual acquaintance, trust, common sense and a just and generous purpose are bound to displace the irrational and wasteful machinery of war.

SPECIAL AGENTS UNCOVER FRAUD

Corporations and Individuals Unlawfully Acquire Land

VALUED AT ABOUT $110,000,000

Additional Appropriation of $500,000 For Interior Department Is Asked For by Secretary Garfield, to Be Used In Endeavor to Recover Lands Unlawfully Taken by orpora-Lands Unlawfully Taken Within the Past Two Years

Washington, Jan. 19.—Information of an astounding character concerning alleged wholesale frauds in public lands has come into the possession of Secretary of the Interior Garfield through special agents in the field.

The serious allegation is made that approximately $110,000,000 worth of lands in states, principally west of the Mississippi river, have been fraudulently acquired within the past two years by corporations and individuals.

With a view of recovering these lands, Garfield sent letters to Chairmen Hale and Tawney of the senate and the house appropriation committees, respectively, asking for an additional appropriation of $500,000, which, if granted, will, with that already asked for, give the department $1,000,000 for that purpose.

The specific purpose of the appropriation requested is for preventing "depredations upon public timber, protecting public lands, examining swamp lands, etc." It is explained that there is reasonable prospect of recovering much of this alleged fraudulently acquired land if the appropriation is promptly made.

It is also pointed out that while $1,000,000 may seem large, it is not one per cent of the commercial value of the land which the government may hope to recover.

Secretary Garfield also submits a statement of H. H. Schwartz, chief of the field staff, showing over 32,000 distinct cases of alleged land frauds demanding further investigation.

A summary of most of the larger cases now pending is submitted, but the details of identification and names of parties are omitted, because it is stated this would embarrass further injuiry into such cases.

LAWYER ARRESTED AND ROOMS RAIDED

Vigorous Action by Haskell, Who Charges Conspiracy

Guthrie, Okla., Jan. 19.—On a warrant sworn out by Governor Haskell, charging conspiracy to defame the governor, Scott MacReynolds, attorney and special agent for William R. Hearst, was arrested last night.

Armed with a search warrant, also sworn to by Haskell, MacReynolds' rooms at the Ione Hotel were searched by Sheriff Mahoney and O. R. Smith, private attorney of the governor. A large number of papers were seized. They are said to pertain to the $600,000 libel suit instituted by Haskell against Hearst.

MacReynolds immediately demanded of the county court, through his counsel, the whereabouts of his papers. They were found in the private office of the governor. They were turned over by Mahoney to the court.

Deputy Chief Neal states that the authorities are making a careful examination of similar fires and says that the fire in the garage on Huntington avenue last fall, in which forty machines were destroyed, was undoubtedly of incendiary origin.

An Exchange of Heads.

A Story of the Future.

[Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.]

It was fifty years ago, in 1908, that the first experiments in transplanting organs of the lower animals were made and made successfully. It was then announced by one vivisectionist that he had transplanted dogs' heads with preservation of cerebral and bulbar function.

During the decade that followed this discovery the technique involved in transplanting the head of one dog to the body of another was very much improved, and surgical scientists began to covet an opportunity to try the experiment upon men. But it was not until 1915 that Dr. Therapeutus Scalpel succeeded in obtaining the requisite human subjects. The courts that had sentenced two murderers to be electrocuted consented that they should instead be decapitated by Dr. Scalpel with a view to an exchange of heads. The prisoners gladly consented because they would have a chance to live again, though under a swapped identity.

Patrick Flanagan and Gottlieb Shuman were the subjects. Dr. Scalpel before making the experiment spent three months in educating an eminent vivisectionist and four young physicians to assist him. Just before the heads were severed the last rights of the church were administered to the convicts, after which they were placed on operating tables side by side.

The period of occlusion (shutting off the circulation) was but twenty minutes. This brought it within the limit of time necessary to prevent coagulation. During this period each head was removed from the body, transplanted, the arteries, muscles and nerves suturated, the point of cutting of the spinal chord being especially carefully adjusted.

Suspended animation returned as soon as the anaesthetic began to lose its effect, and within a few hours Dr. Scalpel began to feel that the experiment had been successful. But it was ten weeks before the patients were discharged.

Up to this time it had been supposed that the individuality of a person was solely in the brain. The case of Flanagan and Shuman demonstrated that, though this is partially correct, it is not entirely so. Flanagan on the day of his discharge headed straight for a saloon and shouted to the barkeeper, "Ye spalpeen, gimme"—he hesitated and instead of calling for a glass of whisky finished—"ein glass beer." Shuman, who followed him into the place, succeeded in correctly giving an order for whisky, but the barkeeper, being inattentive or thinking he said beer, handed him a glass of that beverage, whereupon he berated the Teuton.

"What d'ye mane, ye heathen? Fon glass visky, I said, und a sweitzer case sandvich."

Here Flanagan—that is, Flanagan's body with Shuman's head on it—took a hand. Turning to Shuman's body with his own (Flanagan's) head, he growled:

"And it is the likes of ye's that's pokin' fun at the Irish race by mixin' wid its illigant talk yer beastly Dutch spreken? Gott in himmel! Vas y' mean?"

Shuman's Dutch body (Irish head) retorted:

"Mein friend, I kilt dat man mit a hammer. If you say another wort, ye murtherin' Irishman, Oi'll mash yer Dutch head wid dot beer glass!"

Flanagan's Irish body (Dutch head) looked at his companion's Hibernian features contemptuously.

"So y' killed him wid a hammer, did ye? I spoilt my man's skull wid a sthick lacken a shillalah. Git out mit yourself!"

Reaching over the bar, he seized a stone pitcher, his enemy meanwhile raising a beer glass. Then the two drew apart, each poising his weapon and glancing at the other.

Dr. Scalpel on discharging his patients (so to speak) had directed one of his assistants to follow them to watch their movements, notice their idiosyncrasies and report to him. At this juncture the shadower rushed into the doctor's vivisecting room and excitedly informed him that the men were quarreling in a mixture of Hibernian and German and he feared they would do each other bodily harm. Dr. Scalpel, feeling that some of the reunited parts might not yet have sufficiently healed to warrant a scrimmage, seized his hat and rushed out with the informer to the saloon. He found the Irish body dancing around with the true motions of an angered Hibernian, its serious German face scowling, the lips occasionally muttering in the German language. The German body was standing stolidly in one place, its Irish face lighted with enmity, the lips pouring forth a torrent of abuse in its native parlance.

"Hi, you two! Stop this!" cried the doctor. "If you throw those weapons I'll not be responsible for the consequences. The severed parts haven't yet had time to strengthen."

He was too late. The stone pitcher and the beer mug exchanged positions, each striking a head. The Hibernian cranium rolled on the floor, the German head toppled and hung suspended by such muscles as had firmly knit.

Doctor Scalpel surveyed this finale of his work with disappointment. He had proved that the transplanting could be successfully accomplished in the case of human beings, but only a tithe of the effect upon the individuality had been determined. However, it had been demonstrated that the brain is not all of the individual. At any rate, it is influenced by the rest of the body, which is not only a mechanical contrivance, but a living thing.

PEACE OR WAR IN COAL REGION

Will Be Decided at Convention Which Began Today

DEMANDS OF THE WORKERS

Terms Reached Through Roosevelt Strike Commission No Longer Applicable to Miners' Conditions, They Declare—Operators Willing to Renew Present Compact, but Oppose Agreement Proposed by Union Men

Indianapolis, Jan. 19.—Whether the country is to have another coal strike or not will probably be decided at the convention of the United Mine Workers of America which began here this morning. The miners will put forward the demands that have been rejected by the operators, they will be rejected by the latter, and the issue will be joined.

Demands of the Miners

First.—That an agreement shall be negotiated between the representatives of the miners and the operators of the anthracite region and all disputes arising under the contract shall be adjusted as provided for in such agreement.

Second.—We demand the complete recognition of the United Mine Workers of America as a party to negotiate a wage contract and that the United Mine Workers of America shall be recognized in our right to provide any method we may adopt for the collection of revenues for the organization.

Third.—That we demand an eight-hour day with no reduction of wages.

Fourth.—That all coal shall be mined and paid for by the ton of 2000 pounds.

Fifth.—That we demand a definite and more uniform scale of wages and prices for all classes of labor at all collieries in the anthracite region and that all employes paid less than $1.50 per day shall receive a 10 per cent advance, and all employees paid more than $1.50 and less than $2 a day shall receive a 5 per cent advance.

Sixth.—That the system whereby a contract miner has more than one job or employs two or more laborers be abolished.

Seventh.—That the employers be required to issue uniform pay statements designating the name of the company, the name of the employee, the colliery where employed, the amount of wages and the class of work performed.

Eighth.—That the contract shall be made for the period of one year.

Agreement Ends March 31

The officers of the miners' unions, headed by the president, Thomas L. Lewis, the successor of John Mitchell, are insistent upon these demands. The leading operators have declared their firm intentions not to grant them. As the working agreement between the unions and the operators expires March 31 some basis of agreement must be reached at the present convention if peace is to be preserved in the anthracite industry.

The operators are willing to renew the agreement, which is one made through the mediation of the Roosevelt strike commission five years ago, but the miners' leaders declare that changed conditions make a readjustment on more liberal terms to the workers necessary.

The result of the recent election among the union mine workers will be announced at the convention.

LINCOLN CENTENNIAL

President Wants Feb. 12 Set Apart as a Special Holiday

Washington, Jan. 19.—The president sent to congress a special message recommending the passage of a law authorizing him to issue a proclamation setting apart Feb. 12, 1909, as a special holiday in recognition of the centennial anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. The president says:

"I regard the proposal as eminently proper. It will be from every standpoint desirable to observe this 100th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln as a special holiday."

Chairs Leave With Cabinet

Washington, Jan. 19.—President Roosevelt and the nine members of his cabinet will take with them as souvenirs the chairs they have occupied at cabinet meetings when the president retires from office on March 4. They will replace them at their own expense. This has been the custom of former presidents and cabinet members.

Used Gasolene on Fire

Abilene, Tex., Jan. 19.—M. H. Stream and his 3-year-old son, Roby, were burned to death and five other members of the family were probably fatally burned by a gasolene explosion. A member of the family mistook gasolene for kerosene and poured the liquid on a fire.

Supposed Real Mission of Tang Shao Yi Results In Failure

New York, Jan. 19.—Declaring his satisfaction with the results of his mission in America, Tang Shao Yi, special envoy of the Chinese government to the United States, sailed from here for Europe today.

TANG SHAO YI.

The visit of the distinguished Chinaman was ostensibly for the purpose of thanking the American government for the remission of part of the indemnity exacted for the Boxer outrages, but it is also believed that he made efforts to commit the Washington officials to a treaty of alliance with China. He has failed in his mission if the latter aim was his real purpose, but he showed no evidence of disappointment before leaving American shores.

"BLACK LEG" MAKES ITS APPEARANCE

Blooded Holstein at Once Killed and Buried In Quicklime

Princeton, Mass., Jan. 19.—The discovery of a case of "black leg," a cattle disease of rare occurrence, was announced by Dr. Stinson, a veterinary surgeon, following his examination of a herd of valuable blooded Holsteins at a stock farm here.

As the disease is regarded as very contagious and may be communicated to human beings, developing in the form of malignant carbuncles, the infected animal was immediately killed and buried in quicklime.

The other animals of the herd will be kept under close surveillance and they will be treated with an antitoxin.

SAYS GIRL SHOT HERSELF

Former Policeman Shellard Is Placed on Trial For Murder

New York, Jan. 19.—The trial of David E. Shellard, a former policeman, charged with the murder of Barbara Reig in a shelter house in Irving Square park, Williamsburg, began Monday before Justice Crane, in Brooklyn. Before court adjourned for the day the jury had been chosen and two witnesses for the prosecution had been examined.

The prisoner declared in his statement about the tragedy that the woman, after he had repulsed her, seized his revolver and shot herself. The prosecution will endeavor to prove that the former policeman did the shooting.

Shellard is married, and his wife and infant child were in the courtroom.

DEATHS PREARRANGED

Man and Wife End Earthly Woes at the Same Time

Norfolk, Jan. 19.—Having evidently carried out a plan to die together, Schuyler Carskaddon and wife were found dead in their bedroom. Both were shot through the head.

A revolver was found on the floor beside the bed in which the couple lay side by side. The theory of the police is that the couple agreed to die together, and that the husband shot his wife by prearrangement and then turned the pistol on himself.

THE QUINCY DESERT.

Editors of the Ledger:

Down by the shore in the Wollaston district is a tract of about fifty acres which lies neglected and desolate and seems to be the wonderment of all passrs by who stroll along the Metropolitan Road.

The history of the place is interesting and probably will be remembered by many residents who review these events. The Portland storm of several years ago did considerable damage to the shores of Massachusetts and in this portion of Wollaston where the tide usually ebbs in quietly and there is seldom any surf, the force of the water was so strong that it burst the breakwater, which extended along the entire front, so that none remained standing. The water poured in flooding the district so that in some parts it was ten feet deep, cellar windows were broken, cottages floated about, and in one case a whole family was rescued from their upper story window in a boat by the late Capt. Snow, who was the only one who could manage a boat in such turbulent water. After the storm subsided the place presented a desolate looking appearance, one cottage had lost its entire front, and the furniture had floated out to sea, but the most disastrous thing was the bursting of the breakwater, the heavy timbers plowing through the sand, digging a trench several feet deep and about 500 feet long. Although many years have passed since the storm the ditch still exists, the city objecting to the owner filling it in as they have been utilizing it for the carrying off of sewerage and as an outlet for Sunn creek, the original outlet having been blocked up with sand by this same storm.

This irregular, zigzag water-way cuts across one of the most prominent streets in the district and many a one has stepped into it, thinking the water shallow and found themselves submerged in four feet of water. One little girl on her way to the beach to go in bathing, holding her bathing clothes in her hands and skipping along in high glee, suddenly dropped into the ditch. Her screams of terror attracted the attention of a woman in a nearby cottage who rescued her after she had gone down for the second time. Mayor Shea's attention was called to the matter early in July but the same conditions lasted all summer, sewage material flowing into the ditch and hundreds of children playing in the water. Parents who allow their children to go to the beach to bath will do well to interest themselves in this matter, for the same conditions are likely to exist next summer unless the people of Wollaston co-operate and protest against this neglect. Judge Bumpus who has tried to induce the city to attend to its duty in this matter will be glad to receive the names of children who were taken sick last summer, after having been to the beach to bath, or they may be sent to Miss M. Wilson, 136 Byolston street, Boston, who is interested in the movement for better and safe conditions for the children.

The City of Quincy derives a benefit of several hundred dollars a year from this property, making a total of a few thousand since the storm, but the owner can derive no capital from it because the city men last summer caused this open sewer to flow through the place; so the property lies a neglected waste, when it could be one of the prettiest bits of shore along the Massachusetts coast.

President Invokes Their Aid In Giving Square Deal to Japan

Washington, Jan. 19.—Introduced by Bishop Cranston as the apostle of the "square deal," President Roosevelt, in an address at the African diamond jubilee mass meeting, declared that he would not have come before a Methodist gathering if he had not attempted to give the square deal.

"In addition to the square deal in our own country," he continued, "I want the Methodists and others to help me give the 'square deal' to Japan. I will see to it that in doing this our citizens are protected.

"The national government, by agreement with the Japanese government and through the hearty and spontaneous initiative of the Japanese government, has been able to achieve a completely satisfactory solution of all possible difficulties, of all possible questions that could be at issue between our people and the Japanese people.

"It is only the federal government that can with wisdom and propriety deal with those questions, and I ask all good Americans to see to it that unwise men, foolish men, do not jeopardize to their own harm and the harm of their own locality, the arrangement that is now working out so satisfactorily to the governments of the United States and Japan."

ROOT ELEGTED SENATOR TODAY

Chosen to Succeed Platt by New York Legislators

Albany, N. Y. Jan. 19.—As required by the federal law, the two houses of the legislature of the state of New York met here today in separate session to vote for a successor to Thomas C. Platt, United States senator from this state.

ELIHU ROOT.

The votes today were merely confirmatory of the choice of the caucuses of the Republicans of the two houses, Elihu Root, secretary of state.

Tomorrow the two houses will meet in joint session, according to law, and vote together for Mr. Root, who will then be declared senator from New York for the six years term commencing on March 4 next.

New York's new senator is one of the country's leading lawyers. He is a native of New York state and is in his sixty-fifth year. Mr. Root was secretary of war in the cabinet of President McKinley and has been secretary of state since July 1, 1905.

Keiran Surrenders at Pittsburg and Is Released Under Bonds

Pittsburg, Jan. 19.—P. J. Kieran, former president of the Fidelity Funding company of New York, who is held responsible by many Roman Catholic churches and societies all over the country for the loss of funds and whose whereabouts have been unknown to the public for several months, came to Pittsburg last evening.

Kieran surrendered himself to the authorities, gave bond in two cases pending against him here, and left immediately for New York to contest the bankruptcy proceedings pending against him there.

IN ZERO WEATHER

Firemen Have Hour's Battle In Subduing a Stubborn Blaze

Gloucester, Mass., Jan. 19.—With the temperature at 2 degrees below zero, the firemen were called out this morning to fight a blaze in the Bergern block, a three story brick structure at the corner of Main and Hancock streets.

The firemen succeeded in keeping the blaze in the Bergern block after an hour's battle. The total loss is about $8000.

Opposed by Foraker

Washington, Jan. 19.—Senator Foraker opposes the confirmation of Charles A. L. Reed, an Ohio physician, who was nominated to be a first lieutenant of the medical reserve corps. Reed was a candidate recently for the seat in the senate now occupied by Foraker and he withdrew, presumably in the interests of Representative Burton.

BIGGEST OF BRIDGES.

Structure at New York Will Span Hell Gate Channel.

THREE MILES IN LENGTH.

World Beater For Pennsylvania Railroad Will Connect Port Morris and Woodside—Freight and Passenger Trains to Use It—Tallest Vessels Can Pass Under Great Span.

WORLD'S BIGGEST BRIDGES.

Projected Port Morris-Queens bridge; length, with approaches, three miles.
Firth of Forth bridge; length, with smaller spans and approaches, one and a half miles.
Blackwell's island bridge; length, with approaches, two miles.
Victoria bridge at Montreal, total length, two miles.

Officials of the Pennsylvania railroad recently made public plans for the construction of the largest bridge in the world. It will connect the mainland of New York with Long Island and with its approaches will be three miles long. The points to be connected are Port Morris and the Long Island shore at Woodside. The greatest span, over Hell Gate channel, will be a thousand feet long. It will be 140 feet over the water, permitting the passage of the tallest vessels.

The structure will connect with the New Haven tracks at Port Morris and with the Pennsylvania tracks in Queens county and the connecting railroad that encircles Brooklyn. Work is to be begun as soon as the Pennsylvania terminal in New York city is completed.

When the bridge and its connections are made, through trains will be run from New England points to the south by using it and the Long Island tunnel and the Hudson river tube.

At present only a few passenger trains are run from Boston to the south. They are carried around New York city from the New Haven yard at One Hundred and Thirtieth street to the Pennsylvania station in Jersey City upon a car float.

The bridge as planned in many respects is one of the most daring and remarkable engineering structures ever proposed, says the New York American. The entire structure, except the piers for the arch, will be of steel, having an estimated weight of 80,000 tons. The novel feature of the plans is that the train floor of the bridge instead of resting on the crown of the arch is hung from it. The crown is 300 feet above the water and the floor about half that distance.

It will have four tracks, two for passenger trains and two for freight, and is designed for live loads on each of the tracks of two 190 ton locomotives, followed by a uniform load of 5,000 pounds per linear foot. The floor carried by the arch will have deep girders under the tracks and crossbeams at the posts interlaced with diagonal bracing.

The main arch is to be flanked by piers from which will rise double towers 200 feet high. The towers will be of massive proportions, with the lower portion of granite and the upper of concrete. The main body of the piers will be filled with earth and stone to provide sufficient weight to counteract the thrust of the arch.

Expansion and contraction of the structural work, due to changes in the weather, had to be taken care of. By carefully arranging the members of the arch the movement at the crown is only a few inches, while in the track floor two special expansion joints are fitted that prevent the floor from moving under the action of a train starting or stopping on the bridge.

Original plans for the bridge were drawn by former Commissioner of Bridges Gustave Lindenthal. He submitted them to the municipal art commission, and after months of consideration they were approved. It is estimated to cost between fifteen and twenty million dollars.

AID TO CUPID'S WORK.

Bachelor Tax Bill Provides For State Bureau For the Bashful.

Assemblyman John J. Farrell of Milwaukee, Wis., is at work on a bill to make bachelors marry after they reach the age of thirty or pay a penalty for each year's delay. How to provide sufficient punishment for bachelors is the stumbling block. This much is decided:

He will make marriage easy for the bashful and unacquainted. He will provide for the establishment of a state matrimonial bureau, at which persons desiring to avoid the tax and requiring aid may register. From this list the bashful man may pick out a lonely girl, and the fee will maintain the bureau.

In the opinion of Assemblyman Farrell some bachelors simply lack the nerve to ask a woman to marry. This nerve will be supplied through his measure, he thinks.

It is perhaps unnecessary to add that Mr. Farrell is a married man.

Of the feet
Up and down
The busy street.
At the counter
See the crush
Like a noisy
Football rush.
See the weary
Ladies stand
With their money
In their hand,
Trying hard
To beat the game
And get action
On the same.
See the patrons
Thicker grow
At the bargain
Counter row,
Men and women,
Girls and boys
After fancy
Goods and toys
For their dear ones
And, I swear,
Some for whom
They do not care—

Taming Father.

Wild cries were heard coming from the house into which the family from the west that had recently acquired wealth had just moved. They were suppressed, but agonizing, as though a human being were suffering the tortures of the damned.

Some of the neighbors were about to rush in and see about it, but one who was on held them back. "It is nothing," he said quietly.

"Call that nothing? Then what is the man moaning about?"

"The members of his family are just holding him down and putting him into his first dress suit."

Business Eye.

"See that lady across the street?"

"The one who looks as though she wanted to bite somebody?"

"She is a man hater."

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

Poverty is a disease that is both infectious and contagious, and the only remedy for it is plenty of money for everybody.

Sometimes you can very well estimate what is in a man when he is out of a job.

People take it for granted that a good natured man can't get angry, and great is the occasional surprise.

One way to make a living is to find a job of real work and make connection with a good payroll through the job.

The real grief of the con man lies in the association that you can't fool some of the people all the time, and his only consolation is the reflection that there are others.

Probably money does talk, but some people refuse even at that to give currency to the conversation.

You often find it hard to teach some men anything because experience, stern old experience, has been on the job before you.

Most people would rather be right than get left, and the sad part of it is that often—alas, too often—they are both.

Some people who are looking for work suffer from myopia when some instinct tells them that the job is near and hefty.

He begins to wonder how he can break the cold and clammy news to her that he can only be a near brother to her.

The only way to get along with some people undoubtedly is to make shift to get along without them.

It is nice to be friends with everybody, but when it comes to the pinch you will find that everybody's friend nobody's friend; hence no reciprocit

Fore River Company to Exhibit.

Among the many novelties to be exhibited at the coming Motor Boat & Engine Show at Mechnics building Boston, Jan. 23-30, will be a non-sinkable life boat which will be among the displays of the Fore River Ship Building Co., who for the first time will have an exhibit at a motor boat and engine show. This life boat will be found a radical departure from anything yet invented for this service, and will greatly add to the efficiency of the life saving crews at stations where it is installed. The equipment of the boat and its general construction should prove of great interest to all who appreciate the service for which it is intended. With such a craft, it will be possible for the life savers to get to a vessel in distress where all other means would have failed. The fact that the boat is non-sinkable and even if capsized will right itself, means that it will live in the heaviest seas. The boat will be shown fully equipped for the service and should make a most interesting exhibit. No epitmone of the many and varied attractions at the coming show will do it full justice. It will simply surpass all its predecessors and this means that New England will see this year the greatest Motor Boat & Engine Show ever held in this country. As the opening of the show is near at hand it is possible to state that its success is assured beyond the most sanguine expectations. Mechanics Building will be beautifully decorated for the show and there will be an attractive musical program every day, and a series of moving pictures. Manager Chester I. Campbell who has worked hard to make the show a success, is most gratified at the results achieved.

BURIED IN ASH HEAP.

Body of Male Child Found in West Quincy.

The body of a full grown male child was found early Tuesday even by Officer Hinchon buried in a ash heap in the rear of an outbuilding at the corner of West and Centre streets. Whether the child was born dead or was strangled after birth can not be told until the autopsy by the Medical Examiner.

The first information the police received was from the physician who attended a Finn girl, who had given birth to a child early Tuesday morning. Acting upon information received Officer Hinchon began a search with a lantern for the body which he found as noted above. The Medical Examiner was notified and the body taken to Hall's undertaking rooms where an autopsy will be held.

An effort was then made of find the girl in question. It was learned that the name of the supposed woman in the case was Ida Oja aged about 27 years who resided at 15 Common street. Going there the officers found that she had left there during the day and that she was probably in a house on Bennington street, South Quincy.

The police then started for South Quincy and as they drove up to the house the woman wanted was just leaving carrying a dress suit case.

She was placed under arrest and taken to the Poor farm and given in charge of the Overseer of the Poor. Just what charge will be made against her will not be determined until after the autopsy.

FELL INTO RIVER.

Gate Tender at Quincy Point Narrowly Escapes Drowning.

What came near being a fatal accident was averted Monday morning by the crew of a coal barge passing through the Quincy Point bridge.

Joseph Hayden, the draw tender, while at his work opening the draw to allow the barge to pass through, slipped from the bridge and was soon struggling in the icy waters of the Fore River.

Quick work on the part of the crew of the barge soon had Mr. Hayden out of the briny deep and he escaped with a good ducking and chilling.

FIRST CONCERT OF SEASON

Wollaston Glee Club Pleases Large Audience

The Wollaston Glee club held its first concert of the season at the Congregational church Wollaston, Tuesday evening before a large and appreciative audience. The club is composed of about forty well trained singers, whose voices show the results of long and careful study.

Mrs. Hilton is a violinist of great ability and her playing added much to the pleasure of the evening.

William Weston, accompanist, although a young man, performed his work with great efficiency and did much to make the concert a success.

REWARD TO BE DIVIDED.

Maloney Gets Lion's Share for Helping to Catch Burglars.

Who gets the standing reward of $100 offered by the Jewelers' Association for the arrest and conviction of any person breaking and entering the store of a member of the association, is what a special jury sitting at the district court room are trying to determine.

On the night of Oct. 16, the burglar alarm connected with the jewelry store of T. L. Williams rang out in an adjoining building.

Patrick Maloney rushed into the street and saw two men near Williams jewelry store, who ran on his approach. The police station was notified and the wagon with Officer Halleran came down and one of the men who gave the name of Fred Gagnon, was captured in City Square. He was later convicted.

Officer Halleran, who made the arrest, put in a claim for the $100. Maloney also wants part of the reward, and so does Officer Bishop and others.

A special jury consisting of Judge Avery, C. C. Hearn and D. E. Wadsworth, gave a hearing to the claimants this morning. All of the claimants appeared and told why they should receive the reward.

The jury gave Patrick Maloney $55. Officer Halleran, Officer Bishop and Daniel Sheahan of Hall's stable, $15 each.

MEN'S CLUB BANQUET.

The fifth annual banquet and ladies' night of the Men's club connected with Christ church, will be held tonight at 6.30 in the parish house. President Merton A. Turner will preside and toasts will be responded to by several prominent men of the city. An excellent musical program has also been arranged.

FIFTH RECITAL.

The special students of the Quincy Choral society gave their fifth recital of the season on Tuesday evening at Colonial hall. The different numbers on the program were well rendered by the students, the solo by Miss Celina Belliveau, with violin obligato by Mr. Fjelbeck, being especially commendable.

—The N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R., have at last secured the right to enter the Grand Central station at New York, a concession which will be appreciated by the traveling public.

The Grand Master was accompanied by Grand Instructor William M. Webber of Brockton and District Deputy Benjamin Prouty and suite of Rockland.

The degree staff performed its work in an able manner and was highly commended by the grand officers for the excellent showing.

The grand officers all said that it was one of the best exemplifications of the second degree that they ever witnessed. Frank W. Flowers, Noble Grand, and Charles S. Jones, the degree master, were personally congratulated for the good work of the team.

After the exemplification a banquet was served, followed by remarks by the grand officers and visiting Odd Fellows.

A large number attended the visitation, among whom were many visitors from neighboring lodges.

MAY RECLAIM OLD CHARTER.

Sons of Veterans Talk of Forming New Camp.

A movement is on foot to form a camp of the Sons of Veterans to take up the charter surrendered by Francis L. Souther Camp some years ago.

Francis L. Souther, for whom the camp was named, was the first Quincy soldier killed in the Civil war.

The camp flourished for a number of years, when owing to internal disagreements, it was thought best to surrender the charter.

Now, however, it is proposed to revive it. There are a large number in Quincy who are eligible and there is no reason why there should not be a flourishing camp. A meeting to take the necessary steps to reclaim the charter will be held tonight at the residence of George F. Phillips, 49 Union street.

Is the President trying to take Congress into the Ananias Club all in a lump?

If he tries to run both together, Mr. Hitchcock may get the G. O. P. and the P. O. D. mixed up.

If all the people who voted for Roosevelt were cowboys, would all of them feel impelled to go to the White House and tell the President about it? All the cowboys do, anyhow.

With Chairman Hitchcock, Postmaster General Meyer and Congressman Weeks on his available list for Cabinet making, Mr. Taft appears to be troubled with too much Massachusetts.

Five representatives have been down there and officially discovered that the Panama Canal is on the Isthmus of Panama. They will now please step up and turn in their expense bills.

The movement now on foot to obtain possession of the famous Hetch-Hetchy valley one of the grandest features of the Yosemite National Park for a reservoir site, by the city of San Francisco, is a question of national importance, and one upon which the people of every section of the country should be made aware of, before it is too late to save this natural beauty spot from eventual destruction There have been many attacks made upon the Yosemite Park but none so determined or persistent, as the one now being made by San Francisco.

In 1903 Secretary Hitchcock denied an application for a reservoir site, but his successor has been persuaded to grant this privilege, under certain restrictions. As the grant is revocable, a bill has been introduced in Congress making the grant permanent. If this is done the Hetch-Hetchy valley will be a thing of the past and, another one of our choice bits of natural beauty, will have disappeared. Therefore it is a duty of every citizen who wants to see this valley preserved to use all their power to keep this bill from passing.

A special meeting of Quincy business men will take place on Jan. 27 for the purpose of forming a special committee to promote savings bank life insurance and old age annuities in the community. This Massachusetts plan for encouragement of thrift and foresight among wage earners is already meeting with much success in many communities of the state. In some of the shoe shops south of here from twenty-five to fifty per cent of all the employees have been enrolled as insured under one form or another of policies issued by the savings banks. More than fifty agencies have been opened, including of course that at the Fore River Ship Building Company. The labor unions are continuing their active interest. The auxiliary committee of the Massachusetts Savings Insurance League which was formed a short time ago is organizing an educational campaign designed to reach union workers in every community of the Commonwealth. It has all along been expected that the plan would meet with its greatest initial success in such cities as have a high-waged, thrifty population. That is a condition which Quincy exactly meets.

WALL OF FIRE CUTS OFF WOMEN

Mill Operatives Caught by Flames Barely Escape

BIG ROOM QUICKLY CLEARED

Overseer's Order to Escape by Rear Exit of Worsted Mill Obeyed Without Sign of Panic or Hysteria, Although a Solid Sheet of Flames Pursued the Fleeing Crowd—Town's Chief Industry Wiped Out

North Chelmsford, Mass., Jan. 20.—Two hundred operatives, the majority of whom were women, were driven from their work by a fire that destroyed the Brookside Worsted Mill No. 2 and the George C. Moore wool scouring mill, causing a loss of over $600,000, last night.

One hundred of these operatives, including about eighty-five women, were nearly hemmed in on the second story of the east end of the Brookside mill, and by the coolness of Overseer Ogley they were directed safely down a rear exit when the fire, which had blocked up one of the stairways, rushed down the long room with such speed that the operatives had barely time to leap from their places and plunge for the rear stairway without their street clothes.

Foreman Ogley discovered the flames in a picker located in the east department. The flames spread almost simultaneously through the two story structure and went through the shaft holes of the brick fire wall that separated the department from the four story south department.

Help had been called from Lowell, but despite this fact the No. 2 mill was levelled to the ground and the flames leaped the seventy-five-foot space to the scouring mill and in a brief time had left but a portion of the outer walls standing. Several firemen had narrow escapes, but no one was seriously hurt.

The escape of the hundred operatives in the east department without serious injury or loss of life is considered remarkable. Ogley saw a puff of flame shoot out from a picker shortly after 5 o'clock. He ran forward to investigate, when the flames burst out in a solid sheet. Ogley curtly ordered all the operatives to leave at once by the rear exits.

Even in this short space of time the fire had started with a rush down the long room, with nothing to stop it. Disregarding their wraps the operatives fled for the stairway and with the flames pressing them hotly ran down stairs quickly, but without panic, no signs of hysteria appearing among the eighty-five women at work in the department.

A brick fire wall between a two-story wing and the four-story portion of the mill held back the fire and gave the operatives there time to make their way out in safety. In less than twenty minutes the east end of the building was a roaring furnace.

A crew of Lowell firemen who had taken their stand on the roof of the two-story power house, fifteen feet away, were nearly caught when the walls nearest them bulged outward. Dropping their hose they turned and fled, leaping into a deep snowbank beneath just as the wall above them collapsed, burying the roof of the power house deep with bricks. None of the men was hurt.

The buldings and machinery are a total loss. The cause of the fire is believed to have been spontaneous combustion.

STATE-WIDE PROHIBITION

Governor of Tennessee Expresses Disapproval by Vetoing the Measure

Nashville, Tenn, Jan. 20.—Governor Patterson filed with the clerk of the senate a message vetoing the state-wide prohibition bill which last week was passed by both houses of the legislature. The governor's action followed adjournment of the senate after it had passed on third reading a bill prohibiting the manufacture in Tennessee of intoxicating liquors.

The veto must be sustained by the senate or passed over the executive's protest. On original passage the senate vote was 20 to 13.

Fraudulent Intent Alleged

The petitioning company declared that the mining company transferred all its property with fraudulent intent.

TEMPTATION WAS TOO GREAT.

John Cooney was in court Monday on a complaint charging him with drunkenness at Quincy and he was fined $10. Cooney promised to be good if the court would be easy with him as he had no ready cash on hand.

The court therefore suspended his sentence until the latter part of February, placing him in care of the Probation Officer, Spear.

Mr. Spear read the riot act to Cooney and told him what would happen if he did not let red liquor alone. Cooney said that he would do as advised.

Once outside of the court room he forgot his good resolutions and to keep the cold out he put the liquor in. He got over the line into Weymouth, where he was gathered in by Officer Nash. Tuesday morning the court retracted its suspension of Monday's case and allowed the sentence of $10 to stand.

An additional fine of $15 was imposed for Tuesday's drunk, making $25 in all. Being without money, Cooney went to Dedham to work his fine out.

PRESIDENT'S SALARY $100,000 A YEAR

Senators Also Favor Raising Pay of Other Officials

Washington, Jan. 20.—The salary of the President of the United States was fixed at $100,000 per annum so far as the senate could fix it, and salaries of the vice president and speaker of the house of representatives at $15,000 each. The salary of the chief justice of the supreme court of the United States was increased from $13,000 to $15,000 per annum and those of associate justices from $12,500 to $14,500.

These changes were made as amendments to the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill after an extended debate.

TO RETIRE THIS WEEK

Secretary Root Will Be Succeeded by Assistant Robert Bacon

Washington, Jan. 20.—Secretary Root, following his election as senator from New York today, hopes to be able to attend to some pressing matters in the state department and retire by the end of the week.

On the secretary's retirement, Robert Bacon, now assistant secretary, will be named for secretary of state, and he in turn will be succeeded as assistant secretary by John C. O'Laughlin of this city.

Various important questions have now reached a critical stage in their negotiations and it is because of Root's intimate knowledge of their every feature that he will continue even for a few days after his election as a senator at the head of the department.

Mr. O'Laughlin, a newspaper and magazine writer, in fifteen years' study of American diplomatic and commercial questions has lived in Washington, London, Paris, Berlin and St. Petersburg, and has made inquiries in other countries.

"UNHINGED BY TERROR"

Violet Charlesworth Says That She Was In Automobile Accident

Edinburg, Jan. 20.—Miss Violet G. Charlesworth, who, after having mysteriously disappeared, was found on Sunday last at Oban, Scotland, has admitted her identity, although for the past two days she had persistently denied that she was the person for whom the police and others have been searching.

Miss Charlesworth had been involved in extensive stock deals and it was reported two weeks ago that she had been killed while automobiling in company with her sister and a chauffeur.

In admitting her identity the young woman asserted that she was in the car at the time of the alleged accident, but was so unhinged by terror at finding the automobile on the edge of a precipice that she fled to Oban.

ANTI-JAPANESE LAWS

None Will Be Enacted by Present California Legislature

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 20.—Governor Gillett has authorized the following statement:

"After conferring with the leading members of both branches of the legislature I am convinced that no legislation directed against the Japanese will be enacted. I am satisfied that the people of California, and particularly the members of our legislature, appreciate the efforts being made by the federal government and the representatives of Japan to country, and in my judgment it would Japanese laborers.

"There can be no doubt that the Japanese government is acting absolutely in good faith in its endeavor to prevent its people emigrating to our country, and in my judgment it would be a serious mistake, while they are so doing, to enact any laws directed against the Japanese people."

ROBBED RAILROAD STATION

Man From Earthquake-Stricken City Admits His Guilt

Exeter, N. H., Jan. 20.—Govino Meauri, an Italian, claiming to have been in Messina during the recent earthquake there, was held for the grand jury after admitting his guilt in connection with the robbery of a quantity of stamps, money and railroad tickets at the railroad station here.

Meauri said that he had formerly worked as a painter in Boston and New York and went to his home in Messina some time ago, where he was when the earthquake occurred.

Meauri intended to use one of the stolen railroad tickets as his fare to Portland, being arrested as he was about to board the train.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST C. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

COMMON LAW IS RESORTED TO

How Government Will Fortify Its Position In Libel Suit

INTERESTING LEGAL BATTLE ON

Douglass Robinson and Charles Taft Give Testimony Before Grand Jury, but No Light Is Given to Public as to Who Instituted Suit In Connection With Panama Canal Purchase

Washington, Jan. 20.—The question of whether or not the federal government or individuals, or both, instituted the proceedings for libel in connection with the Panama canal purchase, still remains a mystery in so far as the general public is concerned.

So completely have the tracks in the complaint been covered that not the slightest intimation has been given which would clear up this important and much-discussed point.

The federal grand jury here continued its investigation into the matter, and a number of witnesses were examined. Principal among them were Douglass Robinson, brother-in-law of President Roosevelt, and Charles P. Taft, brother of the president-elect, both of whom maintained the utmost silence regarding their testimony and absolutely refused to say whether they appeared as plaintiffs.

All the Washington correspondents who were cited to appear gave information establishing their connection with the New York World or the Indianapolis News, while several news dealers and a newsboy testified to having sold the papers to the general public. Other witnesses are to be heard.

Interest in the case continues unabated, and it is now hinted that it is the expectation of the president that an indictment will be brought in the District of Columbia regardless of any action taken in New York or Indianapolis. In that event the prosecuting officers of the government entertain no fear of their ability to bring here those who may be made the defendants.

For many years the decisions in the libel suits against Charles A. Dana, publisher of the New York Sun, which relieved the defendant from the necessity of appearing in Washington to stand trial, stood in the way of actions such as has now been brought.

But, it is contended, a change in the courts and a change in the law have negatived those decisions. The government has fortified itself with the decision of District Judge Adams of the United States court for the southern district of New York in the case of United States against Whimsatt.

This case was for conspiracy to defraud a street railway company of the District of Columbia out of car tickets, and the court held that "the removal of the accused from a federal district to the District of Columbia cannot be accomplished because the acts charged in the indictment are common law offenses, the District of Columbia being a part of the United States and the commission of a crime therein being an indictable offense against the United States."

The district code expressly provides for pulshment for libel, but the government's legal officers maintain that the definition of a libel must be obtained by resorting to the common law. It therefore leaves no room for doubt that the present inquiry is not based upon any statute, but upon the common law "in the interest of the public welfare."

TO PREPARE FOR RECORD

Committee Appointed by the House to Edit Willett's Speech

Washington, Jan. 20.—The house took the preliminary steps toward expunging from the Congressional Record the speech delivered by Representative Willett, in which he likened the president to a grinning gargoyle and otherwise offended the house until he was refused the privilege of continuing.

The Democrats filibustered against the motion to strike the objectionable remarks from the Record, but in the end the Republicans won, a committee being appointed to determine just what portions of the speech should be killed.

ALDERMANIC DEADLOCK

It Leads to Complications In the Board at Boston

Boston, Jan. 20.—Corporation Counsel Babson last night handed down a decision declaring the appointment of city committees by acting Chairman Curley of the board of aldermen an illegal act.

The board has been in a deadlock since the first of the year over the election of a permanent chairman and Curley, a Democrat, as senior member of the board, called the first meeting to order and has since presided.

At the meeting of the board Monday night, in spite of protests and a call for the rules, Curley proceeded to read the list of new committees of the board for the coming year and declared the same appointed.

CARMACK CASE IN COURT TODAY

Slayer of Former Senator Faces Judge In Nashville

LEGAL BATTLE IS AWAITED

Prosecution and Defense Both Command Services of Tennessee's Ablest Lawyers—Carmack's Friends Assisting In Effort to Avenge his Death, While Three Defendants Have Many Attorneys

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 20.—Probably never before in the history of Nashville has there been seen so brilliant an array of men of law or so crowded a courtroom as witnessed the calling today for trial of Duncan B. Cooper, Robin Cooper and John D. Sharp for the shooting in November last of former Senator Edward Ward Carmack. The case was called in the county courthouse before Judge William M. Hart.

The prominence of the men involved in the case has spread its ramifications into the state capital and the United States senate. It has kept the entire state of Tennessee on edge since fiery, impetuous, unfortunate Carmack fell on the street before the pistol of Robin Cooper, a victim to his unfortunate propensity for holding up to public scorn his political opponents.

Prominent Men In the Case

Among the men that will testify to the circumstances that led to the tragedy will in all likelihood be Governor Patterson of Tennessee, Senator James B. Frazier and others conspicuous in the public life of the state.

From all parts of Tennessee have come friends of the dead senator intent on assisting the prosecution in avenging his death. A prominent figure among these men today is Guston T. Fitzhugh of Memphis, a leading lawyer, who is serving as a volunteer counsel for the prosecution under Prosecutor Jeff McCarn. On the other hand, the Coopers, father and son, have the backing of political and personal friendship among the members of the Tennessee bar, and John D. Sharp, codefendant in the case, who was formerly sheriff of Davidson county, in which Nashville is situated, commands the service of able attorneys.

It is the universal prediction here that a legal battle such as has not been seen in Tennessee in many years will follow the opening of the case in court today. The principal attorneys for the defense are J. M. Anderson, General W. H. Washington. James K. Bradford and M. H. Meeks.

DEED DRAWN IN 1796

Just Discovered and May Be Worth Millions to Two Sisters

Youngstown, O., Jan. 20.—Two women of this city, sole heirs of Joseph Ashton, who lived a century ago, have found among some old papers a deed to ten acres of land, now in the business center of the north side of Pittsburg and worth millions of dollars.

The deed is dated May 10, 1796, and conveyed the property from Eukires Beatty, a captain in the United States army, to Ashton, who was also a captain. Illness overtook Ashton, and the deed was never recorded.

Miss Grace Ripple and Mrs. D. T. Hamilton, heirs of Ashton, have employed attorneys to investigate their title.

Soldiers Protect Negro

Wilmington, N. C., Jan. 20.—The local military company at Clinton was called out last night to protect the jail there from the attack of a mob of infuriated citizens who threatened summary vengeance upon William Ward, a negro, who made an attempt to criminally assault Mrs. W. J. McLeod. Mrs. McLeod received no injury other than a severe fright.

To Be Built by Contract

Washington, Jan. 20.—The navy department has decided not to construct at government navy yards two of the submarine boats authorized at the last session of congress as it had contemplated, and has awarded the contract for these two boats to the Electric Boat company.

AS A MAN OF LETTERS

Friends Who Furthered Poe's Reputation Are Recipients of Medals

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 20.—The Edgar Allen Poe centenary celebration reached its climax last night when addresses were delivered by Professor Wendell of Harvard on "The Nationalism of Poe" and by Dr. Smith of the University of North Carolina on "Poe's Influence on Southern Literature."

An interesting feature was the bestowal of medals to commemorate the occasion to seventy-five people who added materially to furthering Poe's reputation as a man of letters.

Olympia, Wash., Jan. 20.—Wesley L. Jones was elected to the United States senate. The joint vote in the legislature stood: Jones, 89; Cottrell, Dem., 5.

AN OLD EPIDEMIC REVIVED.

Tarantism of Fourteenth Century Reproduced in Hysteria of Fads.

That the public kissing of popular heroes and the showering of attentions on freak musicians, of which this country has had numerous recent examples, is a form of hysteria and a revival of Tarantism, the strange contagious disorder that spread over southern Europe during the fourteenth century, is suggested by the February number of Appleton's magazine in an article by Dr. Pierce Bailey, an eminent authority on nervous diseases. It is pointed out that Tarantism was characterized by dancing, jumping and throwing about of the arms. Today it would be recognized as hysteria, and disorder by which the higher part of consciousness loses control and becomes more or less subordinate to the subconscius sphere of mental action. In the days when the mysterious disease to which the name Tarantism was applied spread consternation through Europe, the whole population of villages, schools and convents often was affected and the trouble was attributed to all sorts of occult causes, to witchcraft, and to the direct influence of the Devil.

Modern hysteria, however, manifests itself even more generally in mental than in physical actions. It accounts for innumerable fads and queer cults and the Appleton article points out that the sending of flowers and letters of sympathy to brutal murderers by women ordinarily refined, are manifestations of the same tendency to hysteria.

Occasionally, in the present day, a hysterical wave sweeps over a whole community, just as it did in the fourteenth century epidemic of Tarantism, as when practically the whole population of London went wild over the relief of the small garrison at Mafeking in South Africa, during the Boer War, and indulged in riotous demonstrations that destroyed hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of property and brought into use a new wrd "mafeking," to describe such outbursts.

The nervous derangement that leads to a hysterical state of mind is pointed out as explaining many of the reform fads of the moment. Many of these depend upon an exaggerated and mis-directed emotionalism as in the sufferagette outbreaks in London and the agitation in this country against vivisection of animals in scientific experiments. These agitators seek to prevent the largely imaginery sufferings of dumb animals used in scientific investigations to determine the cause and cure of diseases in spite of the fact that such experiments are directed to the relief of more general and widespread suffering among human beings. An examination of the mental attributes displayed by followers of the anti-vivisection movement which was made recently by a well-known scientist showed that these tallied almost exactly with the recognized symptoms of hysteria.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

Club members are looking forward to the next meeting for it will be the annual musicale, always a special feature of the club year. Mrs. Otho A. Hayward chairman of the music committee announces the Westland quartet, which will give a pleasing vocal concert assisted by Miss Marion C. Whiton, pianist. Members of the quartet are May Belle Grace Dadmun, Emma Schufeldt Moore, Alice Gertrude Coe and Dorothy McTaggart Miller. This quartet has met with wonderful success this season filling twenty-five engagements so far in and about Boston, also going out of the state with equal success. Although the quartet has appeared in Quincy, many have not been able to hear them so the announcement of a concert by them at the club house is very pleasing to club members, who are not only planning to be present but have invited guests indicating a large attendance.

There is considerable activity among the various committees. The Civic committee has plans for two entertainments well under way, one at the club house on Feb. 16th, a card party, for the benefit of the club grounds, the other a dance at Music hall, Atlantic, on the evening of Feb. 19, for the benefit of civic improvements in Atlantic. The committee is actively at work on the billboard problem and at no distant date hopes Quincy will not have one within her borders.

The Music committee has arranged for an evening of Russian music by Alvah Glover Salmon at First church chapel in March.

Rehearsals have begun for the club dramatics on Feb. 23.

There was a large attendance at the entertainment given last week by the Education committee, the proceeds of which are to be used in entertaining the school teachers of Quincy at the club house.

NEIGHBORING.

Middleboro women are taking an interest in local affairs. At the last meeting of the Cabot club, the afternoon's subject was, "Middleboro: Where do we stand?" subdivided as follows: public affairs, educational conditions, religious conditions, social conditions and village improvements.

Mrs. Kate Upson Clark lectured before the Somerville Women's club on Saturday afternoon to a crowded house. Mrs. Clark is a club woman, a discriminating editor, a versatile literary woman and eloquent speaker, widely known for her short stories which appear from time to time in the magazines.

Philergians of Braintree opened their meeting Tuesday afternoon to the public on the payment of twenty-five cents as considerable interest was manifested in the speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. Mabel Loomis Todd, by people outside the club.

During the mass the choir of priests under the direction of Rev. Fr. Callahan of the Cathedral Boston rendered the Gregorian chant.

There were many handsome floral tributes. Among the clergymen present were the following: Rev. Maurice Lynch, East Weymouth; Rev. John Butler, South Weymouth; Rev. James Flamery, Neponset; Rev. Richard Nagle, Malden; Rev. J. P. Cuff, Atlantic; Rev. John Griffin, Revere; Rev. James J. Chittick, Hyde Park; Rev. F. Fagan of Rockland.

The bearers were from the Holy Name Society of the church of the Sacred Heart and Division No. 6 A. O. H. and were as follows Thomas J. Dalton, Robert C. Lonergan, John W. Ahern, Timothy F. Rain With Low Temperature.

A. Lawrence Rotch of the Blue Hill meteorological observatory writing in the Boston Transcript of Jan. 19th explains why Sunday's snowstorm turned to rain when the temperature was considerably below freezing.

"The explanation is furnished by the data from kite-flights, which were made last week at Blue Hill in cooperation with the international series of ascension of kites and balloons. Kites carrying recording instruments, were flown on alternate days and entered a warm stratum, whose elevation varied from about 800 feet on the 11th to 3500 feet on the 15th. Ordinarily, the temperature at these heights is from 3 to 10 degrees lower than at the earth surface, but during the past week it was actually some 10 degrees warmer than below. Consequently, as the storm centre approached and caused a general warming-up of the air column, although the temperature at the ground might not exceed 25 degrees, yet in the cloud at the same time it would be 35 degrees, giving precipitation in the form of rain.

While these inversions of temperature, as they are called, commonly occur at some height in the atmosphere, yet it is rare that an inversion of such magnitude persists so long as did the one last week. On the afternoon of the 13th the approaching cold wave was pushing in beneath the warm stratum, since the cold does not descend from the upper regions as was formerly supposed."

BRAINTREE TEAM BADLY BEATEN

High School Boys Prove Easy Winners at Basket Ball

The Braintree High basket ball five was completely outclassed on Tuesday afternoon at the Quincy High gym, when the local high school basket shooters ran away with the game by a score of 55 to 2. The game was too one-sided to cause much excitement, the visitors not having a look-in at any time.

The Braintree players failed to score a goal from the floor, their two points coming as a result of free tries. While they were preventing their opponents from scoring, the local boys were busy piling up the points, their excellent teamwork and accuracy at shooting bewildering the visiting quintet.

Of course the Quincy team was heavier and was playing on its own floor, and the latter fact may have had something to do with Braintree's inability to get started.

The score at the end of the first half was 23 to 1, so Capt. Marsh decided to give Manning a try-out. The latter went in at left forward in place of Stan Bates, and his playing proved to be the feature of the game. He tossed the ball into the cage seven times, and good passes from him were responsible for more baskets by his teammates.

But Manning is too light for a regular. Against a team of Braintree's calibre and weight he is a star, for he knows the game thoroughly. But against a team like Rock Ridge, which appears here Friday he would probably lose his effectiveness. But the "kid" is a corner if he only grows a little.

All the locals played a good game, Marsh being the only one who failed to score. His good work in the backfield however is deserving of praise. For Braintree Morgan and Ness played the best game. The summary:

QUINCY H. S.		BRAINTREE H. S.

S. Bates, Manning, lf		rb Jordling, Morrison
Howe, c		c Whittaker
Prout rf		lf Edson

The Rousers defeated the Buckos Tuesday night at the Houghs Neck Associates alleys, two out of three strings. The Rousers captured the first and last string. Darrow of the Rousers broke the single string record of the league getting 122 in the last string. Addison Hammond of the Buckos was high man for the three strings. Maloney of the Rousers and Bill Norteman of the Buckos were the low men. Thursday night the Bantams and the Rousers clash and a warm match is expected.

The score was as follows:

BOWLERS	ROUSERS
Maloney	71	74	68	213
Frank Catarius	85	88	80	253
Darrow	77	67	122	266

On Friday local fans will have a chance to see one of the teams which is fighting for the state championship. The Rock Ridge hall five of Wellesley appear on Friday and a hot game is due.

The Wellesley's boys have a veteran five and their teamwork is exceedingly fast. The local lads have a hard job on hand for their week-end game.

A pool tournament will start tonight at the clubhouse of the Houghs Neck Associates. There will be twelve men in the tournament and the games should be well contested.

The contestants will play a 1,000 point game, 50 point games being played every night until the limit is reached. The three pool tables at the clubhouse will be in play every night. Three beautiful cues will be given to the three highest men.

The desire for industrial education in his country is growing. It is rapidly coming to be the belief of many people that in training young people for only collegiate courses, the schools are losing sight of the fact that a majority of these young people do not go to college, and those who do not, are poorly equipped for a life work by the narrow collegiate course that now seems to be the rule. Our educational system should be broad enough to fit all classes of young people for their life work.—Gloucester Times.

HOLD FIFTH ANNUAL BANQUET

Men's Club of Christ Church Entertain Ladies

The fifth annual banquet and ladies' night of the Men's Club of Christ church which was held in the parish house Wednesday evening will go down in the history of the club as one of the most successful and satisfactory affairs the club has ever held, since its first inception.

The club members turned out in full force, most of them with their ladies, which added much to the success of the banquet.

The menu was all that could be desired and the toasts and after dinner speeches were interesting and instructive.

The banquet was scheduled for 6.30 but it was nearly fifteen minutes later before the members and guests had settled themselves in their respective places, and were ready to partake of the many good and substantial dishes caterer Henry P. Furnald had provided.

After the inner men and women had been satisfied and the diners had settled back in their chairs, prepared to enjoy the intellectual treat in store for them, toast-master Turner after a few remarks of welcome, introduced the first speaker William E. Hingston. handwriting expert.

Mr. Hingston said when he accepted the invitation, he did not realize that there was a string attached therefore he came unprepared. He thanked the President for the invitation, and said if they wanted to make him feel perfectly at home all they need to do, was to do as the lawyer did, enter a few objections or close him off altogether.

The second speaker was John D. MacKay, who told several interesting stories.

Following this the toasts were in order. The first to respond was James H. Stedman whose topic was "Remarks." Mr. Stedman opened his talk with a humorous allusion to his topic, then in a serious vein spoke of the club, its ideals and how it had developed a feeling of brotherhood among the men of the church. He said that he believed that was the spirit that should be the keynote of life itself. He then went on to show how the feeling of brotherhood was being worked out more and more in the world around about us.

Following Mr. Stedman's remarks the Men's club orchestra, Robert D. Smith conductor, played several selections.

The next speaker was William L. Thomas ex-president of the club who responded to "The Club". Mr. Thomas gave a short history of the club and what it had accomplished in its five years of existence. He said that the club was organized to create a spirit of friendship among the men of the church. In closing he paid a high tribute to Mr. Gardner, former rector of Christ church and organizer of the club.

The Men's club quartette, composed of J. H. Stedman, C. DeC Beal, W. Warmington and W. Holmes followed with two selections. This was the first time the quartette had ever sung in public and they were heartily encored.

The next toast "The Ladies" was responded to by William M. Vermilye. Mr. Vermilye commenced by saying that his subject was an extremely difficult one to handle, from the fact that he could not make any classifications. He said he would not classify the ladies by the standard of ages, as there was no such thing as age where women were concerned, neither could be classify them by size. He then went on to state the influence women exerted over men, first as mother, next as sweetheart and last as daughter.

Following Mr. Vermilye, Carleton De C Beal cang two solos. Mr. Beal has a voice well suited to this kind of work and his singing was one of the pleasures of the evening.

Elisha Packard in response to the next toast, "The Church" gave a short history of Christ Church. This was one of the most interesting features of the program, and everyone was sorry when Mr. Packard sat down.

Next on the program came a piano duet by Prof. Frank Wrigley and Frank Wrigley, Jr. Mr. Wrigley's mastery of the piano is too well known to need any comment, What can be said of the father can also be said of the son.

The last speaker was Henry P. Dowst who spoke in "The Times." Mr. Dowst kept his audience in an uproar from start to finish, with his stories and jokes.

MUSIC LOVERS FILL HALL

Westland Quartette Give Concert at Atlantic

The first concert of the season filled Atlantic Music hall to overflowing Wednesday evening, when the Westland quartet rendered a program of rare ability and pleasing selection. The entertainment was given under the direction of Mrs. William Butler and her Sunday school class who acted as ushers: the Misses Gladys Willy, Marjorie Young, Alice Waterhouse, Grace De Wolf, Carrina Radcliffe, Hazel Davison, Mabel Shoecroft and Winifred Cole.

The quartet, which includes Miss May Belle Grace Dadmun, 1st soprano; Mrs. Emma Schufeldt Moore, 2d soprano; Miss Alice Gertrude Coe, 1st alto, and Mrs. Dorothy McTaggart Miller, 2d alto; needs no introduction to the public, for their names are already pleasingly symbolic of good music. The solo parts covered a wide area of selection, a fact that was one of the strong points of programme arrangement. Miss Dadmun is always delightful with her brilliant rendition of difficult songs, and Mrs. Moore was also roundly encored. Mrs. Miller, who is exceedingly clever in character songs, was called back three times by enthusiastic clapping. Miss Coe, who is an Atlantic young woman, was given a splendid ovation by her many friends present, who always listen to her singing with sincere pleasure.

—The Italian people, now that the first horror of the disaster that was wrought by the earthquake in Sicily and Calabria is over, are facing as difficult a period of reconstruction as might have followed a great war with a foreign power. The initial problem of fthis process of rehabilitation is the immediate care of the survivors, many of whom have been taken to Rome and other cities north of the stricken region. The chamber of deputies has taken up with enthusiasm the task of rebuilding the cities and towns that have been destroyed. The attitude of the majority in the chamber indicates the determination of the country to aid the remnant of the inhabitants of the ruined communities to rebuild their habitations and re-establish their industries at the cost of an increased scale of national taxation.——Christian Register.

TO OPEN CHARTER LIST.

A meeting of those interested in taking up the charter of Francis L. Souther camp, Sons of Veterans, was held Wednesday evening with George F. Phillips on Union street.

Quite a number of those eligible to membership were present and had an informal discussion of the plans. It was pointed out that there are a large number in Quincy and Braintree who are eligible and there was no good reason why there should not be a flourishing camp in Quincy.

It was decided to open a charter list in order to see what the sentiment is in favor of the camp.

Another meeting of those interested will be held at an early date at which time plans for the institution of the camp will be made.

A navy with a life-saving record will be something of which to be especially proud.

As a motorist John D. Rockefeller has declared against speeding but as a financier his dividends cannot come too fast.

For once it seems that the scarecrow headlines were not more sanguinary than the catastrophe itself. The earthquake.

Of course, if the American families but do their duty and raise all those children Mr. Roosevelt advises, the liar supply for the future will be assured.

We note, nevertheless, in glancing through the Congressional Record, that no official notice was taken of that "laughter," "great laughter" and "prolonged laughter"" said to have been incident to the reading of the President's message to the House.

Members active in the Board of Trade take exception to the statement that they are "dreamers not doers" and point out several things which the board has accomplished. One of which they may well feel proud is the installing of a traveling crane at Quincy Adams which was only brought about by strenuous and persistent efforts. This is of great benefit to the granite industry and appreciated by all granite manufacturers. Then they have labored with the train problem at Quincy and West Quincy with good success, all of which helps. There are many other good deeds on the credit side even if they have not brought in large industries, and the citizens look to the Board of Trade for further good public work.

Before the American Mining Congress in Pittsburg recently, the Hon. Carroll D. Wright, United States Commissioner of Labor for twenty years and member of the Anthracite Strike Commission of 1902, presented a paper dealing with the arbitration of disputes between labor and capital A considerable part of the paper had to do with the coal strike of 1902 and the peace which has prevailed in the anthracite region most of the time since that year.

In regard to the Conciliation Board, which was established by the Strike Commission, Mr. Wright said:

"The most important and emphatic illustration of the importance of arbitration in any industry, so far as this country is concerned, was when the operators and miners in the anthracite region of Pennsylvania accepted the award of arbitration of the commission appointed by the President at the request of the operators to adjust the questions existing between them and the miners."

"During the first three years various questions arose relative to the interpretation of the award, extra demands of miners, etc. These were referred to the Conciliation Board, the results of whose decision was accepted by the miners and operators. Several questions, perhaps fifteen or twenty, were referred to the umpire, and in every instance the decisions of the umpire were accepted by both parties and faithfully abided by. During the second three years of the award, which became a voluntary agreement by action in March, 1906, there has been little for the Conciliation Board to do, and so far as information goes the affairs of the anthracite region have been running along smoothly and with fair satisfaction to all parties.

"What will happen when the term of the award expires in March, 1909, no one can predict, but the existence through these years without a break in any of its terms of the award is something very remarkable indeed, and again emphasize the beneficence of that method of adjusting difficulties."

TRYING TO HELP THE LITTLE ONES

Friends of Country's Children Meet In Chicago Today

BEGIN SIX DAYS' MEETINGS

Three Days' Sessions In Chicago to Be Followed by "Child Labor Sunday" and Two Days' Conferences In Washington—President Roosevelt Interested In Establishment of Federal Children's Bureau

Chicago, Jan. 21.—The opening in this city today of the fifth annual child labor conference under the auspices of the national child labor committee marks the beginning of six days of continuous work in behalf of children by the leading philanthropists and sociologists of the United States.

The conference will be in session in Chicago from this afternoon until Saturday evening. Sunday will be "child labor day" in churches throughout the country, by request of the national child labor committee, which has worked hard to secure the co-operation of clergymen in the work.

On Monday and Tuesday of next week there will be held in Washington a two days' conference on the needs of dependent children, opening with a meeting of the laborers in this field at the White House. The meeting was called by President Roosevelt, and he will welcome the conferees.

Although the Chicago meeting will discuss many phases of the child labor question, their main purpose is the advocacy of the establishment of a federal children's bureau, charged with the duty of looking after the interests of the country's children. This is the purpose of a bill introduced in the United States senate Jan. 10 by Senator Crane of Massachusetts. It aroused merriment among the members of the senate, who amused themselves with puns on the name of Crane, comparing it with that of the stork. Several of today's conferees expressed indignation at the senate's levity, declaring that the subject of the bill is one of the most serious matters now before the country.

A bill to establish a national children's bureau was introduced in the United States senate in the winter of 1905-6 at the request of the national child labor committee. The bill did not come to a vote, although it received the hearty indorsement of President Roosevelt and the secretary of the department of the interior as well as of many members of both houses of congress.

The Chicago and Washington conferences will be notable gatherings of men and women interested in the work of bringing effective aid to child toilers and dependent little ones. Prominent among the persons who will attend both meetings are Lillian D. Wald, the originator of the idea of a federal children's bureau; Jane Addams of the Hull house, Chicago; Judge Lindsey of the children's court of Denver and Rabbi Emil G. Hirsch of Chicago.

FELT FOR MILES AROUND

Explosion In Powder Works Kills Four Men and Injures Ten

Newark, N. J., Jan. 21.—Four men were killed and ten others injured, one fatally, when several tons of dynamite in one of the buildings of the Forcite Powder works at Lake Hopatcong blew up. The detonation of the huge mass of explosives shook the country for miles around and blew the building containing it to atoms.

The explosion occurred in a one-story frame building where sticks of dyanmite are stored. While it probably never will be definitely known what caused it, it is presumed that one of the sticks of dynamite piled in the structure was jarred from its resting place and exploded, detonating the whole mass.

HARVARD'S NEW PRESIDENT

Lowell's Election Unanimously Ratified by Board of Overseers

Boston, Jan. 21.—By a unanimous vote the Harvard board of overseers formally consented to the action of the president and fellows in electing Abbott Lawrence Lowell president of the university to succeed President Eliot, when his resignation becomes effective on May 19.

The overseers were in session for nearly an hour and a half. A large part of the time was taken up by laudatory addresses concerning the new president.

Explosion Kills Six Miners

CAUSE OF EARTHQUAKE.

Christian Science Monitor Criticises Rev. William Hyde.

An editorial view of the Christian Science Monitor of Monday on the cause of the recent earthquake will be of interest, particularly as it takes exception to the views of the well known Weymouth rector. The Monitor says:

The sermon preached by the Rev. William Hyde, in Trinity Episcopal Church, South Weymouth, yesterday, on the earthquake in Messina, illustrates forcibly the way in which an earnest clergyman, recoiling from the Scylla of God's powerlessness over evil, can be drawn into the Charybdis of God's permission of it. People, Mr. Hyde said, in effect, had been "shocked" by the theory put out from the pulpits that the explanation of the earthquake is that "God is not all-powerful, all-wise, all-good; that it is a question of geology and not of theology," and that if God "was able to prevent the earthquake then he is a whimsical, cruel and demoniac God since he did not."

"Now as the Bible distinctly teaches that God is Love, and as the churches teach that the physical universe is the creation of God, this theory of the churches, which Mr. Hyde pillories, really amounts to reducing the Creator to the level of a Frankenstein, with no more power over his creature than that miserable student. The simile indeed, is an exact one. For, if it is true that, as the preacher said, "nature must have her way and it is impossible for God to change her," then we may lose sight of God as we lose sight of Frankenstein vanishing over the ice in his hopeless pursuit of evil.

Such is the Scylla from which Mr. Hyde revolts, yet his own Charybdis is really rather worse. According to Mr. Hyde, God, who is "all-powerful, all-wise, all-good," gave man "at the creation a prerogative, that of free will, and if he should interfere with man's free choice then he would take away that God-given prerogative." Now, if God is "all-power," it is obvious that evil cannot exist without God's connivance; indeed, if God created "all that was made," he must have created evil if it is real.

But God, Mr. Hyde says, is "all-good," and the Bible says that God "saw everything that he had made, and behold, it was very good." Inevitably, therefore, if evil exists as a reality, it is very good. It must, in short, be part of all-good, or there is somewhere where good is not all. The logical deduction from this is simple. If God gave man free will to choose between good an evil, He not merely placed temptation in his path, but temptation to which, since He is all-knowledge, He knew that he would yield, and so fell short of the declaration of James, the He tempteth not any man.

The Christian Science ship, rounding the rock of Scylla and avoiding the whirlpool of Charybdis, comes to anchor in that haven under the hill which is "the peace of God, which passeth all understanding." It accepts uncompromisingly the declaration of John that God is Love, and not believing the the Father which is in heaven strews the world with temptations which a human father would shrink from, denies that evil is God-created or God-permitted.

The problem of humanity has even been this problem of evil. Christian Science has come to solve it by resolving it into its native nothingness; and it is doing this not by substituting another theory to explain its origin, but by demonstrating its nothingness in the destruction of sorrow, and sickness, and sin, of everything opposed to God, so proving that it has in reality neither power nor existence, since God is all, not only in theory but in Truth.

LEGISLATURE SHOULD ACT

New Haven Road Has Forfeited Is Right to Charter

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OPINION

Tells Massachusetts Solons That Statutes of State Have Been Violated by Railroad Increasing Capital Stock and Consolidating Without Permission of General Court—Wants Provision For Penalty

Boston, Jan. 21.—Charging that the consolidation of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad company and the Consolidated Railway company of Connecticut, by authority of the Connecticut legislature of 1907, constituted a violation of the Massachusetts statutes and of public policy, Attorney General Malone declared that this action rendered the Massachusetts charter of the New Haven company subject to forfeiture.

This declaration was made in the attorney general's annual report to the legislature. Malone expresses the opinion in his report that the situation thus brought about is one with which the Masaschusetts legislature, rather than the courts, should deal. He says that the legislature has the power to enact such legislaton as will either legalize the action taken by the New Haven company or will repeal its charter.

Public Policy Involved

Proceedings brought in the courts for forfeiture of the charter, the attorney general points out, might occupy several years before a decision could be reached, and this delay would result in much inconvenience and financial loss to innocent investors. For this reason, the report says, the attorney general has not brought action against the company in the courts, public policy as well as law being involved in the case.

With regard to the express violation of the law charged against the New Haven company, Malone calls attention to the fact that the statute in question contains no provision for any penalty. He urges that such a provision be added to the law. The section of the general railroad laws of the state which the attorney general declares has been violated is as follows:

"If a railroad corporation owning a railroad in this commonwealth and consolidated with a corporation owning a railroad in another state increases its capital stock, or the capital stock of such consolidated corporation, except as authorized by this act, without authority of the general court, or without such authority extends its line of railroad or consolidates with any other corporation or makes a stock dividend, the charter and franchise of such corporation shall be subject to forfeiture."

This section, Malone says, has been violated, not only by the merger with the Consolidated Railway company, but by an increase in the capital stock of the New Haven company, made without permission of the Massachusetts legislature.

"In my opinion," sums up the attorney general, "such ultimate relief as may be afforded by legal proceedings is inadequate, in view of all the circumstances, and the proper tribunal to decide the important and difficult questions to which the situation now existing has given rise is the legislature of the commonwealth; and I call the subject to your attention for such action as you may deem proper."

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

Editor Quincy Ledger.

Dear Sir:—I notice in your editorial column under date of Jan 19 a criticism of the resolution introduced into the City Council for the appointment of a committee to report on the advisability of revising the City Charter, the whole tenor of the article appears to prove the utter inconsistancy of such a measure introduced by me at this time. Now I will say here, that no objection to honest criticism would appear over my signature, for it is when merited helpful inasmuch as it calls attention to our mistakes from which very few who do anything in this world are exempt but in this particular case I do not consider it merited from the fact that the resolution simply called for a committee appointed to see if the people did require certain changes in the Charter and I clearly stated when the order was introduced that the objections that I, and in fact every citizen with whom I had conversed, had, was not that certain changes were not required and called for in the Charter, but that the resolutions offered last Saturday evening were not the ones desired or called for in the charter.

In fact as I remarked in sustaining my motion that the resolutions offered for the citizens to vote on seemed to me like putting a plaster on the foot to draw the boil out of the neck, too far from the seat of the trouble.

In other words, placing more power where there already appeared to be too much power centralized, and the question of reducing representation which is also particularly obnoxious to the people, it was entirely on the resolutions presented that I objected and the vote taken by the Board of Trade if my memory serves me correctly, was for the same reason and there was no argument in support of no revision, simply not approving resolutions offered as they did not meet the requirements of revision.

These are the facts and think honest criticism should, and can only be made, when facts are presented, and the fact must be borne in mind, that the whole previous matter has been based on the set of resolutions drawn up by the committee and such action taken has been on the wisdom of the resolutions in improving the present charter and, the people have simply voiced the fact that the suggestions are not what they want.

The people have had no opportunity yet to express their desires in the matter and the object of the resolution, is to give every voter the opportunity of expressing themselves on the subject to this committee, and then the matter can be acted on from the standpoint of the people's requirements.

It is not a question for the City Council to take action on to decide except as the people desire after receiving their evidence in the matter. And this can be accomplished by a committee of this nature. The action of the meeting on Saturday simply proves that the people did not want the changes made as proposed in that set of resolutions. that does not prove by any means that other changes are not desired by the people.

I trust this will clear the atmosphere and that I am now understood.

John R. Richards.

APPREHENSION IS RELIEVED

Anti-Japanese Legislation Sidetracked For the Present

Washington, Jan. 21.—While such assurances as have come from representative Pacific coast men regarding the improbability of any legislation in California adverse to the Japanese have undoubtedly done much to relieve the apprehension that existed in administration circles, it is a fact that deepest concern exists as to the future.

Nothing that has happened in congress or elsewhere recently has so absorbed the attention of the president and of Secretary Root as the threatened anti-Japanese legislation in California.

There are factors which for diplomatic reasons could not be mentioned in a letter which was sure to be published, but which are well known to the members of the senate and the house committees on foreign affairs and which doubtless influenced the conservative Pacific coast men in congress to whom they were made known in deprecating such action as was proposed.

Washington, Jan. 21.—A resolution expressing sincere regret at the closing of their official relations with Secretary Root was adopted at a meeting of the governing board of the International Bureau of American Republics, attended by all the Latin-American diplomats in Washington.

The resolution declares that "in their intercourse with Secretary Root they ever found him animated by the most earnest and direct interest in the friendliness of every American nation and by the most absolute and kindly impartiality respecting them all."

The resolution congratulates the secretary on his election to the senate.

FIFTY-THREE MEN KILLED

Powder Explosion Wrecks a Crib In Lake Michigan

WITHOUT AVENUE OF ESCAPE

Tug In the Vicinity Rescues Thirty-Nine Men, While Remainder of Large Crew Working on Submarine Tunnel Are Either Blown to Pieces, Burned to Death or Drowned—Heroic Work of Rescue

Chicago, Jan. 21.—Blown to pieces by exploding powder, burned to death by the resultant fire or drowned in the icy waters of Lake Michigan, was the fate of at least fifty-three workmen who were working on a submarine tunnel at a wooden crib, a mile and a half from shore.

The crib was used in the construction of a new submarine water tunnel connecting with the south side shore of the city at Seventy-Third street. It is known that ninety-five workmen were employed in the crib and the connecting tunnel at the time of the explosion, which started the fire and blew or drove men into the water.

The work of the destroying elements was begun so unexpectedly and reaped its harvest of dead and injured with such swiftness that the contracting firm of George W. Jackson and the rescuers have been unable to produce anything like an accurate list of those who perished, or of others who escaped the fury of the flames or drowning.

Owing to the difficulty experienced by small craft in reaching the crib during the winter, most of the workmen employed on the work slept in temporary bunks at the crib. It was just as these men had been awakened for the day's work that the explosion and subsequent fire caused the panic which resulted in the great loss of life.

Powder House Blew Up

As nearly as the investigators have been able to ascertain the explosion had its origin in a powder house of small dimensions, situated about 100 yards from the crib structure proper, but at the same time being a part of the general structure, built on foundations resting on the bottom of the lake at this point. In this outhouse, the George W. Jackson company stored from time to time just enough powder and dynamite for urgent use in the work of constructing the water tunnel, and in some manner, not yet known, the explosives were put into action.

The dull detonation, muffled as it was by the crunching of floating ice against the crib, and the atmosphere laden with heavy fog, simply aroused the attention of the workmen, according to survivors, and it was not until the heat of the flames and stifling smoke penetrated the so-called "living room" of the crib and the tunnel beneath the waters of the lake that the full import of the disaster dawned upon the workmen, cut off from quick succor.

Workman Calls For Aid

One of the workmen, with a cooler head than his fellows, abandoned the shouting and frantic men on the crib platform and made his way through the smoke to a little inclosure in which was a telephone that communicated with the shore station. The drowsy attendant on shore was brought into action by a violent ringing of the telephone bell, and this was the message which set on foot the work of rescue:

"The crib is on fire! For God's sake, send help at once or we will be burned alive! The tug——"

At this point communication ceased, and through the fog an occasional burst of flame and an unmistakeable odor of smoke made it known to the watchers on shore that the telephone message was in earnest.

Tug T. T. Moorford, in charge of Captain Johnson, had forced her prow previous to the explosion to an anchorage within a short distance of the imperiled crib and this boat was the first to begin the work of rescuing the frenzied workmen.

The ice made it impossible for the tug to reach the improvised pier, but a small boat was placed in service to carry the injured to the steamer and to rescue those who had plunged into the waters of the lake rather than face the flames which were raging on the crib structure.

After several hours of heroic work on the part of the rescuers thirty-nine workmen were rescued. When the fire tug Conway and her crew had finally quenched the flames, fifty-three bodies had been carried to the shore and placed in morgues in South Chicago, awaiting identification.

"HEAD BALL" TONIGHT

New York Society Function In Aid of the Blind Poor

New York, Jan. 21.—In the name of charity New York society will dance tonight at the Hotel Plaza at a grand "bal de tete," or "head ball," the proceeds of which will be devoted to alleviating the conditions of the blind poor. It will be a brilliant affair under the patronage of the French and English ambassadors and Secretary Root. The color scheme will be red, and the decorations will include American, British and French flags.

Many of the women will wear the headdresses of Spanish and Dutch peasants. Others will appear with Venetian headdress and Venetian ruffs. Neck ruffs are to be a special feature, particularly those of the days of Queen Elizabeth, as they are an effective line of demarkation between fanciful headdress and modern evening dress.

PROTECTIVE TARIFF

Its "Defenders and Contributors" Assemble In New York

New York, Jan. 21.—The meeting of the American Protective Tariff league, which began at noon today at the headquarters in this city, will probably result in an announcement of importance respecting the position of the league on the pending revision of the tariff. The membership of the league comprises the leading protectionists of the country.

The call for the meeting of the league was addressed to its "defenders and contributors." The purpose was stated to be the election of five managers for the term of four years and the annual meeting of the board of managers for the election of officers and executive and standing committees. The "wisdom of the best counsel and advice" of the members in connection with the coming revision were solicited.

A Spanish War Criticism.

When the Spanish war came upon us Commodore Dewey was at Hongkong. The navy department had sent him no preliminary orders. He didn't know anything about the ultimate policy or what the ultimate plan of campaign would be. The navy department didn't itself know. Dewey should have moved two or three days sooner than he did, and two or three days sometimes are vital. But our Washington officials were only aroused to the necessity of giving Admiral Dewey an order by a cablegram from Dewey informing them that the British governor of Hongkong insisted that our fleet must leave there. We were so dazed by the immediate exigencies of war that the English government had to prod us in the ribs to wake us up. Then our Washington authorities issued an order and not till then. They told Dewey to proceed to the Philippine Islands and capture or destroy the Spanish fleet. In other words, they gave him the stereotyped war order in the phraseology of the signal code, which, literally translated, read: "Go ahead and do the best you can. We give it up."—Collier's.

The Silver Thread.

A matron in Harlem was calling upon another matron in Harlem. Neither was young, but one looked more so.

"Really, my dear," said the one that looked more so, "you ought to have your hair treated. It's becoming quite gray in spots. See what a difference it has made with me. You would look much younger—really."

"But I don't care to look much younger if I must dye my hair to do so," was the reply. "I prefer to be natural. If the Lord sends me gray hair there's a good reason, and I'm satisfied."

"But think of your children, my dear. They're grown up now."

"What have they got to do with it?"

"Why, don't you see? The younger you look the younger it makes them appear. And your girls are way past twenty, you know."

The matron who was gray in spots was still looking dazed when her visitor departed.—New York Globe.

RUSHING CARMACK MURDER TRIAL

Presiding Judge Will Not Permit Dilatory Tactics

Nashville, Jan. 21.—With four jurors accepted when court adjourned last night, there is every prospect that the trial of Duncan Cooper, Robin Cooper and John D. Sharpe for the murder of E. N. Carmack, will be in full swing before the week is over. The readiness with which the jurors were found was a surprise.

JUDGE W. M. HART.

The rulings of Judge Hart had much to do with the rapidity with which the proceedings moved. He began by fining nine tardy talesmen $25 each. Unless the prospective juror insisted that he could not render a fair verdict even after hearing the testimony, Hart held that he was a competent juror and compelled either the state or the defense to accept him or exercise peremptory challenge. In all, 160 talesmen were examined.

ROCKEFELLER AND TAFT

Introduced by Hotel Manager and Exchange Greetings

Augusta, Ga., Jan. 21.—Although William H. Taft and John D. Rockefeller have been guests of the Bonair Hotel since Monday, it was not until last night that they met. Rockefeller had for some time been holding an informal reception and when Taft arrived he established himself a short distance from Rockefeller in the assembly room of the hotel.

At once the crowd began to desert the oil magnate and assemble around Taft. Rockefeller was formally presented to Taft by the manager of the hotel.

"How are you, Mr. Rockefeller," was the salutation of Taft. "I got around the golf links in 88 today."

"I wanted to hear you speak this afternoon," was the reply of Rockefeller, "but I could not get near enough."

This ended the interview, as the other guests pressed forward for an introduction to Taft.

Philadelphia, Jan. 21.—After a spirited debate on the question of means to prevent sectarian teachings and practices in the public schools the delegates to the council of the union of American Hebrew congregations adopted a resolution appointing a committee to spread literature which shall take the position that, from a constitutional standpoint, this is not a Christian country.

One section of the resolution reads: "That the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, in counsel assembled, protests emphatically against all such religious teachings and practices in the public schools."

— "Did you ever have a cold," inquired the plain citizen, "that you couldn't get rid of?"

"No," answered the purist, "if I had had, I would have it now." Thus the coolness arose.—Washington Herald.

UNIQUE PLACE FOR NOTIFICATION

Cuban Congressmen Meet President In State Penitentiary

Havana, Jan. 21.—Congress met and went through the brief formality of canvassing the electoral vote as reported from the electoral college, after which President Delgado of the senate, who presided at the joint session, officially proclaimed General Jose M. Gomez as president and Alfredo Zayas as vice president to be the choice of the Cuban people.

Congress then resolved to call in a body upon Gomez and notify him. The senators and representatives were driven to the Gomez residence. They found, however, that he was absent, he having accepted an invitation to take breakfast at the presidio, or state penitentiary, on the outskirts of Havana, with Governor Castillo of the penitentiary. The members of the congress repaired thither, and in General Castillo's office the ceremony took place.

ALLEGED PANAMA LIBEL

Men of National Fame May Be Called Upon to Testify

Washington, Jan. 21.—Secretary of State Root and Senator Knox, the secretary of state to be, may be asked to appear before the federal grand jury now investigating in the District of Columbia the alleged Panama libel case involving the New York World and the Indianapolis News.

Secretary Root was secretary of war and Knox was attorney general at the time of the purchase, and conducted the negotiations for the property for the United States government.

William N. Cromwell will also probably be subpoenaed. It has been learned that he will be glad to give the grand jury the benefit of any information which he may have regarding the purchase. He represented the French Panama Canal company in the matter.

PATTERSON IS CRITICISED

Governor's Veto on State-Wide Prohibition Is Not Sustained

Nashville, Jan. 21.—Over the veto of Governor Patterson, both houses of the legislature passed senate bill No. 1, which prohibits the sale of intoxicating liquors in Tennessee within four miles of a schoolhouse.

The vote in the senate stood 20 to 13. The house vote was 61 to 36. In each house the passage was effected by a combination of Republicans and Democrats.

The galleries were packed in both houses, and the debates following the reading of the governor's message were bitter, Patterson being severely criticized.

"COLONY OF CRIMINALS"

Last One In Central America Is About to Be Broken Up

Washington, Jan. 21.—Through a favorable report made to the senate from the committee on foreign relations on an extradition treaty with Honduras, steps were taken to break up the last asylum of persons who commit crimes in the United States.

When this treaty is ratified and proclaimed by the President of the United States, extradition of criminals will be possible with all governments of the world.

The treaty with Honduras is particularly important, because there is in that country a colony of fugitives from justice from this country. It is believed the "colony of criminals," so-called, will now be driven out of Central America and many of the persons residing there will be brought to this country for trial.

MORAN AT DEATH'S DOOR

Prominent Bostonian Greatly Emaciated and Confined to His Bed

Boston, Jan. 21.—Dispatches from Phoenix, Ariz., bear the news that District Attorney Moran, who has been in Phoenix for some time trying to regain his health, has failed rapidly. He is greatly emaciated, confined to his bed and his voice is entirely gone.

Shortly before his departure for the west Moran announced that he was suffering from tuberculosis and that he was going to a health resort in a last attempt to overcome the malady.

CASTRO'S MONOPOLIES

They Are Being Done Away With by New President of Venezuela

Caracas, Jan. 21.—President Gomez is rapidly carrying out industrial and economic reforms. He has issued a decree placing an embargo on Castro's gas and electric light company and raising the duty on wheat, thus doing away with Castro's flour mill monopoly.

Popular demonstrations have taken place against the unabolished cigarette monopoly, necessitating the calling out of troops to patrol the streets.

Congress Drops Lilley

Washington, Jan. 21.—George L. Lilley, who was inaugurated Governor of Connecticut on Jan. 5 while occupying a seat in the house of representatives, was dropped from membership of that body.

QUINCY TRACK TEAM CAPTURES THREE EVENTS

Somerville Athletes Take Remainder and Win Dual Meet at Y. M. C. A.

The Somerville Y. M. C. A. track team defeated the local association track athletes in a duel meet Thursday evening at the Quincy gym. This was the second meeting of the teams, the different Y. M. C. A. indoor events being run off in two different meets.

At the former meet Somerville won 36 to 16, and last night they repeated the performance, though the local boys put up a better exhibition, the score being 31 to 19. Somerville has a fast track squad and Quincy did exceedingly well last night to hold them down as well as they did.

The first event on the card was the fifteen yard dash. It took several trial heats to weed the men out for the final, all of the heats being closely contested. The event was won by Ross, the Somerville flyer, with Stacey, his team-mate, second and Newall of Quincy third. The time was 2 3-5 seconds.

The next two events, the rope climb and potato race were won by Quincy, Merritt capturing the climb and Griffin the potato race.

Somerville took the two first places in the three broad jumps, Harry Histen, the "champ" shot putter, getting third.

The fence vault proved to be a very closely contested event, perhaps the closest of the evening. Quite a field started in the event, but as the bar went up they gradually dropped out. It finally settled between Tupper of Quincy and McMaster of Somerville. The two were very evenly matched and both went over the bar at 6 ft. 4 in.

They then tried 6 ft. 6 in. but both failed to negotiate the height. The boys tossed up for the victory and Tupper won, McMaster being awarded second place. Sanford of Somerville was third. The National Y. M. C. A. record for this event is 7 feet, so the boys last night did exceedingly well, coming within 8 inches of the record.

The final event was the half-mile relay race, which though not as close as it might have been, was the most exciting of the evening. Nothing creates greater enthusiasm than a good relay race and the race last night was a good one. The Somerville boys not only won, but also clipped 2-5 of a second off the local track record.

The meet was fairly well attended, but it seems as if greater interest could be aroused in Quincy about track athletics. A track meet is chock full of exciting events and if the local sport followers would take in one good meet, they would be watching for them all the time. The Quincy team goes to Brockton next week to try conclusions with the Shoe City boys.

Following are the events and winners.

15-yard dash—Won by Ross, (S) Stacy (S) second; Newall (Q) third. Time, 2 3-5 seconds.

Rope climb—Won by Merritt (Q) Gibson (S) and Picard (Q) tied for second place. Time, 6 2-5 seconds.

Potato race—first heat, won by Wilson (Q) Spaulding (S) second; second heat, won by Griffin (Q) Gibson (S) second. Final heat, won by Griffin (Q) Spaulding (S) second; Wilson (Q) third. Time 34 2-5 seconds.

Three broad jumps—won by McMasters (S) Jones (S) second; Histen (Q) third. Distance 30 ft. 1-4 in.

Fence vault—won by Tupper (Q) McMaster (S) second; Sanford (S) third. Height 6 ft. 4 in.

Relay race—won by Somerville (Ross, Gibson, Spaulding, Welding;) Quincy second (Melville, Wilson, Merritt, Griffiths.

The summary by points was as follows:

	SOMERVILLE	QNINCY
15 yd dash	8	1
Rope climb	2	7
Potato race	3	6
Three broad jumps	8	1
Fence vault	5	4

The installing of Miss Furnald in the position of treasurer marked the 17th time she has been installed since joining in 1891 as an officer of the order, beginning as warden, then R. S. V. MAYOR FILES THREE BILLS

Measures Presented to Legislature By Local Representative

Mayor Shea through the local representatives has filed three bills in the legislature. Two of these were introduced Thursday and the third today.

Thursday Representative Thomas introduced a bill to allow the city to appropriate a sum not exceeding $15,000 to build a hospital for contageous diseases near the City Hospital.

This bill also asks for authority for the city to appropriate annually a sum not exceeding $2500 for the maintenance of this hospital which will receive patients with contageous diseases sent there by order of the Board of Health.

The second bill introduced by Representative Langelier, asks for an amendment to the charter so as to provide that the Mayor shall be chairman ex-officio of the school committee. The bill if passed, is to be submitted to the voters at the election next December and if accepted, to take effect Jan. 1, 1910.

This morning Representative Thomas introduced a bill giving the city authority to take land along the shores of Quincy for public landing purposes.

SENATOR NASH SPEAKS ON "AMERICAN SPIRIT"

Weymouth Minister Guest Of Honor at Bethany Brotherhood Banquet

The regular monthly meeting of the Bethany Brotherhood was held on Thursday evening, a roast beef supper being served at 6.30 in the dining hall of the chapel. The supper was cooked and served by the members of the club and was enjoyed by about 100 men.

The guests of the evening were Senator Eugene C. Hultman of the first Norfolk district and Senator Melvin S. Nash of the first Plymouth district. After the supper was over Rev. E. N. Hardy arose and stated that he had been asked to preside.

He said that he was pleased to introduce a Quincy boy whom he had watched in his climb up the ladder to success. He spoke in glowing terms of this boy and then introduced Senator Hultman. The Senator spoke briefly about some of the work that a statesman has to do, in order to please the people whom he represents. People think he has an easy time, said Mr. Hultman but they do not know of half the work that goes on at the meetings of the several special committees.

Mr. Hardy next introduced the principal speaker of the evening Rev. Melvin S. Nash, senator from Plymouth. He paid a great tribute to the senator's ability and to his great work in the church and in the legislature, for this is Mr. Nash's fourth year at the state house.

Senator Nash's subject was "The American Spirit." He first thanked the club for the invitation to address them and then launched into his subject. Senator Nash is an orator, one of the kind that holds the attention of every listener, never allowing anyone to lose the drift of his subject. His tones are clear and his voice and appearance very pleasing.

Senator Nash said that the American spirit is the great salvation of the country, the spirit that knows no defeat. It was first a religious spirit, he stated, and goes back to the times of Washington, when at Valley Forge, that terrible winter, the men prayed to God for help and safety.

Today we need a promulgation of that spirit for the greater development of the true American Spirit.

Mr. Nash here referred to the words of Daniel Webster, who, when he was asked what was the greatest thought that ever occupied his mind, answered, "My indirect responsibility to Almighty God." and so we must promulgate this religious element.

The speaker's second point was fidelity to great principles. He said that the greatest glory comes from this fidelity, the greatest success comes from this unselfish spirit. It was this humanitarian spirit, he said that in '61 enabled the Union to defeat the Confederate army and thus save the whole country from destruction.

It was the same in '98, when the boys in blue defeated Spain. It was not the wealth of the country, but the true American spirit of unselfishness and humanity, that brought this about. He gave examples of Civil war officers, Grant, Sherman, Lincoln and others who were willing to give up individual honor and glory for the common glory of the country.

The third point in Mr. Nash's address was the real democracy, as the old time Americans believed in it. Mr. Nash said it was the great brotherhood of man. It is the true American spirit inherited from the boys of '75. Pure civic righteousness is what we want. We must live up to the high ideals that stand out and we must bring our state and country up to these ideals.

Senator Nash was warmly applauded at the conclusion of his address and on a motion of Ernest D. Gourd, he was given a rising vote of thanks.

The supper was in charge of Gilbert Miller, and he and his assistants and the Y. M. C. A. orchestra were also given a vote of thanks. The work of the orchestra was very good and the playing was very much enjoyed and appreciated by those present.

No man knows what a Secret Service agent may bring forth nowadays.

Is it the idea, in increasing the President's salary to $100,000 to get abler men to consent to take the job?

The esteemed Congressional Record must look back on its more mollycoddish days in sheer amazement at times.

So Charles P. Taft is to get nothing for his $160,000 beyond a kind smile and the consciousness of duty well done.

When a muckrake and a pitchfork become involved in moral combat, it is a good time for bystanders to move on.

Occasionally a United States Senator allows himself to be imposed on by financial tricksters in a way that makes the man who answers a green goods circular seem wise by comparison.

Evangelist Gypsy Smith has gone to Pittsburg for the purpose of trying to induce the people of that city to be good. Gypsy has a job that is likely to keep him busy all winter and well into the spring.

There is a rumored strained relation between the President and the President-elect all on account of Mr. Loeb, the President's Secretary. It is said the President is pushing Mr. Loeb for a cabinet place, the secretaryship of the Navy, and that the President-elect does not think Mr. Loeb's "displacement" of tonnoge is sufficient for the place.

Mr. George M. Reynolds, President of the Continental Bank of Chicago is being pushed by his friends for the Treasury portfolio of Mr. Taft's cabinet. He is President of the American Bankers' Association and it is claimed that he has qualifications for the successful management of the national finances. But what is the use of everybody pushing their friends. Besides Knox for Secretary of State and Hitchcock for Postmaster General, there will be no known cabinet appointments until after the Fourth of March.

It is impossible to attach too much significance to the fact that the British and American ministers to China joined in a protest against the removal from office of Yuan Shi Kai The German, French, Japanese and all the other ministers at the court of Pekin held back. Yuan Shi Kai, it will be remembered, was in authority during the Boxer Rebellion and it is thought that it was owing to his finesse and interference that the foreign legations were not massacred. That the British and American legations alone had an audience with the Chinese authorities and made inquiry as to the cause of his deposition and received assurances that the policies that he represented would be continued, is a fact of the greatest diplomatic importance both as relates to China and as presaging a co-operation of the now two greatest naval powers of the world to maintain the open door in the East and to promote the cause of progressive civilization in the most populous of all empires.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

We fear the present session of Congress is to be known to history as the short and ugly session.—Washington Herald.

Now, then, if Senator Tillman says anything more he will wish he hadn't if he doesn't, he will wish he had. This is what they call being up against it.—Nebraska State Journal.

It actually seems safer now in this country to kill a man than to wreck a bank. In the case of the former crime, it appears, an acquittal may always be depended on, if the reputation of femine relatives is blackened with the theoretical purpose of showing the jurymen the mental condition of the murderer.—Detroit Free Press.

CAUGHT WITH PARAPHERNALIA

Boston Inspectors Capture a Batch of Notorious Crooks

A RESULT OF DARING WORK

Police Lived With Gang Several Days For the Purpose of Securing Evidence—Credit Due Former Thief Who Learned of Rendezvous and Plans and Furnished Authorities With Information of Great Value

Boston, Jan. 22.—A gang of crooks known to the police throughout the country as the cleverest of their kind in their respective lines, armed with heavy calibre revolvers, rounds of cartridges and "jimmies," and carrying time fuses and dark lanterns, was rounded up in the South End by men from the office of Chief Inspector Watts, and are under heavy lock and key in the city tombs.

The capture of the men was due to the daring work of members of the police inspector's office who for the past week or ten days have been living with the crooks, or "yeggmen" as they are more frequently called, for the purpose of securing evidence against them and making their arrest.

The inspectors were placed on the track of the men immediately following the burglary of the postoffice at Holliston last week Tuesday, when a small sum of money was secured by blowing open the safe and one of the robbers was shot.

It was learned last night that the men had fully equipped themselves for some deed and intended to take the 6:40 train for Melrose, it is believed with the intention of making a big break in that vicinity. It was therefore deemed best to round up the gang at once.

Charged With Holliston Break

Accordingly seven men were placed under arrest, two others taken being released after examination. Technically the men will be held for the break at Holliston, although New York, Chicago and other cities have been notified and may have the men if they desire them.

Credit for the capture of the men is really due to the work of Jack O'Donnell, a former express thief, who has recently been working for the local express companies in an endeavor to stop the thieving from express wagons about the city. O'Donnell learned of the rendezvous and, after mixing with the men and finding out their plans, informed the inspector's department.

The fact that the policemen of Melrose held their annual ball last night is believed to be the reason for the yeggs' decision to visit that city, although their exact plans are unknown to the police.

SUES FOR HALF A MILLION

Action Against Insurance Companies by Widow of Murdered Man

Muskogee, Okla., Jan. 2.—Mrs. Susie M. Burdette, widow of the late Joshua Burdette, a wealthy pioneer merchant of Creek county, who was the victim of a mysterious assassination at Eufaula in 1906, filed suit in the United States circuit court here for the recovery of $500,000 insurance upon Burdette's life. Five insurance companies are defendants.

Burdette's body was found in a well at his farm. Nearby on the ground was a revolver. For a time it was believed Burdette had committed suicide, but an investigation resulted in the assassination theory being officially adopted. Judge Campbell set the case for trial Feb. 8.

IN A STATE OF PANIC

Earthquake-Stricken Region Continues to Experience Numerous Shocks

Rome, Jan. 22.—The stormy weather in the earthquake region is adding greatly to the afflictions of the refugees. The work of hut construction has been retarded and all about Messina is like a lake of mud.

In addition, the panicky feeling is kept up by numerous shocks, which have been felt as far as Brindisi.

At Palmi, from the rocks which tower high above the level of the sea, a column of sulphuric gas has been pouring, which destroyed the surrounding woods.

Wiping Out Old Scores

The Hague, Jan. 22.—Jose J. Paul, the Venezuelan envoy, had a lengthy conference with M. Van Swinderen, the foreign minister, and an agreement was reached on the principal points at issue between Venezuela and The Netherlands.

Lupton Promoted to Consulship

Washington, Jan. 22.—The senate confirmed the nomination of Stuart K. Lupton of Tennessee, to be consul at Messina, vice Arthur S. Cheney, who was killed in the recent earthquake. Lupton also was at Messina, acting as deputy consul.

A $20,000,000 Drydock

Paris, Jan. 22.—The senate adopted a bill providing for the construction of a great drydock and basin at Havre. The cost of the work will approximate $20,000,000.

MILTON.

East Milton people think if they live long enough they will have a new freight house.

The Milton police automobile has been having a rest for the past week.

The department has purchased a new Stanley for use next year, that can develop a speed of 75 miles an hour.

The members of the Thursday evening club listened to an interesting talk on race suicide by Rabbi Fleisher last week.

Chief Choate of the fire department has his hose pungs all ready for use but up to the present time there has not been snow enough to warrant their use.

Town meeting affairs have begun to occupy the attention of the voters of Milton and from now on until March it will be the main topic of conversation. Possible candidates are already being talked of for town offices. Milton is one of the few towns in the state where party affiliations are eliminated from the ballots used at Town Meeting. Candidates for town offices are nominated at a citizens caucus.

POLICE BALL.

The indications are that the third annual ball of the Quincy Police Relief association tonight will eclipse all previous affairs. A large number of tickets have been sold which insures a large attendance. The comfort of the guests of the evening will be well looked after by an efficient reception committee headed by Lieut. Daniel R. McKay. Chief Frank E. Burrell is chairman of the committee of arrangements and Marshal of the ball.

SOCIAL WORKERS GIVE GOOD ADVICE

Want More Legislative Protection For Children

Chicago, Jan. 22.—"Keep the child out of the factory." This was the consensus of sentiment at the fifth annual national child labor conference. The plight of the poor child who is taken from school to become the support of parents, the unnatural and unhealthful surroundings of a child in the factories of the big cities and in the cotton mills of the south were all described by social workers of national repute as an argument for more legislative protection for children.

It was declared that it was not alone in enclosed places that children were overworked. In the vegetable gardens of Delaware and Maryland, in the beet sugar fields and in the tobacco fields children were employed as much as twelve hours a day.

DEATH OF SELIM SHAKIR

Figured Prominently In the Rescue of Miss Stone From Brigands

Roswell, N. M., Jan. 22.—Selim Shakir, the guide who piloted a body of Turkish troops through the mountains of Macedonia to rescue Miss Ellen Stone, the American missionary kidnapped by brigands and held for ransom, died in a hospital here of pneumonia. The body will be sent to Jerusalem for interment. Shakir embraced Christianity many years ago.

Miss Stone is a native of Massachusetts. With her when she was kidnapped was Mrs. Teilka, the wife of an Albanian protestant minister. The women were taken while traveling over a mountain road and the brigands demanded $110,000 ransom. This amount was paid, $65,000 of it being raised by public subscription in America. The women were held captive for six months.

DEFENDANTS WELL KNOWN

Makes It Difficult to Obtain Jurors In Carmack Murder Case

Nashville, Jan. 22.—The second day in the effort to obtain a jury in the trial of Duncan B. Cooper, Robin Cooper and John D. Sharpe, charged with the murder of Edward W. Carmack, closed with only six men in the box.

It is difficult to find men who do not know some of the defendants, especially Sharpe, who was sheriff of this county for four years, and who thus came into contact with most of the citizens. Cooper, senior, too, has been in politics for years.

J. E. Curtis, one of the talesmen examined, when asked if he had any prejudice against the defendants, startled the court by exclaiming loudly:

"Yes, sir; they ought to have been hanged long ago."

STOCK HAS ACCUMULATED

Rubber Footwear Factories to Be Closed Down Next Month

Boston, Jan. 22.—About 5000 operatives employed in the subsidary factories of the United States Rubber company and by one or two smaller concerns will be idle during the greater part of February, according to notices which have been posted at various plants.

"On Jan. 27 the boot mill at Millville, the shoe factories in Malden and Melrose, two plants in Naugatuck, Conn., and in other places, will be shut down for four weeks.

The curtailment is due to an accumulation of unsold stock, a condition largely caused by fine winter weather.

DELIVERED IN PERSON

Secretary Koenig Journeys to Washington With Root's Certificate

Washington, Jan. 22.—Secretary of State Koenig of New York arrived here today with the certificate of election of Elihu Root as United States senator from New York, signed by Governor Hughes and the secretary of state. Koenig presented it to Vice President Fairbanks this morning.

The custom has been to either mail the certificate to Washington or send it by messenger. This probably is the first time in the history of New York that the secretary of state has personally delivered to the vice president the certificate of election of a senator.

No Automobiles For Taft

Washington, Jan. 22.—The urgent deficiency appropriation bill was reported to the senate from the committee on appropriations. It carries $1,151,602. UNEMPLOYED MEN GATHER IN ST. LOUIS

Delegates From All Parts of the Country Are Present

St. Louis, Jan. 22.—This city was called on today to take notice, officially and otherwise, of a convention of a decidedly unusual nature. Today marks the beginning here of a three days' convention of the unemployed of the large cities of the country, called together to consider ways and means of bettering their condition.

The moving spirit in the convention is James Eads How, a native of this city, who is known frequently as "the millionaire hobo" and sometimes as "the king of the hoboes." Mr. How denies that the present convention is composed of "hoboes." He asserts that there are in every large city from 35,000 to 100,000 men who are willing to work and are unable to find employment.

"The object of this convention will be to endeavor to secure employment for all those desiring work and to attemp to get transportation for unemployed men to their jobs, as well as to consider other matters that are very vital to the unemployed," said Mr. How.

RELATIONS ARE STRAINED

Steel Trust Probers' Invitation to Bonaparte Is Declined

Washington, Jan. 22.—After arranging a long list of questions pertaining to the merger of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company and United States Steel Corporation, the senate sub-committee found itself baffled when Attorney General Bonaparte declined to be quizzed.

His declination to appearing before the committee came in the form of a letter, stating he had another engagement. The committee has refused to make the letter public or allow Bonaparte to do so.

It is believed here that it contained some expressions that have not tended to increase the cordial relations between the committee and the department of justice.

SETS A BAD EXAMPLE

President Roosevelt Reproved For Anxiety to Kill Rare Animals

Toronto, Jan. 22.—At a meeting here of the American fish and game protective association, Cy Warman, in a paper on "Wild Life," cited President Roosevelt as a bad example to sportsmen in that he was anxious to kill rare animals.

In his book the president described the killing of the last survivor of the elk in Montana, Warman said, and now he was after the white rhinosceros in Africa, one of the scarcest of wild animals.

TALKING WITH GREAT CAUTION

President Realizes Gravity of Japanese-California Question

A SUBJECT OF CONFERENCES

Chief Executive Will Share Responsibility Resting Upon Governor of Golden State, Where Japanese Are Said to Be Taking Possession of Whole Towns—Fortifications For San Pedro Harbor Recommended

Washington, Jan. 22.—The Japanese legislation question in California was discussed at conferences between President Roosevelt and Senators Flint and Fulton and others. The president urged the necessity of California's congressional delegation using their influence as fully as possible against legislation that might be resented by Japan.

The president talked cautiously with some of his congressional visitors. He went so far as to say he thought nothing pending in congress nor any of the differences between himself and congress were of half the importance of the Japanese-California question.

Although he talked with great deliberation and care, the president still recognizes the existence of a deeply antagonistic sentiment against the Japanese in California, and the wisdom of placating that sentiment so as to end the agitation with as little delay as possible.

Because of the almost unanimous feeling in the state the president realizes the responsibility resting upon Governor Gillett in using his influence upon the legislature to stop legislation at this session, and he wants to do all he can to share some of that responsibility.

Senator Flint, in his conference at the White House, agreed with the president in considering that the burden placed upon Gillett is an important and serious one and he is willing to share with the governor the work of trying to allay the irritation. The president is not hesitating to use the power of Flint and will not refrain from doing anything within reason himself.

Senator Flint and other Californians have told the president pretty plainly that while they are willing to help him they do not place much confidence in the figures of the government as to the decreasing number of Japanese in this country. "The facts dispute the figures," they declare, and add that the Japanese are taking possession of whole towns.

The president advised his California visitors that he would like to see a fair trial given the promises of the Japanese to decrease the number of their citizens in this country.

Defense of San Pedro

The fact that recently President Roosevelt sent to congress a report by the general staff of the army, which has just become pubic, recommending fortifications for San Pedro harbor, Cal., was made the basis for suggestions that such decision was reached lately in view of possible trouble with Japan.

At the war department this inference was given a most explicit denial. There it was said that the general subject of the improvement of San Pedro harbor had been under consideration more than two years, beginning before there was any thought of any dispute between the United States and Japan. It was taken up as a natural military problem involving the necessary protection of the southern California coast from foreign invasion and without reference to any particular country or enemy.

TURNED DOWN BY SENATE

Result of Postmaster Being on the Wrong Side In Politics

Washington, Jan. 22.—An echo of the recent senatorial contest in Connecticut was heard in the rejection by the senate of the nomination of George I. Allen, who was appointed to succeed himself as postmaster at Middletown, a position he has held for many years.

Senators Bulkeley and Brandegee joined forces for the purpose of defeating his reappointment because, it is alleged, he had taken sides with their political opponents.

As the senators were in harmony in opposing Allen, the senate, according to a long established principle, voted at once to uphold their position.

Clergyman Badly Hurt

Darien, Conn., Jan. 22.—Rev. H. S. Brown, 50 years old, pastor of the local Congregational church, was struck by an automobile here, receiving a broken leg, wounds about the head and neck and possible internal injuries. The chauffeur, Oliver Haglen, is being held without bail to await the outcome of Brown's injuries.

To Oppose Reduced Tariff

Cheyenne, Wyo., Jan. 22.—A permanent bureau at Washington to oppose measures that may be offered to congress to have the tariff reduced on any American products, particularly wool, will be maintained by the National Wool Growers' association.

Judges' Pay Increased

Washington, Jan. 22.—A debate on the propriety of increasing salaries of federal circuit and district judges consumed nearly the entire time of the senate, with the result that the compensation of the twenty-nine circuit judges was increased from $7500 to $9000 and that of the eighty-four district judges from $6000 to $8000.

QUINCY LOCALS BRIEFLY TOLD

James Mattie of Penn's hill had one of the fattest cows ever seen in the Brighton market this week.

Charles R. Hendrie of Marlboro street returned Thursday night from a few days' business trip to New York.

The building boom still continues at Houghs Neck. Ten houses having been started during the past two week.

The lunch room at the Elks club house on Foster street was formally opened with a Dutch supper this week.

The ladies of Houghs Neck are organizing a whist club. Parties will be held once a week during the remainder of the winter months.

A small room to be used as a kitchen has been petitioned off in the Savings Bank building for the use of the Knights of Columbus club.

E. E. Bullock is suffering from a severe cold and was unable to appear with the Wollaston Glee club at their concert on Tuesday evening.

Twelve of the sophomore girls of the Quincy high school have organized a social club, which met for the first time on Thursday afternoon, with Miss Ednah Rhodes of Old Colony avenue.

The Iroquois club ministrel beaux and belles are hard at work rehearsing for the coming show. The Knockers' club won't be one, two, three, when the Iroquois hammers begin to sound on the anvil.

The weekly whist party of the Washington Social club was held last night and was largely attended. There were 20 tables in play and the scores were good. William C. Caldwell won the first gentlemen's prize and Miss Emma Hayden, the first ladies' prize.

From Sweden to the Congo is a big jump but the Unity club of Wollaston is to make it this evening at their regular meeting. Owing to unusual complications it was impossible to arrange for the Swedish evening as scheduled on the program, so the scene will shift and the executive committee is glad to announce that Mr. John Daniels, secretary of the Congo Reform association will speak on "the brighter outlook in the Congo." Miss Caroline Domback of the Roslindale Unitarian church will sing.

That the esteem in which Miss Floria Collins is held by her many friends might be shown they gathered in a large number at her home, 12 Quincy street, Wednesday evening and presented her with a gold chain and locket. Miss Louise Moyle, a close friend of Miss Collins, made the presentation in a very efficient manner, to which Miss Collins responded with words of thanks and hoped all present would enjoy the evening. And indeed they did, for all were loth to go until all enjoyment known to young folks was favored.

FIRE MAY BE OF INCENDIARY ORIGIN

"Merry Widow" Cottage at Houghs Neck Badly Gutted

The alarm from Box 14 at 6.03 this morning called the department to a lively blaze in the Merry Widow cottage on Sea street, Houghs Neck owned by Martha Leaman. When discovered the fire was burning briskly and the building was quite badly gutted before the fire was under control.

The cottage was little more than a shell of a building and it burned rapidly. The Houghs Neck combination was early on the scene and had a stream of water on the building. Chief Williams and some of the Central station apparatus arrived shortly after, having made a remarkably quick run.

The cause of the fire is somewhat of a mystery. From what Chief Williams could learn Mrs. Leaman visited the cottage Thursday and discovered that someone had been sleeping in the cottage. The parties had forced an entrance to the house through a basement door.

To prevent further occupancy of the cottage Mrs. Leaman nailed up the door before she left for home.

This morning one of the first arrivals at the fire was Officer Thorne and he found this door had been broken open.

Whether the uninvited guest had smashed in the door and set the fire or whether it caught from a fire left in the stove Thursday will not be determined until after an investigation.

Chief Williams places the loss at $300.

MRS HANNAH BUCKLEY.

Mrs. Hannah Buckley, wife of Edward Buckley, died Thursday at her home, 36 Bates avenue, aged 54 years. Mrs. Buckley leaves besides a husband, two sons and five daughters. One of her sons, Thomas, is a senior in Boston college and James is a member of St. Mary's basket ball team.

Mrs. Buckley was a member of Ladies' Auxiliary of Division 5, A. O. H.

TIN WEDDING CELEBRATED.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Lofgren celebrated their tenth wedding anniversyar Thursday evening by entertaining a large number of their friends at their home, 19 Cottage street. During the evening there was music and a general good time, including a wedding supper. Mr. and Mrs. Lofgren received a number of gifts.

Mrs. Robert Butler of Botolph street is visiting her daughter, Mrs. William Fischer of Forrest Hills for two weeks.

Thursday evening the Woman's Guild of St. Chrysostom's church will hold a turkey supper in the parish rooms.

Out of respect for Mrs. Hannah Buckley, mother of one of the players, the basket ball games at St. Mary's hall scheduled for Saturday night have been cancelled.

Mayor Shea has been presented with a handsome cut glass paper weight, representing a Bible. The weight is some of the handiwork of William Norteman.

James Duncan, secretary of the Granite Cutters' Association, was one of the speakers at the mass meeting of Stationary engineers at Faneuil hall, Boston, Thursday evening.

Friends who last year enjoyed the recital in elocution given by pupils of Mrs. Frank K. Butler, are pleasantly anticipating the one to be held in Atlantic Music hall early in February.

The Wollaston W. C. T. U. will hold its regular monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. F. Mitchell, 335 Highland avenue. Mrs. Samuel Kay will speak on "Relation of our Department Work to Temperance."

Dr. Archibald of Newton will address the Bethany Bible class on Sunday evening instead of on Thursday evening as previously arranged. The subject of his address will be "A trip to the land of the Pharoahs" in which he tells of personal experiences.

Building at Atlantic has taken a boom as five three appartment houses are to be erected on Sagamore street. The buildings are about 30 by 48 feet and each apartment will contain all modern appliances. The buildings will cost $5,500 each.

—Quincy is preparing to take its position among the cities of the state that see the uselessness and obstacle of party designations on the ballot in municipal elections, and is moving to free itself. The movement is gaining headway with great rapidity.—Boston Record.

EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN.

Services to be Held in Thirteen Local Churches.

The Chapman Evangelistic campaign is getting a great hold on our Quincy churches. Thirteen of them are now in the movement which opens with meetings at the Bethany Congregational church next Tuesday evening at 7.45 o'clock.

The churches represented are Congregational: Bethany, Washington Street, Wollaston, Park and Downs, Memorial, Finnish. Baptist: Calvary, Wollaston. Methodist: Wollaston, Atlantic, West Quincy, also Water Street Presbyterian, United Presbyterian.

This is the first time in many years that anything like union of the entire church forces has been effected, and great good is anticipated both from a spiritual standpoint and one of church unity.

—Forty thousand cigar makers in the United States are to be assessed ten cents each and the money derived used to make a display of the union label at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition in Seattle in 1909.

—Down in Provincetown harbor Capt. Joshua Nickerson gets out his old bomb lance, fires a quieting charge into a 40-foot whale and will clean up $500 on the capture. Reads like the good old days of the whale fishery, doesn't it?

—The proportion of physicians to the general population is probably greater in New York city than anywhere else in the country, says the Medical Record. In the United States, for example, taking the estimated population of the Census Bureau for 1908 as a basis, there is one licensed physician to every 709 persons; in New York State there is one to 672 and in New York city one to only 653. It has been estimated that the physician in general practise must have a clientele of 750 persons, or 150 families, to support himself and his family in comfort, so if this estimate is accurate the New York doctor is short an average of 100 patients, and many of course are further behind than that.

WILL ACCEPT CONSEQUENCES

Labor Leaders Plainly Express Opinions of Justice Wright

WILL NOT ASK FOR CLEMENCY

Enter a Protest Against Court's "Unprecedented and Unwarranted Flagellation" of the Labor Cause—Disobedience of Injunction In Buck Stove and Range Company Not Considered Defiance of Law

Washington, Jan. 22.—"We have not asked, and will not ask for clemency, and we hope our friends will not urge us to pursue such a course. Loving liberty as freemen do, as we do, it cannot be difficult to appreciate what incarceration in prison would mean for us. To ask pardon would render useless all the trial and sacrifice which our men of labor and our friends in all walks of life have endured that the rights and liberties of our people might be restored. Such a pardon would only leave the whole case in confusion, and it would have to be fought over again from the be beginning."

This is some of the language used in a remarkable statement, signed by Messrs. Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison, in the current number of the American Federationist, in formal protests against the action of Justice Wright in sentencing them to imprisonment for contempt of court in the Bucks Stove and Range case.

Mr. Gompers refers to the "intemperate and vindictive spirit displayed by the justice" and to "this tirade of judicial abuse and misrepresentation" in a separate statement, but he joins with Mitchell and Morrison in declaring that they would not "enter into competition with the honorable court in the use of invectives, rancor or scathing denunciation" and that they should protest "against the court's unprecedented and unwarranted flagellation of the cause and of the people we have the honor to represent."

Judges Sometimes Tyrants

That the trio of labor leaders fully understand the responsibility they assume in making their statements is shown by their declaration that, even though they may be held in additional contempt, "we are willing to accept the consequence. It may be necessary to the preservation of the liberties of the people that a judge should be disobeyed. Judges sometimes usurp power and become tyrants. Disobedience to a tyrant is obedience to law."

Here is another statement:

"When a judge issues an injunction like that in the Bucks Stove and Range company it is the judge who defies the law and not the citizens who refuse obedience to his injunction mandates, which would deprive men of their constitutional rights."

The statement enters into a close analysis of the famous injunction case and it is asserted that Mitchell was not at the labor meetings which directed the circular letters attacking the Bucks Stove and Range company, and that he did not sign or have knowledge of its circulation.

It is asserted that Gompers removed the name of the firm from the "We Don't Patronize" list as soon as the injunction became operative and had no intent to defy the order of the court by its discussion. Finally, in conclusion, it is said:

"We are not disrespectful to the courts when we protest against a wrong decision; rather are we helping the courts to maintain their proper dignity by pointing out when a judge steps from the path of dignity and right and justice."

A THREE-STORY JUMP

It Proves Too Much For Murderer's Pursuers and He Escapes

New York, Jan. 22.—After a sensational chase over roof-tops, in which he distanced his pursuers by jumping from a height of three stories, and landing uninjured, an unknown Italian made good his escape here after shooting down a fellow-countryman, Pasquale Miami, in East Fifteenth street.

Miami, hit by two of the five shots fired by his assailant, died in a short time.

The police later said they identified the dead man as a member of the Black Hand brotherhood with a prison record.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Francis J. Parker, aged 84, early in life prominent in military, civic and political circles of Boston, died in that city. He was a native of Boston and had served in both branches of the legislature.

Andrew M. Dorr, former bank commissioner of the state of Massachusetts, died at Boston. He was born in Boston in 1857.

The Travelers' Home, a hotel at Newton, N. H., and a large stable were completely destroyed by a fire which caused a loss estimated at about $12,000.

Arnold B. Sanford, cotton and yarn broker, filed a bankruptcy petition at Boston, giving liabilities as $75,515.

A HAPPY GATHERING.

Three jolly matrons were bent on a spree
They were as frisky as frisky could be
And one to the other did say,
"Lets give little mother a turkey treat.
A stupendous dinner which can't be beat,
In Boston for many a day."
"Away to the hotel"
Shouted dear friend Belle
So they made a bolt,
Headed by Laura E. Holt,
"Oh, or a large barrel."
Wished our good friend Farrell,
"We need it for flowers,"
Chimed in Mary Powers.
We'll give her oysters raw
Or a red lobster's claw,
Then there are mushrooms rare
Which all must eat with care.
Here is a turkey roast,
New England's famous boast,
With trimmings all complete
To make a fancy treat.
Pies, nuts and olives too
This closes the menu.
Well, they laughted till they cried,
and laughed again.
Over stories told which no mortal pen
Could have possibly written down,
But this is a faithful historee
Of this so glorious jam boree
In good old Boston town.
This was not half the fun
They had ere all was done,
All this is honor of C. Alice Litchfield.

BARBARA REIG'S UNTIMELY END

Jury Unable to Say Whether It Was Due to Murder

New York, Jan. 22.—After six hours' deliberation the jury in the case of David H. Shellard, a former Brooklyn policeman, charged with the murder of Barbara Reig, reported that it was impossible to reach a verdict, and Justice Crane discharged it. The defendant was recommitted to jail to await decision as to another trial.

The case grew out of the shooting of Barbara Reig in a shelter house in Irving Square park, Brooklyn. Shellard admitted having been with her when she was killed. His defense was that the girl committed suicide with his revolver because he repulsed her.

JAGGAR'S PREDICTION

Mt. Etna's Greatest Eruption Will Occur Within Eighteen Months

Boston, Jan. 22.—"I absolutely predict, without any hesitation, that within a year and a half Mt. Etna will experience a fearful eruption," declared Professor Jagger, head of the geological department at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and acknowledged one of the best authorities on volcanoes and earthquakes in the United States, in an address here last night.

Professor Jagger went on to say that the great earthquake at Messina is but the forerunner of the greatest eruption which Mt. Etna has ever seen. He predicted that as earthquakes occur in cycles Messina would be safe for another generation.

Speaking of local conditions, Jaggar stated that there were earthquake centers in Manchester, N. H., Providence and New York city, and that Boston was one of the safest places in the United States in this regard.

PROCEEDINGS BLOCKED

International Naval Conference Likely to Result In Failure

London, Jan. 22.—Unless the various delegates arrive at a settlement of their difficulties, there is a strong probability that the labors of the international naval conference, which has been in session here since last month, will come to nought.

Some of the delegates place the chief blame for the present situation on the American representatives. They aver that as soon as the conference took up questions upon which there were serious differences of opinion, the American delegates adopted an uncompromising attitude.

The foreign delegates attribute America's attitude to failure to understand the continental points of view and to lack of definite instructions.

DEAD MAY REACH SEVENTY

Lake Michigan Crib Had No Fireboat Provided For Emergency

Chicago, Jan. 22.—That the list of fifty known dead probably will be increased to seventy or even more is the chief fact developed in the official investigation of the burning of company which built the crib, in ex-Michigan.

The officials of the construction company which built the crib, in explanation of why the structure was made of wood instead of steel, said that all temporary structures of the kind were of wood. Although a boat plied between the crib and the shore, no regular fireboat was provided for an emergency, it was said.

MANUFACTURE OF LIQUOR

Prohibited In Tennessee by Vote of the State Legislature

Nashvile, Jan. 22.—By a vote of 60 to 32, the lower house of the legislature passed the bill to prohibit the manufacture of intoxicants in Tennessee after Jan. 1, 1910. The bill has already passed the senate and now goes to the governor, who is expected to veto it, as he did the bill prohibiting the sale of liquor.

Like the latter, the manufacturers' measure will probably pass over the governor's veto. The consideration of the bill precipitated a bitter debate.

Repairs on Warships

Washington, Jan. 22.—Strictures upon the efficiency of naval officers in the care of the machinery of war vessels were made in the house of representatives during the consideration of the naval appropriation bill, with the result that an amendment was adopted requiring the secretary of the navy annually to report to congress the instances when more than $200,000 is expended for repairs.

Russian Newspapers Fined

St. Petersburg, Jan. 22.—Fines ranging from $150 to $500 have been imposed upon St. Petersburg journals for publishing articles based on statements in foreign newspapers to the effect that agents of the Russian police participated in terroristic crimes.

President's Order Stands

Washington, Jan. 22.—On a point of order the provision restoring marines to warships and other vessels was stricken from the naval bill by the house of representatives.

The Social Realm

"The mills of God grind slowly, yet they grind exceeding small,"
So soft and slow the great wheels go, they scarcely move at all;
But the souls of men fall into them,
and are powdered into dust,
And while in the dust grow the passion flowers—Love and Hope and Trust.

Miss Louisa Merritt who has been pasing the summer and early winter in Scituate with her mother is leaving soon for a few months in Boston.

* * *

William H. North of Boston and summer resident of Scituate has been elected president of the village improvement of town, the unanimous choice of the hundred or more members of the newly formed society. Mr. North formerly lived in Quincy and has connections here. The Hull Beacon in speaking of Mr. North as head of the Scituate society says: "He is helpful in any place or in any capacity," which should mean much for the future prosperity of the society.

Mr. and Mrs. Laurance H. Sturtevant have plans well under way for an attractive house which they contemplate building soon on Adams street, just south of the Sturtevant homestead, where they are making their home this winter.

BLUECOATS AND GUESTS FILL MUSIC HALL

Third Annual Ball of Quincy Police Relief Association Social Success.

Upwards of 400 couples were in attendance at the third annual ball of the Quincy Police Relief Association last evening and the affair was a grand success in every way.

Three years ago on the occasion of the Association's first event the weather man handed out a hard storm. A year ago another storm was dealt out. This year a mild pleasant night was greeted by the bluecoats.

Although it was stormy the first two years the attendance was large, but nothing in size when compared to the attendance this year. People arriving at Music hall at 8 o'clock so as to get good seats in the balcony from which to watch the gay scene, found others before them and every seat taken. A double row of seats was then pleaced around the sides and ends of the hall and these were soon occupied.

CHIEF FRANK E. BURRELL.
Chairman Committee Arrangements.

Still the guest continued to arrive and at 9 o'clock when the grand march started they stood eight and ten deep about the entrance.

The reception committee included Lieut. Daniel R. McKay, Sergt. Mark E. Hanson, Patrick A Milford, George S. Cahill, Jeremiah Hincher and William S. Lyons and they were particularly active in looking after the pleasure and comfort of the dancers.

Among the invited guests noticed were Mayor William T. Shea, Representative L. F. R. Langelier, President Ralph W. Hobbs of the City Council, Councilman Arthur C. Beal, chairman of the standing committee on Police. Councilmen James M. Flaherty and John R. Richards, Chief Engineer Peter J. Williams, Inspector of Buildings Warren S. Parker, Overseer of the Poor James H. Elcock, City Messenger Harry W. Tirrell, John J. Duggan of the Assessors department, ex-chiefs of Police, Joseph W. Hayden, Walter H. Ripley and Amos L. Litchfield.

Other guests noticed were: John P. S. Churchill, clerk of the district court and George E. Adams, assistant clerk and Archie Baird, president of the Houghs Neck Associates.

Among the police chiefs attending were. Washington I. James of Hingham, Thomas Fitzgerald of Weymouth, James R. Qualey of Braintree, and William McLaughlin of Fore River police department.

Wilson's orchestra furnished music and from 8 to 9 o'clock gave the following program:

Wilson's Orchestra 10 pieces.

March—"Fairest of the fair" Sousa
Overture—"Hungarian Lustspiel" Keler Bela
Concert Waltz—"Les Patineurs" Waldteufel
Xylophone Solo—"Honey Suckle"
Albert von Tilzer
Gerald A. Sullivan
Final—"The U. S. A." Roth

It was but a few minutes past 9 when the music for the march was started.

LIEUT. DANIEL R. MCKAY,
Floor Director.

Leo J. McMaster was the director of the march and so well did he perform his work that there was no mix-up, although one hundred couples were in line.

Chief of Police, Frank E. Burrell and Mrs. Burrell led the march. Following them were Mayor William T. Shea with Mrs. Charles Miner, Lieut. Daniel R. McKay and Miss Gertie McKay, Inspector Alfred W. Goodhue and Mrs. Goodhue, Officers Larkin, Milford, Lyons, Boutin, Whalan, Dinneen and Broberg with their ladies and scores of others.

The march was a very pretty affair and was well executed. It was very pleasing to watch the marchers as they came down the hall, first by couples, then by fours and eights and lastly by sixteen front.

The alignment of the sixteen front was perfect and it was greeted with a round of well deserved applause from the spectators. The march over the order of nineteen numbers was commenced.

At midnight there was a brief intermission, during which, refreshments were served, although for that matter the refreshments were served from 11 to 1 o'clock.

The supper was served by Joseph W. Dennen and was pronounced one of the best ever served.

The arrangements of the affair from begining to end was perfect, much to the credit of the committee of arrangements, which was composed of Chief Frank E. Burrell, chairman; John T. Larkin, secretary; Alfred W. Goodhue, treasurer; Lieut. Daniel R. McKay and Patrick A. Milford.

Chief Burrell was floor marshal, and Lieut. Daniel McKay, floor director. The asistants were Alfred W. Goodhue, John T. Larkin and Patrick A. Milford. They were assisted by the folowing corps of efficient aids:

John Boutin, John Holloran, Claues A. Broberg, Charles Olson, Ernest H. Bishop, George F. Phillips, Charles T. Crooker, Jeremiah Dinneen, Edward J. Curtin, John J. Duane, Michael Donovan, Daniel J. Ford, Daniel H. Doran, James H. Whalen.

SUICIDE PACT IS INDICATED

Man and Woman Die at Same Time In Maine Village

CLOSE FRIENDS FOR A YEAR

Inquest Reveals Fact That Woman Died From Self Administered Poison—Symptoms of Poisoning In Man's Case, but No Official Statement—Attended a Show Together on Evening Previous to Deaths

Rumford Falls, Me., Jan. 23.—The theory that a suicide pact existed between Arthur Gleason and Mrs. Amy Snow, wife of Arthur G. Snow, both of whom died Friday, seems borne out in part by the developments of the coroner's inquest late last night.

The inquest held over the body of Mrs. Snow was conducted by Coroner Elliott, and after considering the case for several hours, the jury announced that the woman committed suicide by drinking bichloride of mercury.

The body of Mrs. Snow was found in her room at the house where she boarded in the village of Ridlonville, just across the Androscoggin river from Rumford.

No inquest has been held over the body of Gleason and no report as to the cause of death in his case has been made by the attending physician, Dr. Hanlon. Gleason worked all day Thursday shovelling snow for the town and shortly after he returned to the home of his mother in Ridlonville he was taken ill.

Dr. Hanlon was called in, but in spite of the efforts of the physician Gleason died Friday morning. While it is understood that the symptoms were those of poisoning, no official statement has been made concerning the cause of Gleason's illness and death.

Gleason was 28 years old and Mrs. Snow about 30. They lived on the same street and had been friendly ever since the woman came here about a year ago to work in a paper bag factory. Mrs. Snow had been separated from her husband and she was known here as Miss Snow. She and Gleason attended a moving picture exhibition last Wednesday night and Gleason accompanied her to her boarding house.

She did not leave her room Thursday, and Friday, when she still failed to make her appearance, the door of the room was opened and her body discovered.

TO SERVE WITHOUT PAY

Jay Gould to Become Probation Officer In Police Court

New York, Jan. 23.—Jay Gould, champion amateur court tennis player of the world and son of the millionaire railroad director, George J. Gould, is likely to become a probation officer in a local police court.

The situation which led up to Gould's offer to serve was brought about by a dispute Magistrate Finn had with Police Commissioner Bingham. A paid policeman usually performs the duties of a probation officer, but Finn recently scored Bingham in a public statement for an alleged affront to the court and the policeman detailed to the magistrate's court was withdrawn. Gould heard of the magistrate's plight and his offer to serve gratuitously is the result.

PERISHED IN GOLD MINE

Ten White Men and 150 Africans Are Overtaken by Flood

Johannesburg, Jan. 23.—By the bursting of a dam, the Witwaters Rand gold mine was flooded Friday and ten white men and 150 natives were drowned. The water from this dam also flooded the lower section of the town of Elsburg, where a number of houses were swept away and thirteen persons perished.

Floods which swept throughout the Transvaal colony and northern Natal also caused great damage to property, mining plants having suffered heavily and houses and railway bridges being swept away or inundated.

The floods are the result of heavy rains that have fallen recently and all the rivers have been converted into roaring torrents.

Horseflesh Sold as Beef

Chicago, Jan. 23.—Inspectors of the health department have been investigating charges that horseflesh is sold in Chicago for beef. Several arrests have been made, but in no instance has it been shown that the horseflesh was sold for consumption in Chicago.

FOR REFUSING TO MARRY HIM

Enraged Young Man Fatally Wounds the Girl He Loved

Holyoke, Mass., Jan. 23.—Pauline Cesik, 24 years old, is dying here as a result of her refusal to marry Joseph Peila, 23 years old, who is charged with shooting the girl.

Peila, who had been keeping company with the girl for some time, went to Miss Cesik's home with a companion and asked her to marry him. She refused and ordered him from the house, at which, it is said, he fired two shots at her. One entered the jaw, while the other pierced the left breast. At the time she was shot Miss Cesik was holding a baby in her arms, but the child was not injured.

THE VARNEY DEFALCATION

Receiver Will Soon Have Enough Cash to Restore Impaired Capital

Somersworth, N. H., Jan. 23.—National Bank Examiner Bean, temporary receiver of the First National bank, which was closed Dec. 16 last, upon the discovery of the defalcation by Cashier Varney amounting to $85,000, has begun the collection of the assessment of $35 a share necessary to restore the impaired capital of the institution.

It is believed that by Feb. 1, a large part of the $35,000 required will have been turned in by stockholders.

Owners of all but 75 out of the 1000 shares of the bank favor the payment of the assessment and the resumption of business.

AMERICAN LOSES $5000

Chummy With Pleasant Englishmen Who Proved to Be Thieves

Paris, Jan. 23.—An American business man named Bell, who is said to reside at Bayside, N. Y., made the acquaintance of three pleasant Englishmen while he was admiring the masterpieces of art in the Louvre. Afterwards Bell and his new acquaintances adjourned to a cafe, where the Englishmen relieved Bell, in neat style, of $5000.

Later one of the alleged thieves was arrested as he was about to take a train on his way to England, but the other two men and Bell's money still are missing.

Death Sentence Stayed

Springfield, Ills., Jan. 23.—Governor Dineen has commuted to life imprisonment the sentence of death pronounced on Herman Billik of Chicago, condemned to be hanged for the murder of Mary Vrzal, whom he poisoned, together with other members of the family, it was charged. Jerry Vrzal, one of the principal witnesses at the trial of Billik, swore that all his testimony at the trial of Billik was false, except as to some unimportant facts.

The Business Outlook

New York, Jan. 23.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says that development in trade is along conservative lines. Larger payrolls in manufacturing centers naturally help retail distribution, but this is still much restricted.

The Scrap Book

No Advantage to Him.

A man who was always more or less hard up boasted one day, with a smile, that he was to have a big raise in salary the following week. One of his friends approached him next day and asked if it was so.

"Yes, it's so, but it don't do me any good."

"How's that?" inquired his friend.

"Well, you see, I talk in my sleep, and my wife has found out about it."

The Mountain.

Each builds his world forever, dark or bright,
And sits within his separate universe.
The shepherd sees in this green mountain top
Place where his sheep may wander and grow fat.
What to the drover is this lilied pool?
A hollow for his swine to wallow in.
Gold hunters find upon this rocky peak
Nothing but ledges for their ringing picks.
But to the poet all this soaring height
Smokes with the footsteps of the passing God!

—Edwin Markham in Nautilus.

An Impromptu Pun.

An impromptu pun—afterward to become permanent in the play—is attributed to Charles Mathews. In the way of foreword it must be said that it is closely connected with Mr. Howe, a much valued comedian of the old Haymarket days.

Mathews was alone on the stage puzzling over the best way of dealing with a difficulty. He decides that he ought to take an important step immediately. His soliloquy finishes by saying to himself and the audience, with a puzzled expression of countenance: "Yes, that's what I ought to do, and it is what I will do. But how?" At that very moment Howe appeared at the back. In a second Mathews, pointing with his thumb to the character who had just entered, said to the audience in a tremendously confidential whisper audible all over the house, "That's Howe!"

Dry Eating.

Moses Ezekiel, the Roman sculptor, says: "Whenever I see a toothpick I think of a dinner that was given in Rome in honor of two Turkish noblemen. I sat beside the younger of them. He glittered with gold embroidery and great diamonds. But I pitied him sincerely, for he was strange to our table manners, and some of his errors were both ludicrous and painful. Toward the dinner's end a servant extended to the young man a plate of toothpicks. He waved the plate away, saying in a low and bitter voice, 'No, thank you, I have already eaten two of the accursed things and I want no more.'"

Artemus Ward's Roach.

Artemus Ward called on a friend the night before one of his panorama lectures. There were some three or four large roaches scurrying about the room, and they attracted his attention. "I am very fond of roaches," he said. "Once in my own home I found a roach struggling in a bowl of water. I took a half walnut shell and put him in it. It made a good boat. I gave him a couple of toothpicks for oars. Next morning I saw that he had fastened a hair to one of the toothpicks and had evidently been fishing. Then, overcome with exhaustion, he had fallen asleep. The sight moved me. I took him out, washed him, gave him a spoonful of boiled egg and let him go. That roach never forgot my kindness, and now my home is full of roaches."

Their Hard Luck.

One of Phil May's sketches portrays a thin, hangdog man in the prisoners' dock talking to a very mild and sympathetic looking judge. Mr. May's story of the sketch is that the prisoner had been dragged before the judge every few months for a number of years.

"Your face is familiar here," the latter now said.

"It is, your honor, worse luck," returned the prisoner.

"Are you married yet?"

"Not yet, sir."

"Not yet, eh? How long is it now that you have been engaged?"

"Seven years, your honor."

"So long as that? Why in the world haven't you got married in all that time?"

"Because, your honor," the prisoner explained, "Ann and I haven't managed to be both out of jail at the same time."

Self Deception.

We are like shop windows, wherein we are constantly arranging, hiding or exhibiting those supposed qualities which others attribute to us, and all in order to deceive ourselves.—Friedrich Nietzsche.

Conscientious.

In the reminiscences of Frederick Weatherly, who wrote "Nancy Lee" and other popular songs, is the following anecdote:

"Among others of my early popular songs one of the best known is 'Darby and Joan.' It was written while I was still at Oxford and set to music by Molloy. One evening at the usual musicale I met a young devotee of song and his wife. He asked me to accompany her on the piano, as she was going to sing 'Darby and Joan.' With pride I consented and with considerable diffidence, as I am not a musician. The young lady got through the first verse all right. Then she somewhat excitedly turned to the third verse and began singing it. I could not interrupt her or make any protest, so I followed her wishes and her voice as well as I could.

"When the song was over I asked her husband, whom I buttonholed in a corner, why she did not sing the second verse. He looked at me, as I thought, with a look of pained surprise. 'Of course she couldn't sing the second verse,' he said. 'Why not?' I asked. 'Don't you know what the verse is?' he asked. 'Yes,' I replied, 'I think I do,' and I repeated the first two lines to show him that I remembered them quite well. The lines are:

"Darby dear, but my heart was wild
When we buried our baby child.

"When I had got so far the husband looked at me blandly and interrupted with, 'Well, there you have it.' Still I was mystified. Then it suddenly occurred to me perhaps the young wife had lost a child, and I was beginning to utter some sympathetic remark when the husband said, 'Quite impossible for her to sing the second verse; she's never had a baby!'"

By Heaven, Not by Hand.

A woman who is fairly prominent in Philadelphia social circles is blessed—if it is a blessing—with a very high and vivid color which, when she has been walking fast, looks almost as though it were artificial. One day she had walked briskly down Chestnut street, and her cheeks were very red. Two workmen were painting the front of one of the stores, and as she passed one of them said loudly enough for the words to reach her ears:

"Painted, be hiven!"

"Yes, exactly," said the lady calmly. "Painted, and by heaven."

She Earned the Sixpence.

A man had been in the habit of getting his tea at a certain London restaurant for many years without any cause for complaint. Lately an Irish waitress, new to the job, was employed at the place, and from lack of experience she invariably brought the liquid refreshment with the most part of it in the saucer.

This the gentleman could stand no longer.

"Look here, Bridget," said he one evening, "if you bring my tea tomorrow without spilling a drop in the saucer I'll give you sixpence for yourself."

"All roight, sorr," replied Bridget. "Oi will do that, sorr."

The following evening the gentleman appeared and gave his order as usual. Imagine his surprise when a moment or two later the girl was observed wending her way toward him carrying a plate of bread in one hand and a cup of tea in the other.

"And what has become of the saucer, Bridget?" inquired the man.

"Shure enough, sorr," replied the girl, "to make roight shure of the sixpence yorr honoir promised me Oi thought it best to lave the saucer on the counter."

Workers and Thinkers.

We are always in these days endeavoring to separate intellect and manual labor. We want one man to be always thinking and another to be always working, and we call one a gentleman and the other an operative, whereas the workman ought often to be thinking and the thinker often to be working, and both should be gentlemen in the best sense. As it is, we make both ungentle, the one envying, the other despising his brother, and the mass of society is made up of morbid thinkers and miserable workers.—John Ruskin.

Not a Fragrant Flower.

"A Devon woman," said a man who had traveled through the place and had noted the careless habits of some of the poorer people, "had a little boy of seven or eight, whom she sent to school day after day in a very unkempt state.

"The teacher, finding that to scold the lad for his untidiness had no effect, wrote to the mother. Her son was not clean, she wrote. His neglected condition was really disgraceful. He had, in fact, a quite unpleasant odor, and so on.

"The next morning the boy, as dirty as ever, handed the teacher this note:

"'My son ain't no rose. I send him to school to be learnt, not smelt.'"

Wonderful System.

A German canvasser took the fifth story elevator of a wholesale house in New York and walked into the office, where one of the proprietors was busy at his desk. The canvasser was told that the house needed nothing in his line, but he persisted in opening his sample bag and making himself the cause of much distress until finally the enraged proprietor kicked him down the first flight of stairs. An employee, observing the mode of descent, repeated the dose with like effect, and it was dittoed until the unfortunate German found himself on the curbstoned highway. Shaking himself, he looked back over the course of events and ejaculated: "Vell, dot ish a great establishment. I don't know deir particular line of peesness, but, my, vat system, vat system!"

His Memory Was Weak.

An elderly widower was so dull and stupid that it was very difficult to marry him. When told to give his right hand he gave his left. When the minister said, "Say this after me," he immediately remarked, "Say this after me," but when the words he was to repeat were given he was stolidly silent.

"At last," says the minister, "he saw that I was somewhat bothered by his extreme stupidity, so in the middle of the service he upset my gravity by volunteering the following apology: 'You see, sir, it's so long since I was married afore that you must excuse my forgetting of these things.'"—Cornhill Magazine.

$135,000,000 FOR THE NAVY

House Authorizes Construction of Two Big Battleships

A LONG AND HEATED DEBATE

Congressmen Have an Opportunity to Air Their Views on the Japanese Question—Advocates of Peace Much In Evidence In Opposition to Increase In Appropriation—Hepburn Sees a Possibility of War

Washington, Jan. 23.—Exactly as reported by the committee, the naval program for the fiscal year 1910 was adopted by the house of representatives and the naval appropriation bill was passed. The opponents of increase for the navy found themselves in a hopeless minority. The only vital alteration made in the measure was the elimination of the provision restoring marines to naval vessels.

The aggregate amount appropriated by the bill is $135,000,000. It authorizes the building of two battleships, which will probably be of 25,000 tons displacement or more.

The increase in the naval estimate gave rise to a long and heated debate, during which Chairman Tawney of the appropriation committee vigorously attacked the provision for increase. He said he did not believe it necessary for his country to add to its navy two of the greatest battleships simply to excel other nations.

Mr. Tawney spoke of the Japanese situation. "I am getting somewhat tired," he said, amid loud applause, "of these annually recurring wars with Japan which occur simultaneously with the consideration of the naval appropriation bill."

The two oceans, Tawney declared, were greater bulwarks of defense of the country than battleships. "There is no country that can strike effectively," he exclaimed, "with the fortifications we now have and with the navy we now have."

Touching on the finances of the government, Tawney predicted a deficit this year of $125,000,000 and one next year of $143,000,000.

Passion For Military Glory

The reason given by Tawney for opposing the additions to the navy, Mr. Hepburn declared, were "trivial and dishonorable to the people of the United States."

Those who favored an adequate navy, he said, did so because they recognized that the American people were a warlike people. Every generation of Americans, he argued, has had its war and probably the next generation would have its. There was, he insisted, passion for military glory in the breasts of all Americans.

Calling attention to what he said was the alarming increase in the national expenditures, Mr. Burton inquired: "What nation on earth is threatening us?" What the present congress should do, he contended, was to provide for the rational needs of the people "and not to guard against groundless fear or phantoms of the imagination."

Cockran's Views

The most radical views on the Japanese question heard in the house for some time were uttered by Mr. Cockran (N. Y.), who took issue with Hepburn regarding racial repulsion. "I believe," he declared, "it is impossible for that repulsion to change."

Discussing the conditions in the west, Cockran said: "You have, on the Pacific coast, two races, one of which won't acknowledge inferiority and the other won't acknowledge equality. That the alien race is growing in numbers some believe."

Everybody, Cockran said, could conceive that its growth meant danger to American peace. He speculated upon what might happen should the anti-Japanese feeling which, he said, was unconquerable, take the form that it did against the Italians in New Orleans.

"Do you think," he inquired, "the Japanese in Tokio would allow that to pass without reprisals on Americans in Japan? If you do," he added, "you never have visited that country." He spoke of the Japanese love of country.

Many others took part in the debate, which lasted several hours. Some criticism of the navy department was heard in connection with amounts proposed in connection with the appropriation for colliers. In the case of one of them $1,000,000 was fixed as the price, while the other four called for a cost of $900,000 each. An amendment was adopted fixing the limit of cost of each at $900,000.

DOCTOR SHOT IN ARM

Wounded by Own Weapon In an Encounter With a Stableman

Forbes pleaded not guilty.

According to Cavanaugh, the physician entered the stable office last evening and pointed a revolver at the stablekeeper's head. Cavanaugh says Forbes declared "I am going to fix you now, Mike."

The stableman jumped to his feet and grappled with the doctor, eventually overpowering him. In the struggle the revolver was discharged, the bullet passing through Forbes' left arm.

Cavanaugh said that he had had some trouble with Forbes regarding a horse. Forbes refused to make any statement.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

Most of us would be so glad if we could get all our friends to agree upon the question of what constitutes bad habits.

Some people are just naturally wise, and others are unnaturally so.

Trust your friends and stand by them, but keep your property in your wife's name.

If some men who earn their own living would be satisfied with just that a lot of idle loafers would have to get busy.

It doesn't take much to make a resolution, but the trouble comes in making it keep resolved.

Any one can make a prophecy, but it requires a good sidestepper to stand from under afterward.

There is no use regretting the past, and experience says there is little good taking heed for the future either.

Don't tell your troubles if you can help it and if you can't tell them to skiddoo.

There is nothing so hopeless as a bright young man. He is so self sufficient that there is no room on his horizon for anything but himself, and probably never will be.

Hurry Up Call.

Get busy, little Cupid!
Do business with your bow.
The man who makes statistics
Declares that you are slow.
Last year I hear that fewer
Results for you were claimed
Than in the years preceding.
You ought to be ashamed.

I'm told that you are guilty
Of loafing on the job;
That where in former cases
You caused a heart to throb
You have discarded methods
That one time were applied
And puzzle now concerning
The cash on either side.

You take a little maiden
Who should of guile be free
And ask her to consider
The money question. See?
You let man dodge the lady
And fend each friendly glance
Till he has made his fortune
Before he takes a chance.

You ought to mend your manners
And in the background shove
Such things as ready money
And deal once more in love.
You ought to cut out business
And play your storied part
To old romantic notions
That count on but the heart.

Equipped.

"I can make a chair and paint a house," boasted the practical, cultured girl.

"Good!" returned the young man who knew a good thing when he saw it. "I can make a bed and paint the town. Let's hitch up and make a go of it."

Utility.

"Heard her voice?"

"Yes."

"There is a fortune in it."

"What is she going to do—saw wood with it?"

Wondered.

"There are only 400 persons in New York society worth knowing."

"Does that include the poodle dogs or not?"

DID YOU EVER NOTICE—

That your perturbation is taken to mean deep sympathy and only draws upon you further outpourings that are the direct result of insufferable egotism and of sublimated self conceit?

That your desire to express your true feelings become unbearable, quite intolerable, and you determine to unburden your soul of all that it has concealed and be free?

That you don't do anything of the kind—when the friend of your bosom is some fifty pounds heavier than you are—but just gulp down your resentment and get more credit for doing the sympathy act?

That you never could understand why you were such a monumental weakling as to submit to be so used as a hysterical outlet and as a saccharine inlet of dope to the doomed?

Buried Treasure.

The death of James Norris of the village of Colville produced the first wave of excitement the place had experienced since the chimney of the Methodist church had burned out seven years previously. Mr. Norris was an old bachelor. He was a crank and a miser. It was sure that he had plenty to live on, and yet he lived alone and in squalor. He lent money where any one would pay him 10 per cent interest, and he was the owner of several pieces of real estate. Among them was an old cider mill. It was in the rear end of this that the old man had his residence. In the fall he ground apples and made cider for all who would buy, and this was his only work.

It had been talked over a hundred times by the villagers that Norris had his money buried where robbers could not get it and that in case he died suddenly his heirs, if any came forward, would have great trouble in finding it. This was a real cause of worry to many citizens. Some of them even went so far as to advise the old man to tell them the exact spot so as to save time in digging. When he refused to do so it was taken as another evidence of his meanness. On the morning that his death became known the village of Colville was as excited as if a circus had come to town. Now the disputed point as to how much he was worth and how much money he had buried would be known to all. There were some who would have gone hunting for that money right away had not the justice of the peace stepped in and taken charge.

Men came from a distance of fifty miles to help in that search. At one time the searchers numbered nearly a thousand, and so many strangers had to be lodged and fed that Colville took on a boom. The first thing was to search the old mill. Men fought each other as they crowded into it. Then the half acre of sterile soil around it must be explored, then the marsh and the piece of woods back of it. Most of the searchers gave up after a day or two, but some continued on for a fortnight. At the end, however, nothing had been found.

Five years passed, and then came the next brain storm. A tin peddler drove into the village to remain over Sunday. On Sunday afternoon he wandered down to the old mill to have a look at the ruins. A high wind on Saturday night had brought roof and frame to the earth. In "mousing" around his eye was caught by the flutter of a piece of paper, and an hour later the village was seething. The peddler was no hog. He had found a good thing, but was ready to divvy with the public. If he got $10,000 out of it the villagers might share the rest. That piece of paper was the key to the old miser's buried treasure. It must have been concealed in a hollow beam all the time. The writing on it ran as follows:

"Oct. 17th, 1888.—B one B of C today 7 p w of the b O T."

The town didn't think much of that peddler when he entered it. He was looked upon as just a common tin peddler who took paper, rags, sheepskins, old iron, beeswax, butter and eggs and such things in exchange for his tin pans and dippers. Before Sunday had passed, however, men were taking off their hats to him and wondering when he would be governor of the state. He was the only one that could make any sense of the paper, and he didn't give it away until after he had been invited to dinner by the justice. Then he read it off as:

"Buried one barrel of cash today seven paces west of the big oak tree."

It was evening when the puzzle was solved. Lanterns were lit and bonfires built and the seven paces paced off. They struck at a spot where there had been no digging, and the justice appointed ten men to guard the place for the night. In the morning the ruins would be searched for more papers. There must be others. When a miser begins to bury barrels of cash he does not stop at one. He goes right ahead and buries five or six in order to make the search after his death interesting.

Hasty breakfasts or none at all were eaten next morning, and then the ruins were searched. Not an inch of beam or board escaped scrutiny twice over. Nothing further was found except an old tobacco box, and that was empty. A groan of despair followed the conclusion of the search. The miserable old man had buried only one barrel of cash, after all, and the tin peddler was to have $10,000 out of that. Four men began to dig at seven paces due west of the big oak tree. The ground had settled down as hard as asphalt, but had it been cast iron they would have stuck to the job. There were 600 people in a circle about them when the shout of discovery went up. One of the picks had struck the barrel. There was a great rush, and it was a quarter of an hour before it could be cleared of dirt and lifted out. Then there were more cheers and more rushes. The barrel was up ended at last, and as the head was knocked in the price of real estate in Colville soared to the clouds. Next moment it fell with a thud like that of a brick house coming down. The "b of c" was a barrel of cider instead of a barrel of cash. The old man had buried it as an experiment to see what the taste would be years hence. Two minutes of awful suspense, half a dozen terrible yells in chorus, and then the peddler went flying for his life and the villagers called each other fools and went home.

"Councilmen should be paid a salary," says the Pittsburg Post. As a sort of compensation on the side?

A Southern State in considering a law compelling pistol toters to wear badges distinguishing them from ordinary citizens. We suggest convict stripes.

The Russian Douma has sent a congratulatory note to the Turkish Parliament. This should encourage the latter some, if not much.

A prominent Chinese government official says Yuan Shih Kai is not a real reformer at all-that he is merely a "make believer." This does not mean, though, that he has never been rated a great statesman at home.

The next belligerent Tenesseean who feels the approach of an irresistable desire to go "night riding" will do well, we think, to have his wife lock him securely in the barn until the desire blows over.

Charles Wagner he of the "simple Life" now has charge of a fashionable Paris Church with a big, fat salary attached. This is merely another evidence, we suppose, that the "simple life" may be made a mighty good thing.

The President did a somewhat remarkable riding stunt last week. He rode ninety-eight miles in seventeen hours, thus demonstrating, as was doubtless his purpose, that the officers of the Army and Navy whom he is requiring to ride ninety miles in three days, will not be under the imposition of a severe or impossible task. It must be remembered, however that the President is in training. He has ridden practically every day for seven years, to say nothing of other severe and regular exercise. It is a very different case with the stout and soft bon vivants of the club rooms who get into carriages, motors or street cars to ride three squares. However, the test is intended for just such effeminate unfitness. The intervals of peace—fortunately long in this country—are calculated to reduce officers both in the Army and Navy to a state of unfit loaferdom quite inconsistent with even the minor horrors of war.

Congressmen have various ways of getting back at the President in revenge for his discourteous insinuation that they were determined to be exempt from the espionage of the Government detective. It will be remembered that shortly before the convening of this session of Congress, the President issued an order discontinuing the service of marines on warships. This order was very unwelcome to the marines and their friends in Congress and inasmuch as it is now "everything to disoblige Roosevelt," there is a movement in Congress to reinstate the marine service. If the question were left to the most competent officers of the Navy, Congress would doubtless find the President sustained in his position. The admiral of the Atlantic fleet has cabled that the efficiency of the service has been improved since the marines were taken from the ships. The Pacific fleet admiral cables in substance the same information. The Captains of battleships and cruisers have expresed themselves as of the same mind. These officers, all in active service and cognizant of actual conditions, are such witnesses as would be accepted by any judicial body and their testimony is corroborated by Admiral Dewey, Rear Admirals Evans, Converse and Pillsbury and many other officers of wide sea-going experience. On the other hand the opinion that the marines should be reinstated in their old duties is shared by some officers of the Navy and many of the Marine Corps.

It is generally agreed that the character of seamen, or "blue jackets" as they are called, is now higher than ever before. The time is past when marines were necessary to keep turbulent jackies in subjection, afloat or ashore. During the now famous world cruise, the behavior of the American seaman has been beyond criticism. The squads of policemen sent ashore to prevent disorder were made up of sailors, not of marines, and they had little or no occasion to interfere with the action of their comrades. Reports from the fleet state that the sailors have made as good a police record as the marines have made on other occasions. It remains to be seen what action Congress will take in the case.

BELIEVES HOLD-UP INTENDED.

John Schatzel Given Bad Scare While Returning Home From Ball.

John Schatzel reported to the police early this morning that three men tried to hold him up on Hancock street near the Woodward Institute.

According to his story he was going home after the police ball when he noticed three men following him.

The thought seized him that they intended to hold him up. With him to think, was to act and he turned about and did the sprinting act to City Square, where he told his story to Officer Bishop.

The officer started back with him to investigate but could find nothing. The police were inclined to think that no hold-up was attempted, but that the parties in question were on their way home.

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St. Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE Young Men's Christian Association OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title—Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

HUGHES OUR NEXT PRESIDENT

Sentiment Expressed at New York Banquet In His Honor

IS APPROVED BY CARNEGIE

Governor Makes an Address In Which He Advocates Direct Nominations—Machines Control Nominations Under the Present System, Which Is Declared to Be In Direct Opposition to Representative Government

New York, Jan. 23.—Before an audience notable for the diversity of the political views and beliefs of those that composed it, Governor Hughes last night delivered a vigorous address, attacking machine politics and strongly advocating direct nominations.

The speech, which was delivered at the banquet of the Hughes alliance, was received with marked signs of approbation from Republicans and Democrats alike, the governor being repeatedly interrupted by cheers.

Also occupying seats at the guest table were President Schurman of Cornell university, Andrew Carnegie, former Governor Black, former Governor Morton, Frank H. Hitchcock, Bishop Greer, Senator Page, Benjamin F. Tracy and many other notable men. Governor Hughes said, among other things:

"We have found that to maintain representative government and to have principal executive officers who represent the people or legislators who represent their districts, we must have voters choose them directly.

"The problem with representative party government is to have a system by which the voters of the party shall have their say. Experience shows that under the present system the voters of the party, except there is some mighty upheaval, have very little to say, and when one or more get into control of the machinery they control the nominations and virtually appoint those who will stand as the party representatives. This is not representative government.

"Direct nominations are not subversive of representative government, but, as it seems to me, are essential to its maintenance.

"Granted the principle, we have simply the questions with regard to the machinery of its appplication, just as we have in the case of our general elections. Each state must work out its own salvation with proper regard to the history and distinctive character of its electoral methods."

Andrew Carnegie, who followed Hughes in the post prandial oratory, likened the guest of honor of the evening to George Washington and Abraham Lincoln.

"Governor Hughes," he said, "has rendered a signal service to the country by demonstrating that the common people can be trusted. Like Lincoln, he has been bold enough to act according to his convictions. He tells you what he thinks, regardless of whether or not his views coincide with those of his party. He is not a follower. He is a leader; a pioneer along untrodden paths. Mark the future of this man."

The ironmaster, at once taking up the suggestion, retorted: "That's right; say it again."

At once there was a chorus of "Hughes, our next president," with Carnegie beaming his approval and saying "that's it."

BIG EARTHQUAKE AREA

Many of the Stricken Towns and Villages Are Still Isolated

Rome, Jan. 23.—From official reports compiled here it appears that the places affected by the earthquake, including large and small towns and villages, number 184, with a population of over 1,000,000.

Notwithstanding the great efforts that have been made to relieve distress some villages are still isolated or their populations have fled to the country or mountain districts and are difficult to reach.

Boundary Treaty Goes Over

Washington, Jan. 23.—An effort was made in the senate to ratify the Canadian boundary waterways treaty, but upon objections from Senators Smith and Heyburn, who want to examine the treaty more fully, it went over until the next executive session.

HERRON MUST PAY THE DEATH PENALTY

Governor Fort Sees No Reason For Granting a Respite

Trenton, Jan. 23.—Dr. Thomas H. McKenzie, visiting physician at the New Jersey state prison, and Dr. H. B. Costell of this city, declare that in their judgment Archibald Herron, who has been sentenced to be executed next week, is insane. He was convicted of the murder of Rev. Samuel P. D. Prickett, justice of the peace of Meluchen, N. J.

Governor Fort refuses to grant a reprieve in Herron's case, holding that the plea of insanity has already been passed upon by the court of errors and appeals. The governor expressed himself quite earnestly with respect to pleas of insanity and "the unwritten law," and says that as long as he is governor these will not prevent electrocutions except when insanity is clearly established.

CHILD LABOR IN THE SENATE

Boys Under Fourteen Years of Age Are Working as Pages

Chicago, Jan. 23.—An assault on the child labor of the District of Columbia was a feature of Friday's session of the national child labor committee. Owen R. Lovejoy, secretary of the committee, led in criticisms of the law in the federal district.

"The United States senate," he declared, "has today a monopoly of child labor. In the senate there are boys working as pages for $75 a month who are only 12 years of age. There is no just cause for it."

Mr. Lovejoy's assertion that no child under 14, without exception, should be allowed to work, was applauded.

MANY DELEGATES WEPT

Miner's Convention Tenders Remarkable Ovation to John Mitchell

Indianapolis, Jan. 23.—When John Mitchell appeared on the stage at the convention of the United Mine Workers of America 1300 delegates went wild with enthusiasm. There was a storm of cheers and many of the delegates wept from emotion.

Mr. Mitchell, who was deeply moved, came forward and said: "I feel keenly sensitive to the reception you have given me this day. It would seem that at least in a miners' convention a former leader of laboring people loses none of his lustre because he is sentenced to jail."

THE HATTERS' STRIKE

Employers Take No Action Toward Reopening the Closed Factories

New York, Jan. 23.—For four hours the directors of the Associated Fur and Felt Hat Manufacturers wrestled with the problem confronting them in the strike of 18,000 men of the United Hatters of America, who quit work in the sixty factories owned by members of the employers' organization.

An effort at arbitration was made by Messrs. Reagan and McManus of the bureau of mediation and arbitration of the New York state department of labor, who offered their services to the manufacturers. Their proposal was laid on the table until the next meeting of the association as a whole.

It was expected that action would be taken towards re-opening the closed factories with non-union labor, but no such action was taken.

STATE HOUSE LETTER.

Boston, Jan. 20, 1909.

A further and probably successful effort is in progress to keep the legislative standard of morality up to a high point. The Senate has acted upon the initiative of President Treadway and has adopted a rule which will keep legislative counsel and agents from the Senate floor, the corridor adjoining, the reception room and the reading room. It is singular that the first person to protest against the rule, if the statement of observers is accurate, was Junius T. Auerbach, the counsel of the Boston American and one of the speakers before legislative committees in previous years in behalf of the rights of the people against the corporations. As the corporations have the most to lose by the new rule, and the people have the most to gain, it is not easy to see the consistency of the protest. The rule is good; it is necessary and it is only what the House has practiced ever since it moved into its new hall. It is made a matter of comment that, under the new rule, even William D. Chapple, who was the honored president of the Senate during the last two years, cannot get admission to the Senate chamber. But he can go in whenever any senator invites him in, just as any other member of the public can. The same rule has long been operative in the House and has caused no complaint, and it is not to be supposed that this government by a democracy proposes to establish an aristocratic class of former officeholders, exempt from the ordinary rules applying to citizens generally.

Another reform initiated by President Treadway is that whereby subcommittees, instead of whole committees, shall travel to visit institutions or other places for the benefit of the committee. Some House members kick at the prospect of this reduction of their privileges, but subcommittees would do all the business in many cases.

This week Saturday, at 5 P. M., is the closing minute for the introduction of new legislative business. Writing in the middle of the week, the prospect is good that the grist will not fall materially below that of the last year, which was at high water mark for any session, though but little more than for the year before. It is to be expected that there will be a large amount thrown into the hopper before Saturday night, for almost no labor measures have been presented, and those always make a material proportion of the petitions which the committees must hear. It will be noticed that Senator Dickinson of Hampden has presented his own bill to make good a gap between the fact and the right, as he sees it, in the case of striking labor unions. There was a court decision last fall that it was right for labor unions to order strikes, but that it was not right to enforce upon their members a strike order by the only compulsory means they possess, namely, a fine upon the disobedient members. His bill therefore provides that no injunction shall be issued against a union for imposing a fine upon a member if such action is in accord with an order of the union regularly adopted.

Several measures are pending in regard to the relations of the board of education and the new industrial commission, whose term expires this year, and it looks as if one of the sharpest struggles of the session would be over this matter. The aggressiveness seems to come from the industrial commission side. They seem to have been the most busy. One bill has been put in which favors them as against the board of education, offered by Senator Potter of Worcester,—and Milton P. Higgins of Worcester is on the industrial commission,—and the new specialty of industrial education promises to work havoc with the broader and more complex work of the board which has supervised the educational development of the state for over 70 years and is the oldest state board.

By their decision against the merger of steam and electric roads, the railroad commissioners have apparently precipitated a contest which will be as sharp as that of either of the last two sessions over the merger of the New Haven with the Boston and Maine. The commissioners condemn the proposition that the New Haven be allowed to consolidate with the Berkshire street railway company on the ground that the lines are competing and that sufficient capital can be had to develop the railway without having it absorbed by the railroad. The answer to that statement comes today in the assertion by President L. S. Storrs of the Berkshire that it is impossible for that company to raise the necessary capital to connect the Berkshire system with the western Massachusetts, which joins with the tracks in the Connecticut valley and so with eastern Massachusetts. All through Berkshire, for years, there has been popular favor for the New Haven in its management of the trolley lines, because it has been for the public more than the unaided electric capital could do. There is a direct issue between the judgment of the railroad commission and that of the business men of the western part of the state. Hence it is to be expected that the Berkshire men will try to persuade the Senate and House to go contrary to the decision of the railroad commissioners. The whole matter has a highly important bearing upon the relations of steam and electric roads in Massachusetts.

Chief Gettemy of the bureau of statistics of labor, last fall, came out strongly for more system in keeping the accounts of cities and towns. His report upon the cost of municipal government has attracted attention all over the country and seems destined to accomplish much good. There has been taken from the files of last year a petition of Harvey N. Shapard and others for a uniform system of accounts for cities and towns. This made quite an impression at the hearing last year, though it did not receive a favorable report. With the growing interest in municipal finance, with the tendency to run into city government by commissions, when such reforms as Chief Gettemy suggests would remove many evils, and with the general disposition on the part of city and town officials be decent and accommodating toward the new ideas, it is quite possible that something will come this year of the movement.

An anusual beginning is recorded regarding mortality in the House. On the day of organization there died Edwin W. Wall of Wilbraham, member-elect from the second Hampden district. At the end of last week there died Jeremiah F. McCarthy, member-elect from Charlestown, and a genial man whom every one here last year liked. His funeral was Monday forenoon, and among the members appointed by Speaker Walker to attend was Representative Duane of Waltham, but he telephoned on the morning of the funeral that he could not serve, as his wife had died that morning. It is a dark beginning for the session.

One of the proposed legislative reforms is that introduced by Representative Garcelon of Newton for an amendment to the House rules to prevent unauthorized pairing of members. This has been a serious evil, for absent members have been paired unknown to themselves, and on just the contrary side from that they would have voted on if they had been present. It is now proposed to receive no pairs unless they are authorized in writing by the absent member. The House committee on rules is considering the case. Some members may oppose it, but it is a reform likely to command a majority of the House.

Attorney General Malone's attack this afternoon, in his annual report, upon the New Haven railroad is likely to make one of the lively contests of the session, if the state and the railroad company are really to enter with their full strength against each other. Of course there is no doubt that the railroad must comply with state law when the law has been established, but it is a fair question whether the road may not try to get through the legislature a bill to legalize its present position. It looks as if the Attorney general were determined to have the scalp of the railroad at his belt before he is through with the case, while there is no doubt that the railroad will use every effort to retain its real advantage in present transportation service, whatever be its nominal position.

Adverse comment is made upon the report of the House committee on rules that no member shall be allowed to pair unless with a member who is absent upon committee business and has left written authority. There is a feeling in some quarters that a district has a right to be represented by its representative and that, if he is compelled to be absent for any reason and can arrange to make his vote effective, it is sound public policy for the pair to be permitted. The evil can be corrected without going to the extreme fixed in the rule.

A great deal of legislation is proposed for game, especially to permit shooting of deer, and to change the law about partridges, quail and koodcock. There is always a wrangling over these birds and somebody wants, every year, changes in the law. It looks as if something would be done to permit the killing of deer to some extent.

WHAT IS HEM-ROID?

A Tablet, Taken Internally, That Cures Piles.

Piles (hemorrhoids) are getting more common ever yday, because we live unnaturally, overeating, overworking, taking little exercise, gradually causing a deadening of veins and tissues in the lower bowel. Blood stagnation is the cause of piles, and a condition that can't be permanently cured with ointments.

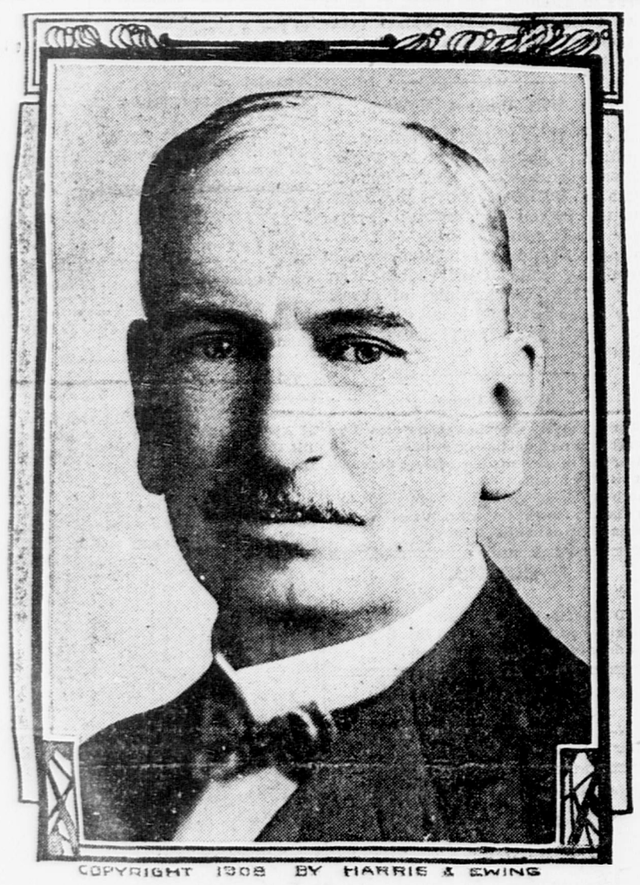
Victor In a Great Senatorial Battle

Theodore E. Burton, Ohio's Brainy New Senator, Who Does His Own Thinking, Is a Lover of Peace and Unpretentious—Expert on Rivers and Harbors—Scholarly Statesman Who Lives Much With Books.

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

UNCLE JOE CANNON once said of the newly elected senator from Ohio, "Burton is the ablest man in the house, but"—That tells the story from the stand pat, organization viewpoint, for Theodore E. Burton insists on doing his own thinking, is often an insurgent, opposes a big navy, ship subsidy and other things dear to the heart of a majority of his party, favors tariff revision, stands between the United States treasury and innumerable congressmen hungry for "pork" and knows more about rivers and harbors and some other things than any man in either branch of the congress and more on a few lines perhaps than all of them put together.

The ascendency of Theodore E. Burton is a case of the triumph of sheer intellect. He has no magnetism, little humor, but a bitter wit, is not a man of the people or a mixer, has no effusiveness in meeting men, denying their requests bluntly, is not a politician in the ordinary sense of the term, is angular and has the student's stoop, has no recreations, is unmarried and generally is about the furthest possible removed from the popular conception of the American public man. He is of the type of John Sherman, whose life he has written. His very friends accuse him of lacking vim. Yet this cold, unemotional man made in the image of a thinking machine, this man fresh from a defeat for mayor of Cleveland that would have obliterated a lesser figure, is the one who has just triumphed in a great senatorial battle over Joseph Benson Foraker with the Standard Oil at his back, over a brother of the president elect and over a strongly intrenched political machine. From all of which it is evident that the American people, and especially those of the president making state of Ohio, love brains.



COPYRIGHT 1908 BY HARRIS & EWING

THEODORE E. BURTON.

We have heard much of the student in politics, but if the term had never been invented it would have to be coined to describe Burton. With him the burning of midnight oil is not a virtue, but a habit. He is the sort of man who never speaks until he gains all possible information on his subject. In house debates he is sometimes worsted by the shifty politicians and tough and tumble wits, but Burton's strength comes from the fact that the other members have implicit faith in his knowledge and honesty.

No Pretender and Loves Peace.

Burton is incapable of posing. He cannot act a part for his own admiration. He cannot pretend, has no fads and cannot seem to like a man when he does not or to be amused when he is not. He is a simple, unassuming, unpretentious, studious, peace loving, progressive man who is touched by the humanities, who must go to the front by force of unadorned merit if at all. Burton is so sincere he cannot even pretend to believe in his party when he does not believe in it. For my simple self I must confess that he is of a type that makes infinite appeal to me. There is no fustian, swashbuckling, grand stand playing about him. Barnum once said that the American people like to be humbugged, and maybe they do, but I do not believe it. The coming to the front of a man like Burton proves that they like real statesmanship as well as the stage acting sort. The people are humbugged, God knows how shamefully, but they find it out sooner or later, and then they prove that they do not like it by the verdict they pass on the man guilty of the imposition. We need more sincere, unpretentious, independent, able Burtons in public life. They are the salt of the earth and outlive the windbags. That may be a mixing of metaphors, but everybody will understand what it means. We need more sincerity, more facts, more logic and more common sense. We have had enough posing, gallery playing, balderdash and plain bullconning to last for a thousand years. Give us more plain men who love peace and progress and mean what they say.

That is another thing I like about Burton—he stands for peace. Here is something of his on that line that is worth quoting:

"Nations," it has been truly said, "are now conquered not by armies, but by ideas." With the development of the human intellect, the increasing employment in intellectual pursuits and the growth of moral forces in every part of the world, war is becoming more and more a practice suitable only for barbarians. The Goths, the Vandals, the Scythians and the Huns have been swallowed up and fight no longer. Even religion has ceased to be a cause for bloodshed. The day of universal peace, therefore, white and not crimson, is drawing near.

There is no beating of tomtoms, no appeal to prejudice, no calling forth of the animal in man, about that. It does not come from a demagogue nor a jingo. It is in keeping with the best thought of the day. It rings true.

Courageous Without Bluster.

Yes, politics and partisanism aside, I like Burton, and I never saw him in my life. He has brains and honesty. He knows things. He is of the type that really loves his country and humanity. He will not pose before the crowd. He will not play the toady to gain favor. He has courage without bluster and is a reformer without being a common scold or blatherskite. He is a balanced, level headed sort. He may appear cold, because he is not gushy, but he does not lack sentiment or emotion, as was shown when acknowledging his election to the senate. We should have more of his kind in politics. Ohio has had many great senators, but if I properly size up the man Theodore E. Burton will measure with the best of them.

Frank and Independent.

When first elected to congress in 1888 he was a warm friend of William McKinley, doing some special research work for the then chairman of the ways and means committee. In 1892, however, Mr. Burton advised McKinley not to run for president, as it was a Democratic year, a prediction that proved true. For this frank advice he said the future president never entirely forgave him.

The second incident occurred after Burton had been in congress several years. He became disgusted with politics and quietly said to some of his friends that he intended to retire from public life. When Cleveland heard of that there was a popular wave. Burton had always received a large independent vote, but now there was a universal uprising regardless of party to urge him to remain in congress. The Democrats told him they would put no opposition candidate in the field and lived up to the pledge.

The third occurrence is of more recent date and is known of all men. When President Elect Taft offered the secretaryship of the treasury to Burton that gentleman stood by his guns and said he preferred to be senator. It took courage to do that, especially when there was danger of creating bad blood with a future administration of his own party.

The new Buckeye senator has shown the same sort of independence all through his career. Whenever there has been an insurrection in the house Burton was usually found at the head of it. He led the fight against the "senatorial machine" in Ohio, with both Foraker and Dick leagued against him. While he and President Roosevelt are warm friends, he did not hesitate to fight Roosevelt's pet plan for four battleships and to criticise the administration's proposal to buy Panama supplies abroad. It is plain that Theodore E. Burton not only has gray matter, but uses it for the purpose that God and nature intended. He is a party man, yet his conscience is in his own keeping.

One of Burton's most prominent characteristics is caution. He never takes a stand until sure of his ground. He is constructive, has nothing in common with the knocker or pessimist. On the matter of appropriations he is not an obstructionist, but there must be sound reason for expending public money before he favors it.

A Leader of the Bar.

Mr. Burton's middle name is Elijah, which may be the reason that he tries to conceal it. He comes from the Western Reserve, where the New England conscience is still in full force. He was born in 1851 in Jefferson, O., the home of Ben Wade and Joshua R. Giddings. In his modest congressional biography, consisting of eleven lines, Burton says he was educated at Grand River institute, Austinburg, O.; Iowa college, Grinnell, Ia., and at Oberlin college, Ohio, from which he graduated in 1872. He first started teaching, then studied law and began practice in Cleveland, where, after the usual vicissitudes and scant living of the young lawyer, he rose to be one of the leaders of the bar. He got into politics by being elected to the council, after which the young men insisted on his going to congress. He served one term, then was out for four years. There was a reason for his being out. The reason was Tom L. Johnson. In fact, the two defeats Burton has suffered were both at the hands of Johnson. It is a shame that two such good men should slash it into each other when there are so many mean men that need running out of politics.

In 1894 Burton went back to congress to stay. It was Tom Reed who picked him out for the rivers and harbors committee, where he has made life a burden to lobbyists and purveyors of "pork" ever since. Reed loved men with brains, and he saw signs of promise in the tall, angular, stoop shouldered member from Cleveland.

Two of Senator Burton's most conspicuous services in public life, outside of being led up as a lamb for the sacrifice in the mayoralty election of his own city, were his great speech for the Panama canal, in which he convinced congress of the advisability of the lock instead of the sea level type, and his speech nominating William H. Taft for president in the last Republican national convention. In the past few months he has not only declined the treasury portfolio in the Taft cabinet, but was the most prominently mentioned candidate for speaker outside of Cannon, which talk he stopped as soon as it came to his ears.

Lives Much With Books.

In appearance Burton is nearly six feet tall, wears clothes that do not fit too well, has a close cropped gray mustache, a contemplative gray eye, a high forehead, sparse brown hair, a grave, almost taciturn demeanor and a smile that is rare enough to be appreciated when it comes. He lives much with books, having all his rooms at Washington filled with them, even to the gas range and pantry shelves in the kitchen. He sometimes drives in the park for his health, but his few leisure hours are usually devoted to reading French literature and English poetry. He takes an occasional trip to Europe, which he spends in studying the rivers and harbors of the old world. Outside of his life of Sherman, Senator Burton has written a book on financial panics which is an authority.

It was thought that Burton never told a story in his life, but one has recently come to light, the only one in his eighteen years in congress. A delegation one day waited on him, asking for some waterway improvement and insisting on making an argument.

Mr. Burton said it was of no use; that he was opposed to the project and so was the committee.

"That's a brutal way of putting it, Mr. Burton," said the chairman of the delegation.

"Perhaps," said Mr. Burton, and the delegation left. To a friend Mr. Burton told his single funny story.

"I might have been brutal to that delegation, but that doesn't prove anything. A man named Einstein once borrowed $1,000 from a friend named Solomon on the plea of personal friendship. Two days later he made an assignment and neglected to put Solomon in the list of preferred creditors. This angered Solomon, and he upbraided Einstein for it.

"'Well,' said Einstein, 'that doesn't prove anything. I put those fellows in that preferred list and left you out because you are my friend. They think they are going to get the money, but you know you ain't.'"

YOU COULD See This CITY GROW

If Your Dollar Circulated in Quincy.

Why Do Country Boys Flock to Big Cities?

Most small towns are short of young men. As a rule there are plenty of agreeable girls who would not object to matrimony; there are plenty of old people and enough babies to go around. But the boy—oh, where is he?

The boy, the young man, has gone to the city, where he imagines there are opportunities. To him the old home town is dull and stupid. He sees no future for himself there. Both for social and financial considerations he rushes off to the great city. Very frequently he finds that he is lonesomer there than at home—nearly always so; and even more frequently he finds that riches do not grow on ten story walls.

BUT STILL HE GOES TO THE CITY.

In going there the boy simply follows his daddy's dollars. For years his daddy and his mother and his big sister and his Aunt Mary Ann have been mailing their money to the big city for Mail Order bargains.

Result: Home merchants don't thrive, grass grows in the streets, no jobs are to be had, no opening for a new business, and the young man goes to the city because it is a place where people have traded at home and built up their own community and provided opportunities for outsiders as well as for themselves.

IF YOU WANT TO KEEP YOUR BOY AT HOME BUILD UP YOUR TOWN SO THAT HE CAN BUILD UP HIS CAREER AMONG HIS HOME FOLKS.

AN ARAB SURGEON.

His Own Story of a Wonderful Operation He Performed.

Mr. Walter B. Harris in his account of a journey to Tafilet tells the story of a wonderful operation in surgery as it was reported to him by a native doctor who was traveling in his company:

"I think the old man fancied that I doubted his skill. At least, he was always holding forth upon the subject and continually repeating the story that when in Algeria he had been offered a fabulous salary—the sum varied each time the tale was told—to remain in charge of the military hospital at Algiers, an honor which he had declined.

"He never tired of narrating the facts and details of his most successful operation. There is a sect in Morocco called Hamacha, who are followers of a certain saint buried near Mekinez. These devotees amuse their audience—and themselves, too, let us hope—by throwing into the air heavy cannon balls, which they allow to fall upon their shaven crowns. On the occasion in question a Hamdushi had unfortunately been wanting in religious power, for the cannon ball crushed his skull.

"My old shereef friend had been called to the rescue. According to his account, he removed the broken patch of skull, replacing it with the rind of a green pumpkin, and closed the skin over it. In a month's time, he said, the patient was not only convalescent, but was once more hard at work practicing his religio-acrobatic feats, with not only a remodeled and renovated skull, but even a new crop of hair."

THE SILVER FOX.

He Is a Glorified Freak of the Red Fox Breed.

Only those wise in the woodlore of the north can fully know the magic in the name silver fox. The silver fox is not of different kind, but a glorified freak of the red race. His parents may have been the commonest kind of red foxes, yet nature in extravagant mood may have showered all her gifts on this favored one of the offspring and not only clad him in a marvelous coat, but gifted him with speed and wind and brains above his kind to guard his perilous wealth. And need he has of all such power, for this exquisite robe is so mellow rich, so wonderful in style, with its gloss black and delicate frosting, that it is the most desirable, the most precious of all furs, worth many times its weight in gold, the noblest peltry known to man. It is the proper robe of kings, the appanage of great imperial thrones today, as was the tyrian purple in the days of Rome. This is indeed the hunter's highest prize, but so guarded by the cunning brain and the wind and limb of the beast himself that it is through rare good luck more than hunter skill that a few of these fur jewels are taken each year in the woods.

There are degrees of rank among these patricians. They range in quality even as diamonds range, and the hunters have a jargon of their own to express all shades between the cross and the finest silver black.—Ernest Thompson Seton in Century Magazine.

Influence of Food.

"What do you think of the theory that food has a potent influence in determining character?" asked Mr. Smithfield as he put three lumps of sugar in his coffee.

"I guess it's all right," replied Mr. Wood as he severed a portion of his beefsteak. "It always seems a little cannibalistic to me when you order lobster."

"Well," retorted Mr. Smithfield good humoredly, "I ought to have known it was dangerous to lend you money after I discovered your fondness for beets. But, seriously, if there were anything in the theory, wouldn't it make a man sheepish to eat mutton?"

"It would, and prize fighters ought to restrict themselves to a diet of scraps."

All In the Mind.

On the opening day of one winter session the late Professor Tait of Edinburgh university entered the natural philosophy class room in the midst of the uproarious applause common to those occasions.

Presently he looked up at the tumultuous benches above him with the smile of one who had known the ways of students for a lifetime. At last, when a momentary lull came, he remarked, his gray eyes twinkling:

"Gentlemen, I must remind you that there is really no such thing as noise. It is merely a matter of subjective impression."

No Flies on Him.

Two Irishmen, just landed, stopped at a private boarding house on one hot July night. Retiring early, they left the window open and the light burning brightly. The mosquitoes swarmed into the room and began biting.

Mike, awakening, called to Pat to put out the light. Pat got up and put it out and crawled back to bed again.

Pat awoke about an hour later and found the room full of fireflies and said: "It's no use, Mike. They are coming in with lanterns!"

Pleasure Trips.

"Going to the north pole is no pleasure trip," said the sympathetic friend.

"Well," answered the arctic explorer, "it reminds me somewhat of the average pleasure trip. Everybody is so anxious to start and so glad to get home."—Washington Star.

They never taste who always drink. They always talk who never think.—Prior.

AMUSEMENTS.

Castle Square Theatre.

Week follows week at the Castle Square, and "The Circus Girl" is still the same triumphant success. Mr. Craig, in view of the tremendous demand for seats, which shows not the slightest sign of lessening, will give this popular musical comedy as long as the public demands it, and that means at least another week beginning next Monday afternoon. Its great success is unprecendented, and standing room only has been the cry for performances after performances. It should be remembered that "The Circus Girl" is given every afternoon and evening of every day in the week, and that for ladies and children the matinees are especially attractive. When the coming week is over "The Circus Girl" will have no less than sixty-five consecutive performances at the Castle Square Theatre.

Colonial Theatre.

The most extraordinary attraction of the year, Klaw & Erlanger's great musical comedy "Little Nemo" will be seen in Boston at the Colonial theatre beginning Monday night, Jan. 25, the engagement being limited to five short weeks, with matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays. This big production, has been the sensation of the year in New York, where it has just completed a long run. "Little Nemo" is in three acts and twelve scenes, and it is the biggest musical comedy that has ever been presented in the world. It takes over 200 performances to play it, and there are over 75 men behind the scenes to handle the wonderful spectacular features. The vast array of beautiful, shapely young women wear over 1000 costumes in the spectacle, which is described as the most remarkable that has ever been offered on any stage. The greatest of American composers, Victor Herbert, composed the music, and the book was written by the well known librettist, Harry B. Smith. No one should miss seeing this wonderful production, which eclipses all others, and which cost over $100,000 to stage.

Keith's Theatre.

The most important vaudeville announcement comes from Keith's theatre this week, the return of McIntyre and Heath, after a number of years starring in "The Ham Tree." There has probably never been two men who have won wider popularity in vaudeville than these two black face comedians and their "Georgia Minstrels" has truly become a classic. Before they went on the legitimate stage the annual visits of McIntyre and Heath to Keith's theatre were of the same nature as the return of "The Old Homestead," "Way Down East" and such plays in other houses. Thousands of people have seen the "Georgia Minstrels," innumerable times and will continue to see them as long as they are on the stage. After an absence of several years this week will certainly be an eventful one at Keith's. They will appear on one of those splendid bills that have become characteristic of the house this season. Then there will be Claude and Fannie Usher in their bright sketch. "Fagin's Decision," which introduces his Majesty SpareRibs. J. I. McCloskey, the great American tenor, is also on the bill. Others are Jimmie Lucas, the comedian; Wilbur Mack & Co. in a sketch, the Wheelers; the Damm Brothers; the 3 DuBall Brothers and others equally well known.

Orpheum Theatre.

The London Music Hall Policy will be inaugurated at the Orpheum theatre next Monday, January 25th, with an all star bill of fourteen head-line acts which will be unquestionably the fastest and strongest bill ever presented in Boston. The great French pantominist, Severin, will top the bill, although there are at least half-dozen other acts that might appropriately be selected for the same position. Severin has been pronounced by New York critics as the vaudeville sensation of the decade. What Bernhardt is to tradegy and Cocuelin is to comedy, Severin is to pantomime. He holds the stage for about fifty minutes with never a word spoken during his entire act and the audience invariably grip their seats with intense excitement. R. G. Knowles, the international comedian, will appear fresh from his European triumph. Owing to the great length of the program, all waits will be eliminated and encores will be done away with. The performance will start promptly at 1.30 in the afternoon and will continue until 5 o'clock and at 7.30 in the evening and will continue until 11 o'clock. Nothing better than this entertainment could be obtained for ten times the money.

VARIETY STORE ENTERED.

Burglars Get Away with Quantity of Loot.

The parties gained entrance through a basement window and then cut through a panel in the door leading to the store. They carried off a quantity of cigars, tobacco and candy, and about $2.50 in change.

JUVENILE COURTS.

The women of Louisianna have worked for the last six years to secure a law providing for juvenile courts. The women of the Era club in New Orleans raised the money to pay a probation officer, and several of their members did probation work as volunteers, giving an object lesson in the value of this method of dealing with the young. The State Federation of Women's clubs besieged the Legislature, and at last an excellent juvenile court law was passed, which has just gone into operation. The juvenile court in New Orleans was opened the other day with elaborate ceremonies and great rejoicing, but no woman was asked to speak, and not one of the lawyers and clergymen who were the orators of the day said a word about the work of the women, by which the result had been made possible.

At New Orleans women, headed by Miss Jean Gordon, Louisiana's woman factory inspector, have filled several columns of the Times Democrat with letters of protest. One of them describes the long and hard campaign that the women made to secure this court. She adds: "Yet, when the result of the work crystallized into a reality, where are the women? A judge elected without the women having the right to say yea or nay; probation officers and clerks chosen largely through the influence of practical politicians, and no woman's influence considered worth a row of pins in the choice of who shall handle the children. There is no forgetfulness, however, when the time arrives to levy the tax upon women's property to pay the cost of such a court. That is the time we share equal rights with men."

The women do not altogether approve of the judge who has been chosen, and they propose to take turns in attending the court, so as to have a committee of two women present every day to watch his dealings with the children.

NEIGHBORS FIND CHILD ENVELOPED IN FLAMES

Little Frances Coffin Fatally Burned While Keeping House For Mother

Frances Louise, the 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Coffin, was fatally burned this morning at her home, 120 Quincy avenue.

About 8 o'clock Mrs. Coffin started out to do an errand, leaving her 5-year-old daughter alone in the kitchen.

Shortly after Mrs. Wren, who lives in the other side of the house, detected a strong odor of smoke and thinking smething was wrong, ran around to the Coffin house to see what the trouble was.

As she entered the house, she was horrified to see the little girl on the kitchen floor inveloped in flames.

Uttering a piercing scream she grabbed a blanket and wrapping it about the child rushed out doors with it.

Once out doors she placed the child on the ground and endeavored to extinguish the flames. John Lyons, a neighbor, heard the screams and ran to her assistance.

They succeeded in extinguishing the flames, but not before the child had been terribly burned about the face and body.

Mrs. Wren was also severely burned about the hands. Meanwhile other neighbors had arrived and succeeded in putting out the fire in the house.

Dr. Sheahan was called and immediately ordered the child removed to the City hospital.

But little hopes were entertained of saving the child's life and at 11 o'clock word was received that the little girl was dying.

The mother was completely prostrated when she arrived home and learned what had happened and she is now under the doctor's care.

Word was sent to the Fore River and Mr. Coffin notified. He was also almost overcome. To a Ledger reporter he said he could hardly realize that his little daughter was dying. This was the only child he had, two others having been buried.

No one seems to know just how the accident happened as the child was alone at the time. It is thought, however, that she must have been playing with matches, or it may have been that she got too near the stove in her play and her clothing ignited.

IN MEMORIAM.

Members of the Massachusetts Press association and ladies assembled at the United States hotel, Boston on Jan. 18th for their annual reunion and banquet. During the post prandial exercises as a tribute to the memories of James E. Carey, Hugh H. McQuillen and George W. Prescott, members who died during the year 1908, the historian, Charles C. Doten of Plymouth read a memorial poem. The trio played "Auld Lang Syne" as a response, the company rising.

IN MEMORIAM.
Brothers Carey, McQuillen and Prescott

No more the moving fingers writes,
Nor traces thought on life's clear page;
No more the busy brain indites
The words which speak to youth and age,
With us these wrought in selfsame fields,
And clasped with us the friendly hand
Of fellowship, that ever yields
Fraternal love, broad as our land.
A homely life, well lived, was theirs,
With friends and neighbors of the town;
Contented they with common cares,
Nor sought distinction or renown.
These are the ones that we have known,
Of cleanly mind and kindly deed;
No seed of ill by them was sown,
No cause of good e'er stood in need.
No thought expressed with passion's pen,
No sentence writ with ink of gall;
A spirit of good-will to men,
Duty well done, and—that was all!
And yet, what other aim as best
Shall we select in life's great plan?
"Ben Adhem's name led all the rest"
Because he loved his fellow man.
Oh! wonderous art, which lasts for time,
That of our lives a record leaves,
As week by week and line on line,
We yield the grain for harvest sheaves.
So shall you keep the memories bright
Of those we love, who loose our hands
To swing the sunset door, for light
Which beams on them from fairer lands.

SURPRISE BY DORCAS SOCIETY

Thirty members of the Dorcas society of the Quincy Universalist church, journeyed to North Weymouth Thursday evening. Their destination was the home of Mrs. Gus White; their object to surprise her. The latter was without doubt a complete success. They each carried mysterious packages which upon being opened were found to contain everything in the way of good things to make the evenings enjoyment complete. During the evening the president of the Dorcas, Mrs. Cora Carmen, in behalf of the members presented Mrs. White, with a beautiful jeweled pin. Mrs. White was unable to respond in a very fitting manner, but succeeded through the kinds efforts of Mr. Harry Holton to make the guests realize that she more than appreciated their thoughtfulness. After an evening of games and music, they departed for Quincy. Mr. and Mrs. White were formerly residents of Quincy.

—Mrs. Nora Stanton De Forest, the granddaughter of Elizabeth Cady Stanton, is building a factory at Newark N. J., for the manufacture of electric condensers. She is a graduate of Cornell and has been studying electricity ever since her marriage.

WANTS WOLLASTON CHANNEL DEEPENED

Com. Dawes Petitions Legislature For Appropriatiom

Commodore Frank E. Dawes of the Wollaston Yacht club has petitioned the legislature for an appropriation of $7,500 to deepen the channel at Wollaston beach.

The legislature of 1908 passed a bill appropriating $7,500 to be expended by the Harbor and Land Commissioners in deepening this channel. The bill provided that the channel should be widened to a certain depth.

The commissioners however, found that the appropriation was not sufficient to do the work required by the bill.

—This report that there are five other large shoe manufacturers of Brockton who are contemplating leaving that city soon to follow the example of W. L. Douglas Co., only illustrates the extent of the deep dissatisfaction which prevails in that city at the domination of the Labor Unions in the trade. Anyone who talks with the manufacturers knows how intolerable the conditions have become and that this movement has become so serious and widespread is the consequence. The game of "killing the goose that lays the golden egg" may be rare and exciting sport but when golden eggs become scarce in consequence the result hits the whole community just as hard as it does the ones that played the game.—Stoughton Sentinel.

—Special stamps are to be issued by order of Congress commemorating the one-hundredth anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. The design comprises the portrait of Lincoln in an eclipse, the only decoration being a spray of laurel leaves and the inscription "U. S.Postage" in a straight line at the top of the stamp, with the numerals "1809-Feb. 12-1909" at the bottom. The color design will be red, as with the present two-cent stamp. The profile was taken from a copy of St. Gauden's statue of Lincoln on Riverside drive in Chicago.

FACES CHARGE OF GRAND JURY

Trial of Literary Agent Brandenburg Begun

New York, Jan. 25.—In the criminal branch of the supreme court the trial of Broughton Brandenburg, the literary agent accused of grand larceny in the second degree in connection with the sale to the New York Times of a political article purporting to be written by Grover Cleveland, was begun.

BROUGHTON BRANDENBURG.

"It is a very simple case," said District Attorney Jerome. "There is no doubt in my mind as to this defendant's guilt. I have had a chemical analysis made of the ink used in the signing of the article, and it is entirely different from the ink used by the late president and differs from that used in his home. The paper is also different."

"If Mr. Jerome relies only on the facts already adduced," said S. B. Thomas, counsel for Brandenburg, "I doubt seriously if he will ever get his case to the jury. As to his statement that the ink used in the Cleveland home, if that is true it does not prove anything, for Mr. Cleveland signed the article in his office, not at home."

Benzoate of Soda Not Harmful as Food Preservative, Say Experts

Washington, Jan. 25.—That benzoate of soda used as a food preservative is not injurious to health is the judgment of the referee board of consulting experts. This conclusion, which has been approved by Secretary Wilson, reverses the findings of Dr. H. W. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry.

The main general conclusions reached by the referee board are as follows:

First—Sodium benzoate in small doses (under 0.5 grams per day) mixed with the food is without deleterious or poisonous action and is not injurious to health.

Second—Sodium benzoate in large doses (up to 4 grams per day) mixed with the food has not been found to exert any deleterious effect on the general health, nor to act as a poison in the general acceptance of the term.

Third—The admixture of sodium benzoate with food in small or large doses has not been found to injuriously affect or impair the quality or value of such food.

DOUBLE DROWNING BARELY AVERTED

Man on Horseback Rescues Boys From Neponset River

William Murphy an Atlantic boy had a narrow escape from drowning in the Neponset river Saturday afternoon.

The boy in company with William Kerrigan and Benjamin Rowell were running ice cakes on the river when the cake upon which the Murphy boy stood was carried out into the river by the current.

The other two boys did not notice the danger until the ice broke throwing him into the water. Then they shouted to the boy's brother Joseph who was not far away.

He secured a boat and succeeded in getting within twenty yards of his brother who was keeping himself afloat by holding onto the cake of ice.

Joseph finding himself unable to reach his brother in the boat jumped onto another cake of ice and attempted to draw him out of the water when this cake broke throwing both boys into the water.

Joseph managed to swim back to the boat however and pull his brother out but was so benumbed by the cold that he was unable to row ashore.

The cries of the boys had attracted the attention of W. L. Buckley who drove to the shore and jumping onto his horse's back drove into the water far enough to cast a rope to the boat which the older boy held onto and they were then drawn to the land.

Is the Congressional season to end with a fight or a frolic?

No free governm nt can survive a people's indolent sense of political duty. No truly republican form of government can be perpetuated is resisting upon a sleepy public conscience—or a decadent sense of individual duty and consequent responsibility at the ballot box.

Press dispatches Saturday, report Congressman O'Connell of the 10th District of which Quincy is a part, as voting against the appropriation for new battleships. According to the despatches he opposed the bill for two battleships, but favored the amendment for one ship. These appropriations no doubt would mean work for the Fore River shipyard and it is not understood why Congressman O'Connell votes against the measures which would mean continued employment for many of his constituents in Quincy.

Now that the Council has under consideration a motion placing the police department on a Metropolitan basis, the suggestion comes from many sources that the day patrolmen in the outlaying district should be mounted, especially those who cover Wollaston, Atlantic and Quincy Point where long beats have to be covered. Undoubtedly one mounted patrolman can easily cover as much territory as two, and possibly three men on foot. Boston makes liberal use of mounted men in all of its suburbs. They have been found to be like cavalvary, so mobile that in recent years Boston has rapidly increased their numbers, so that today when mustered in one troop they make a formidable appearing squadron of cavalvary. For suburban work, especially in residential districts and over sparsely settled territories, the rapidity in which they can be shifted from one point to another, makes them unexcelled for this class of work. It is hoped that the Council will take the matter under consideration, of making whatever increase to the police force is necessary mounted instead of the comparatively slow moving man on foot. It is more in keeping with modern methods of police administration.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

During the campaign of last fall there were promises made on the stump that owing to unusual conditions in the state the state tax was large and that this year would see a relief for the people in this direction. Yet here is Auditor Turner in his annual report warning the legislature that unless there is a great deal of care the tax of this year will exceed that of last, which was $5,500,000. That is a warning that should not have to be repeated. In every city and town in the state there was an additional burden upon the tax payer in 1907 owing to the increased state tax. It ought not to be repeated.—Gloucester Times.

REPUBLIC IS BEYOND RECOVERY

Big Steamer Sinks Off No Man's Land

A LOSS OF $1,700,000

Safe Transfer of 2500 Persons Considered Marvelous

BUT SIX VICTIMS OF WRECK

Great Heroism Is Displaved In the Work of Rescue

New York, Jan. 25.—The palatian ocean steamshrip Republic, of the White Star line, which was in collision with the Italian liner Florida in a fog Saturday morning off Nantucket, Mass., went down at last at 8:30 o'clock last night. No one was lost. Her passengers, taken off many hours before, are on the steamship Baltic, making for this port.

The Republic was in tow of the revenue cutter Gresham and the derelict destroyer Seneca, proceeding to New York when she foundered. On board her was her commander, Captain Sealby, with a volunteer detail of fifty of her crew. She had been towed but a short distance when she began to settle rapidly. Seeing no hope of saving the ship Captain Sealby gave the order "Abandon ship" and the crew was taken off by the Gresham, which cast loose from the crippled liner and stood by until she sunk.

The Gresham and the Seneca then headed for the Massachusetts coast and landed Captain Sealby and his brave crew at Gay Head, Mass., this morning.

Sunk Off No Man's Land

The Republic went down, according to brief wireless messages received here, off No Man's Land, a small island south of Martha's Vineyard Island, off the Massachusetts coast.

The Italian liner Florida, which ran into the Republic and gave her her death blow, is slowly steaming towards New York, convoyed by the American liner New York. Her passengers also are on the Baltic, having been transferred along with those of the Republic.

The White Star liner Baltic, which was called by wireless telegraph to the aid of the Republic and transferred from the Florida not only her own 900 and more passengers, but the 422 passengers and part of the crew of the Republic, is nearing the harbor of New York.

This, in brief, is the situation in the stirring marine accident, following the first wireless message about the collision of the two big ships in the early dawn of Saturday morning. For thirty-six hours the suspense of the public was unallayed, for almost every hour since the first news of the mishap came from the Republic's wireless operator has brought conflicting reports from several points tending to confuse the situation.

Loss of Six Lives

That there was loss of life attending the collision was not known until early Sunday morning. Then the wireless, which has had its first great trial and proved its utility in this accident, brought the information that Mrs. Eugene Lynch of Boston and W. J. Mooney, a banker, of Langdon, N. D., had been killed, and Mrs. M. Murphy of Grand Forks, N. D., and Eugene Lynch of Boston were injured. Besides these fatalities among the passengers on the Republic, it was reported that four members of the Florida's crew had met death. The bodies of the dead and the injured persons were transrerred to the Baltic.

Never before in the annals of sea lore, so far as known here, have so many persons been transferred on the high seas as in this case. Seven hundred persons, in round numbers, were transferred from the Republic to the Florida, and then 1650 from the last named vessel to the Baltic. That this transfer of nearly 2500 persons was effected without the loss of a single life is considered a marvelous performance, though the fortunate occurrence of a placid sea and mild, almost spring-like weather, was an important factor in this important work.

The boats of the Baltic, aided by a great searchlight giving out its strongest rays, worked for nearly twelve hours in transferring the 1650 passengers. They began their work at 11:40 Saturday night and finished the task at 10 o'clock Sunday night.

Ship Valued at $1,500,000

The steamer Republic, which eventually foundered in spite of the brave fight made by Captain Sealby to save his ship, was valued at $1,500,000, the cargo perhaps $100,000, and the baggage and valuables of the passengers as much more.

The work of the revenue cutters and the derelict destroyer Seneca, of the navy department, is coming in for high praise among marine men here. The cutters Gresham, Acushnet and Mohawk, the last named of which came to grief by grounding on the Massachusetts coast, and the Seneca, left their moorings when the cry for aid came and ventured to sea in the face of dense fog on the mission of rescue. Owners of ocean tugs in several Atlantic coast ports refused to permit their vessels to go to sea in the fog, although importuned by the White Star agents to do so.

The Republic is sunk in 150 feet of water off No Man's Land and is gone forever. Efforts to raise her from this depth would be useless.

As a result of the news that two passengers were killed and two injured, and their identity established, the White Star officials were enabled to figure just where the Republic was struck. Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Lynch of Boston occupied stateroom No. 34 on the port side of the saloon deck, just aft of midships; Mr. and Mrs. Mooney the adjoining stateroom, No. 32, and Mr. and Mrs. Murphy stateroom No. 28. That the killed and injured were all in this group of persons showed that the Republic had been struck by the Florida on the port or left hand side and would seem to indicate that the Florida, which had strayed in the fog some thirty miles from her regular course, was crossing the path of the outward bound steamers in an endeavor to reach the inward-bound lane.

Details of the Disaster

Details of the collision at sea in the dense fog came fitfully by wireless from many receiving stations along the New England coast line.

The story, though it was brief, told how the passengers of the Republic and the Florida spent anxious and uncomfortable hours after the collision, and did not feel secure until 8 o'clock Sunday morning, when all were on the Baltic.

After the transfer of passengers from the Republic to the Florida, which had no accommodations for the 400 and more additions to her already heavy burden of humanity, Captain Voltolin of the Italian ship stood by until further help arrived.

An examination of the Florida showed that her cutwater and bow were crumpled up as if she had run into a stone wall and that her two forward compartments were filled with water. She showed no signs of sinking, though she was slightly down by the head. It was deemed best, therefore, to transfer not only the Republic's passengers but all those on board the Florida as well.

Captain Voltolin of the Florida believed his progress to New York would be slow, and there were insufficient accommodations and supplies for so many passengers.

Shortly after midnight the tremendous task of transferring over a thousand souls to a place of safety was begun. No such task has ever before confronted herioc sailors.

The transfer had to be made in the small lifeboats of the big liners. For the male passengers, groping a way down the side of the steamship Florida, standing high out of the sea, was a difficult task; for the women and children it was one filled with dread and the possibilities of death and accident.

Went Through Day of Terror

The women and children had had a day complete with terrors. They had participated in a series of calamities that are seldom encountered without great loss of life. Hundreds of them, including the crew, had already undergone the trials and dangers of one trip in small boats, when they were transferred from the sinking Republic to the battered Florida. Now they must endure the perils all over again, with the additional hardships and danger and uncertainty of a gloomy night so black and menacing that they were surrounded with impenetrable darkness.

The discipline and manliness of the sailors on the Italian Florida and the cheerfulness and pluck of the English tars buoyed up the mothers with babes in arms and chidren clinging to their skirts.

All the women and children were lowered to the boats by life lines and then pulled up the towering sides of the great steamship Baltic in the same way.

End of the Republic

While the transfer of passengers was being made, the Republic drifted out of sight into the murky darkness. Her captain would not leave his ship. With a boat's crew, he kept alongside the settling Republic all night long. The revenue cutter Gresham came to tow the damaged steamship with the idea of taking her into shallow waters and handing her over to the wreckers in the hopes of saving her. Captain Sealby and volunteer crew boarded the steamship.

With the Gresham towing and the Anchor line steamship Furnessia as convoy, the attempt to bring her to safety was begun. She had progressed about fifty miles towards Martha's Vineyard when a storm of wind, sleet and hail, with a heavy gale and battering seas, burst upon the wounded vessel and her heroic crew as if enraged at the attempt to rob the sea of its prey. The fight was too much for the big liner.

Others of her bulkheads gave way and at a point off No Man's Land she sank. Before going down the captain and crew were transferred to the Gresham.

WEYMOUTH.

A very pretty wedding took place Saturday evening at the residence of Mrs. David Blanchard on Highland Place when her daughter Miss Daisy Blanchard was united in marriage to Thomas V. Nash. The parlors were prettily trimed with ferns, flowers and potted plants and the couple stood under a large floral bell while the ceremony was performed by Rev. L. W. Attwood pastor of the second Universalist church.

The bride was attended by her niece Miss Beth Allen and the groom's brother Arthur Nash was best man. The bride was charmingly attired in a costume of white mousseline and carried a bouguet of brides roses and the bridesmaid's costume was white over pink silk and she carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. The ceremony was witnessed by the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. A reception followed the ceremony. The couple were the recipients of many handsome and costly gifts.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Nash are very popular. Mr. Nash is chairman of the Weymouth school board, manager of the Dewey base ball club and night superintendent of the Essex Postal station, Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Nash left on a late train on their wedding trip, and on their return will reside on Highland place.

The residence of Mrs. Thomas Nash corner of West and Front streets, was nearly destroyed by fire Friday night. A large hall lamp exploded and for a time a lively blaze was in progress. Several rugs, and carpet were destroyed and the wood work and ceilings were damaged by smoke and water. Only the quick discovery of the fire saved the house which is a large two and half story dwelling from destruction.

Miss Emma Huntress an elderly lady and daughter of the late Martin Huntress of North Weymouth and her sister Mrs. Mary Bacon of Phillipstown, Mass, will soon come into an estate valued at nearly $100,000 and the strange thing about it is they never had the remotest idea of coming into possession of any portion of the estate. Miss Huntress who is at present a resident of North Weymouth inhereted a small sum of money from her father, which was placed in charge of the late Henry A. Nash and at his death Selectman George L. Newton was appointed to fill the place. The last of the money was used about a year ago and since that time Miss Huntress has received aid from the town.

The property she and her sister are to come in possession of is situated at Great Hill, Fort Point and Rose Cliff beach at North Weymouth and is known as the Bates estate it comprises many acres and is covered with summer cottages, the owners paying annuel rentals amounting to several thousand dollars.

The property was owned by the late James Bates and at his death was left to his son James L. Bates who always refused to sell any part of the land, and although often offered large sums for it. This was a great wonder to the townspeople. But it turns out that the elder Mr. Bates, left the property to his son only during his lifetime and at his death to revert to the Bates heirs. The younger Mr. Bates died a short time ago and left a widow and according to the will she is to receive no part of the estate and as Miss Huntress and Mrs. Bacon are the only surviving heirs they will soon come into possession of the property.

It is a singular thing that no one knew that the property was left in that way, and the two women are as much surprised at their good fortune as is Mrs. Bates to learn that she is shut out from any part of the estate.

NERVE-RACKING THUNDER STORM

Sends Timid People Scurrying to Places of Refuge

GENERAL SCENE OF DISORDER

Claremont, N. H., and Surrounding Towns Have an Unusual Two-Hours' Experience While Electricity Plays Havoc With Telephone and Telegraph Lines—People Thought Ascutney Mountain Was In Eruption

Claremont, N. H., Jan. 25.—The inhabitants of Claremont and the surrounding towns within a radius of more than ten miles were thoroughly frightened by a severe electrical thunder storm last night, during which the accompanying lightning did extensive damage.

Some of the nervous and highly strung residents thought for a time that Ascustney mountain was in eruption, and hid in closets and other refuges.

The prisoners in the state prison fearfully gripped the bars of their cells or cowered behind the frail beds, meanwhile clamoring for release.

Children in attendance at religious services scampered out of their meeting places, and a general scene of disorder was in progress everywhere during the greater part of the two hours' display.

Of the extensive damage worked by the rapid bolts of lightning, the most serious was that to the Baptist church. Attracted by the steel-tipped spire, the long spark shot down the 125 foot steeple, bending the weather vane, twisting the conical top and splitting the steeple sides. In the body of the church a great hole was torn in the floor, and every pipe and steel rod in the edifice was burnt by the speeding electrical spark. The bolt found good conductors in the many glass pieces and all the windows were smashed in its passage, save one.

In a nearby house, Mrs. Mary Ledieux was rendered unconscious for several hours through the effects of the shock when the bolt passed through her house from the church.

Telegraph lines and the fire alarm service were placed completely out of commission, the electric light plant was seriously impaired, and but one telephone trunk line remained in working order of the seventy-five in the city. The local service was burned out entirely.

In the Monadnock mills the lightning was attracted by the machinery and burned a hole through the floor, starting a blaze which, had it not been noticed in its early stages, might have spread among the combustible material.

Throughout the great radius affected, dishes were thrown from shelves, windows were broken, trees uprooted and much minor damage done.

STRAUSS' NEW OPERA

Dresden Will Have the Honor of Witnessing Its First Production

Dresden, Jan. 25.—An event to which the music lovers of Germany and of the world have looked forward with eager anticipation will take place here tonight when the opera "Elektra," by Richard Strauss, will have its first production at the Royal opera.

Strauss will not conduct the opera himself, as had been planned. The theme to which Germany's most prominent musician has lent all the genius made famous by "Salome," "Feuersnot" and other works is that of the old Greek tragedy immortalized by Aeschylus, Sophocles, Euripides and others.

In tonight's production Mme. Schumann-Heink, well known to American opera goers, will sing the role of Clyteunestra and Elektra will be done by Frau Kull.

THREE RECORDS BROKEN

Some Wonderful Jumps Are Made at Northwestern Ski Tournament

Chippewa Falls, Jan. 25.—A new world's record of 138 feet for ski jumping was made at the Northwestern ski tournament by Oscar Gunderson of Chippewa Falls. The previous world's ski record was 135 feet, made in Norway in 1902.

Oscar Gunderson and Ole Mangseth of Coleraine, Minn., jumped 100 feet in the twin jump. The previous record was 84 feet.

The boys' record of 84 feet was exceeded by Ingvald Hendrickson of Eau Claire, who jumped 114 feet.

Some Maine Statistics

Augusta, Me., Jan. 25.—There are 52 savings banks, 40 trust companies and 25 loan and building associations now doing business in Maine, according to the report of State Bank Examiner Skelton. These institutions have total assets of $140,635,861.

Probable Death List of Sixty

Chicago, Jan. 25.—Grappling in the lake, searchers found three more bodies of workmen who perished as a result of the burning of the crib off South Chicago. It is thought that the victims will total sixty.

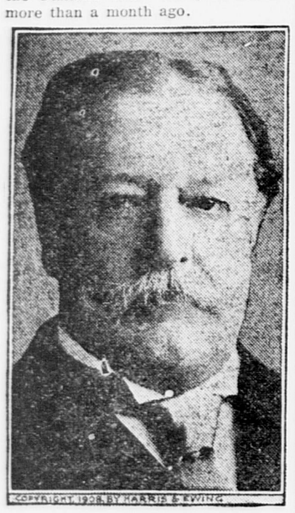
TAFT SAILS TODAY TO VISIT CANAL

Leaves Charleston on Cruiser North Carolina

ANOTHER SHIP TO HELP HER

It Takes Two Vessels, Says President-Elect, to Convey a Man of His Bulk—He Is Accompanied by Board of Engineers Appointed by President Roosevelt to Inspect Work Being Done on Isthmus and Report

Charleston, S. C., Jan. 25.—Amid the booming of guns fired to mark the passing down the harbor of the cruiser North Carolina and her convoy, the Montana, President-Elect Taft started this morning on his visit to the Panama canal zone, announced more than a month ago.



COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY HARRIS & EWING.

WILLIAM H. TAFT.

Mr. Taft and the party of engineers who will inspect the work being done on the canal are on the North Carolina. The Montana is going along to watch over the safety of the vessel carrying the president-elect. As Mr. Taft said jocularly a few days ago, two armored cruisers are required to carry a man of his bulk on a trip of such importance. Seriously speaking, however, the decision to have two cruisers to convey the president-elect is a precaution suggested by senators on the ground that there is no legal provision for a successor to the presidency in the event of a fatality overtaking a president-elect prior to his inauguration.

Will Stay Week on Isthmus

The North Carolina and the Montana are speedy vessels, capable of 22 knots if pushed, and will get Mr. Taft in Colon in four days. Mr. Taft's stay on the isthmus of Panama will be limited to one week. While there he will be a guest of Colonel Goethals at his residence in Culebra. Mrs. Taft accompanies her husband on the trip.

A special train will be at the disposal of Mr. Taft and party while on the Isthmus. He expects to spend much of his time at the site of the Gatun dam, as part of the work of the engineers with him is to ascertain the adequacy of the natural foundations for this structure.

Minor tangles of the administration which may be found to exist will be unraveled by Mr. Taft, who will also make it a point to give impetus to the general work on the canal.

Engineers Accompanying Taft

Accompanying Mr. Taft is the board of consulting engineers who are to make an examination of the Panama canal for the special purpose of reporting to President Roosevelt their opinions as to the canal work. They are Arthur P. Davis, chief engineer of the United States reclamation service; John R. Freeman of Providence, R. I.; Allan Hazen of New York, Isham Randolph of Chicago, James Dix Schuyler of Los Angeles, Cal., and Frederic P. Stearns of Boston.

These men, who are numbered among the best civil engineers of the world, will make an unbiased and frank report on the canal and the progress of the work. In particular they will devote part of their report or reports to the question of the advisability of continuing the present digging of the canal on the lock plan. They have been urged by the president to forget that the government has committed itself to the construction of a lock canal. If the opinion is that the adoption of such a plan instead of the one aiming at the digging of a sea level canal was a mistake the engineers will say so.

QUINCY MAN AT HEAD.

Horace E. Spear Appointed Manager of New Store.

It is a great pleasure to chronicle that our townsman, Horace E. Spear, has been selected to take charge of Lloyd's handsome new optical store, recently opened on Summer street, Boston. We learn that the appointment is chiefly due to Mr. Spear's remarkable mastery of an exceptionally large and complicated technical detail. With his genial, frank and honest nature, wide acquaintance, sound judgment and mastery of the difficult optical business, his success in his new position would seem assured. It is certain that he will have the hearty good wishes of a large number of friends.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

Editor of the Daily Ledger:

I notice in your edition of Thursday the 21st, you say that some of the Board of Trade claim their organization was instrumental in procuring the new travelling crane at Quincy Adams. Well, if that is all that they claim, then your assertion that they have done nothing is absolutely correct.

The Granite Manufacturers' Association has had a committee working on that for four years. They had an absolute promise in the spring of 1906 that the derrick would be erected as soon as they could possibly get the material. When that promise had not been fulfilled up to the spring of 1907, we petitioned the State Board of Railroad Commissioners, stating our needs, and 98 per cent. of the interested members signed the petition (those members that shipped from Quincy Adams station.)

The Raidroad Commissioners at once appointed a day for a hearing, which was afterwards called off, by the railroad officials showing the Commissioners that the derrick was ordered and would be installed at the earliest possible time. This all happened before the Board of Trade ever had a committee to interview the railroad officials.

I believe in giving credit where it is due, and the whole credit for the new crane belongs to the Railroad Committee of the Granite Manufacturers' Association.

I am very sorry that they only have one apple in their basket, and that one should be found to be rotten.

I fully agree with your editorials that the Board of Trade and Citizens' Association, if alive, should do much for our city, but it sometimes appears as if the chief work was when one organization proposes anything, the other one at once proceeds to dispose of it to the oblivion basket. It almost appears like a waste of time and money to keep them alive.

I believe that our city has a bright future, for we are favorably located, almost identical with Newark, N. J. to New York, and anyone who is conversant with Newark, knows what a hive of manufacturing industry it is.

We are the same distance from a big city, and we have the same expanse of low, cheap land for factories. We have a much better water front, as they are only on a river. But we appear to lack unity to work together, or leader to lead us. If any new project comes up, we all want to be leaders, and every leader wants to travel by a different road, which ends nowhere. So long as our people act in that spirit, so long will other cities draw all new industries to themselves.

But dear editor, I will not trouble you further for I know you have use for your valuable space. I could not help refuting the claims of members of the Board of Trade that they had procured the new crane.

Very truly yours,
J. L. Miller.

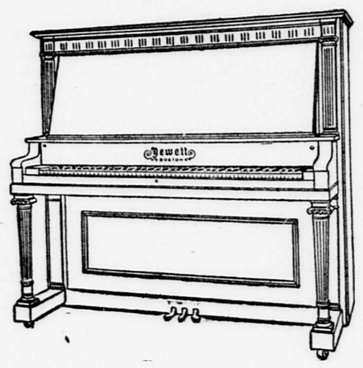
The Public Recognizes the Superiority of the

Jewett Pianos



In the long run merit wins.

Character counts in pianos as well as in men.

Herein lies the significance of the following fact, After forty-eight years of progressive achievement, the Jewett Pianos have gained the decisive preference of the piano-buying public.

More Jewett Pianos Are Now Sold in New England Each Year Than of any Other Make of Equal Cost

This preference is the natural result of the conviction produced by the wonderful Jewett tone. Time has proved the reliability and the wearing qualities of the Jewett Pianos. Their distinctive musical merits have received the endorsement of the highest authorities.

Unequalled Progress in the Past Decade has brought these famous Pianos to a point of perfection where their superiority is now unmistakable.

We cordially invite you to inspect the new models for 1909.

ENTERTAINED PLAYMATES.

Carl Kuester's Seventh Birthday Celebrated in Novel Way.

A very pretty house party was held Friday afternoon from 4 to 7, at the home of Carl Kuester on Edison street. It was Carl's seventh birthday and the party was in honor of the event. It took the form of a masquerade, all the children wearing fancy costumes.

Just before supper, the masques were taken off, no one being allowed to unmasque until he guessed the identity of someone else. During the afternoon, games of all kinds were played by the children. There were also piano solos by some of the older boys and girls.

Those who masqued and their costumes were:

Jennie Gibb—Dutch girl.
Helene Pinel and Elsie Carter—Sunbonnet girls.
Doris Carter—Gypsy.
Lee Staples—Prince.
Eleanor Momm—Red Riding Hood.
Doris Peterson—Fairy.
Marion Peterson—Night.
Eva Forrest—Tambourine girl.
Louise Atwood—Star.
Fred Gibb—Sailor boy.
Clara Miner—Spanish girl.

Mabel Allen—Puritan girl.
Ruth Allen—Dutch girl.
Mabel Roache—Red Cross Nurse.
Lawrence Pinel—Boy Blue.
Edgar Momm—Clown.
Gertrude Gilmore—Fairy.
Lillian Kuester—Sunflower.

MRS. HANNAH BUCKLEY BURIED.

The funeral of Mrs. Hannah Buckley, wife of Edward Buckley, was held Saturday morning at St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock and was very largely attended. Rev. William J. Duffy officiated at the requiem high mass, and the regular choir, with Miss Rena Bizzozero, organist, sang the Gregorian mass. Rev. Fr. Langford and Rev. John Chetwood of Boston college sat inside the sanctuary.

The floral tributes were very beautiful and included pieces from the St. Mary's basket ball team and from the class of 1909 of Boston college.

The bearers were John Barry, Richard Barry, Robert Barry, John Buckley, Edward Forbes and John McLaughlin. The interment was in the family lot in St. Mary's cemetery, West Quincy.

FOURTH BILL FILED.

Mayor Shea filed another bill in the legislature Saturday morning through Representative Thomas. This bill was practically in response to the vote passed at the mass meeting last Saurday night.

It asked that Quincy be exempt from the general elections law in the use of party designations at Municipal elections. The bill also has the referendum clause.

The passenger department of the Fall River line has just issued an attractive little booklet, artistically printed and beautifully illustrated, descriptive of its magnificent new steamer, Commonwealth. The cuts are printed in an olive tint and on the page margins are reproduced the mural paintings and interior decorations of the palatial steamer. The booklet is an excellent specimen of the printer's art, and copies may be obtained by sending six cents in stamps to the passenger department at 171 Broadway, New York.

Mrs. Alice Hall, who has been in poor health for some time, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Fred Snow, late Friday afternoon. Funeral services were held this afternoon at her late home, 72 Marlboro street.

Dr. W. G. Curtis of 10 Grand View avenue, Wollaston, has discontinued his Wollaston office and taken up the practice of the late Dr. Wood of Bedford, Mass. Dr. Curtis will also have an office at 64 Crawford street, Roxbury.

The many acquaintances of Gordon Sherwin of Clive street and friends of the family are interested to know that although very ill with pneumonia, Master Gordon is still holding his own according to the lastest reports.

High tides and an inshore wind on Sunday brought the ice floes high up on the Wollaston beaches. The ice came up to the breakwater and cottages at the summer colony, just past the bluff, and in some cases partially surrounded the cottages.

The Ladies Aid Alliance of the Wollaston Unitarian church will be addressed by Rev. Elmer S. Forbes, secretary of the new social and public service department of the American Unitarian association on the subject "What are we here for?" at its meeting on Wednesday, at 2.30.

The Wollaston Congregational club will hold their monthly meeting on Tuesday evening. William J. Cunningham of Newton will speak on the subject of "System methods applied to railroading." Mr. Cunningham is statistician of the operating department of the Boston & Albany railroad and lecturer on railroad operations before the graduate school of business administration at Harvard university.

The social season which the early part of the winter did not seem to boom in Atlantic has been all that could be desired since the first of the year. Several new bridge clubs have been formed and a few dances are listed for later dates. Among the events looked forward to with great interest is the concert of the Shakespeare club to be given next month with a program of exceptional excellence.

An announcement of interest in Atlantic is that of the coming ball of the Civic Betterment Committee, which will be held in Music hall on the evening of February 19th. Already a long list of patronesses has been secured and will be made public at a later date. Splendid music has been engaged and no doubt a few card tables will be ready in the club room for those who do not care to dance.

NO AGREEMENT TO KILL THEMSELVES

Mrs. Snow a Suicide, but Gleason's Death Accidental

Rumford Falls, Me., Jan. 25.—The theory that Arthur Gleason and Mrs. Arthur G. Snow, whose deaths occurred last week, had entered into a suicide pact, has been dispelled owing to recent discoveries.

Mrs. Snow, who had been separated from her husband, committed suicide by drinking bichloride of mercury, according to the coroner's report, and from letters found among the woman's effects it is believed she killed herself in a fit of despondency.

Gleason died from the effect of wood alcohol. It is believed by his friends that he drank this by mistake, thinking it was a stimulant.

Gleason and Mrs. Snow had been friendly for some time and when their deaths occurred at about the same time it was thought that the couple had entered into a suicide pact.

HARDING CONSECRATED

Assumes Leadership of Episcopalians of the National Capital

Washington, Jan. 25.—Historic Trinity Protestant Episcopal church, one of the oldest and most famous religious edifices of Washington, was the scene today of the consecration of a new bishop of the national capital. The incoming bishop is the Rev. Alfred Harding, successor to the late Bishop Satterlee and formerly rector of St. Paul's church in this city.

BISHOP HARDING

Today is the day set apart in the Protestant Episcopal calendar for St. Paul and was chosen by the Rev. Dr. Harding as a peculiarly appropriate day for his consecration in view of his services for many years as rector of St. Paul's parish in Washington and Baltimore.

Presiding at the consecration was Bishop Tuttle of Missouri, the presiding bishop of the church. He was assisted by the bishop of New Jersey and the bishop of Pittsburg, and the presenters of Dr. Harding for episcopal honors were the bishop of central Pennsylvania and the bishop of Ohio.

Lawrence, Mass., Jan. 25.—Mrs. Catherine Grey, aged 70, who was found on the floor of her little store here Saturday morning with her head badly crushed, has not regained consciousness. It is believed that she was attacked by burglars, who robbed the cash drawer of a small amount.

TILLMAN'S SECOND NAME.

Why the Senator Aroused by President Roosevelt Was Named Ryan.

How Ryan was incorporated into Senator Benjamin R. Tillman's baptismal name was thus told a few years ago by the South Carolina statesman who is charged by President Roosevelt with using his position as a senator to further his interest in Oregon land cases and other private affairs:

"The Ryan in my name came from an old Whig captain who served in the Revolutionary war," he said. "He was a neighbor of my grandfather and a terrible man against the Tories. There were many Tories in South Carolina. They were a third of the population, I guess. Ryan was a terror in all that region. The Tories fled to the timber, with him in pursuit. After the British captured Charleston the Whigs and old Ryan took to the woods.

"A party of English caught up with Ryan unexpectedly and made him a prisoner. There were an inclination and a purpose to butcher him on the spot, but he was a colonial officer, a soldier under the laws of war and entitled to be treated as such. It was finally agreed, therefore, that he should be tied and taken to the nearest British post. But there was no rope. A young man named Booth, a Tory, said he would go home and get a pair of cotton lines, used in those days for plowing. 'I'd give,' and he grinned at Ryan, 'a whole season in the cornfield to see that old —— tied.' He brought the lines, and Ryan was sent off. In some way he got loose; was rescued maybe. The first thing he did was to notify Booth that he meant to kill him. Booth hid in the woods, and Ryan couldn't find him.

"It was late in the spring when one morning before the break of day Ryan buried his musket in a pile of dead leaves and climbed a bushy poplar tree near Booth's house. He waited all day. Women went to the spring to get water, balancing the buckets on their heads, as is the practice in the south, and one of them put out a wash. Ryan kept on watching there in the tree.

"About an hour before sundown a sister of Booth went along the grass bordered path to the spring. She had a wooden bucket in her hand, and Ryan, right above her among the branches, saw something in it. When she got to the spring she looked cautiously about. Seeing nothing, hearing nothing, she took a tin bucket out of the wooden one and started off into the forest. Ryan slid from the tree, found his gun and stalked her as he would a deer.

"She came to a log, where her brother met her. He ate, and she talked. Ryan purposely made a noise, and they looked and saw him, musket in hand, only a few feet away. They fell on their knees and pleaded, but Ryan killed Booth right there in the presence of his sister. My grandfather named his son after Ryan, and the son, my father, gave the name to me."

LANDIS' COAT TO PRISONER.

Oil Trust Judge Went Home From Court Unprotected From Cold.

The thin figure of Federal Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, who imposed that celebrated fine of $29,000,000 on the Standard Oil trust, was seen late the other day breasting the cold wind of the Loop district in Chicago without an overcoat.

"Hi, there, judge!" shouted a friend. "Where's your overcoat?"

"I used it to light a fire."

"Used it to light a fire?"

"Yes," said Judge Landis, "I used it to light a fire to keep warm inside of me the spirit of charity that life in a great city like Chicago tends to freeze."

A short time earlier the judge had sentenced Matthew A. Aronson, a "white slaver," to the house of correction. The prisoner turned away from the bench and pulled his coat collar up around his throat.

"Aronson," exclaimed the court sharply, "where's your overcoat?"

"Your honor," said the 'white slaver,' "I ain't got none. That was one of the first things I soaked when I come to Chicago."

"Bailiff," said the judge, "get mine and give it to him. Now, gentlemen," he added, "we'll proceed with the next case."

EASILY CARVED DUCK.

Breastboneless Water Fowl Exhibited at Poultry Show.

Patient persons who at many a festal board have carved the succulent but elusive water fowl were much interested the other day in a breastboneless duck which was placed on exhibition at the poultry show in Bridgeport, Conn., by C. A. Wintzer of Brooklyn. Through careful culture Wintzer has succeeded in breeding a duck which is entirely innocent of breastbone. As everybody who has ever tried to carve a duck knows, it has from time immemorial been the breastbone of the duck that has presented most difficulties to the man at the head of the table.

The cage at the poultry show in which the new breed of ducks was on exhibition was surrounded by lovers of duck, who in the new product saw the solution of their troubles.

Rare New Goldfish.

John G. Sholl, a florist of Burlington, N. J., has raised a remarkable goldfish, which he has named Old Nassau. It is of the telescope variety, with huge protruding eyes, and one half of the magnificent specimen is rich orange, while the other half is jet black. Fabulous offers have been made for the fish as a Princeton university mascot.

The First Woman's Infantry

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

"You women wish the same rights as men. Then do the same duties—do military service."

"We are tired of hearing you men throw this up at us whenever we demand the right of suffrage. We will do military service. You assume that we cannot endure military hardships. We can do our part—that is, the lighter part. Our arms and accouterments may be of a weight proportionate to our physique."

Such was the reply of Mrs. Susan Armstrong to the president, who in his next message to congress transmitted the demand. An act was introduced creating a corps of women to serve in such places as Mrs. Armstrong had indicated. They were to be enrolled as infantry, though the introducer of the bill disavowed any slur on the women from a double meaning of the word. If they were found effective as foot soldiers a corps of cavalry and one of artillery were to be added. An amendment was introduced leaving the selection of the uniform with the women enrolled.

The first regiment of (women's) infantry was enrolled and instructed by the secretary of war to select its uniform, after which its officers would be appointed and its equipment furnished by the government. Eight hundred women met in council. Mrs. Armstrong was elected president, and the meeting proceeded to business. Miss Owen moved that a committee be appointed to design a uniform. The motion was put and carried and the committee appointed by the chair. It was then announced that the work had already been done, a uniform had been selected and would be presented to the meeting.

Miss Wrinkle, chairman of the committee, read a description of the uniform. It was to be of blue cloth, tailor made; jacket faced with yellow, skirt to fall three inches below the knee, hat of felt on wire frame crown, inverted bell shaped, four inches high, brim one yard in diameter, ostrich feathers of suitable shades to match.

When the description had been read the president announced that the matter of its adoption was open to discussion.

Miss Skinner—I should like to ask what sized bustle is to be used.

Miss Wrinkle—There will be no bustle. The uniform is to be for service, not ornamental.

Miss Skinner (sharply)—H'm! With no bustle perhaps some of us may display figures by no means ornamental.

Mrs. Latherly—Will the chairman of the committee please inform us if there is to be a uniform hip breadth?

Miss Wrinkle—The hips are to be the natural size.

Mrs. Latherly—Mrs. President, if the hips are to be natural size I would suggest enlisting only women with average hips. How would the rear rank look with—

The President—The lady is out of order. Miss Blackmore!

Miss Blackmore—Are there to be two battalions—one of blonds, the other of brunettes? Certainly the brunettes cannot be expected to wear blue.

The President—The members of the corps will wear the uniform as adopted.

Miss Skinner—I should like to know, Mrs. President, if we are to be permitted to make our figures respectable, or are we to be denied all pads?

Miss Wrinkle—The secretary of war has estimated that our regiment cannot be mustered in to the military service without a serviceable uniform. With our accouterments there will be no room for padding.

Miss Ferguson—Does this deprive us of corsets?

Mrs. Mathews—I wish to say right now if it does I desire my name stricken off the rolls. I demand a corset, and a straight front corset.

Mrs. Kellogg—Mrs. President, the lady is talking nonsense. How would the straight front corset with rear protuberance look, I should like to know? Does the lady wish something to carry a mess kit on?

Mrs. Mathews—The vacant space under the rear of the corset might be used for cartridges. I'm not so impractical as the lady would suppose. So there!

Miss Simper (tittering)—With the straight front corset our corps would look always in the position of "charge bayonet."

For some time the wrath of various members had been gaining ground, and from this point there was a double class divergence. The fat women were ranged against the lean ones and the brunettes against the blonds. The meeting finally broke up in confusion and has not since been called together. Meanwhile the secretary of war is waiting to equip and muster in the corps.

This split in the matter of uniform has greatly retarded the suffragette cause, which, it was hoped, the demonstration of woman's ability to do military service would greatly assist. Some prominent suffragettes are endeavoring to discover who it was that introduced the amendment to the bill constituting the corps which provides that the enrolled members should select a uniform. The gentleman will not acknowledge himself as its proposer, nor will the members tell on him.

Some of the more conservative suffragettes oppose the woman's military corps, asserting that it was a mistaken idea, military duty not necessarily being obligatory on a voter.

HELOISE AMES.

—The Weymouth Board of Trade, says the Weymouth Gazette, has received word from Mr. Gammons that the Old Colony Street Railroad Co. will have South Weymouth signs placed on the Rockland cars at Braintree, and that cars will leave Quincy for East Weymouth at 11.10 P. M., and Quincy for North Weymouth at 11.50 P. M., every night. On Saturday nights there will be a car at Braintree to connect with 11.27 P. M. train from Boston, running to East Weymouth via Columbian Square. Also a car will start from Quincy connecting with 10.40 P. M. Boston train running to Weymouth Landing. At the request of the Board of Trade the N. Y. & B. Des. Co. have installed telephone at their South Weymouth office.

—"It will be from every standpoint desirable says the Boston Record, to observe this 100th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln as a special holiday," and the President's recommendation of observation this year may well be acted upon promptly. While a new regular holiday in midwinter does not seem to us wise or useful, this 100th anniversary of the birth should have observance the country over.

—Clergymen of Greater Boston are against further increase in the navy over two hundred of them having signed a remonstrance which has been forwarded to Washington.

ATLANTIC WOMAN HAS BAD FALL

Mrs. Mary Wright Slips and Plunges Over Embankment

Mrs. Mary Wright of Neponset had a bad fall late Monday night near the bridge on Hancock street near the Atlantic depot. There is some mystery however, as to just how the accident happened.

According to the story told, however, she slipped on the ice and in falling, slid beneath the fence, along the railroad embankment and then to the railroad tracks 25 feet below.

Her husband was with her at the time and the officer on duty at the depot assisted in carrying the woman to the building.

Police headquarters were then notified and Sergt. Barry sent Dr. Pierce to attend the woman.

He found her suffering from a fractured hip. A carriage was secured and she was removed to her home.

It appears that Mr. and Mrs. Wright had been attending the installation at Music hall and were on their way to take an electric car or train when the accident happened.

Whether the woman was on the bridge or on the walk leading from Hancock street to the depot is not known.

An investigation this morning disclosed the fact that there was no ice on the bridge upon which the woman could have slipped.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

To the Editor of the Daily Ledger:

A few days ago I had occasion to spend a couple of days in Brockton, Taunton and Providence, combining business with a visit to some friends. During this time my attention was called frequently to the trolley express service which is operated in that section. My friends spoke so well of it that I spent some little time in looking into the service and casually talking with some of those who make use of it, the latter seeming to include everybody who does shipping in that section covered by the service.

All with whom I spoke were loud in their praises of the excellence of the service given and were unanimous in saying that they did not know before what good shipping facilities were, and that the benefits that had come to the communities as a whole were many and undoubted. Since my investigation I have been thinking it over and am fully convinced in mind that there is nothing that could be of more benefit to this city than the installation of the trolley express.

If the Old Colony Street Railway Co. is willing to give this service to other parts of its system why shouldn't they give it to us? That is a question which I would like to ask through the columns of your paper.

Yours Sincerely,
One interested in Quincy's progress.

Editor Daily Ledger:

The Board of Trade, like its sister organization, has been continuously at work during the period of its existence devising ways and means of promoting the interests and general welfare of our city, and if it has not accomplished as much as we would like it should not be criticised therefor. It is the effort that counts, not the achievement, when credit is to be given or withheld. Even though much remains to be done, that does not disguise the fact that many things of value to the city have been brought about through the instrumentality of our Board of Trade.

The letter of John L. Miller in yesterday's Ledger is to be deprecated and deplored by all citizens who desire harmony between the two organizations that he refers to. There is no room or occasion for bickerings, jealousies or hostile criticisms, but ample opportunity for harmony and united action.

That Mr. Miller is a public spirited citizen no one will deny; and it cannot be gainsald that his pen has in the past thrown light into dark places. But in this instance he has inadvertently done an injustice to a well meaning and enterprising body of our citizens.

Yours very truly,
Arthur B. Hultman.

GIVES LECTURE ON HOLY LAND

Miss Merritt Pleases Large Audience at Bethany Chapel.

Miss Louise P. Merritt of North Scituate took the members of Unity Circle King's Daughters and their friends on a personally conducted journey to the Holy Land at the Bethany Chapel Monday evening.

In opening her talk Miss Merritt said that the voyage was largely identical with that which was to have been taken by the ill fated Republic. She then spoke of the delightfully restful leisure of an ocean steamship voyage and of the excitement at the first sight of land.

Miss Merritt, who is an artist of some note, had a large number of water color pictures, which she had painted during her trip which served to beautifully illustrated the many scenes, as the colors were true to nature.

She described in detail the costumes, streets, buildings and customs of the people at the different places from the time of the first stop at the Azores to Gibralter, Genoa and Naples thence to Egypt.

The topography of her trip through Egypt to Jerusalem was clearly brought out by her descriptions and with the pictures it needed but a stretch of imagination to make her hearers think that they too were in the Holy Land.

In addition to the pictures Miss Merritt showed a model of the houses used by these people.

During the talk which was very interesting there was singing by the King's Daughters quartette composed of Mrs. E. C. Page, Mrs. Arthur W. Ryder, Miss Mattie Holton and Mrs. Walter Rice and solos by A. L. Hayden.

Members of the Italian colony of this city are devising ways and means to help their fellow-countrymen,, who have suffered so much on account of the terrible earthquake which has lately devastated a large part of Italy.

A committee has been elected and a fair and dance is to be held in Hibernian Hall, Franklin Street, on January 30, 1909; the proceeds of which shall be sent to Italy to alleviate as far as possible the sufferings of their unhappy countrymen.

The Italian Mutual Relief Society has contributed $50.00 towards this very worthy cause.

Two members of the commmittee, Peter Josephine and Amedo Capellini have been delegated to solicit any articles which the merchants of Quincy may see fit to give and it is to be hoped that the efforts of our Italian citizens will be crowned with success, and donations of any description will be glady received by the committee in charge.

THE HANCOCK STEPS.

The stone steps at the refectory in Pinebank, Jamaica pond, were originally on Beacon street, Boston, in front of the mansion of John Hancock. This historic house remained intact until 1863, when Feb. 18, the land was sold. For a while the house was open to the public, but later in the year was torn down, and the parts of it and articles it contained were scattered throughout the state, some going to historical societies and others to individuals.

Edward N. Perkins, at that time owner of the old Perkins' estate known from early times as "Pinebank," purchased the steps and placed them in front of the house. They remained in his possession until 1893, when the estate was purchased by the park department of the city of Boston.

The steps are made of Quincy granite, taken from the surface of the ledge, when the quarrying was started. The side pieces are of brown sandstone. On the two lower steps is chiseled. "FROM THE TERRACE OF THE JOHN HANCOCK MANSION." These steps have been trodden by Washington, Lafayette, D'Estaing Brissot, Lord Percy and many other persons of prominence.—Boston Globe.

WHO FOUND THE RAZORS?

James Reegan Wonders and So Does His Honor.

Lost, strayed or stolen, a package containing a dozen razors, more or less.

Because of the loss Mayor Shea had to submit Monday to a shave with a neck razor.

If one was seeking information, political or otherwise, James Reegan, the barber at the junction of Hancock and School street, is the man to see. This time, however, it is James who is seeking the information and thereby hangs a tale.

Saturday night after completing his work of fixing men up so they would look slick on Sunday, James did up his shavers to take home for safety. He supposed he took them home but could not find them Monday morning. He hot footed it back and forth between Payne street and the shop but no razors appeared.

Just then the Mayor came in and found James for once in serious thought. The Mayor wanted a shave just the same and the neck razor was the only one at hand and with this the job was done and a good job it was. Jim has a new supply on hand now so that customers will suffer no inconvenience.

Jim says that it is lucky for him that it was the Mayor and not Dan Desmond who got that neck razor shave.

Although she does not carry her hatchet any longer, Carrie Nation still continues to make things lively for the London coppers and music hall proprietors.

The Merry Widow cottage at Houghs Neck was the scene of a $300 blaze Friday. Merry widows are great hands to burn up money, says the Brockton Enterprise. How about Merry Widowers?

That all ships should be fitted with a wireless telegraph outfit was demonstrated Saturday when the steamer Republic was wrecked off No Mans Land. If it had not been for the wireless outfit on the Republic none of the vessels with the exception of the Florida would have known of the accident and several passengers might have been drowned as the Florida was not equipped with the wireless service. A law should be passed compelling all pasenger vesselts to carry the wireless outfit then the danger of fatal wrecks would be reduced to a minimum.

The petition filed in the Legislature last week by Commodore Dawes of the Wollastn Yacht club, that the board of harbor and land commissioners be authorized to expend $7,500 to deepen and enlarge the channel at Wollaston beach, will be watched with keen interest by all yachtsmen in this vicinity, as its passage means much to the lovers of this sport. At the present time the channel is not deep enough to allow yachts to reach the club floats only at half tide or more. The petition filed by Commodore Dawes, provides for a channel not less then sixty feet wide in the bottom and six feet deep at mean low water. If this petition is passed, it will necessitate the expenditure of $15,000, as an act passed by the legislature in 1907 called for the same thing, but the board of harbor and land commissioners found that the appropriation of $7,500, was not enough to complete the work. With the additional $7,500 called for in Commodore Dawes' petition the work can be completed and yachts will be able to reach the floats at any time.

The agitation over public landings on the Quincy shore has at last taken tangible shape with the filing of a bill in the legislature to give Quincy authority to take land on her shores for the purpose of public landings.

This question directly concerns the only summer resort in Quincy, Houghs Neck, where hundreds of people come to spend the summer. At present there is only one place to land after the tide is low and that is on private property, namely the private landing of the Quincy Yacht Club. If a person does not belong to the club he must wait for tides to come and go.

This puts the summer people who are a source of great revenue to our city at a big disadvantage. Hence it would seem that public landings would prove a valuable asset to the popularity of Houghs Neck.

But what is the expense necessary to build and equip these landings and keep them in repair after they are constructed? At Wollaston for instance unless the channel is widened and deepened public landings would be useless, for it would still be impossible to land until the tide came in.

The same is true in other parts of the city Houghs Neck included, but notably Town River where hundreds of boats are moored every summer. Unless the channels are changed so that boats can land and depart at any time, what would be the need of spending money in public landings?

Again the wear and tear on the landings caused by boats bumping and yachtsmen coming and going would necessitate constant repairs by the city, causing much extra expense. Is it expedient for the city to go to this expense is a question which can not be answered at the present time.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

President Roosevelt's warning to the anti-Japanese agitators in the California Legislature should not go unheeded. The Governor, to whom he has written a letter, has succeeded in inducing the lawmakers to wait until the arrival of the letter, in which he sets forth his reasons for opposing what they had intended to do. Our government has just reached a friendly understanding with Japan, and to pass the proposed legislation would disturb the relations existing between the two nations. Japan does not want the people of that nation to emigrate to the United States, and during last year more Japanese returned to their homes than came here to stay. There are Americans in Japan, who for business or other reasons choose to live there, and the same class of people among the Japanese, merchants and students, are in the United States. The number of either class is not sufficient to create a disturbance in Japan or the United States. The letter of the President was timely, and the indications are that the Californians will reconsider the action they had proposed.—Lynn Item.

It seems to be generally agreed in legislative circles at Albany that Governor Hughes' recommendations for direct nominations will receive favorable action while his plan for the "Massachusetts ballot" will be defeated as too radical. It would surprise most of the people of this Commonwealth if this prediction should be confirmed. The attitude of public opinion in Massachusetts has been one of more or less suspicion, in past years, of the direct nomination movement as probably too radical to be adopted without very close and careful consideration. The ballot that we have always called the "Australian," but which our neighbors now call the "Massachusetts" ballot, is certainly not considered radical or revolutionary, here, and it has excited less criticism than the forms of the primary nomination system which have been tried, notably in municipal elections. Indeed, it is generally expected that the present session of our legislature may be marked, before its close, by a battle royal over the very proposition to extend the principle of direct nominations to offices not now included in the law. And legislators who personally are inclined to regard the suggestions as feasible and meritorious nevertheless predict that public opinion will not be found behind the proposition.—Boston Advertiser.

It is a matter of some importance to the citizens of Boston that a bill has been filed at the State House which legalizes the purchase of wines, liquors and cigars by the mayor of Boston, at a cost not to exceed $5000 a year. Such a measure will be cordially welcomed because it represents a movement in behalf of executive honesty.

For years the city of Boston has bought wines and liquors illegally and has paid for them through conspiracy, and no loud protest has been made. It was supposed that Mayor Hibbard, pledged to municipal reform, would improve the opportunity to cut off the wine bills until they could be incurred honestly and presented and paid openly. He has not done so. Indeed, the administration is known colloquially as "a wine-opener," although, presumably, the appellation is not entirely deserved.

However, if the city of Boston is to buy and pay for alcoholic beverages, let it do so legally, and it can be done that way only by amending the law. We imagine that there will be some opposition to legalizing the purchase of wines and liquors by the city, but no one will contend, we trust, that it is better for the mayor to break the law every month, as chief executive officer of the city, than to allow him to entertain guests as he desires to entertain them without breaking the law. Representative Willcutt of Dorchester has taken the right step.—Boston Journal.

But the dream home is always only a dream home to most women, and fortunate, indeed, is that one who realizes her ideal.

HEROISM IN DISASTER

Shown by Sailors and Passengers on Two Steamers

BLAME FOR CRASH NOT PLACED

Something May Have Gone Wrong With the Florida

New York, Jan. 26.—Within considerably less than seventy-two hours after the collision between the ocean liners Republic and Florida, off the Nantucket Shoals, which eventually sent the one to the bottom and crippled the other not far from hopelessly, the survivors of the thrilling sea accident have found a haven at last.

At nightfall last night, 1650 passengers from the two vessels were safe in this port, brought here by the Baltic, while nearing it were the rescued officers and crew of the Republic, safe on board the derelict destroyer Seneca, to which they were transferred from the revenue cutter Gresham after staying up to the last moment by their sinking vessel.

At her dock in Brooklyn is the battered Florida, aboard which her crew remained throughout her trying experiences.

Only the ill-fated Republic was wanting to complete the list. But she too, was in port—"the port of missing ships"—beneath thirty-eight fathoms of water fifteen miles south of the Nantucket south shoals lightship, and there she will remain forever.

No Lack of Heroism

As the story of what occurred when the steamers came together in the fog of early morning last Saturday and the dramatic incidents which followed approaches completion, it is apparent that the past three days have witnessed the most remarkable series of happenings in the annals of modern navigation. The accounts of the survivors and of eye-witnesses offered a keen sense of what might have been had there been lacking the heroism that was actually displayed, the human efficiency that was shown and the aid that modern science was able to render in the most critical of situations.

With the all-important work of rescue thus practically finished, attention turned to endeavors to learn definitely, if possible, how the two vessels happened to collide and whether their fateful meeting was as unavoidable as at first appeared. On the Republic's side little was to be learned. Her passengers told graphic tales of the accident, of the excitement on board, of the bravery of the officers, the good behavior of the crew and the efficient work of rescue.

That all did not go so well with the Florida and that possibly on her bridge might be sought a contributing cause of the disaster, was indicated by late reports. There are two versions of what happened on the bridge of the Florida when the Republic loomed up in front of her in the morning's fog.

Something Wrong on the Florida

Little could be learned from Captain Rospini when he was seen on board his vessel on her arrival in the harbor. But according to others who were on board the Florida and were brought to port by the Baltic, something went wrong with the Florida's steering wheel when the collision was imminent.

One account has it that the quartermaster, who had the wheel when the commander yelled for it to be jammed to starboard, put it to port instead. Another account is that the man let go of the wheel in terror when danger impended.

Both versions agree that the commander felled the man with a spike for what he must have considered the seaman's cowardice. An injured quartermaster from the Florida was brought to port on the Baltic. He stoutly asserted that he was not at the wheel when the accident occurred.

Probably not until both commanders have made their formal statements will the facts be known. Possibly the verdict of a marine court will be needed to determine them.

Kept Their Heads Well

On the other hand, there is the conduct of Captain Sealby of the Republic, who, true to the best traditions of the sea, stuck to his ship as long as there was enough of her afloat to afford him a foothold. And practically all accounts agree that, aside from an incipient panic among the steerage passengers on the Florida, both ships' companies and passengers kept their heads well in the most trying conditions.

What the wireless apparatus accomplished for the rescue of the many souls on board the shattered Republic is history. And the brave, tireless men who stuck to their instruments and summoned all the resources and wonders of the invention at their command to bring help are the heroes of the narration.

It was the same wireless telegraphy he used so well that flashed the news from the Seneca approaching the harbor last night that "Jack" Binns, the operator on the Republic, was sleeping well after his hours of gallant devotion. Equal mede of praise is given H. G. Tattersall of the Baltic, who remained at his post for seventy-two hours while the ship was groping her way in the fog to aid the Republic. Survivors, too, had warm words of commendation for the officers and men of the Florida, who worked superbly with their own ship to get the passengers from the worse damaged Republic to comparative safety on board the Italian vessel.

Florida Badly Battered

When the Florida passed up the harbor she looked every bit the part of the ocean battering ram she had played. Her bows were smashed by the impact with the Republic, the plates and beams being buckled and twisted for a distance of fully thirty feet. Caught on the jagged iron braces and angle-irons was tarpaulin to keep out as much water as possible from her forward compartment. With her fore-peak full of water, her burdened bow dipping and her stern high above the surface, she was slowly and with difficulty warped into her pier in Brooklyn.

When she reached her dock it was learned that three and not four of her crew were killed when the steamers collided. They were sleeping in their forecastle quarters and met instant death, two of them being badly mangled and their bodies so tangled in the wreckage that it was not until after the steamer reached her berth last night that the corpses could be extricated.

Lynch May Die

Eugene Lynch, one of the Republic's passengers who was severely injured, was on the Florida when she came in. When he was taken to a hospital it was found that both his legs were broken, his right thigh fractured and that he was internally injured. It is feared he will die.

That there was any trouble at the wheel of the Florida was denied by the Florida's purser, Marbila Gima. When asked as to the reports of the helmsman's delinquency he said that the quartermaster was thrown from his wheel by the shock of the collision and stood at his post until the crash came.

Captain Rospini said that he preferred to await a statement by the Republic's commander before making his. He said, however, that he heard the Republic's whistles at intervals for some time on the morning of the disaster, but they seemed quite far away. Suddenly the big liner appeared out of the fog and the vessels came together. The Florida veered off and the Republic was swallowed up again in the mist. A cautious search for her was then begun and it was two hours, the captain said, before the Florida again located her partner in misfortune and began the work of rescue which resulted so fortunately.

Connolly Makes a Denial

J. B. Connolly, writer on seafaring topics, denies a statement made by F. S. Spenser, steward of the Republic, that he tried to get ahead of the women and children who were being transferred from the Florida to the Baltic.

Connolly said he was the "victim of a job" put up against him because he dared to assert his rights concerning the dispatch of wireless press messages. He said the charge was absolutely false and just the reverse was true.

"I was the last passenger of the Republic," he said, "to leave that ship after the order to desert her was given. All this trouble began because I had enough red blood in my veins to want to investigate a good story that was in my power to give the newspapers. It's small business. The whole thing is a tissue of falsehoods."

STUCK TO HIS SHIP

Captain and Second Officer Were Last to Leave the Republic

Woods Hole, Mass., Jan. 26.—The United States revenue cutter Gresham, which was towing the Republic when she sank, left the spot where the steamer had gone down at 9 o'clock Sunday night and steamed for Gay Head, in company with the derelict destroyer Seneca. Off the entrance to Vineyard Sound the officers and crew of the Republic were sent on board the Seneca and taken to New York, while the Gresham came here.

The officers of the revenue cutter readily told of their experiences after sighting the sinking Republic, Sunday forenoon, some ten miles to the southward. The Baltic had gone on to New York. Preparations were made to tow the Republic to the nearest land for beaching, as Captain Sealby thought that she could be saved. The captain and Second Officer Williams of the steamer, together with about thirty-five of the crew, clambered back on board the Republic from the boats in which they had been lying alongside, and with the British steamer Furnessia behind, acting as a rudder, a start was made toward the northwest and Nantucket Island.

A few hours later the Seneca joined in the struggle to bring the Republic to land, and at dark the tug Mary F. Scully arrived on the scene. But the steamer's bulkheads were unable to stand the pressure, and at 7 o'clock Sunday nght Sealby ordered every man off the ship. He himself refused to leave and his second officer remained by his commander's side.

An hour later, while the searchlights of the Scully were playing on the scene, two shots were heard from the bridge of the Republic, two blue lights were burned and then the bow of the doomed steamer shot up in the air and the great liner sank, stern first.

Just before she went down Sealby climbed the mast, while Williams jumped from the rail. Neither had provided himself with a life belt and both were in the water half an hour before one of the Gresham's lifeboats hauled them aboard and carried them to the revenue cutter.

On the after deck of the Republic as she went down rested two caskets, containing the bodies of Mrs. Eugene Lynch of Boston and W. J. Mooney of Langdon, N. D., who were killed in the collision between the Republic and the Italian steamer Florida.

Praise For Binns

Washington, Jan. 26.—An interesting feature in the house of representatives was praise by Mr. Boutell (Ills.), of the heroism of John R. Binns, the wireless operator aboard the steamship Republic, in collision with the Florida. His remarks were loudly applauded.

SUTTON THE FAVORITE

High Runs Are Certain In Contest For 18.1 Billiard Championship

New York, Jan. 26.—The "knights of the green cloth" will have an inning here tonight, when "Student" George Slosson and Champion George Sutton play for the 18.1 balk line billiard championship. Both men are in excellent form for the contest, and high runs are certain.

GEORGE SLOSSON

While Sutton is the favorite, many followers of the game expect to see the veteran Slosson defeat the champion. The latter has been playing in superb form in recent practice games. The match, besides being for the championship, involves a bet of $1000.

Willie Hoppe, the boy wonder, will be on hand to challenge the winner. He declares that his recent deposit of $1000 as a forfeit or a side bet for a match for the championship is still good.

FRAUD IN TOWN LOTS

Secret Service Men Have Been Active In Gathering Evidence

Muskogee, Okla., Jan. 26.—Government officials now in Muskogee assert that no fraud in town lots ever investigated will equal the stupendous proportions of that now figuring in the government case here.

Witnesses from a dozen states have arrived to testify before the federal grand jury which meets today. A large corps of secret service men worked for months to find them.

These secret service men, it is said, have got from the witnesses affidavits that they were used as "dummies" in scheduling the lots and that they knew nothing of the use of their names until asked within the past three years to sign quit claim deeds to the lots.

Baron Rosen to Leave Us

St. Petersburg, Jan. 26.—It is now believed certain that Baron Rosen, the ambassador to the United States, will be transferred to Rome in the impending diplomatic shakeup and that M. G. Bakhmetieff, former minister to Japan, will be appointed to the ambassadorship at Washington.

Strike of Linotypers

Paris, Jan. 26.—All the linotypers on the Paris newspapers went on strike last night for an increase in wages. The publishers were expecting the strike and had made arrangements to print their papers by hand, therefore suffering only slight inconvenience and delay.

Doctor Charged With Murder

Exeter, N. H., Jan. 26.—The trial of Dr. Herbert A. White of Northampton, charged with murder for causing the death of Mary A. Lane through an illegal operation, has begun here.

FATALLY BEAT AN OLD WOMAN

Boy of Fifteen Makes a Startling Confession to the Police

PUT THROUGH "THIRD DEGREE"

Says He Planned to Lay Out Lawrence Widow the Night Before Crime Was Perpetrated, but Postponed Action Because Intended Victim Had Company—Story Told Without a Sign of Emotion

Lawrence, Mass., Jan. 26.—"Yes, I killed the old woman and with that club there. I had planned to lay her out and rob her store on the night before, but she had company then and so I waited until the next morning. I suppose I am in for murder now."

Such was the startling confession that Ambrose Van Bushkirk, a 15-year-old South Lawrence lad, made to the police authorities here, they assert, in connection with one of the most shocking and brutal murders in the history of this city.

He had been taken to headquarters on suspicion of knowing something of the savage assault which was made on a neighbor, Mrs. Catherine Gray, a 70-year-old widow, who was so badly beaten by a robber who looted her store last Saturday that she died yesterday without regaining consciousness.

At first he denied all knowledge of the crime or the bludgeon found in the store, but after being put through the "third degree" by the police for over three hours, he finally blurted out what he declares to be the truth of the matter.

Calmly and dispassionately, as if only confessing guilt of a mere schoolboy prank, and without a sign of a tear in his eyes or even a quivering of his lips, the police say he told a story the like of which has not been heard from the lips of a boy in Massachusetts for many years.

UNDER INFLUENCE OF THEIR HOMES

Opinion That Children Can Thus Best Be Reared

Washington, Jan. 26.—The importance of the preservation of the home was the central theme of the discussion at the conference on the care of dependent children which was formally opened by President Roosevelt at the White House. The subject under consideration was: "Should the breaking of a home be permitted for reasons of poverty, or only for reasons of inefficiency or immorality?"

It was the unanimous opinion of notable charity workers and others who took part in the discussion that the children can best be reared under the influence of the home, and that children should be removed from the family circle only when proper supervision at home has become impossible. It also was the consensus of opinion that when poverty existed in the home aid should be given. This was the principal topic, but other topics concerning the welfare of the child were discussed.

ONE MORE JUROR SECURED

Another Big Panel Reports In the Carmack Murder Case

Nashville, Jan. 26.—The net results of another day's work in the trial of Duncan B. Cooper, Robin Cooper and John D. Sharpe, for the murder of E. W. Carmack, was that one juror was added to the six already in the box.

A new panel of 500 men reported and at 4 o'clock Monday 110 had been examined. Of these the only one to qualify was J. H. Vaughn. The state has used ten of its eighteen peremptory challenges and the defense fourteen of its seventy-two.

EGGS FOR CARRIE NATION

But They Are Delivered In a Manner Not Acceptable to Her

London, Jan. 26.—Mrs. Carrie Nation, who is attempting to deliver a series of lectures here, met with a very hostile reception at the Canterbury Music hall last night. She was pelted with eggs, one of them striking her in the face.

From the very beginning the audience maintained a chorus of boos and hisses. Her manager vainly appealed for fair play, and Mrs. Nation was obliged to quit the house under police protection.

A Remarkable Recovery

Messina, Jan. 26.—Gaetano Militello, an octogenarian, was recovered from the earthquake ruins alive after twenty-nine days. Militello managed to escape from under the walls of a house a few days after the earthquake, fleeing in terror to the outskirts of the town, where he hid. For a time he sustained life with herbs, but at length fell exhausted under a pile of wreckage, where he was found by soldiers.

THE NEWFOUNDLAND FISHERIES DISPUTE

Agreement to Refer It to the International Tribunal

Washington, Jan. 26.—For the first time under the terms of the general arbitration treaties with the various countries of the world negotiated by Secretary Root, resort is to be had to the international tribunal at The Hague, to which body are to be referred the disputed questions growing out of the Newfoundland fisheries treaty of 1818 between the United States and Great Britain.

After protracted conferences of months' standing Secretary Root and Ambassador Bryce have come to a complete understanding. Final action was hastened by the presence at the conferences of Ministers of Justice Aylesworth of Canada and Kent of Newfoundland.

CHAPMAN MEETINGS BEGIN

Simultaneous Evangelistic Campaign In Boston and Surrounding Towns

Boston, Jan. 26.—Two of America's most famous religious workers, the Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman and Charles M. Alexander, will begin here today a series of simultaneous evangelistic meetings that are expected to reap a large harvest of souls. The preaching will be done by Dr. Chapman, and Mr. Alexander will be in charge of the musical side of the work.

REV. J. W. CHAPMAN.

Dr. Chapman is the executive secretary of the Presbyterian general assembly's committee on evangelistic work. Mr. Alexander is the author of many famous gospel hymns. He has conducted religious song services in many American and British cities in connection with the Rev. Reuben A. Torrey and others.

THE GRAZING INDUSTRY

To Be Discussed In Convention of Cattlemen In Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 26.—Questions of great importance to cattlemen throughout the country, especially in the west, will be discussed at the twelfth annual convention of the Ameican National Live Stock association, beginning here today and lasting three days. Hundreds of delegates, among whom are owners of some of the biggest western ranches, throng the streets of the city.

Among the important questions which will come before the convention will be the proposed revision of the tariff in its relation to meat, hides, wool and other products of the live stock industry.

It is expected that the association will adopt resolutions favoring the enactment of laws for adequate railroad service, the furnishing of plenty of freight cars and other problems of transportation.

MUMEROUS EMPTY CAVERNS

Anthracite Coal Supply Will Be Exhausted In Eighty-Five Years

Indianapolis, Jan. 26.—According to Professor Griffiths, mining expert and geologist, who is here attending the miners' convention, the supply of anthracite coal will be exhausted in eighty-five years. The production has been averaging just under 80,000,000 tons a year for several years.

Already much territory is entirely mined out and the empty caverns are so numerous and great now that it is possible for people to walk thirty or more miles under the surface of the earth in mine passages.

Dead Desperado Identified

London, Jan. 26.—One of the Russian desperadoes who was killed in the desperate attempt at highway robbery here last Saturday has been identified as Jacob Lapidus, a brother of Leiser Lapidus, who was blown to pieces in the mysterious bomb explosion in the forest of Vincennes, near Paris, in 1906.

Ruse of a Revolutionist.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

I was a student at the university. I called myself a student, though my mind was rather bent on obtaining freedom from despotism than my studies. St. Peteresburg was full of revolution and consequently full of spies.

One day I left our depot for revolutionary supplies, having filled my pockets with them, and I started out to leave them at points from which they would be further distributed. A man was standing near the door opening on to the street, who eyed me sharply. I knew at once that he was a spy sent to watch those who came and went from the house. We were suspected. Without appearing to notice him I sauntered off, swinging my cane unconcernedly, but when I got to a corner turned on purpose to note whether he was following me. When I saw that he was I gave myself up for lost.

I walked on outwardly unconcerned, inwardly terror stricken, until I saw an open door, the entrance to a respectable dwelling. Without reckoning what further I should do or say I mounted the steps, passed in at the door and closed it after me. No one was in the hall. I went into a room evidently used for a reception room. This, too, was empty. Lace curtains covered the windows opening on to the street, and, peeping through, I saw the spy looking up at the house with a puzzled expression. He stopped one who was passing, pointed to the house and asked a question. I could not hear what it was, but presumed he asked who lived there. The person evidently told him what he wished to know, for he appeared satisfied, but I was disappointed that he did not go away.

Hearing a light footstep behind me, I turned and saw a young girl, dressed to go out, drawing on a pair of gloves. She looked at me surprised and for an explanation as to my presence. My wits did not work quickly, but this was all the better, considering the course I took. I was stammering at a reason for my presence when one occurred to me. I would pretend to have got into the wrong house. I feigned a puzzled look, cast my eyes about me, then asked, "Will you kindly tell me who lives here?"

"Colonel Andriovitch, superintendent of police."

Great heavens! I had stumbled into the worst possible position—in the residence of a chief of police, my pockets full of revolutionary documents and a spy waiting for me outside.

If I pretended to have got into the wrong house there was nothing for me to do but leave and walk into the arms of the spy. If I pretended to have called on the superintendent I must have a reason for doing so. I decided on the latter course before inventing the reason.

"Then I am not mistaken, after all," I said. "I have called to see the superintendent. The door stood open, so I walked in. Is Colonel Andriovitch at home?"

"No, but I expect him every moment. Will you be seated and wait for him?"

I looked at my watch, not to note the time, but for an excuse to put off a decision.

"I have but little time to spare," I said. "I will wait a few minutes. Colonel Andriovitch is your"—

"Father."

"Indeed! I am very glad. Perhaps you can help me."

"How?"

Now, the method of her assistance flashed into my brain with the rapidity of an electric current. I lowered my voice and spoke quickly and impressively:

"Come to the window."

She followed me, and I showed her the spy loitering outside. "Do you see that man? He is a revolutionist. He belongs to a gang who are distributing revolutionary documents. I have come here to inform upon them to your father. The circle suspect me and have sent this man to spy upon my movements. Should I go out on to the street I would be followed and murdered."

My story evidently impressed the girl, and she stood thinking.

"But you can stay here till father returns."

Stay there with my pocket full of revolutionary documents and a man without ready to denounce me! Not if I could help it. Again I set my inventive powers to work.

"Such a course," I said, "would enable the revolutionary circle to get rid of their documents and escape. If there is a back door through which I can pass to another street I could go out, join the circle, of which I am a pretended member, forestall this spy, and while they are deliberating whether to believe his story or mine your father can send and have them arrested."

"There are a back door," she said, "and a yard, beyond which is an alley."

I was near the window, with my eye keeping watch outside. Half a block away I saw a man in uniform coming down the street. It was the superintendent.

"Tell your father when he comes," I said, "to send to 49 —— street, surround the house, and he will bag the lot. Show me the door."

The girl led me to the rear of the house and opened the door. I passed out into the garden and the alley and thence to the street, where I mingled with the throng.

I afterward looked for the address I had given. Fortunately there was no such number.

HIDDEN DANGERS

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Quincy Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy, or a thick, red, dissmelling urine, full of sediment and irregular of passage.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick Kidneys and warn you of the approach of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's Quincy proof.

P. J. Garrity, living at 367 Granite St., Quincy, Mass., says: "Some time ago I was afflicted with Kidney disease and was in such a condition that I could hardly get about. The trouble was especially severe at night and I could not find any position that was comfortable. The kidney secretions were too frequent in action and caused me to arise many times during the night to avoid them. I was rapidly growing worse and was at a loss to know what to do, as the many remedies I tried failed to help me. Finally Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store and began their use. When I had taken the contents of four boxes I was in good health. I highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to take no other.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and other Kidney sufferers."

A WARNING.

"Will you walk into my parlor?"
Said the chipmunk to the whale.
"The place is large and roomy.
Come in and rest your tail.
Come, join me in a sandwich.
Of food I have no lack,
And after things substantial
There are some nuts to crack."

"Oh, no!" the whale made answer.
"To ask me is in vain.
Your invitation gives me,
I grieve to say, a pain.
I fear that such a visit
My mother dear would shock.
She always likes to have me home
In bed by eight o'clock."

But still the little chipmunk
With vigor pressed the point.
The whale was thus persuaded
To walk into his joint.
He never did come out again
Around the seas to fly.
The chipmunk ate him at a bite,
Which caused the whale to die.

The moral of this little tale
Is clear as living coal;
Don't go, although politely pressed,
Into a chipmunk's hole.
Another moral to the yarn,
As any one can see,
Is not to ask an elephant
If it can change a V.

BUSINESS CARES ARE DROPPED

Sidney C. Love Startles Chicago Financial World

A "RUSH" JOB BY TELEGRAPH

Business Formerly Rated at $25,000,000 a Year Abandoned by Young Man Who Quickly Amassed a Fortune—Going Abroad With Wife Who Has Been Called the World's Most Beautiful Woman

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Sidney C. Love of New York and Chicago, having amassed, during a brief but brilliant career, a fortune said to be close to $2,000,000, and having married a Chicago society girl, pronounced by Sir Philip Burne-Jones, the artist, to be the most beautiful woman in the world, has quietly retired from business.

Love had contemplated the act for some months, but so quietly were the details worked—it was done in four hours by the strenuous use of direct telegraph wire—that the announcement that Sidney C. Love & Co. had abandoned a business formerly rated at $25,000,000 a year startled the local financial district.

Mr. and Mrs. Love, the latter formerly Miss Marjorie Burns of Chicago, and said to be very wealthy in her own right, will leave soon for a tour of Europe, during which there will be no business cares to haunt them.

Love is 36 years of age. He began his business career as a clerk fifteen years ago and the brokerage business at the time the Moores began their successful campaign to secure the Rock Island road.

Love's associates in business were Frederick Swift of New York and Frederick C. Aldrich of Chicago. "It was rather sudden," said Aldrich. "Mr. Love talked of it last winter when business was dull and again in New York a few days ago when I was there, but nothing definite was agreed upon. Our partnership agreement did not terminate till April 1 next. However, the wire began buzzing, Mr. Love had concluded to wind up affairs and inside of four hours it had been done.

"Besides the main offices in New York and Chicago, our branches in Minneapolis and St. Louis have closed. Our New York business was transferred to Hollister & Babcock, and our grain deals on the Chicago Board of Trade to Shearson, Hamill & Co. There is no mystery about it and no financial embarrassment. For myself, I shall go into business again; Mr. Love's ultimate plans I do not know."

Prior to his removal to New York about three weeks ago, Love was secretary of the Chicago Horse Show association. His marriage to Miss Burns was a society event of recent history.

"MERELY A CLEARING UP"

What Edward P. Shaw Says of His Million Dollar Failure

Newburyport, Mass., Jan. 26.—"The importunities of smaller creditors, and not the pressure of those heavily interested, was the immediate cause of my petition, which I have succeeded in postponing for a long time," is the cause ascribed by Edward P. Shaw for his million dollar failure. The petition brings to a temporary close the business career of one of the greatest electric railroad promoters in the state.

"It is merely a clearing up, that is all, and you may be sure that it does not mean a close to my business activities."

In this city, where Shaw started in business as a back driver, the petition which was filed yesterday has been expected for some time.

Monteleone, Jan. 26.—The earth shocks average a dozen daily and apparently they are increasing in number and intensity. The refugees are in a constant state of alarm and the vast majority of them have decided to emigrate to America as soon as they can secure transportation.

On the distant horizon, Mount Etna can be seen emitting an immense column of smoke, which, being white, the people consider a bad omen.

ROJESTVENSKY'S BRAVERY.

How the Russian Admiral Sank Three Turkish Ships.

Vice Admiral Sinovi Petrovitch Rojestvensky, who recently died at St. Petersburg, was called "the silent admiral" by his men. He commanded the ill fated Russian fleet which was annihilated by the Japanese in the sea of Japan in May, 1905.

During the Russo-Turkish war Admiral Rojestvensky was the hero of uncommon feats of bravery. Dr. M. W. Pickard, a Russian by birth, who spent several years in the Imperial Naval academy at Odessa, told as follows how the admiral won his St. George cross for bravery:

"The story is told differently in Russia from the way it is here. The story I learned at the academy tells of sinking three Turkish vessels in his first engagement.

"The boat Vesta was a little vessel, not more than 150 feet long, and was engaged in carrying munitions of war from Russia's larger cities to the Danube. Captain Popoff was in command, with Rojestvensky second. One day in 1877 this little vessel was steaming along toward a point on the Roumanian coast, traveling through a fog and mist. Suddenly it came in sight of a ship and, as usual, cleared its deck for action. The Vesta carried few guns, just enough to protect it in case of attack.

"The Vesta started into the big ship, but when it drew nearer it found itself confronting a Turkish battleship which had two obsolete vessels with it. The battleship turned a broadside loose at the Vesta, and at the first shot Captain Popoff was killed. Rojestvensky took command and fought out the battle. His gunners did their work so well that the battleship and the two smaller vessels were sunk. The Vesta itself was disabled, but managed to get back to the island of Pheodonis, or Snake island, where it was beached. It was afterward raised and taken to Odessa and repaired. For a number of years it was used in passenger service in the Black sea. It was ever afterward known as the Rojestvensky ship.

"A peculiar feature of the Vesta history was its ending. In 1887, while sailing near Roumania, it ran into a storm and went down with all on board. The ship sank not ten miles from where it had fought its fight with the Turkish vessels."

ROOSEVELT'S 98 MILE RIDE.

President Rode Seventeen Hours to Refute Criticisms of Officers' Tests.

In the interests of showing that his endurance tests for army officers have not been excessively hard, President Roosevelt recently rode ninety-eight miles on horseback and was none the worse for it the next day apparently.

When he dismounted at night at the White House door, more than seventeen hours after having departed therefrom, he explained, according to a Washington dispatch, that he wanted to "prove to the critics who have found fault with the recent order requiring all army and navy officers to take a physical test that if a president who is not in training can ride ninety miles plus in one day without being laid up in bed thereby it should not be too much to ask the men who are supposed to be in the best of physical training all the time to ride ninety miles in three days."

Mounting his jumper Roswell in front of the White House door at 3:30 o'clock in the morning, he dismounted at the same place at 8:40 o'clock at night. The journey was to Warrenton, Va., and back. "And Virginia roads in the winter time," said the president, "are not usually in the best condition."

On the return trip the last thirty miles of the journey were made in sleet and rain, while the last fifteen miles were in almost pitch darkness. When he dismounted his coat and hat were frozen stiff with sleet and ice.

In less than an hour after returning to the White House the president had changed his ice coated clothing for evening dress and appeared in the dining room, ready for as hearty a meal as he has eaten for a long time. If any of the critics of his "army riding order" had dropped in about that time they would have been sadly disappointed, for the president did not show in the least by his walk that he had been sitting for nearly seventeen hours in a hard saddle.

Grief Stricken Italy.

[Offered in sympathy to Italians in America.]

O lovely, stricken land
Of the fierce titan's home,
That wakes and throws the brand
To make of thousand lives his priceless hecatomb!

Thy dwellings, mart and shrine
A sepulture awaits,
Bitter as is the brine
Or ash far blown upon Messina's azure straits!

But land of every heart—
Of every dreaming soul
That homes to thee and art—
Madonna-land, we in thy sorrows seek a part.

Who hath more right to share
(Of all the peopled earth)
The sorrows thou must bear?
So many sons of thine have here their home and hearth!

Divided by the sea,
Afar they stand and weep.
Their loves are slain in thee,
Lapped in burnt sepulture or sunken in the deep!

Thy queen but yesterday
Thy little children sought,
Who hurt and moaning lay,
And as she bent to them the name of "Mother" taught!

So would my own fair land
Unto thine orphaned ones
In guise of parent stand.
Oh, call her "Mother!" ye sad Italy's absent sons!

FROM MESSINA'S RUIN

First Survivor to Reach America Tells Vivid Earthquake Tale.

"SEEMED LIKE WORLD'S END."

"Thought I Was In Purgatory," Says Giuseppe Cutroneo, Who Witnessed Sicilian City's Fearful Fate—Tidal Wave a Terrifying Sight.

Giuseppe Cutroneo, a butcher of Messina, who lost his wife and three children in the recent earthquake which devastated Sicily, is the first witness of the great disaster to reach New York. In telling of his escape from death he said in part:

"I was in the cattle business in Messina, and to this fact I owe my life. On the morning of Dec. 28 I got up at 4:15 o'clock to take a trip into the country to buy steers. All was quiet as I left my home, 188 Corso Victor Emmanuel, and walked to the station, about a mile distant. As it happened, the car in which I took my seat was the last coach, which stood outside the train shed. Had I taken a forward car I doubtless would have been killed.

"Of a sudden the car shot up in the air, falling with a crash on one side. A deafening roar filled my head. The air became suffocating. My body seemed to grow numb all at once. I don't know how long I lay in a sort of stupor before I realized that there was a hole over me, through which I climbed.

"The spectacle again stupefied me. I thought the world had come to an end and that I was in purgatory. I could not at first recognize what I saw as Messina. Still the earth trembled, and quakes came intermittently, each one toppling over walls that had been cracked or left standing by the first shock. I looked back at the station. It had collapsed, and the train shed had fallen on the forward part of the train and crushed it almost flat.

"As soon as I realized that I was still alive I thought of my wife and three little children. I rushed back into Messina, although now fires had started in all directions. Here would tower the flame of a broken gas main, roaring and leaping like a gigantic torch. There the wood skeleton of a house blazed like a hundred bonfires in one. The air was full of smoke and dust, yet I could see close to the shore a great rift, where the earth had been torn apart. Into it many of the houses had fallen, catching fire as they fell, so that the smoke that rose made the ditch look like an elongated volcano.

"I looked seaward and was transfixed by the most terrifying sight of all. A wave was advancing toward the city that grew as it approached until it seemed as high as the lighthouse. It tumbled the ships about like toys, turning them turtle or tossing them on their beam ends. It came with tremendous velocity, but to me it seemed an age before it swept over the lighthouse and engulfed the city, tearing away the piers like paper and swallowing the shore front. Far inland it swept, extinguishing many of the fires.

"The people running about in the streets acted like lunatics. Some were clambering over the ruins in their nightclothes searching for relatives. Through cracks the people that still lived cried to those they feared were dead. Other survivors whom I met had wound around them bits of carpet or bedclothes, while others had forgotten all about apparel.

"I found only a heap of bricks, twisted iron and wood splinters where I used to live. The five stores had tumbled into a heap about fifteen feet high. My home was in a four room flat on the first floor. It had been buried at the bottom. Without thinking how impossible was the task I began to dig in the ruins. Down below I could hear moans, and they made me work like a madman.

"I would sometimes think I heard my wife's cry, and I would yell down into some crevice, 'Floria, Floria, here is your Giuseppe!' and then I would call to my children—to Diego, my six-year-old little boy; to Tony, who was four, and Natalina, the baby. I was still digging when some Russian soldiers came and asked me if I did not want something to eat. Eighty people were in the house where I lived, and only one or two besides myself escaped.

"For two days and a night I wandered about Messina until I thought the sights of crime and death would drive me crazy. Ghouls began to prey upon the dead, digging up corpses to rob them. When the soldiers caught these fiends at work they would riddle them with bullets.

"Never will I forget my run toward my home. I saw many persons. Several had been injured by falling walls. One man, with his legs broken, worked his way painfully along, leaving a trail of blood behind him. Again I saw a woman crawling over a mass of ruins, clinging to a child. God! If I live a thousand years I can never forget those sights! Here an old man was making his way along, searching wildly among the smoking ruins for loved ones. I saw another man scrambling over the ruins, calling his wife's name as I was doing. A year was lived in that day.

"On the evening of Dec. 28 about 200 of the survivors, including myself, went aboard the Regina Marguarita, which the government had made use of as a transport. We were carried to Palermo. On reaching Palermo I went to a hospital. On my way I met a well dressed man, who on learning I wanted to come to America gave me $38 for my passage."

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

Holding her tongue somehow seems to make a woman strong; anyhow, she can do a lot more than the woman who doesn't.

We accumulate a lot of wisdom, good wisdom that we don't have personal use for, but are entirely willing to bestow upon the deserving poor.

What's the use of being married if you can't boss the job? That's why there are so many divorces.

There are too many people working at being specialists who have never qualified for the job.

As a general proposition, ideals have nothing to do with big deals.

It is hard to satisfy some people; but, then, that is their chief charm.

The man who laughs at your joke is entitled to your courteous consideration, and don't for a moment doubt that he is aware of it.

Many and many a beautiful New Year resolution will bloom and flourish only to become a faded dissolution.

If you encourage a fool he will sooner or later claim you as his brother.

There is only one excuse for having a grievance; if you capitalize and collect profits from it, all right.

The Conversation Route.

Some people when they tell a thing
In flowery garments dress it,
And other creatures know a lot,
But cannot quite express it.
The gift of gab is something great,
Assisting the possessor
To make his way around the world
Or I am no good guesser.

Palaver, properly applied
And to the case adjusted,
Assists a man though he is down
And for the moment busted.
It opens up the hearts of men
Who hear its liquid flowing,
And if they are inclined to balk
It straightway sets them going.

"Words, idle words," the poet said
When speaking of the gabble
That everywhere assailed his ears
When mixing with the rabble.
But let these words be caught and tamed
And broken to the bridle
So they may do the talker's will
And they are not so idle.

That talk is cheap we often hear,
But still that doesn't matter.
A very inexpensive toy,
If rightly used, may flatter,
And conversation conned with care,
Set skillfully in motion,
Will get a man most anything
To which he takes a notion.

Couldn't Surprise Him.

"The agent was showing old Bill Bartness from Wayback through a house with all modern improvements."

"Made Bill open his eyes some, I imagine."

"Not so any one could notice it. He never asked a question. Even pretended that he knew what the bathtub was for."

WHAT TO DO BEFORE THE DOCTOR COMES.

Put all your property in your wife's name. His visits may be many and occur often. When he sues you for the amount of his bill you will have the dead wood on him.

Quiet your pulses as much as possible; this may help to reduce the size of his bill. Say farewell to your tongue; the first thing he will do will be to tell you to put it out.

Tell your wife to bring all the grocer's slips and arrange them in a neat pile on the table. He will want to know what you have been eating.

Just before he arrives get especially busy about something. He will insist that you stop work at once, and it will be well to be in a position to comply with his demands.

Pass all the doctor's idiosyncrasies in mental review to refresh your memory and resolve to let his opinions go undisputed; he will probably charge any difference of opinion up in the bill.

EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN OPENS AUSPICIOUSLY

Rev. Dr. J. W. Weddell Conducts Service Assisted by Combined Choir

The Chapman—Alexander Evangelistic campaign was opened in Quincy on Tuesday evening the services being held in the Bethang Congregational church. The large number of people filling the edifice gave evidence of the interest that has been aroused over the campaign.

The campaign in Quincy is under the charge of Rev. Dr. John W. Weddell, pastor of the Lakewood Baptist church, Cleveland, Ohio. Dr. Weddell will be assisted during the campaign by Prof. E. C. Zartman of Heidelberg college, Tiffin, Ohio. Prof. Zartman will lead the congregational singing and will be the soloist.

Seated on the pulpit platform besides Dr. Deddell and Prof. Zartman were, Rev. Dr. E. N. Hardy of the Bethany church, chairman of the local campaign, Rev. A. M. Thompson, pastor of the United Presbyterian church, Rev. E. A. Chase of the Wollaston Congregational church, Rev. W. J. Heath of the Wollaston M. E. church, Rev. H. G. Megathlin of the Park and Downs Congregational, and Rev. Edward Norton, pastor emeritus of Bethany church.

The services began with singing by the congregation assisted by the combined choirs of the churches taking part in the campaign. Everybody joined in the singing ably led by Prof. Zartman. Madame Beale Morey the regular organist of Bethany church presided at the organ.

The first hymn sung was "There shal be showers of blessing." This was followed by "Trust and Obey" and "Hold Me Fast." Prof. Zartman then sang "Speak just a word of Jesus." The services were then formally opened with prayer by Rev. A. M. Thompson. Dr. Hardy, chairman, after a few brief remarks, introduced Rev. John W. Weddell and the campaign was on.

Dr. Weddell spoke a word of greeting saying that he was very much gratified to see the large attendance and expressed the hope that the enthusiasm would not wear away after a few nights. He said he would try to make the meetings pleasant and enjoyable, mingling song with preaching.

He then called on Rev. Mr. Norton for prayer, after which he began his talk in earnest. Dr. Weddell took his text from Acts VIII, 35, "And Philip opened his mouth and spoke to them, Jesus." He said that Jesus should be the one word, the one thought and the one spirit of the people today as it was in the Apostolic days. The Holy Spirit and the angels ever bring to us the word, Jesus, said the speaker, and success must come if we always think of Him. He said that we must not only preach Jesus, but we must also exemplify Him in our daily life. His chief point was to impress on the minds of his audience the one word "Jesus," that would bring success to all.

Dr. Weddell is a man of about 60 years of age, and is an impressive and earnest speaker, and his heart and soul seem to be in his subject. His appearance is pleasing and his manner attractive, while his beaming eyes seem to hold his hearers with a visible charm. His gestures are few, but natural and are brought out impulsively by some salient point in his address.

The services were closed with singing by the congregation and choir led by Prof. Zartman. The closing prayer was made by Rev. Edward A. Chase of the Wollaston Congregational church.

The committee in charge consists of Rev. E. N. Hardy, Ph. D., chairman, Rev. A. M. Thompson, secretary, William G. Shaw, treasurer, Richard D. Bishop, chairman of music committee and Ernest D. Gourd, chief of ushers.

☞The Chapman-Alexander revival meetings in Greater Boston which began Tuesday evening, January 26, will run continously, excepting Saturdays, until after February 21. Simultaneous meetings will be held each evening in twenty five churches throughout Greater Boston.

Messrs. Chapman and Alexander will have the assistance of over sixty evangelists, chorus leaders and revival organizers, who come from all parts of the world to aid in the moral and religious awakening of the city. A complete organization of the ministers and laymen in the district interested in the work has been perfected.

You will want an account of these meetings, in order to know what is being done by these world-wide evangelists. It will be interesting in after years to have an authentic account of the Great Boston Revival. Perhaps you have a relative or friend far distant who would be interested in having a record of the efforts of the workers in this signal moral awakening of the city.

No better way to get such information is to be had than in subscribing for the Boston Evening Transcript for the time covering the revival. A special reduced rate has been arranged. We shall be pleased to mail the Transcript from January 26 to February 23 for sixty cents, postpaid. This is less than the regular subscription price and will be good only for the Transcript between the dates mentioned. Send today.

GALAHAD SOCIAL.

The second social of the season under the auspices of the Galahad Brotherhood of Christ church, was held Tuesday evening in the parish house. It was attended by about 30 couples and was even more successful than the first.

The social was opened with selections by Smith's orchestra, which also provided the music for the dancing. Between the dances the following program was rendered and many encores were in order: Songs by Mr. Walter G. Field, accompanied by Miss Hardy. Master Verner Birnie, the choir soloist, accompanied by Miss N. Drummond, and Dr. Arthur P. Gould of Cohasset, accompanied by Quincy's well-known musician, Prof. Wrigley. Recitations by Mr. Ernest Warren, and two splendidly executed piano solos by Miss Nellie Drummond.

The matrons were Mrs. J. H. Stedman, Mrs. Alexander Hall and Mrs. Byron C. Miller.

The floor director was Byron C. Miller. Delicious frappe was served by our budding caterer, Herbert G. Dickie. Closing time came all too quickly for the majority, and all will anxiously await the announcement of the next social, which, however, will not take place until after the Lenten season is over.

MYSTERY SHROUDS DEATH OF QUINCY POINT MAN

Christopher Sarsdahl May Have Been The Victim of Foul Play.

A mystery surrounded the death of Christopher Sarsdahl, a Norwegian, who died this morning at City hospital. The man was employed at the Fore River shipyard but did not work Tuesday.

In the afternoon Mrs. Helliksen, with whom Sarsdahl boarded at 39 North street, called Dr. W. I. Middleton to attend the man whose head was battered and smashed and who was in an extremely critical condition. The doctor arrived about 2 o'clock and found Sarsdahl raving in convulsion and expressed little hope for his recovery.

He ordered the man rushed to the hospital with all possible haste.

The ambulance was sent for and the unconscious Sarsdahl was hurried to the City Hospital. He never regained consciousness and died this morning. The body was taken to John Hall's undertaking rooms and there awaits an autopsy which will probably be held this afternoon.

Whether the man was a victim of foul play is not yet known as the police have made but little progress in the investigation which they are conducting. Mr. and Mrs. Helliksen cannot be located, the police having failed to arouse anyone at their home on North street. Mrs. Helliksen has a sister living at 24 Charles street, but her whereabouts cannot be discovered either.

They were all at the undertaking rooms this morning but disappeared after viewing the body. It is the opinion of Chief Burrell that they are with some of their Norwegian friends and strenuous effort is being made to locate them.

Officer Lyons has been detailed to watch the house where the dead man lived so that if anyone comes there they will not get away. The house of Mrs. Helliksen's sister on Charles street will also be under the watchful eye of the police and every effort will be made to find the missing people.

The man was thought to be a drinking man and the police think that he may have fallen on the slippery ground and sustained the injury which caused his death. A trail of blood has been found which begins and ends mysteriously. The trail was picked up within 25 yards of the North street house in the middle of the street.

It can be traced along North street, the blood spots being visible all the way. Up Washington street the trail runs on the left hand sidewalk, here and there large spots being noticed which would seem to indicate that the blood was flowing profusely. The spots show up bright on the glary ice and look much like human blood spots.

As far as Massachusetts avenue the blood trail can be seen but here it disappears, as mysteriously as it began on North street. What is the meaning of this mysterious beginning and ending of the bloody trail is the thing that is giving the police no little worry. This point too will be thoroughly looked into and if possible the trail will be picked up and followed up.

The house where the man lived is known as the old Bills estate and the Helliksens have resided there for about a year. Sarsdahl was the only boarder they had and the neighbors say that the house was quiet and that the people seemed to stay by themselves. There are two children in the family and both were at school today.

The only life about the house today was a St. Bernard dog who was hanging about the house seeming to know that something had gone wrong.

Until the family have been found, the cause of the man's death will remain a mystery, as no one in the neighborhood seems to know anything about the affair.

EPIDEMICS IN VERMONT TOWNS

Measles, Scarlet Fever and Smallpox Are Raging

Rutland, Vt., Jan. 27.—An epidemic of measles and scarlet fever prevails in several towns of the state, necessitating in many places the closing of the schools and the discontinuance of church services and public meetings of all kinds.

Of the affected towns Bethel is the hardest hit by smallpox. Over 200 cases of measles have been treated at North Troy, and over 300 at Brandon.

Schools, church services and all public meetings have been suspended at Shoreham on account of the prevalence of measles, and half the houses of the town are quarantined.

CARMACK CASE JURORS

Two Who Know Nothing Through the Medium of Newspapers

Nashville, Jan. 27.—When the second venire of 500 talesmen was exhausted Tuesday without the completion of the jury to try Duncan B. Cooper, Robin Cooper and John D. Sharpe, for the slaying of E. W. Carmack, Judge Hart announced that he would devote today to the hearing of charges of intoxication against Jurors Leigh and Jackson. Meantime, he drew another venire of 500 names and the sheriff is summoning them for service Friday.

H. P. Jackson, a blacksmith, 57 years old, who has not read a newspaper for twenty-eight years, was accepted as juror No. 8. S. M. Hyde, a farmer, 48 years old, who had never read a newspaper, but who was opposed to capital punishment, was accepted as juror No. 9.

IMMIGRATION QUESTION

Gillett Warns California Solons Against Taking Action Regarding It

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 27.—With a warning against any anti-Japanese legislation under the recommendation that the labor commission be given money to take a census in the state, Governor Gillett sent a special message to the legislature.

He advises compliance with the request of the federal government that no action be taken on the immigration question. That matter should be left to the United States alone, says the governor.

At the Dudley street church Boston Monday evening it is reported that the men in attendence far exceeded the women.

What is the good of squabbling over, who was or was not a coward in the Republic disaster. Why not call everybody a hero and let it go at that.

The communication to the Ledger printed yesterday regarding the trolley express, recalls to mind that all of the great and useful inventions of the past century have met with strenuous opposition in their infancy. Some people always seem strangely loth to accept and take advantage of new and better things, and put a block at every opportunity beneath the wheels of progress. For the information of our correspondent who does not seem to be cognizant of the fact, we might say that the city of Quincy once had the opportunity to secure this same trolley express service, but refused to have it, its governing powers not being willing to grant the franchise for the service for which the company asked.

The city of Quincy is no longer a country village, but a thriving, busy city, with prospects of a splendid future. That it may attain this future is the desire of every local citizen. It deserves and should have every possible advantage to assist in this attainment. The trolley express has been in operation over two years. It has had time in the communities where it has been operated to prove whether it is a good thing or not. From what our correspondent says, and others who have been in a position to watch its rapid development, it appears to be a good thing, a genuine aid to a citys welfare. If this is so as would certainly seem from reports, it is something the city of Quincy should have and have as speedily as it can be obtained.

The order now before the Council asking the City to build one or two factory buildings costing $50,000, more or less, to be leased under certain restrictions to any concern which wishes to utilize them for manufacturing purposes will hardly stand legal scrutiny. It is extremely doubtful if the city can embark in a real estate scheme without getting into serious trouble.

The Revised Laws explicitly specify for what purposes money can be legally appropriated. That it can be used to erect factory buildings or for similar purposes is unquestionally open to doubt, so much so in fact that intimation has been heard from several prominent citizens that should the Council make an appropriation for such purpose that an injunction would be applied for through the Superior Court under the provision of Chap. 26, Sect. 100 of the Revised Laws which provides that "if a city or town or any of its officers or agents are about to raise or expend money or incur obligation purporting to bind said city or town, for any purpose or object or in any manner other than those, for and in which such city or town has the legal and constitutional right and power to praise or expend money or incur obligations, the Supreme Judicial court or the Superior court may, upon the petition of not less than ten taxable inhabitants of the city or town, determine the same in equity, and may, before the final determination of the cause, restrain the unlawful exercise or abuse of such croporate power."

It is understood however, that Mayor Shea has the legality of the order in mind and if it should reach him may turn it down as being unconstitutional.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

It appears from a protest by Andre Hallays, art critic for the Journal des Debats and spokesman for the Society of Friends of Paris Sites and Gardens, that by the willingness of a number of Americans to contribute towards the building of a great concert hall—the term is not here descriptive of "concert hall" in the most modern sense—in Paris, there is threatened the destruction of the "children's garden" in the Champs Elysees. It is said that four-fifths of the necessary funds for this building have been subscribed by Americans. The Paris municipal council is considering the location of the hall upon the Champs Elysees site. Paris needs such a concert hall. The willingness of Americans to furnish the money is appreciated. But why, asks Mr. Hallays, cannot another site be chosen? He says, in his appeal to prevent the choosing of the Champs Elysees site, that "in order to erect this edifice they are about to menace an admirable promenade, take away from Parisians air, light, and probably trees, and deprive children of their accustomed playground, while there are 20 other sites where the proposed concert hall might be erected, without injury to the beauty and health of Paris." There is good sentiment on his appeal. If the conditions are as this advocate of city beauty says they are, it would be better and more creditable to abandon the concert hall project entirely than to put a blot on the beauties of Paris. To Paris the world looks for that very thing which, says M. Hallays, is now menaced.—Boston Advertiser.

Animated by respect for the dignity of the American congress and a love of fair play toward the president of the United States, the timely interference of Representative Gardner in cutting off the bitter attack of Congressman Willett will be commended by every fair-minded citizen in this country. It is only too evident that the enemies of President Roosevelt are rallying for the purpose of roasting him continuously on the congressional spit before he goes out of office on March 4. Patience had ceased to be a virtue and it was time for some strong member of the congress to take a hand. The protest of Congressman Gardner will be commended.

When Mr. Willett declared that the president was a beneficiary of assassination and a pigmy descendant of Dutch tradespeople he offered an insult to every decent and law-abiding citizen in this republic. It is something entirely unprecedented to publicly humiliate a president of the United States, without right or reason, on the floor of the American congress, Mr. Willett seemed to forget that Roosevelt was the choice of the people by a plurality of 2,545,515 votes over his Democratic opponent. That means something. It means that every attack on the president will reflect more on congress than on the man in the White house. It means that the standard of statesmanship is growing less and that the timber in one branch of congress is so low that it requires the interference of a representative of old Massachusetts to bring that body to an appreciation of the meaning of decency and common sense.

The country feels it keenly enough when the house of representatives is reflected upon in an unjust way, but what are we to say when billingsgate and calumny and slander, all unfounded, are hurled at the president from the floor of that house?

The people of New York fail to show proper respect for congress and for republican institutions generally by sending men of Mr. Willett's stamp to Washington. That is, at least, the most charitable excuse that can be offered for his vulgar personalities of yesterday. They were offensive to the last degree to the dignity and decency of the American people.

This district is entitled to the congratulations and gratitude of the whole country in sending a representative to congress who had the moral courage to resent an insult to the chief executive of the republic and place the muzzle of wholesome public sentiment on the lips of an unworthy colleague who was unable to distinguish the difference between the slang of the slums and the speech of a statesman.—Haverhill Gazette.

Captain and Wireless Operator of the Republic Are Honored

SPECIFIC CAUSE OF WRECK

It Has Not Yet Been Discovered, but Agents of the Florida Are Inclined to Place Blame Upon White Star Liner, Which, They Claim, Was Running at a High Rate of Speed When the Collision Occurred

New York, Jan. 27.—Features of Tuesday in the aftermath of the Nantucket collision, which resulted in the loss of the White Star liner Republic, the damaging the Italian liner Florida, the death of six persons and the injury of several others, were the honors extended to Captain Sealby and Wireless Operator Binns, of the Republic, and a statement by the Florida's people as to how the collision occurred. The White Star people promise their version of the causes of the collision today.

The day began with the landing at the White Star pier of Sealby and Binns. A big crowd awaiting them cheered the men heartily, while a score of enthusiastic admirers tossed the men to their shoulders and thus carried them to the steamship offices on the floor above. Here the captain and Binns held a reception, receiving the congratulations of scores of callers, and here Sealby modestly told the story of how he stood by his ship until she sank beneath him. Later Sealby and Binns, accompanied by Captain Ransom of the Baltic, went to the White Star offices on lower Broadway, where another great crowd met them and the ovation was repeated.

On the Brooklyn water front, at Bush's stores, the Florida, which rammed her nose into the Republic's side with such force as to give that ship what proved her death blow, was the scene of much activity. Her seamen were clearing away the debris and making her shipshape so that she might go into drydock for repairs.

Captain Ruspini declined to make any statement as to the cause of the collision, but after a conference with representatives of C. B. Richards & Co., his agents, and Archibald Thatcher, an admiralty lawyer, Richards & Co. gave a statement regarding the circumstances of the collision. Its feature was the direct charge that the Republic was running at a high rate of speed through the fog. It also refuted reports that the quartermaster of the Florida was to blame and that the captain struck the man.

A sad incident of the day was the death of Eugene Lynch of Boston in the Long Island hospital at Brooklyn. He succumbed to the serious injuries he received when the Florida crashed into the Republic's side just where his stateroom was located. His wife, who was with him, was killed instantly. Her body, together with that of W. J. Mooney, a banker of Langdon, N. D., were encased in metallic caskets and went down with the Republic when that ship sank Sunday night near No Man's Land.

The others injured in the collision are reported as doing splendidly in the hospitals here. It is thought all will recover.

The produce exchange, at a special meeting, adopted a resolution heartily favoring such international legislation as will compel the equipment of all ocean-going passenger steamers with wireless telegraphy, this in view of the important aid rendered by wireless telegraphy in the Nantucket disaster.

Compulsory Wireless Telegraphy

Washington, Jan. 27.—As an outcome of the triumph of the wireless in saving the lives of the passengers and crew of the ill-fated White Star liner Republic, congress may require every ocean-going vessel that leaves an American port to cross either the Atlantic or the Pacific to be equipped with a wireless apparatus.

Representative Burke (Pa.) introduced a bill to require every ocean passenger steamer certified to carry fifty passengers, before being granted a clearance for a foreign port 500 miles or more distant, to be equipped with an efficient radio-telegraphic installation with an operator on board. This action followed the receipt of a telegram by Burke from Reuben Miller, a retired banker of Pittsburg, who was on the Republic.

"I was on the wrecked Republic," wired Miller, "and had it not been for the wireless and the relief it brought to us I feel sure all on board would have been lost. Can you not start an international movement to compel all vessels carrying passengers to equip themselves with wireless telegraphy?"

The bill was referred to the committee on merchant marine and fisheries.

Donnelly Is Confirmed

Washington, Jan. 27.—The senate confirmed the nomination of Samuel B. Donnelly of New York to be public printer. The charges that upon assuming the mangement of the government printing office Donnelly had discharged a number of non-union men without cause were found to be without foundation.

CONSPIRACY MAY BE WIDESPREAD

Grand Jury Getting Much Light on Oklahoma Frauds

Muskogee, Okla., Jan. 27.—It is rumored that the federal grand jury which is investigating the alleged illegal purchase of town lots in 1900 and 1901 decided on indictments against three persons. Government officers do not deny that indictments have been found.

While every possible precaution is being made by the government to prevent the secrets of the grand jury room from leaking out, apparently well founded reports are in circulation to the effect that the investigation shows a much wider conspiracy than was suspected when the jury was called to weigh the testimony against fewer than a dozen men.

WORKS OFF "STEAM"

Physical Director Favors Teaching of Boxing In Public Schools

New York, Jan. 27.—Dr. Crampton, director of physical training of the board of education, referring tc an announced scheme to have a bill introduced in the legislature making mandatory the teaching of boxing in the public schools, said that the board of education would not submit to dictation from the legislature as to what branches should be taught in the schools.

"We have been teaching boxing in some of the schools for many years," he said, "and will continue to do so. Every boy should box, but not fight. Boxing is an excellent way in which boys can work of the 'steam' that would otherwise be used in fighting in the streets.

"We are putting all the bad boys in a class by themselves. We mean to sweat the incorrigibility out of them through their skins."

Cromwell and Obaldia Are Charged With Corruption and Fraud

The house passed a joint resolution making Feb. 12, 1909, which marks the 100th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, a legal holiday in the territories and the District of Columbia.

STATE CLAIMS PRECEDENCE

Would Proceed Against Newspaper For Alleged Libel

JEROME OUTLINES HIS PLANS

Assumes That Charges In Connection With Panama Canal Purchase Are Untrue, and Wants Early Inquiry by the State With Douglas Robinson as Its Moving Spirit—Federal Government Should Halt

New York, Jan. 27.—The possibility of the federal authorities having to stand aside to permit the state and county of New York to proceed against the publishers of the New York World for the alleged libel in connection with the Panama purchase was made apparent in a letter written by District Attorney Jerome to United States District Attorney Stimson.

Provided Douglas Robinson, brother-in-law of President Roosevelt, is willing to appear as a complainant witness, Jerome is ready, the letter states, to begin action at once in the state courts. It would be useless for him to do so, however, he explains, if his inquiry is not given precedence over that begun before the federal grand jury, as acquittal or conviction in one court would act as a sufficient defense in the other.

"I have given the matter published in the New York World of Oct. 3, 1908, careful consideration," the letter says, "and am of the opinion that it is plainly a libel upon Charles P. Taft and Douglas Robinson, assuming, of course, that it is untrue as to the syndicate mentioned therein and their alleged connection therewith. Under the law of this state its publication is a crime, and as it was published in the county of New York it is my duty under certain circumstances to prosecute those responsible for the publication.

"The publication has a much wider general importance than is found in most libels. It, in substance, charges that by corrupt and dishonorable, if not criminal means, the treasury of the United States was depleted to the extent of $36,500,000 through the connivance, to give it no harsher description, of some of the chief officers of the state, and that this great sum was 'divided among government favorites in the world of politics and finance.'"

Mr. Jerome then voices his conviction that so serious a charge should not pass unchallenged and that adequate justification should be shown or those making it properly punished.

"From this point of view," the letter continues, "the federal authorities, it seems to me, have a distinct interest and a positive duty to perform, and from what you tell me, it would seem that the jurisdiction of the federal courts is adequate.

"There is another point of view, however. While the whole people of the United States have been injured by the publication of such false and libelous matter, the people of this state have received a distinct and separate injury in that one of its citizens, Douglas Robinson, has had false matter published about him in the community in which he lives and is respected, the direct purpose and tendency of which is to brand him as a dishonorable and dishonest man and one who was willing to trade upon the honor of his brother-in-law, the President of the United States.

"This offense I am loath to allow to pass unpunished, or, at least, without an effort to properly punish it. Therefore, should Mr. Robinson express to me his wish to have an action for criminal libel instituted, I shall institute such an action, provided I may do so without an unwise interference with a matter over which the federal courts have jurisdiction and in which action has already been taken by the federal authorities."

Mr. Jerome is of the opinion that the state prosecution should take precedence over one by the United States.

Parkman started with a legacy of $500,000 fifty-seven years ago and almost exclusively through the handling of mortgages increased his fortune to over $6,000,000. His interest rates had varied from 3¼ percent to 6 percent during the fifty-seven years.

PENSIONS A FEATURE

British Workmen Gather to Consider Matters Affecting Their Welfare

Portsmouth, England, Jan. 27.—The ninth annual meeting of the Labor party of Great Britain, which assembled here today, will discuss matters of importance to the working people of this country and to those in other lands who are interested in measures looking to their advancement. The labor party has thirty-one representatives in parliament, and it was largely due to their efforts that the old age pension law, which went into effect Jan.1, was enacted.

Among the proposals to be discussed at the meeting, or convention, as it would be called in the United States, is one fixing the old age pension limit at fifty-five years and granting pensions to physically incapacitated workers at the age of thirty. To provide the necessary funds it is proposed that an income tax of 2 shillings in the pound be levied on incomes of £20,000, 3 shillings on incomes of £30,000 and corresponding rates up to £200,000, beyond which all incomes shall be confiscated to the state.

James R. MacDonald, member of parliament of Leicester, the secretary of the labor party, will submit resolutions including demands for the special taxation of state conferred monopolies, increased estate and and legacy duties and a substantial beginning of the taxation of land values. Other resolutions will demand state insurance for workmen, the maintenance of school children, a universal seven hour day, the nationalization of land, railways, mines and hospitals, a minimum universal wage of 30 shillings a week and a universal adult franchise for males and females.

FEDERAL BUREAU IS ASKED FOR IMPORTANT CONFERENCE ENDS

Recommendations of Wide Scope Looking to the Future Well Being of Little Ones Depending Upon Others Than Their Own Parents For Support—Conclusions of Those Conversant Wth Subject Summarized

Washington, Jan. 27.—Advanced steps of far-reaching significance to the future well being of the children of the country were taken at the concluding session of the conference on the care of the dependent children held in this city.

Voicing the unanimous sentiment of nearly 200 delegates, the conference adopted a comprehensive report of its conclusions as to the most practical plan for promoting the welfare of the neglected child.

One of the most important recommendations contained in the report, which was submitted to President Roosevelt at a notable dinner given by the conference at the New Willard last night, requested the president to send a message to congress urging the establishment of a federal children's bureau, one of whose objects shall be to disseminate accurate information in regard to child caring work and the needs of the children. The report embodies the conclusions of a two-days' deliberation by the most prominent charity workers and others, and it deals with every phase of the problem of caring for the dependent child.

Last night's banquet was a fitting climax to what is regarded as the most important gathering ever held in the interest of the nation's dependent children. President Roosevelt, who initiated the great movement, listened with close attention to the reading of the report and then gave expression to his own views on the question. Briefly summarized the conclusions of the conference are as follows:

Children of worthy parents should, as a rule, be kept with their parents; homeless and neglected children, if normal, should be cared for in families, when practicable; child-caring institutions should be on the cottage plan; states should inspect all agencies caring for dependent children; educational work or institutions caring for dependent children should be supervised by state educational authorities; agencies caring for children should co-operate to ascertain and control causes of dependency, a permanent organization for work along the line of this declaration being desirable; prohibitive legislation against transfer of dependent children between states should be repealed; co-operation between child caring agencies and more thorough precautions for surgical and medical care of children in all institutions.

BODIES STILL IN STREETS

Poor People of Messina Camping Wherever They Can Find Shelter

Rome, Jan. 27.—Edmund Billings, the representative of the Massachusetts Relief company, writing from aboard an Italian warship at Messina, where he has accommodation, says:

"Dead bodies are still lining the streets. Thousands of tons of brick, granite and mortar are piled up in the wonderful boulevards, five miles long, facing the sea. The poor people are camping in the streets and under the ruins, wherever they can find a hole. Ships of all nations are in the harbor and men of all nations and tongues are on this ship.

"My sojourn here is not altogether pleasant, as the stench is pretty bad. Two earth shocks were experienced tonight, one of which is said to be the worst since the big earthquake."

DERIVES CHIEF REVENUE FROM FREIGHT CHARGES

Passenger Traffic Unprofitable Declares W. J. Cunningham of B. & A. R. R.

The Wollaston Congregational club held its monthly meeting in the vestry of the church on Tuesday evening.

William J. Cunningham of Newton addressed the club on "system methods applied to railroading."

Mr. Cunningham is statistician of the operating department of the Boston and Albany railroad and also lecturer on railroad operations before the graduate school of business administration at Harvard University.

The use of what Mr. Cunningham called "graphic charts" together with his pleasing address and clear method of reasoning combined to turn the usually dry subject of statistics into one of the most interesting meetings the club has held this season.

In the absence of the President C. J. Hogue who is recovering from an operation for appendicitis, Mr. N. R. Hoover, the secretary of the club presided.

It is not a far cry, said Mr. Cunningham, to the time when the general manager was the whole thing and ran his road from observation, having little or no use for statistics besides the fact that he had made or lost so much.

As small roads were consolidated, however, and one system combined with another and these in turn divided into districts the amount of property controlled became so vast that management simply by observation would not suffice and this is where the work of a statistician comes in.

As the historian can sometimes look forward with a clearer view than the makers of history so the statistician by reason of the data collected may by comparing the present with the past, tell what the future may bring forth with more accuracy than the manager.

Statistics are sometimes the difference between success and failure. Although a railroad's accounts are more scientific than those of a business house there are certain phases which have not been given attention. These are now being studied out and efforts being made to compare the costs of operation.

The business depression of 1908 resulted in further research into operating costs. This proved a blessing in disguise as it has shown the railroads how to improve their net receipts.

In the last 10 years wages have increased from 30 to 60 per cent and the cost of materials from 30 to 100 per cent.

The one recourse of the railroad, under these conditions is to reduce operating expenses and all officers of the road have continually in mind the saving of the dollar.

Railroads are now operated and controlled by statistics as otherwise the heads of departments would be working in the dark.

There are two kinds of statistics Mr. Cunningham said, financial statistics which are compiled for the use of the investor to show whether or not it is probable the road will pay good dividends and special statistics of operation which are used to guide the managers in their future methods of operation.

One thing that is watched very closely by the railroad is the average revenue per ton per mile of freight as this more than anything else determines the loss or gain of the road.

This amount varies from a cent and one-half on some roads or sections to six-tenths of a cent on others.

Other things that are particularly watched are the average receipts per passenger per mile and the density of traffic.

All railroad statistics, he said, are comparitive rather than an absolute basis for forming opinions and should be used rather as aids to judgment.

Speaking of the charts, Mr. Cunningham said that they gave a manager a clearer view of existing conditions than the tabular methods of reports.

While a tabular report would be given to a subordinate to digest by the manager and in turn be handed down it would eventually be filed without being used.

By the system of charts results may be compared and costs reckoned at a glance by the manager himself.

Mr. Cunningham stated that the New England lines were handicapped in their earnings by the large amount of passenger business they do.

While the business of other roads consists of only 25 per cent passenger business, in New England 50 per cent of the business is passenger traffic.

The passenger traffic, Mr. Cunningham declared is the unprofitable part of the New England roads and if not run at an actual loss is run with such a small degree of profit as to make it unattractive to the operators of the road. The chief revenue of a railroad consists in freight charges.

By public opinion or policy the railroads are compelled to charge low rates for suburban traffic and this added to the fact that railroads must keep trains running through the parts of the day when there are few passengers tends to eat up all profits.

At the close of the address questions and answers, followed with great rapidity, this part of the meeting being nearly as interesting and instructive as the address.

Among other questions he was asked if it would be profitable to electrify the suburban lines of the railroad.

In reply Mr. Cunningham stated that if they could be assured of three times the amount of passengers now carried it would be profitable. Otherwise the high cost of electrical installation would make the profits a great deal less than at the present time.

The usual roast beef supper was served. The meeting adjourned at ten o'clock.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

QUINCY ALLIANCE.

There was a large attendance Monday afternoon at First Church Chapel for the regular meeting of the Alliance. Mrs. George W. Morton, president, was in the chair and conducted the meeting. The usual devotional and business session was followed by a program of music, Miss Carrie Follett Spear singing with artistic interpretation a carol and "Oh Mother of Mine."

The paper on "Mothers and Sons" by Mrs. C. Theodore Hardwick was exceedingly interesting. She began by speaking of the strong bond recognized the world over as existing between father and daughter but went on to say that while this might fail—a father become angered—disinherit the daughter and break the bond entirely, there was one strong bond that always held—the deep mother love for her son. This was ever present always ready to forgive—always ready to encourage in face of failure after failure.

Mrs. Hardwick went on to say that generally speaking all great men had great mothers and cited instance after instance—strengthening her assertion by many apt quotations and recited with deep feeling the beautiful verses of dedication found as the introduction of Kipling's "The Light That Failed."

During the social hour which closed the afternoon, tea was served by the committee Mrs. William B. Nichols and Mrs. N. S. Hunting, the pourers being Mrs. Nichols and Miss Steele.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

As usual the annual musicale of the Quincy Women's club was a red letter day in the club year and brought out the largest gathering of the season. Mrs. George W. Morton president called the meeting to order at half past two for a short business session, during which the secretary read her report and announcements were made as follows:

Mrs. Saville for the Art and Literature committee that if club members desired to visit the Art Museum in Boston which was soon to be moved to new quarters arrangements would be made by the State Art association and competent guide furnished; Mrs. Whitcher for the Civic committee spoke of a card party to be given at the club house on Tuesday afternoon Feb. 16th for the benefit of the club house grounds and of an assembly to be held at Atlantic Music hall on Feb. 19th for Atlantic improvements. She also made announcement of a Shakesperian musical monologue in March under the auspices of the Atlantic Shakespeare society, which should interest club members.

The president announced that stamps had been received from the Red Cross society to be sold for the benefit of the Italian earthquake sufferers.

Mrs. Hayward chairman of the Music committee in announcing the afternoon's program which was by the Westland quartet of Boston, said she knew the club was proud of having two of its members Mrs. Moore and Miss Coe in the quartet and another member Mrs. Irene Chipman Tirrell a composer of a song which would be sung during the program.

The following program was rendered:

A Song of Seasons	Hawley
Quartet
Autumn	Mendelssohn
Mrs Moore and Mrs. Miller
Blue Bell	Mrs. Beach
Thistledown	Chadwick
Quartet
Chauson Provencale	Dell Acqua
Miss Dadmun
Minuet	Patty Stair
Quartet
A La Bien Amiee	Schutt
Miss Whiton
One Morning in May
Irene Chipman Tirrell
Rock a bye bye
The Passage Birds Farewell	Hildach
Miss Dadmun and Miss Coe
My Star	Mrs. Beach
Arlette	Vidal
Good Night Little Boy	Salter
Mrs. Miller
The Rock a bye Lady	Osgood
Quartet
Maybelle Grace Dadmun	1st Soprano
Emma Schufeldt Moore	2d Soprano
Alice Gertrue Coe	1st Alto
Dorothy McTaggart Miller	2d Alto
Marion Chadwick Whiton	Pianist

Not only was the program well balanced and pleasing as to arrangement but as carried out left nothing to be desired artistically or musically for it was a succession of delight from beginning to end. Seldom is there such perfect blending of voices or artistic enterpretation. Each singer was at her best, the quartet work being rounded out in full rich tones and perfect unison from the highest to the lowest note. Not a number but was encored until a response was given and after the response even more was wanted so catchy and pleasing were the extras. One of the most pleasing quartet selections was the Minuet which was so exquisitely sung that one could follow every motion of the dancers in their satin and lace gowns and high heeled slippers.

Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Miller in "Autumn" by Mendelssohn gave a pleasing rendering and Miss Dadmun's singing of "Chauson Provencale" was exquisite. Although loudly encored, Miss Whiton did not respond with another piano selection probably because of the arduous duties which being accompanist entailed upon her, a duty delightfully performed throughout, showing much musical taste and artistic interpretation of a varied program.

In the group of songs by Miss Dadmun and Miss Coe, which included "One morning in May" by Mrs. Tirrell, there was a pleasing variety bringing out the voices to great advantage.

After the encore for the singers, another was given for Mrs. Tirrell. The selection "The passage birds farewell" was brilliantly rendered. The group by Mrs. Miller was received with keen appreciation of the artistic ability of the singer, her rich, full, well-rounded tones finding a responsive chord in her listeners.

Encore followed encore, which with the responses so generously accorded, somewhat lengthened the program but even then it was hard to satisfy the desire for more. It was a musical feast. In the four years of the club no musical afternoon has been so satisfactory and club members certainly do feel proud of their share of the quartet.

Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard of the Hospitality committee and the committee for the afternoon Mrs. Dexter E. Wadsworth and Mrs. Harry L. Rice, with Mrs. Gow, Mrs. Theiss and Mrs. Alden, pourers, dispensed the hospitality of the club during the social hour most charmingly, assisted by some twenty club members.

BASKETBALL.

Quincy High and Brockton High met on Tuesday afternoon at the local high school gym, the Shoe City five losing 25 to 22 in a close and fast game. The visiting quintet greatly outweighed the home team, but seemed to be at a disadvantage on the large playing space.

The fast teamwork of the Quincy boys was too much for their opponents and at the end of the first half Quincy led 20 to 16. The game was much closer in the second half Brockton evidently having become acquainted with the strange floor. In this period the visitors got six points, while the home team got only five.

The Brockton boys were inclined to be rather rough in their playing, but there was nothing like slugging or roughhouse. Their weight and the closeness of the game caused them to lose themselves at times, but it was all good-natured.

The feature of the game was the playing of Quincy's midget forward, "Billy" Manning. Billy was up against the giant Casey, the Brockton football star, and looked like a pigmy in comparison. But Manning managed to shoot seven baskets, seeming to elude Casey at will. The "kid" is the star of the team, although he is one of the lightest high school players in the game today.

"Russ" Bates and Marsh also played good ball, the former getting five goals from the floor and the latter holding the speedy Riley to one basket. For Brockton Casey and Rapp excelled. The summary:

ANNUAL CONCERT SUPPER AND DANCE

Members of Clan McGregor Celebrate Burns Anniversary

The annual concert, supper and dance of Clan McGregor, No. 5 O. S. C. and Loyal Ladies No. 1, was held Wednesday evening in Music hall. The hall was crowded even though the tickets were limited.

The affair was in honor of the 150th anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns. The tables were set in the big hall and between 400 and 500 people were seated. The first thing was the concert which included singing and dancing of the highest order.

The solos were sung by Miss Mary Ogilvie, James Singer, Lincoln Essex and George F. Reynolds. There was also fancy dancing by Jessie and Grace McDonald. A duet by Miss Ogilvie and Mr. Singer was loudly applauded.

The address of the evening was made by James Duncan, secretary of the Granite Cutter's Association. Mr. Duncan spoke on "Burns," his point being the character of Burns and his influence on the people of his time.

Mr. Duncan concluded his address with an original poem on "Burns' Birthday," which was received with great applause. The poem follows:

BURNS' BIRTHDAY.

As ardent friends we gather here
A tribute of respect to pay
To Scotland's justly honored Bard,
Whose birth we celebrate today
The peasant poet whose name forever
The brighest laurels shall adorn,
And whose sweet songs shall still be sung
By generations yet unborn.

France may boast of great Napoleon,
And of the victries that he won;
Rome may boast of ancient heroes,
And England of her Wellington;
Scotland had her Bruce and Wallace,
As brave as ever falchion drew,
And Northern valor proved itself
At Bannockburn and Waterloo.

Other lands have had their poets,
Whose names have highly honored been;
Homer left the world an "Illiad."
And Spencer gave the "Faerie Queen,"
Dante's brain produced "Inferno;"
And "Lallah Rookh" was sung by Moore,
While Shakespeare's master mind produced
Immortal works of tragic lore.
Bards have sung, and sung divinely,
Whose melodies sweet joy impart,
But yet the songs of Ranting Robin
Most deeply touch the human heart.
Ev'ry tender, fond emotion,
Which in the human breast can spring,
Awakes to sympathy and love
To hear the poet plow-boy sing.
Brightly 'midst the constellation,
The star of poet Burns appears;
Brighter still it keeps increasing,
As onward fly the passing years.
Who but feels a touch of sadness
At "Afton Water's" mournful lay?
Who but feels his courage rising
At grand, inspiring "Scots Wha Hae"?
What for tenderness of feeling
With "Highland Mary" can compare?
And who can keep his laughter down
While reading "Holy Willie's Prayer?"
Does "Mary Queen of Scots Lament,"
Not start a sympathetic tear?
And does not "Man Was Made to Mourn,"
Fall sadly on the human ear?
Does "A Man's a Man for a' That,"
Not wake the soul to manly pride?
And what for tale of mirth and fun
Can equal "Tam O'Shanter's Ride?"
Dull care is put to instant flight
By "Willie Brewed a Peck o' Maut"
And nothing ever can surpass.
"Should Auld Acquaintance Be Forgot."

Though scourged and lashed by poverty,
He brooked no lordling's high control;
No tyrant hand could e'er suppress
Or curb the genius of his soul.
He sang of Scotland's hills and dales,
Her ladies fair and heroes brave,
And ever fearlessly proclaimed,
That man should never be a slave.
All hail to thee, old Caledonia!
Still fondly cherished thou shall be;
And while we love the starry flag,
It lessens not our love for thee
To dear old homeland far away,

TO HELP RAISE BUILDING FUND

Ladies Form Auxiliary of Houghs Neck Associates

Realizing the aid that the ladies of Houghs Neck could give them in securing funds for a building of their own, the Houghs Neck associates, incorporated, voted at their semi-monthly meeting held last night at the associates hall, to aid the ladies to form an auxiliary association to work in conjunction with them. The meeting was very well attended in fact the attendance surpassed that of any meeting during the winter.

Before the business meeting the ladies served a splendid baked bean supper. Sixteen dollars was realized and turned into the building fund of the association. Over one hundred men and their ladies were served. The menu consisted of baked beans, brown and white bread, doughnuts and cheese, home made pies and cakes and excellent coffee.

The business meeting was started about nine o'clock, President Baird presiding. The committee on public landings reported that great progress had been made and that the bill had been introduced into the House of Representatives. The sewer committee also reported good progress and stated that duplicate plans of the metropolitan sewer were being prepared for the city and actual work in connecting the houses near the trunk line would begin. The matter of express business was discussed by many of the members and letters were read from a few of the big department stores in Boston. An urgent plea was made by the president to the members asking them to trade with the stores that would give them the right to choose their own expressman. The house committee made a report showing that the receipts from bowling and pool had increased considerably during the last two weeks and that the clubhouse was paying for itself. The treasurer's report also showed improvement. Other committees that reported progress were the gas, school and ways and means. The ladies were given a rousing vote of thanks for their excellent supper. A committee was appointed to see the mayor about installing a combination fire alarm box at the hose house. At the recent fire on Sea street a delay of over twenty minutes was experienced in pulling the alarm for aid from the centre as the nearest box was nearly half a mile away.

After the meeting the ladies appointed a committee to look after the organization of their new association.

BETHANY CHURCH CROWDED.

Fully five hundred attended the evangelistic service at the Bethany church Tuesday evening. On the platform aside from Rev. Dr. John W. Weddell who is conducting this group of services were Rev. Dr. E. N. Hardy, Rev. A. M. Thompson, Rev. Edward A. Chase and Rev. A. R. Atwood.

Dr. Weddell spoke on "The Influence of the Holy Spirit Upon the World."

Following the address Prof. Zartman sang "O Holy Spirit." Rev. A. M. Thompson pronounced the benediction.

An after meeting was held in the chapel where Dr. Weddell met the pastors of a number of the churches and the evangelistic committee, to make arrangements for services in other sections of the city during the next two weeks.

ANNUAL MEETING OF CHRIST CHURCH

New Rector Called and Officers Elected.

The annual parish meeting of the protestant Episcopal corporation of Christ's Church was held in the parish house last evening, a large number of members being present.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Warden for two years—William L. Thomas.

Clerk for one year—James Smith.

Treasurer for one year—Elmer F. Ricker.

Vestrymen for two years—E. E. Newcomb, H. E. Ricker, T. E. Furnald, George W. Holden and W. W. Osborn.

Vestryman for one year (to fill vacancy, caused by resignation)—Alexander C. Smith.

Delegates to diocesan convention for one year—Elisha Packard, William L. Thomas, W. W. Osborn.

A vote of thanks was given George H. Brown, the retiring senior warden for his faithful services as warden, extending over a period of fifteen years. Mr. Brown, stated that he thought some one else should have a show at the office.

A unanimous call was given Rev. Mr. Todd, assistant rector of Trinity church at Hartford, Conn., to become rector of this parish.

James H. Stedman reported that the Braintree Guild had dissolved and that a new parish was being formed under the supervision of the Arch-deaconry of New Bedford. The new parish will probably be called Emanuel church parish.

The treasurer's report for the fiscal year ending Dec. 31, 1908, was read and accepted.

The principal of the rectory mortgage note has been reduced during the year, leaving $614.00 still due, which amount it is hoped will be cancelled during the coming year.

A steam heating apparatus has been installed in the parish house, funds for the payment being raised by the Penny collection of the Woman's Guild. It was voted that the annual budget, amounting to $4700.19 be referred back to the vestry, as a guide for the ensuing year.

A committee of three was appointed to look into the advisability of remodeling the rectory for a parish house.

The meeting adjourned at 11 o'clock.

WINNIE—JOSSELYN.

A very quiet home wedding took place last night at the home of Mrs. H. A. Bushnell of 6 Hersey place, when her niece Miss Lodoiski Josselyn of Albany, N. Y., became the bride of Dyer Newton Winnie also of Albany.

Rev. Alfred R. Atwood performed the ceremony, the bride being given away by her aunt. Miss Clara Bushnell played the wedding march. The bride wore white lansdowne over silk.

The wedding was a quiet family affair, only relatives of the couple being present.

PROBATE COURT.

Judge Flint held probate court for Norfolk county at Dedham Wednesday and transacted the following business:

—Oregon lawmakers must be having an unusually busy session when they have time to present and pass a bill prohibiting the wearing of hat pins more than ten inches long.

—Springfield keeps right in the forward march line and is now contemplating erecting a hotel that will eclipse any in her previous history.

DEATH PROBABLY CAUSED BY FALL

Dr. F. E. Jones Makes Examination Of Sardahl's Body

After a thorough investigation Chief Burrell has come to the conclusion that Christopher Sarsdahl, the Norwegian who died at the City Hospital Wednesday morning, did not meet with foul play.

Medical Examiner Jones, who made an examination of the body Wednesday afternoon, found that the man had died of cerebal hemorrhage due to a blow on the head and acute alcoholism.

Chief Burrell found that Sarsdahl had started drinking Saturday and drank some Sunday. Monday he was taken sick and the police can not learn that he drank anything Monday or Tuesday.

He was not well Monday and did not go to work. Tuesday he was in a bad shape and seemed to have lost all control of his limbs. He was placed on an iron couch and he tossed about this in a half crazed condition. In the end he fell to the floor his ear being cut and torn by a part of the couch frame.

At that time he probably received the blow on the head which eventually caused his death.

It was then that Dr. Middleton was called. He found Sarsdahl raving in convulsions and hurried him to the City Hospital.

He remained unconscious until he died.

It is said that Sarsdahl has a wife in Orange, New Jersey and a mother in the old country. He also has relatives in New York with whom the police will communicate.

—Being equipped with a wireless system should be made compulsory on all passenger carrying steamers, its benefits being so clearly demonstrated last week at the sinking of the Republic. A bill to this effect has been introduced in Congress which should receive quick results.

Yes, it is true that Abruzzi, when pronounced correctly, rhymes with tootsie-wootsie.

The steel mills start to roll, the factories to spin. It really looks as if pros-per-i-ty was coming in.

One county in Grand Old Texas cast 424 votes for Taft and none for Bryan. How, now, old Houston Post?

A good many Germans are ceasing to regard the Kaiser as "divine." This "devine right" business has received some hard knocks. "The divine right of kings" is clearly in for a rude shock all over Asia and Europe.

According to the report of the legislative committee on legal affairs, there will be no legal holiday in Massachusetts in honor of the 100th anniversary of Lincoln's birthday.

The governor and legislators have received letters from all parts of the state, many of them from school teachers, stating that the making of the day a legal holiday would interfere with the exercises planned and also that the best and most fruitful way to celebrate the day was in the schoolroom. There is a good deal of sense in this, too, and it had great weight with those at the State house. However, as legislation was sought for this year only it seems that the holiday might have been granted.

Newspaper dispatches from New York say that the Republic, the ill-fated White Star liner, refused aid from the steamer City of Everett, whose captain sent a boat-load of men to the liner to see if any help could be given. It is said that the Republic fearing salvage refused aid until it was absolutely necessary to accept it. It is difficult to see how a man can place hundreds of lives in jeopardy simply to save a few hundred dollars for the company that pays him his salary.

Reports also state that the Baltic, the magnificient floating palace of the White Star line, lay alongside the sinking Republic for six hours, before she made any attempt to transfer the passengers from the battered Florida to her own solid decks. She also feared salvage.

—Arkansas may properly blush says the Boston Advertiser, at the sending of $20 from a group of Chinese converts at Hankow, China, for evangelistic work in that state. Bishop Roots has been telling his Chinese class at Hankow of the difficulties in obtaining money for this sort of work at home, and the $20 response is logical. Also there is a broad hint in it.

—Governor Hughes, by plunging immediately into his direct nominations scheme, has caught his opponents unprepared. While everybody in New York political circles has expected that the governor would advocate by public speeches his direct nominations plan, none of the leaders expected he would force the battle in this fashion. He shows himself to be a good general.

MONARCH OF ALL HE SURVEYS

Position of Captain of a Vessel While Sailing the Seas

IS ABSOLUTE IN AUTHORITY

Even Owners of Ship Cannot Direct Him by Wireless In Matters Relating to Navigation—Important That Responsibility For Disaster to the Republic Be Fixed as Soon as Possible

New York, Jan. 28.—The "unwritten" law in the marine world that the captain of a ship is supreme commander of his vessel when he leaves port will not be modified by the fact that the wireless system keeps him in constant communication with officials of the company.

This question has been raised since the loss of the Republic because practically all action taken by the several ships engaged in the accident followed wireless communications to their company offices.

Speaking of the new question Vice President Franklin of the White Star company, said:

"The ship's captain will ever be sole and absolute in authority in the navigation of his vessel, no matter whether he is in communication by wireless with the home offices or not. We could direct the captain to change his port of destination by wireless or order some change with regard to preparations to load baggage, but as to navigation that is a matter for the captain.

"The captain is responsible for his ship when at sea whether he is in communication with its owners or not."

Ship commanders generally are loth to consider any suggestions of lessening of authority because of the wireless, as they desire to preserve the tradition of the sea that a captain is monarch of all he surveys when aboard ship.

Preparing to Fix Blame

Investigations have already been started to find the causes of the collision of Saturday morning and of the sinking of the Republic. It is of the utmost importance to get at the truth right away. Suits for damages are likely to be brought on behalf of either ship or of both. Passengers may attempt action to recover the value of their lost baggage, and damage actions may be brought for the death of the passengers who were killed in the collision.

The owners of the Florida have already completed the first examination of their witnesses. C. B. Richards & Co., New York agents for the Lloyd-Italiano, with their counsel, Wallace, Butler & Brown, spent a day taking records of the statements of the ship's officers and men bearing on the accident.

Replying to questions as to whether the assertion of representatives of the Italian line, that the Republic was running at high speed at the time of the collision were correct, Mr. Franklin, vice president of the White Star line, said: "The Republic was not running at high speed."

As to the speed of the Florida, Franklin said the rent in the side of the Republic was the best evidence.

MISUSED STATE FUNDS

Former State Treasurer of Michigan Is Convicted by a Jury

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 28.—Ex-State Treasurer Frank P. Glazier, whose failure in December, 1907, resulted in the closing of the Chelsea Savings bank, of which Glazier was the head, and which had on deposit about $685,000 of state funds, was found guilty by a jury of misappropriating state funds.

Glazier's attorneys immediately gave notice of an appeal to the supreme court and he was released on $10,000 bail and given until March 8 to file a bill of exceptions and a motion for a new trial.

HAS A COUNTER PROPOSAL

Newfoundland Not Satisfied With Draft of Proposed Agreement

St. John's, Jan. 28.—The Newfoundland cabinet has not accepted the draft of the proposed fisheries agreement arranged at Washington, but, on the other hand, has submitted a counter proposal for the consideration of Ambassador Bryce and Secretary Root.

The newspapers opposed to Sir Robert Bond's government express the opinion that the premier does not intend to accept the Washington agreement.

Champion Skater Wins

Cleveland, Jan. 28.—Edmund Lamy of Saranac Lake, N. Y., amateur skating champion, outclassed all contestants in the national skating championship races at the Elysium rink, but was not sufficiently pushed to break any records.

Former King's Son a Singer

Budapest, Jan. 28.—George Christic, son of former King Milan of Servia and at one time a claimant to the Servian throne, has accepted an engagement to sing in a local cafe for $10 a day.

FAREWELL ORDERS.

Captains Carl E. Carlson and Albert Johanson, officers in charge of the work of the Salvation Army in Quincy have received orders to leave here at an early date. The arrangement for their farewell meetings and reception is for Saturday and Sunday, January 30, 31. Captain Carlson has been in charge of the local work for the last fourteen months and his assistant has been here a little less. They have been carrying on—besides their religious work, which is their main work—quite a heavy relief work among the unfortunate of Quincy.

To successfully close their work and leaving their corps books clear of debts the officers need the assistance of some of the city's well to do charitable and liberal friends.

Who the officers are that are going to succeed in the command of the local work is not yet made known.

SIXTH RECITAL.

Watch by the Rhine, by quartette, orchestra and piano opened the program of German music Tuesday at Colonial hall at the sixth recital given by the special students in the Choral society. George F. Reynolds, accompanied by Mr. Luce, then sang two noted songs by Schumann and Jensen. Mr. Fjelbeck, violinist, accompanied by Mrs. Merrill, gave a Mozart Sonata and Bach Gavotte. Mrs. Merrill played also a Beethoven selection, Mrs. Hunting sang two Schubert and one Schumann song in the original. Miss Carlson sang a group of Mendelssohn, Schubert and Schumann songs. Besides giving in English Fancy Mendelssohn's Forsaken and Italy, Miss Spear sang Clara Schumann's great song "Er ist gekommen." The brilliant and elaborate accompanists were played by Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, who also contributed a Gluck gavotte and two Bach selections. The evening was pronounced most enjoyable. The next recital will be at same place Wednesday, February 10th.

—Wouldn't Quincy be surprised to receive a gift like the following to Buffalo: Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Hutchinson, have offered the city their homestead, centrally located, as a site for a new central high school, together with $200,000 in cash. Both the donors are graduates of the present central high school and their regard for their alma mater finds expression in this manner. It is needless to say that Buffalo will accept the munificent gift.

—The Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, will be closed to the public on May 1, preparatory to moving into the new building on Huntington avenue.

HIDDEN DANGERS

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Quincy Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy, or a thick, red, illsmelling urine, full of sediment and irregular of passage.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick Kidneys and warn you of the approach of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's Quincy proof.

P. J. Garrity, living at 367 Granite St., Quincy, Mass., says: "Some time ago I was afflicted with Kidney disease and was in such a condition that I could hardly get about. The trouble was especially severe at night and I could not find any position that was comfortable. The kidney secretions were too frequent in action and caused me to arise many times during the night to avoid them. I was rapidly growing worse and was at a loss to know what to do, as the many remedies I tried failed to help me. Finally Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store and began their use. When I had taken the contents of four boxes I was in good health. I highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to take no other.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and other kidney sufferers."

ANTI-JAPANESE LEGISLATION HALTS

Nothing Will Be Done In California For a Week

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 28.—Legislation against Japanese was temporarily deferred by the state legislature as a result of an agreement between President Roosevelt, Governor Gillett and the leaders of both houses.

Assemblyman Drew agreed, after a talk with the governor, to amend his anti-alien bills. Grove L. Johnson was not willing to postpone action on his Japanese bills, but a motion to postpone measures over for a week prevailed with little opposition.

LEIGH A DRINKING MAN

Large Batch of Witnesses Testify Regarding Habits of the Juror

Nashville, Jan. 28.—Wednesday's session of the trial of Duncan B. Cooper, Robin Cooper and John D. Sharpe closed with no further progress in the selection of the jury. Deputy sheriffs are riding the country to summon the third venire of 500 talesmen to report Friday.

Judge Hart spent the day hearing testimony as to the competency of Juror Leigh and in formulating a definition of drunkenness. About sixty witnesses were examined on both sides. Those for the state were positive that Leigh was drunk when selected, and that he was an habitual drunkard.

Witnesses for the defense admitted that Leigh was a drinking man, that he had taken "a few" the day he was chosen on the jury, but that he was not drunk within the definition of Judge Hart; that is, he was not making a public nuisance of himself.

The court ordered Leigh to the jury room until his case was decided.

MODIFY INJUNCTION LAW

Change In Procedure Recommended by United Mine Workers

Indianapolis, Jan. 28.—Beginning with dissension between the two factions into which the 1400 delegates are divided, Wednesday's session of the United Mine Workers of America closed with concordant action on numerous resolutions, the most important of which recommended modifications in court procedure in regard to injunctions.

It was the sense of the convention that a restraining order should not be issued on application of an employer unless the employes against whom the order was directed had first been advised of the action and given a chance to appear in the court; that in the case of a contempt proceeding growing out of alleged violation of such an injunction, the hearing should be before another judge than the one that issued the writ, and the trial should be by jury.

AS A SPECIAL GUEST

Hughes Will Dine With Supreme Court Justices at White House

Washington, Jan. 28.—At the White House tonight President Roosevelt will give a dinner to the justices of the supreme court of the United States and other distinguished guests.

Among those present at the dinner will be Governor Hughes of New York and Mrs. Hughes, by special invitation of the president. His coming to Washington at this time has aroused great interest among the politicians in view of the fight he is making in his state for direct nominations. It is said that the president is interested in the contest between the governor and the Republican machine of his state.

DIGGING OUT BODIES

Unrecognizable Masses of Human Flesh Being Recovered In Messina

Messina, Jan. 28.—The work of excavating among the ruins of Messina goes on without cessation. Many bodies are discovered daily, but all are unrecognizable, owing to the length of time they have been buried beneath the debris. Slight earth shocks continue here and at Reggio.

An enormous whale has been captured on the coast of Catania and in its stomach was found the leg of a man with a shoe on the foot. The shoe indicated that it had been worn by a victim of the great tidal wave which followed the earthquake of Dec. 28.

Wallis Won't Accept Office

Albany, Jan. 28.—Governor Hughes declines to comment on his action in withdrawing from the senate the nomination of Frederick A. Wallis as state superintendent of insurance. The withdrawal of Wallis' name was at his own request.

Capital Stock Missing

Louisville, Jan. 28.—To learn what has become of the $300,000 capital stock of the Star Fire Insurance company of Louisville, State Insurance Commissioner Bell has appointed an actuary to go over the property of the company.

San Francisco, Jan. 28.—The trial of Patrick Calhoun, now in its third week, was resumed with eight places in the jury box occupied by citizens who are still subject to peremptory challenge by either side.

With the signing Saturday of an arbitration treaty with Brazil Secretary Root has concluded such conventions with 24 countries, embracing all the principal nations except Germany and Russia, which are not favorably disposed toward the form followed in the treaties with the other countries. ALL READY FOR FURNISHINGS

New Federal Building Practically Completed

Quincy's new federal building is practically completed. All that remains to have it ready for use is to put the furnishings in place. Some of the furnishings have already arrived and the balance are expected any day.

For its size the building is one of the best government buildings in the state as far as its construction and appointments are concerned.

The building, which is of granite, has a frontage of about 87 feet on Washington street and 65 feet on Maple street. The main entrance is on the Washington street front through large revolving glass doors. There is also an entrance on Maple street near the corner of Washington street which is also fitted with revolving glass doors.

Both of these entrances lead into a wide corridor extending along the whole front of the building. This corridor is finished in very handsome green vein Vermont marble.

Facing this are a series of private letter boxes. These boxes open with a key instead of the combination lock used on the boxes in the present office.

Half way down nearly opposite the centre entrance are the general delivery and stamp windows. On the northerly end are the money order and registered letter windows. These windows open into a separate room used exclusively by the money order and registry clerks.

In this room is a brick vault inside of which is a burglar proof steel safe.

At the easterly or Maple street end of the corridor is a door leading to the private office of the postmaster, from which a door also leads to the main work room.

There is also a window here into the work room known as the carriers' window.

The main work room is very large and airy, entirely free from supporting posts of any kind. Here are to be located the carriers' sorting cases, the mail dispatchers, etc.

In this room there is also a brick vault for post office supplies. In the rear of the building is a brick drive leading to a platform and door. It is through this door that the mail pouches will be received and dispatched.

From the work room there is a stairway leading to a carriers' recreation room in the basement. Here the carriers may spend their spare time in reading and smoking. Connected with this room is a large toilet room in which is located a shower bath, etc.

Nickel furnishings are used here with white marble sides and tiled floor, making it a very handsome room.

There is also a stairway leading from the basement to the work room for the janitor.

On the main floor there are separate toilet arrangements for the postmaster, money order clerks and a ladies' room for lady clerks.

The main floor of the basement will be used as a store room and here the heating apparatus is located.

There is also a large coal bunker here with a capacity of eighty tons and a small room called the meter room.

In this room are the main electrical switches, the meter and controlling water valves and the gas meter.

There is also an electrical switch board in the main work room and another in the corridor near the door leading to the office of the postmaster. There is also an entrance to the basement from the rear of the building.

There is a wide but short flight of steps on the Washington street front and on each side of these is an ornamental post with electric lights. There are also lights on either side of the Maple street entrance.

The appropriation for the land upon which the building stands was $12,000 and the appropriation for the building, $85,000.

A GREAT RECORD

DR. LEONHARDT'S INTERNAL PILE REMEDY MAKES 98 PER CENT. OF CURES.

Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid has been tested in several thousand cases, and was successful in all but two per cent. Hem-Roid's wonderful record is due to the fact that it is an internal remedy. The cause of piles is internal, and it is too much to expect to cure piles with ointments, suppositories or operations. Hem-Roid cures the internal cause.

TO PUT NAVY IN FIGHTING TRIM

Action of President Roosevelt Comes as Great Surprise

NAMES COMMISSION OF EIGHT

Former Secretaries of Navy and Rear Admirals to Reorganize Force and Submit Plans For Defense—Secretary Newberry Unaware of Plans Until He Received Knowledge by Means of the Press

Washington, Jan. 28.—President Roosevelt thinks that the organization of the navy department is not such as to bring the best results and he has appointed a commission whose announced duty it will be "to consider certain needs of the navy."

The president's action was somewhat of a surprise in view of the fact that the members of the commission appointed yesterday met two weeks ago at Washington and endorsed Secretary Newberry's plan of reorganization, and in view also of the authorization by the senate of an inquiry into naval expenditures, the conduct of business and the need, if any, of legislation to improve the administration of the navy department.

Announcement of the president's action was entirely unexpected at the navy department. Secretary Newberry, who issued an order carryng out his proposed plan, with particular reference to the navy yards, appeared to be the most surprised of all. He said that he was not aware that the president had taken such action, had not seen the letters of appointment addressed to the various members of the commission, and did not know the purport of the letter addressed to him. His first information on the subject came to him from the press.

Names of Commissioners

The president has sent identical letters to each of the eight members of the commission, which is headed by Paul Morton, a former secretary of the navy, the other members being Justice Moody, also a former secretary of the navy; A. G. Dayton, formerly chairman of the house naval affairs committee, and Rear Admirals Luce, Mahan, Fogler, Evans and Cowles, all of whom are on the elected list.

The president sets out certain subjects for the committee to consider under two general heads; first, as to the fundamental principles of an organization that will insure an efficient preparation for war in time of peace, and secondly, specific recommendations as to the change in the present organization that will accomplish this result.

What the president wants the commission to probe may be thus summarized:

All defects in the law under which the navy department is now organized.

Division of responsibility in preparations for and conduct of war.

Possibility of consolidating certain bureaus.

Necessity of providing the secretary of the navy with military advisers.

Necessity for more economical system in disbursement of appropriations.

How best to recognize and emphasize the strict military character of the navy.

Recommendations as to the number, location and general facilities of the navy yards.

Navy Yards and Naval Stations

Preceding by several hours the president's announcement was the issuance of a general order by Newberry which had been approved by the president, designed to carry into effect the secretary's naval reorganization plans so far as they pertain to the navy yards and naval stations.

Its general purpose is to consolidate the manufacturing forces at navy yards, and its effect will be to make the commandant, while paramount, resemble, in his connection with yard work, the president of a large industrial plant, the principal technical assistant becoming, under the commandant, the general manager. The idea of the order was outlined by Newberry in a general statement. The order prescribes the methods by which the plan is to be put into effect and the assignment of duties to respective officers. On Feb. 13 the commandants are to forward to the navy department a report on what has been done in compliance with the order.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Editor Quincy Ledger:

Press dispatches Saturday, report Congressman O'Connell of the 10th District of which Quincy is a part, as voting against the appropriation for new battleships. According to the despatches he opposed the bill for two battleships, but favored the amendment for one ship. These appropriations no doubt would mean work for the Fore River shipyard and it is not understood why Congressman O'Connell votes against the measures which would mean continued employment for many of his constituents in Quincy.

The above is from the editorial column of Monday's Ledger. Is it not possible that Mr. O'Connell's vote is in accord with a most absurd idea that he is sent to Congress to serve the nation rather than to promote the local interests of Quincy and the Fore River Co?

The principle of local welfare first and our Country last which the Ledger appears to aprove, is the greatest menace to our prosperity today. It is this principle which has given us our illogical protective tariff and this which constantly threatens to bring about a war with Japan. If Mr. O'Connell voted as he thought his duty to his Country demanded, he should be commended by all patriotic citizens however they might criticise his judgment. The Ledger's sneer savors of the very lowest political ideals.

Yours truly,
A Republican and believer in a strong navy.

Editors of Daily Ledger:

The annual "Pony Express" problem will soon be before the Council for deliberation and consideration. There will be the usual pulling and hauling, wire pulling, heart burning, "chewing the rag," and fence building. This question becomes more strenuous as the years go by and incidentally as the various expressmen begin to realize the amount of profit there is in handling the thousands of gallons of wet goods which are annually carted into this city.

If there is no legal barrier it is intimated in official quarters that it would be good business policy for the city to collect liberal fees from each of the express companies which are granted "pony express" licenses.

If there is truth in the statement attributed to a person who is on the inside that any express company holding a monopoly of this city's "pony express" business could well afford to pay into the city treasury a fee of $10,000 and then make a good profit, it should be looked into by the Council and if possible a fee if not less than three figures collected for each license issued. If we are bound to have that evil, why not make it bring in a good income, if it is legal to so do? Better to raise money that way than by increasing the valuation and tax rate.

A Reader.

Editor Daily Ledger.

It is one of the unquestioned prerogatives of an independent newspaper to criticise men, movements and measures, and that is probably your justification for your editorials dealing with the alleged inactivity of the Board of Trade. I, for one, don't care how severe you may be in your criticism, provided you don't distort or suppress the facts, and that you keep your columns open for a presentation of whatever there may be to say on the other side of the question.

But when one of the most prominent members of the Citizens' Association undertakes to berate us in the press and heap ridicule upon us, the case is entirely different. Mr. John L. Miller is not a distinterested party, like the Editor, and therefore before his letter of two days ago can be justified he must show us that his motive was good and that the occasion demanded his writing such a communication.

The Quincy Board of Trade has no red lights; no banners; no drums. But in a proper manner it seeks to do whatever appears feasible, and for the good of the community. Mr. Miller will not seriously deny that the Board has done enough things during the past seven years to amply justify its existence. Why, then, did he make such indiscriminate statements? What things have we left undone, Mr. Miller, that we could do and ought to have done? Are we neglecting any sane oportunity now? If so, what is it? We await your suggestions, and assure you that any you offer will be treated respectfully and duly considered by the Board of Trade. But no knocking, please.

Yours truly,
Edward J. Sandberg,
Ex President Board of Trade.

Quincy, Mass., Jan. 27, 1909.

Editor of the Quincy Daily Ledger:

I read with a great deal of interest the other day the communication regarding the trolley express and your comment upon the same. I too have heard a great deal of the benefits of the trolley express and have seen a little something of its operation, enough to convince me that it is a long step forward in the way of offering shipping facilities.

I agree with you that the city of Quincy deserves and should have the best of everything that there is on the market, whether it is shipping facilities or anything else. We who are proud of the city and wish to see it grow in population and prosperity should do our part to see that it gets these things. Personally I feel that the trolley express will do more for the city than anything that has been proposed in the way of improvement in recent years. Quincy needs new industries which give more work to those who are already its citizens as well as bring in large additions to its citizenship. There is nothing that can be made to look more attractive to a manufacturer who is looking for a place to locate than to show to him that he will have shipping advantages that are the best that can be offered anywhere. I understand that in New York state and the middle west the trolley express has been a great factor in building up communities in this way, and that this has already proven true in the few sections in New England where the service has been tried. New England has been unusually behind the times in adopting the trolley express and it seems to me that Quincy was considerably behind in refusing when the Old Colony Street Ry. sought to remedy matters and bring New England up to the standard of the middle west in this respect.

Let us wake up I say, and if it is not too late to interest the company, make an effort in some way to keep abreast of the times and help our good city of Quincy to grow, progress and take the place among the cities of the state to which its location and other advantages entitle it.

Very truly yours,
A Quincy Citizen.

ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS REWARD

Noney To Be Divided Between Four Quincy Men

Jeweler T. J. Williams is displaying checks in his window which he received from the Jewelers' Security Alliance as a reward for the arrest and conviction of the thief who smashed his glass and attempted to steal goods out of his show window, for which crime he is now serving a term in the House of Correction at Dedham.

This organization has a membership of nearly 5,000 jewelers throughout the country' each one of whom displays the brass shield in his show window offering a reward of one hundred dollars for the arrest and conviction of any pers n or persons who may break into his store with the intention of stealing.

During the time which has elapsed since the signs were first issued to the members, the Alliance has made good in every instance in which the reward was due under the conditions of the offer, and has paid out $7,000.00 in rewards of this character, with the result that a large number of the thieves who prey upon jewelry stores have been placed behind the bars, and it is safe to say that none of them or their friends will ever again attempt to rob a store where this sign is displayed.

CUBA AGAIN FREED TODAY

President Gomez Inaugurated In Havana

OUR GOVERNMENT CEASES

With the Sailing of Magoon This Afternoon the Authority of the United States In the Islands Ends, Although Some Troops Remain Until April 1—American Warships Fire Salute In Honor of New Executive

Havana, Jan. 28.—With the administration of the oath of office at noon today to Jose Miguel Gomez, the new president of the republic of Cuba, American occupation of the island ceased and the history of this country entered on a new era. This afternoon Charles E. Magoon, until today provisional governor of Cuba, will embark for the United States, leaving the government entirely in the hands of President Gomez and his advisors. Most of the 5000 American soldiers who have occupied the island since 1896 have been sent home, and the remainder will leave by April 1.

The oath of office was administered to President Gomez and Vice President Zayas by President Barreio of the supreme court of Cuba in the presence of a great throng of Cubans and Americans and other foreigners. Today is a general holiday throughout Cuba and from all the six states men prominent in the political, commercial and social life of the island have gathered to attend the inauguration.

Americans In Evidence

The principal officers of the American troops still in Cuba, re-enforced by the officers of the American warships in the harbor, made a brave showing in their dress uniforms. The inauguration ceremonies were preceded by a parade of the rural guards and other Cuban troops, in which the

PRESIDENT GOMEZ

American soldiers did not participate, as it was thought that their presence in the procession might recall too strongly the fact that for more than two years the island has been under foreign domination. At the close of the ceremonies President Gomez was warmly congratulated by the foreign envoys, who extended to him the good wishes of their respective governments for the welfare of his country. A conspicuous figure was Mgr. Aversa, representing the Vatican. Many messages of congratulation were received, notably from President Roosevelt and William H. Taft, president-elect of the United States. He has many friends among prominent Cubans.

Battleships Salute Gomez

Word of the taking of the oath of office by President Gomez was sent to the American battleships Maine and Massachusetts, lying in the harbor as representatives of the United States government. Immediately the shores of the harbor began to echo with the reports of a presidential salute fired in honor of the new president by the three vessels. The booming of guns was greeted by applause by the crowds of Cubans.

The second American occupation of Cuba by the United States began in September, 1906, when the resignation of President Thomas Estrada Palma, since deceased, was followed by a short period of disorder in the island. Under the Platt amendment the United States intervened and established a provisional government on the island, with William H. Taft as provisional governor. Judge Taft was succeeded in October, 1906, by Charles E. Magoon.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

SECRET SERVICE MEN ARE PROVIDED FOR

Shifted About When Dropped From Treasury Department

Washington, Jan. 28.—What is described as one of the most thrilling hearings of this session took place in the rooms of the house committee on appropriations, when the sub-committee in charge of the drafting of the sundry civil appropriation bill had Chief Wilkie of the secret service on the witness stand to furnish information concerning the conduct of his office.

The significant fact was brought out that although the limitation placed upon the expenditure of the money for secret service last year in the appropriation bill reduced the number of men employed by the secret service under Wilkie by nine, those same nine men were placed on the rolls of the department of justice. The secret service in the department of justice was described as consisting of twenty-five men, besides the nine dropped by the treasury department secret service.

GOVERNOR AND DIRECTOR

May Take Place of Commission Now Governing Isthmian Canal Zone

Washington, Jan. 28.—Changes in the method of administration of the government on the isthmian canal zone are recommended to congress in a bill agreed upon by the committee on interstate and foreign commerce, whose members recently returned from the zone.

Instead of the commission of seven now governing the zone the bill provides for a governor and director to relieve the chief of engineers of matters not directly connected with the actual work of construction.

Instead of three district courts, one is provided and a method of appealing to the fifth judicial circuit at New Orleans is authorized.

Leases on the public lands on the canal strip, used for agricultural purposes, are extended to twenty-five years from the present limit of five.

The present form of government organized by the president under executive order is legalized by the bill.

GREAT ENGINEERING FEAT

New York-Jersey City Tunnel Under North River Is Completed

New York, Jan. 28.—The simultaneous explosion of five dynamite charges, after the pressure of a lever by Chief Engineer Jacobs, blew down the four feet of natural barrier, far under the North river, between the two sections of the third tube of the Hudson and Manhattan railroad, between Cortland street, Manhattan, and Jersey City.

The center lines of the two sections were within a fraction of an inch of exact meeting. The point of contact was about 4500 feet from the Jersey shore and 1500 feet from where the tracks enter the terminal buildings on the Manhattan side.

The running time for trains at the opening about July 1 will be three minutes between Jersey City and New York.

MANY MEN ATTEND REVIVAL SERVICE

Meetings For Saturday and Sunday

Men predominated at the evangelical services at the Bethany church Thursday evening and the greater part of the large number present were young people. The service opened with a half hour service of song led by Prof. E. C. Zartman. On the pulpit platform besides Rev. Dr. J. W. Weddell were Rev. Dr. E. N. Hardy, Rev. Edward A. Chase, of the Wollaston Congregational church, Rev. R. J. Davis of the Calvary Baptist church and Rev. A. M. Thompson of the United Presbyterian church.

Rev. Dr. Weddell took for his text the words found in Luke XIV, 14-17 "come, for all things are now ready." At the close of the service the hymn "I am Thine, O Lord" was sung, during which Dr. Weddell said all who can truthfully say "I am Thine, O Lord" "raise their hands." Nearly every hand in the audiance went up and the preacher said "Thank God."

Rev. Mr. Davis made the prayer and Rev. Mr. Chase pronounced the benediction.

Saturday afternoon at 4.15 Dr. Weddell will address the junior Christian Endeavor society in the chapel. Saturday morning at 9 he will speak at the boys meeting at the Y. M. C. A. and will address a men's meeting at the same place Sunday afternoon.

—In the Foreign Exhibit Palace at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition at Seattle next year will be exhibits from England, France, Germany, Spain, Holland, Sweden, Russia, Austria Hungary, Switzerland, Turkey, Italy, Persia, Greece, Netherland, India, Belgium and San Marino.

ATLANTIC BOY AN EXPERT OPERATOR

Handles Telegraphic Key With Skill of a Veteran

About three years ago a little boy six years old was in the Atlantic railroad station with his father. Click! click! sounded from the station agent's office. "What was that noise" asked the youngster of his father. "That is a telegraph sounder" answered the father. That little boy was John Speers who is today the youngest telegrapher in the world. The proud father is Conrad T. Speers, known all over the United States a few years ago as one of the best telegraphers in the country.

The question asked by the little boy set Mr. Speers thinking and dedecided that it would be a fine idea to teach his two oldest children the trade so that they would be all prepared to earn their own livelihood when old enough. To think was to act with Mr. Speers and a few weeks after the incident at the railroad station he had installed at his home at 71 Hancock street, a complete set of telegraph instruments.

John has a sister Adelaide about a year older and both started in their lessons as soon as the instruments were installed. It was agreed between them that they would practice an hour every morning before school. Both children were faithful in their practice and it was but a short time before they were able to send the complete Morse alphabet. Sending came easily to them but they struck a snag when they started to learn the receiving end of the game and for months they sent and received messages from each other.

A short time ago the father brought the little boy into the main office of one of the telegraph companies in Boston to give him an idea how the messages were handled. It was at night time and business was rather dull. The operator did not believe that the little nine year old boy knew anything about telegraphy and when the father said that he could send nearly a hundred messages an hour an operator who was working the C. Chicago wire said that he would have to be shown and offered to wager cigars for the crowd that the youngster couldn't send fifty messages an hour. A temporary key and sounder were set up and the boy started to send to the skeptical one. In fifteen minutes he had the Chicago operator puzzled, he forced him to break several times and before Johnnie had been sending a half hour, the receiving operator had to quit as the boy was sending too fast for him to catch. Never before had that bunch of operators been fooled so much and the Chicago operator bought the cigars and also made Johnnie a present of a box of the best candy.

John is not the only expert operator in the Speers family as the little girl gives him a hard race for the honors. There are many good natured contests at the Speers home between Johnnie and his sister and it is hard for their father to pick a winner. Mr. Speers has not only taught his children the science of operating but has instructed them how to set up instruments and also the way to discover breaks in the lines and how to repair the machines when they get out of order.

John and Adelaide have two younger sisters and are teaching them the art of operating. The young sisters take to their lessons like a duck takes to water and are rapidly becoming experts at the profession. John and his sister Adelaide are scholars at the Quincy school, Atlantic and are considered among the brightest in their classes. John's one ambition is to learn wireless telegraphy so that some day he can be a hero like Binns of the ill-fated "Republic."

CONGRESSIONAL ELECTION CONTEST

City Clerk Keith Takes Ballots To Boston

City Clerk Harrison A. Keith, appeared before Judge Churchill, at the rooms of the Election Commissioners in Boston this afternoon in the Galvin —O'Connell congressional election contest.

Mr. Keith was required to take with him the ballots cast at the November election in Ward one, precinct one, both precincts of Ward Two, Ward Four, precinct one and Ward six, precinct one. It was in these precincts that irregularities were claimed to have been found.

The ballots and talley sheets used at the election made quite a bundle and in order to insure the safety of the ballots in case they should be wanted by the Congressional committee at Washington, an automobile was furnished to take Mr. Keith and the ballots to Boston.

Boston papers last week reported that Judge Churchill and counsel for Mr. Galvin and Mr. O'Connell would come to Quincy last Saturday to make their examination of the ballots. This statement, however, proved to be false.

DORCAS SUPPER.

A supper and entertainment were held on Thursday evening at the Universalist church under the auspices of the Dorcas society. Hearn's orchestra furnished music during the evening.

The supper was excellent and was enjoyed by the large number who were present. Those who had charge were Mrs. George E. Sprague, Mrs. Benjamin French and Mrs. George M. Gragg.

The entertainment was rather unique a series of shadow pantomines being presented, showing "The experiences of Uncle Josh in New York." The pantomines were given by George M. Gragg and Ralph Merritt.

Still Emperor William need not necessarily despair. Our own Congress has "sassed" the President on occasions, even as violently.

"Japan is really not so badly off as has been asserted," says the Norwich, (Conn.) Record. Nor so badly off its base as Capt. Hobson asserted.

What do you suppose would happen if Mr. Archbold should send a certificate of deposit for $3,500 for a year's subscription to the Commoner?

There is much discussion in Washington, concerning a memorial to President Lincoln. It is the desire of the country at large that he shall have a monument commensurate with that of Washington. A road to Gettsburg is under discussion; an arch over Sixteenth Street is favored by some. A towering monument on the Plaza between the new Union Station and the Capitol is perhaps more popular with artists than any other suggestion. Old Andrew Jackson, however, had a great contempt for architects and artists, as was shown when he walked out and planted his hickory stick in the centre of Pennsylvania Avenue and ordered the Treasury Building erected there.

While our Congress is increasing appropriations for big ships under a fake war alarm with Japan, that country is reducing its naval appropriations. The amount this year appropriated for the navy is greater than the expense of the entire Government two generations ago, but the worst feature of the increase is that not more than half of the appropriation is used for the improvement of the navy; a large proportion of it goes to useless and inaccessible navy yards,—inaccessible because they were established for light-draft wooden vessels and the large war vessels now building can not reach them and their drydocks are quite too small or too shallow for the accomodation of modern dreadnaughts.

The public ought to know that a navy yard at Portsmouth, Maine, maintained really for the benefit of that state, or, rather for the political advantage of Senator Hale of that state, is worse than useless, inasmuch as it costs thousands of dollars yearly to maintain it and guard it. The same may be said with reference to the navy yard at Charleston, S. C., which Senator Tillman of that state virtually acknowledged was a steal excusable only on the ground that while other states were stealing his state was entitled to something. The navy yard at New Orleans is quite useless, or worse than useless, but Senator McHenry of that state was also supposed to be entitled to a rake-off. This yard can only be reached by vessels of comparatively light draft after sailing one hundred miles up the rapid current of the Mississippi River. The Mare Island navy yard at San Francisco is another sinkhole of useless expenditure. This is an appanage of Senator Perkins of California.

May it not be hoped that the time has come when under improved conditions in the Senate, Senator Hale of Maine, who has long been known as the owner of the American navy, may have his power for wastefulness curtailed? After the 4th of March there will be new blood in the United States Senate, and such bosses as Aldrich, Hale, Elkins, Cullum, Gallinger and Foraker may cease to have their dominating and pernicious influence.

The Quincy Daily Ledger is first of all a newspaper. Secondly it has its greatest interests in the interests of the City of Quincy which, as a matter of fact are identical with its own interests. This newspaper, or any other cannot grow in a community which does not grow. Looking at the situation from all points of view it is absolutely essential to the development of a newspaper that the field in which it lives and has its being, also grows and develops. That is the selfish side, perhaps. It also proves one thing, if nothing else, that a newspaper, dependent as it is upon public opinion, should govern its expressions of opinion by the majority sentiment of the community in which it lives.

We believe that the majority of the thinking citizenship of the city of Quincy favor the trolley express. We also believe that all those opposed are not thinking of the interests of the city as a whole but may be governed by their own personal prejudices. In a case of this kind we maintain that personal prejudices, personal feelings should be entirely eliminated, we should all get together for the interests of the whole, which is, or are, the advancement of the city of Quincy, our home, our source of livelihood, our pride.

If the trolley express can give us more in the way of shipping facilities than we now can get, as every indication seems to point, let us have it. It may be difficult from the attitude of Quincy in the past to get it, but let us try. Let us repair the wrong. Let us take advantage of every opportunity for our own good.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

A Boston doctor says that everyone should swallow a dozen raw eggs every day. Not at 50 cents a swallow.—Haverhill Gazette.

A new record has been made in the number of bills filed to the legislature this session. The total number is 1374. Think of it—nearly 1400 new rules of conduct new lamps for the feet, or new traps to catch the feet and make the walker stumble. Nearly 1400 more rules of guidance for a State that has so many laws now that even its most intelligent people, no doubt, unwittingly break laws every week of their lives. Laws to make us go to caucuses, to make people put numbers on their carriages, to give pensions for this and that, to regulte almost everything except what we shall serve on our tables—pretty soon every man of activity will have to walk around accompanied by his special lawyer, ready to warn him at any moment of a false step he may be making without knowing it. Of the making of laws there is no end, and of the breaking of them the same might be said.—Brockton Enterprise.

It is a trifle astonishing to learn that the national commission on country life is studying the sanitary condition of the farmers, and will lay special emphasis on tuberculosis in the rural districts. The idea that the open window is the best preventative of this disease leads easily to the belief that where air is free, plentiful and pure there should be practically no tuberculosis. Yet there is a great deal of it in rural communities and in seacoast villages. The air is there, to be sure, and on the hilltops where the wind blows clear and undefiled the conditions are admirable for the prevention of tuberculosis. Unfortunately, however, the ordinary farm house is as stuffy as the city dwelling, though in matters of cleanly housekeeping it may be perfection. Why it is, it might be difficult to explain, but farmers and farmers' wives often have a curious and illogical aversion to the fresh air so plentiful about them. The closed window, the drawn blind, are common in villages and on isolated farms. The lesson which the country life commission must bring to the country districts is to utilize to the fullest the natural advantages which surround the farm houses for the prevention not only of tuberculosis but other diseases in the prevention or cure of which plenty of fresh air and sturdy exercise play a large part.—Boston Advertiser.

Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. TENNESSEE IRON MERGER

To Culberson Falls the Task of Bringing Out Evidence

MUST COME FROM WITNESSES

Data Cannot Be Supplied by Secretary Straus, as Requested, as Files Are In Possession of the President, Who Is Likely to Hold on to Them—Correspondence Made Public by Department of Justice

Washington, Jan. 29.—Realizing the futility of asking President Roosevelt to send them what data he has regarding the merger of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company, the senate committee conducting the investigation will depend upon witnesses from New York to supply evidence.

Senator Culberson's colleagues on the special committee of the Senate judiciary committee have thrown upon him the responsibility for bringing out evidence relating to the merger with the United States Steel company.

It is understood that in addition to George W. Perkins of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., Oakleigh Thorne, president of the Trust Company of America, also will come from New York and go before the committee.

It is denied that he has been subpoenaed, and it is believed that his appearance will be voluntary and will follow a communication which he sent to Culberson, giving many details of the ownership of stock of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company prior to its sale to the steel corporation in November last.

Roosevelt Has Files

Secretary Straus of the department of commerce and labor has been asked to furnish to the committee the data concerning the merger which was obtained by Commissioner Smith of the bureau of corporations, and the reply has been received that the files are now in possession of President Roosevelt, to whom the request should be directed.

The committee has told Mr. Culberson that any witness desired by him would be summoned.

Mr. Perkins will be heard today before the sub-committee and such members of the full committee as care to attend. Thorne will be heard on Monday. All the sessions of the committee will be executive.

The department of justice made public the documents and correspondence relating to the pending inquiry before the committee on the judiciary of the senate with respect to the alleged merger.

They include a letter from Senator Clark to the attorney general, dated Jan. 16, inviting him to appear before the committtee and submit any matter he may see fit.

To this the attorney general replied that he could not be present, but closes with a statement that the department of justice has always been ready to prosecute the United States Steel Corporation or any other corporation or individual for anything which did constitute a violation of the law as understood by the department.

M'KINLEY'S BIRTHDAY

Not Forgotten by Friends of Martyr President In Washington

Washington, Jan. 29.—The birthday of William McKinley, late president of the United States, which occurs today, will be remembered with appropriate exercises by the patriotic societies of the national capital. Mr. McKinley was born Jan. 29, 1843.

Next Sunday evening a memorial sermon on "William McKinley, the Man, the Soldier, the Citizen, President and Christian," will be delivered by Rev. Dr. Woodrow in the First Congregational church. Many of the attendants at today's exercises will hear the sermon.

RETURN OF $12,000

Asked of Montana's Attorney General In a Legislative Resolution

Helena, Mont., Jan. 29.—In the legislature a resolution was introduced, setting forth that Attorney General Galen, who is a brother-in-law of Senator Carter, illegally drew $12,000 from the state treasury for salary and expenses.

It is claimed that he was under 30 years of age, the constitutional limit for that office, and therefore was not entitled to hold the office.

GREAT FREIGHT RATE WAR IS IMPENDING

Ball Is Set Rolling by the Boston and Maine

Baltimore, Jan. 29.—Officials of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad refuse to comment upon the action of the Boston and Maine railroad in notifying the interstate commerce commission that it will insist on a freight rate of 67 cents per 100 pounds from Boston to the west, the same as from Baltimore.

Opinion in local railroad and shipping circles is that the action of the Boston and Maine leaves no avenue for escape from a great freight rate war.

There is little doubt that the Baltimore and Ohio will lower its tariff to meet the cut of the Boston and Maine. This, it is expected, will be followed by similar action by the Philadelphia and New York lines, and later by those in Canada and roads centering at New Orleans.

PANAMA LIBEL CASE

Douglas Robinson Signs Affidavit at Instance of Jerome

New York, Jan. 29.—Uncertainty as to what action would be taken on the recent suggestion made by District Attorney Jerome in the case of the government's suit against the New York World for libel, that the federal authorities suspend their activities and permit him to proceed in their stead, has been in a measure removed by the signing of an affidavit by Douglas Robinson, brother-in-law of President Roosevelt.

It is believed that Robinson's signing of the affidavit in question means that he has accepted Jerome's proposal to appear as a complaining witness against The World, and that the grand jury of the county of New York is preparing to take the matter in hand.

Two Jurors In Carmack Murder Case Dropped For Intoxication

Nashville, Jan. 29.—With the jury numbering two less than it did five days ago, the ninth day of the trial of Duncan B. Cooper, Robin Cooper and John Sharpe, accused of the murder of E. W. Carmack, ended with every prospect of a further depletion.

The court excused Jurors Leigh and Jackson, charged with intoxication and bias, and intimated that Juror Whitworth would be excused. Two physicians signed certificates that if Whitmore remains in the jury box his life may be forfeited.

The new venire of 500 men will appear today and an effort will be made to get from them the remainder of the jury.

DEADLOCK ON FISHERIES

Proposed Agreement Not Satisfactory to Newfoundland Government

St. John's, Jan. 29.—The colonial government has not given its assent, as yet, to the proposed fishery agreement between Great Britain and the United States, and the opinion is expressed in some quarters that it will fail.

Premier Bond and his cabinet decline to discuss the situation for publication, but it is admitted in government circles that a deadlock exists.

The opposition press holds the viewpoint that Bond is unwilling to allow claims of American vessel owners for damages caused by the detention of schooners to be submitted to The Hague for arbitration.

—In the midst of much talk of economy, says the Boston Advertiser, at Washington it is not astonishing to find increasing opposition to continuing the Japanese exposition commission from now until 1914, even at the small sum of $10,000 per year. There are several years between now and 1914, and that means several times $10,000. And there is very little work for Commissioner Loomis to do in the meantime to earn his $10,000 per year.

THREE THOUSAND MILES BY WIRELESS

Navy Department to Have a Station at Washington

Washington, Jan. 29.—The navy department opened bids for locating a wireless tower in Washington for communicating with ships at sea, to the distance of 3000 miles.

For a long time the department has felt the desirability of the development of wireless telegraphy as a means of readily communicating at long distances between central stations at various points in the United States with the commands at sea.

The bids submitted indicated a lively competition, seven firms submitting proposals. The most satisfactory of these offered to furnish apparatus and tower for $182,600.

Features of some of the other bids, which included ideas not called for in the specifications, favorably impressed the officials.

Arrest of Man Suspected of Killing an Aged Couple

Chester, Pa., Jan. 29.—Joseph B. Chogwaskie, a Pole, was arrested in this city, charged with the murder of Henry James and wife, the aged couple whose bodies were found horribly mutilated in the barnyard of their farm near Berwin.

Chogwaskie, who formerly was employed on the James farm, was taken into custody in a Polish settlement. He denied knowledge of the crime and even went so far as to deny ever having worked for the James'. There were blood spots on Chogwaskie's shoes.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The taking of testimony in the Pittsburg hearing of the government's suit to dissolve the alleged $500,000,000 Harriman railroad merger has been concluded.

Leroy White, an ordinary seaman on the U. S. S. Yankton, while that vessel was en route from Villefranche for Gibraltar, fell overboard and was drowned.

Rodolfo Espinosa, the new minister from Nicaragua, was introduced to President Roosevelt by Secretary of State Bacon. The usual felicitous messages were exchanged.

Claiming that the army is badly in need of officers of the line, Major Bell, chief of staff, appeared before the house committee on military affairs in favor of an increase of the number of officers.

STEAMSHIP MEN FILE LIBEL SUITS

Republic's Owners Claim Damages of $2,000,000

BLAME PLACED ON THE FLORIDA

Contention That Latter Ship Was Steaming at "Immoderate Rate of Speed" at Time of Collision—Owners of Italian Vessel Also Take Action, Claiming That Republic's Officers Are Responsible For Disaster

New York, Jan. 29.—Just which ship was responsible for the collision between the White Star liner Republic and the Italian liner Florida off Nantucket, Mass., and which company shall pay the damages will be decided by the court of admiralty.

Both companies filed suits Thursday. The owners of the Republic claim damages of $2,000,000 and recite, in concise legal form, the story of the marvelous sea disaster. The blame for the collision is placed on the Florida, and the contention is made that the latter ship was steaming at "an immoderate rate of speed" when the crash came.

The owners of the Florida also filed a libel suit and a petition for a limitation of liability against the Florida. The petitioners ask that their liability, in case the suits are decided against them, be placed at $224,000, the value of the damage to the Florida.

Later the Florida's owners applied for and obtained an order from Judge Adams, in the United States circuit court, staying all suits for damages against the steamship Florida on the ground that their petition for limitation of liability had been before the $2,000,000 libel suit of the Oceanic Steamship Navigation company.

In their suit proper the Florida owners allege that the collision was due to the neglect of the Republic's officers.

C. B. Richards & Co., agents for the Lloyd-Italiano line, to which the Florida belongs, believe that Captain Ruspini, his officers and crew should come in for some of the praise that has been bestowed upon the officers of the Republic.

In a statement issued last night they point out the bravery and humanity displayed by Ruspini, who, despite the fact that his vessel was sorely damaged, stood by the Republic for more than twenty-four hours, rescuing the passengers from the Republic and then transferring them to the the Baltic when that ship reached the scene.

The statement is made that had the Baltic not arrived Ruspini would successfully have brought his overcrowded ship into this port.

LIMITS EXPENDITURE

Weeks' Bill For Conservation of Our Forests Is Reported

Washington, Jan. 29.—Before finally reporting the Weeks bill, looking to the establishment of forest reserves in the White mountains and the Appalachian mountains, the house committee on agriculture placed a limitation on the amount of money that may be expended under the bill.

The bill, as finally agreed upon, provides that not more than $1,000,000 shall be expended during the coming fiscal year for the purchase of land for reserves, and not more than $2,000,000 in any subsequent year. The life of the proposed law is fixed at ten years.

BALKAN SITUATION STILL A MENACE

Powers Endeavoring to Bring About a Peaceful Settlement

London, Jan. 29.—The Balkan situation is again causing some anxiety at the European capitals. Bulgaria's action in calling out her reserves is apparently explained by Turkey's attempts to obtain a rectification of the existing frontier as a condition for reducing her monetary demands from Bulgaria. Noting the danger of trouble between Turkey and Bulgaria, the powers are again resorting to negotiations to bring about joint pressure in favor of a peaceful settlement.

According to a Sofia dispatch, Great Britain has advised Turkey to accept an indemnity of $20,000,000, and Bulgaria is inclined to pay this sum, provided Turkey abandons her claim for rectification of the frontier.

He is frequently called "the Saranac Lake whirlwind," and reports from the east declare that he is skating faster this winter than ever before. Clarence Granger, the New York speeder, and his club mate, Phil Kearney of the Wanderers; Anderson, champion of Illinois, and many others will help to make skating history on the two nights of the meet.

ENFORCEMENT OF BOSTON LAW

Will Keep Santa Claus From Public Streets Hereafter

POLICE WORK OF PAST YEAR

Nearly Half of 42,468 Persons Arrested For Drunkenness Were Non-Residents — Forty-Two Commissioned Officers Convicted of Offenses by Courtmartial—Lawlessness of Juvenile Class a Serious Problem

Boston, Jan. 29.—That the Salvation Army lassies and Volunteers of America Santa Claus, who for years have made the streets of the city bright and picturesque by their costumes and red boxes during the holiday season, may not in the future solicit funds on the streets for Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners for the poor was made public in the third annual report of Police Commissioner O'Meara.

While such solicitation was confined to a few religious and benevolent organizations it was tolerated by the police, says the report, but the custom has grown so that annually more than fifty different organizations or solicitors seek the privilege, and the commissioner declares that, as the law strictly forbids such practices, in the future it will be enforced to the letter.

The annual report shows there were 68,146 arrests in Boston during the year ending Nov. 30, 1908, of which 42,468 were for drunkenness. Of this number 20,270 were non-residents.

The total number fined for offenses were 15,735, representing $158,982 in fines.

There were 6815 persons sent to prison for a total of 3904 years.

Commissioner O'Mera compares his police officers with the commissioned officers of the United States army. To substantiate his claims he states fifty commissioned officers were tried by general court martials, which secured forty-two convictions, with fourteen dismissals from the service. During the same period but thirty-six police officers were tried, twenty-seven being convicted and fourteen of these dismissed from the department.

A warning is sounded in relation to the rapid increase of girls between the ages of 12 and 17 allowed to roam the streets of the city at night. The lawlessness of the juvenile class is also cited as a serious problem for the city.

For violations of the automobile laws 1696 persons were arrested and paid fines of $19,338.02. Six were killed and 127 injured by automobiles during the year.

Commissioner O'Meara desires to have the veteran's preferance act revoked so far as it relates to the department, so that he may appoint to the position of deputy superintendents competent men, rather than to select those now in line for the position. Two such vacancies now exist, for which five captains are eligible under the veterans' preference act.

SITUATION AT MESSINA

Soldiers Swap Part of American Provisions Intended For Sufferers

Messina, Jan. 29.—The population felt particular alarm Thursday over a number of earth shocks which occurred, as it was just a month since the great earthquake overwhelmed the city.

Terrific rain storms have prevailed and the downpour has caused a suspension of work.

The American relief ship Celtic landed such a great quantity of meat here that General Mazza distributed part of it to the soldiers, but he ordered the military commissariat later to return to the people an equal quantity out of the soldiers' provisions.

Compulsory Wireless Equipment

Washington, Jan. 29.—Another manifestation of the interest of congress in the proposed compulsory equipment of ocean-going steamers with wireless telegraph apparatus was evidenced when Representative Peters (Mass.) introduced a bill requiring the wireless telegraph on all ocean-going vessels, both in the foreign and domestic services, plying between ports more than 100 miles distant. A maximum penalty of $1000 is provided.

QUINCY LOCALS BRIEFLY TOLD

The City Council Committee on Water Supply met Thursday evening.

Frank Hall of Davis street has returned from a business trip to New York.

Friends of Mrs. Albert Moulton are sorry to learn that she is quite ill at her home on Safford street.

Rev. Carl G. Horst and family moved from West Upton to their new home on Berlin street.

The annual meeting of the Quincy Yacht club will be held in Electa hall, next Thursday evening.

Postmaster Hammond of the Quincy office has begun to assign the letter boxes at the new building.

The officers of Merrymount lodge No. 617, Knights of Honor, will be installed this evening in G. A. R. hall.

Mrs. Walter Sawin of Adams street is able to go out, after being confined to the house for three weeks with a severe grip cold.

Unless all signs fail the annual ball of Quincy lodge of Elks this year will eclipse the affairs of the two previous years.

The monthly whist scores at the Granite City club for January were captured by W. W. Ewell, George H. Field and William Chapman.

If the old saying, that the last Friday in the month governs the weather for the next month is true, some fine weather is assured for February.

Who was responsible for that travelling derrick at the South Quincy freight yard, the Granite Manufacturers' Association or the Board of Trade?

Many skating parties are being arranged for by young people and every evening scores of them are seen with their skates headed for the ice ponds.

Leo P. Noonan of Quincy was one of the speakers at the second annual banquet of the class of 1911 of Boston College, held last night at Young's hotel. Mr. Noonan spoke on "Our Purpose."

Miss Alice Coe of Billings street, one of the members of the Westland quartette, has an interesting memento of the quartette's musical tour in a well filled scrap book of complimentary press notices.

There will be a committee at Grand Army hall Saturday between seven and eight o'clock to meet those who wish to join the new Camp Sons of Veterans, sons and grandsons of veterans of the Civil war are eligible to join.

The Iroquois club held a dress rehearsal last night for their annual minstrel show to be held in Music hall to night. Some of the things that happened last night indicate that the ends will be relentless with their hammers.

Mrs. Everett C. Bumpus gave a talk on Italian Art at Brockton Tuesday at the residence of Mrs. F. E. White. Her subject was "Lago Trasimeno-Siena-San-Gimignano Certaldo" Mrs. Bumpus was tendered an informal reception at the close of her talk.

Patty's Picnic at First Church Chapel.

At First Church chapel Thursday evening the little and the big chairs were filled with members of the Sunday school and friends all anxious to participate in Patty's Picnic which proved to be a musical play written by and given under the direction of Mr. Emery L. Crane. The participants were members of the Sunday school and the play was given with remarkable spirit and evident enjoyment by the youthful actors, whose make-ups were capital.

The cast of characters is best given by the following prologue, written and read by Mr. Crane:

Before the curtain parts tonight and offers to your view,
The actors in this little play, I want a word with you.
Our idea is to save some cash and with that end in mind,
As you came to your seats tonight, no programme did you find.
Instead of that, the Prologue, as in Bill Shakespeares day,
Will name the youthful actors who take part in the play.
The object of this show, no doubt, the most of you here, know,
'Tis for our Sunday School, and yet it's not a holy show.
The children who are in it, belong here every one,
All members of the Sunday School, outsiders there are none.
They may not all be Irvings, but they will do their best
And if you should applaud them, I'm sure they'll not protest.
The play is Patty's Picnic. The scenes in it are two.
Scene one—a room in Patty's house. Scene two—a woodland view.
The place is here in Quincy, down the Fore River way.
The time is any time at all, on a good old summers day.
The heroine called Patty is played by young Miss Gow
And as the cruel stepmother, Miss Dewhurst makes her bow.
The fairy in this little play is not a female one,
But Rumplestilskin will be played by Master Frank Johnson.
The Tiny Tads and Tots come next, all girls let me explain,
Played by Miss Norma Johnson, Miss Saville and Miss Crane.
Sam Sears comes on the stage with them to do his little trick,
He plays a bughouse gentleman, the Pantaloonatic.
Miss Packard—Dorothy—comes next Angel Angelina,
And when she sings her song, you'll say "Sure nothing can be finer."
She wrote the words of it herself—we want you all to know it,
She is a regular three in one—an actress, singer, poet.
As little Nemo, who from bed is wont to take a fall,
We offer to you here tonight, the youthful Henry Hall.
His tough companion, Mr. Flip, he must be known to all,
Is acted on this stage tonight by Blackmurs eldest—Paul.
And Buster Brown, who as you know is full of the Old Nick,
Another Blackmur acts tonight, Richard at times called Dick.
And Mary Jane, his cousin, who shares his smiles and tears,
Is sung for us this evening by tuneful Constance Sears.
Young Mister Marsh will do the part of the jester Marcaleen
And Edith Ames as Alice from Wonderland is seen.
Todd Elwell is the Rabbit who comes with her tonight
You'll surely recognize him for he's all dressed in white.
And as the Indian maiden-To-ko-la-hok-a-ting,
Miss Marjorie Taylor will appear and incidently sing.
Miss Leila Smith some time tonight will aid us with a song,
And Minnie Hardwick plays for her to help the thing along.
These are the actors who appear before you here tonight,
But there are other helpers who do not come in sight.
First, there's Miss Lane, the maker up for nearly every show,
Who's longing now, the Ledger says, for a good fall of snow,
So she can bind her snowshoes on and start without delay
To climb the lofty mountain peaks of Milton far away.
And then there is Miss Burgess, why we couldn't give a show
Unless we saw her sitting just outside the footlights glow,
And playing the piano as only she can play.
To find another such as she, you'd search for many a day.
The real live rabbit, that is caught by Flip our funny man,
Is loaned by Charlie Sampson, the well known bunny man.
The curtain will be pulled tonight, providing it don't stick,
Also the rabbit will be held by my young hopeful—Dick.
And the other Crane boy—Donald—turns on the electric light,
We've worked in the whole family, you'll notice here tonight.
This is the programme and at once we'll start without delay
And have the curtains drawn aside and act the little play.
We hope you will enjoy it and we are very sure
That you will understand the jokes—they've all been used before.
If you are pleased, on going out, please say, we think you ought ter,
"I'm very glad I came tonight, that was a well spent quarter."

SPORTING NOTES.

AGAINST BUREAU SYSTEM

Evans Declares That It Impairs the Efficiency of the Navy

Canton, O., Jan. 29.—Rear Admiral Evans, in an interview called out by a Washington dispatch which told of the letter of the president to members of the naval investigating committee, of which Evans is a member, declared with emphasis that there is much need of reformation in the conduct of United States naval affairs, for bettering the service and putting it on a more economical basis.

"I am opposed to the bureau system," he said. "No department conducted along bureaucratic lines, conducted by men who too frequently know little about battleships and fleets; conducted often as a mere system of correspondence and ponderous conference, can make for an efficient navy."

WAGE SCALE RAISED

Arbitrators Favor Employes of Boston and Northern Street Railway

Boston, Jan. 29.—Seventeen hundred employes of the Boston and Northern Street Railway company will receive increased wages under the decision of the arbitrators appointed to adjust the differences between the company and its employes.

Under the new scale, which will go into effect on Jan. 31 and remain in operation until Oct. 1, 1910, the men will receive 21 cents an hour during the first year of employment, 22 cents for the second year, 23 cents for the next three years, 24 cents for the next two, and 25 cents thereafter.

Under the old scale the wages ranged from 20 to 25 cents and the increases were not so frequent.

Clever Men With Championship Ideas Meet In Ring Tonight

New York, Jan. 29.—Two of the cleverest little men with the gloves will get together tonight in the ring of the National Athletic club in this city. They are "Harlem" Tommy Murphy of this city and Owen Moran of England.

Each of the two fighters has met the best men of their class in this country, and each has championship ideas. The fight, which is scheduled to go ten rounds, will probably be the best seen here in some time.

The quarry at Atlantic offers an opportunity for excellent if rather dangerous, skating just at present. The ice is so sheltered from the wind that it freezes smoothly and evenly.

Mrs. Joseph Wright of Ericson street, Neponset, who created a great deal of excitement in Atlantic last Monday by slipping on the ice above the railroad bridge and falling through to the tracks below, is reported still in a critical condition. She sustained a fractured hip and several internal injuries. This is the first accident of this kind that has ever occurred on the Atlantic bridge.

Marr and James Roberts representing the workmen at the Fore River; W. Ward Witcher, George W. IROQUOIS CLUB MINSTREL SHOW

Large Audience Greet Them at Third Annual.

City Officials and Others Remembered by End Men.

Knock, brother, knock, seemed to be the slogan at the third annual minstrel show o the Iroquois club held last evening in Music Hall. The hall was packed full and the audience was kept in an uproar at all times listening to the songs and jokes of the funny end men.

City officials, business men, councilmen, public departments, people in every walk of life were hit during the evening, Galen Bowditch coming in for his share. Seated up in the front row with Mayor Shea and City Solicitor McAnarney, Galen was one of the most apreciative witnesses of the performance.

The show was under the personal direction of Andrew J. Dinegan, the well-known minstrel of West Quincy. The performance was a success in every way and reflects credit on the director and all those who had anything to do with it.

A chorus of sixty mixed voices was seated on the stage, the boys dressed up in fancy black-face minstrel style and the girls in the attractive costumes of summer girls. In the centre sat David McIntosh, the interlocutor and at his feet sat the club mascot, Russell McDonald.

The ends were Dan Driscoll, Frank Driscoll, Ray Elcock, Tim DeCoste, Al Bullock and Ed Desmond. They were assisted in their choruses by the following beaux and belles of minstrelsy:

Misses Annie G. Raab, Catherine A. McDermott, Gertrude Bradley, Catherine J. Yule, Margaret Fay, Ella Blanding, Mae Curran, Pearl McDonald, Mollie Sullivan, Josephine Rizzi, Josie Edwards, Mabel McDonald, Sadie Mellen, Florence McKenna, Annie A. O'Neil, Annie M. Foy, Fay Phelan, W. Childs, Wm. Kane, Joe Berlucchi, Ernest Knight, Eben Kerr, Murray Kerr, James McKenzie, Daniel Mullen, Leo Mullen, Ameil Bouchard, William Fader, William Houston, Peter Fontoni, Hugh Opie, Alex McKee, Thomas Conrad, William O'Neil, Everett Harkins, Henry Harkins, Harold Caddie, Gordon McDonald, Charles B. Yule, Russell McDonald, Columbus Dunn, William Carter, George Mullen, Joseph Driscoll, J. S. Phelan, Daniel Mahon, Gunner Johnson, Arthur Wentworth, William Baker, Russell Tingley, Thomas Sullivan, William McCarthy. Miss Elizabeth Barron was the accompanist.

The opening chorus was arranged by Andy Dinegan and was made up of the popular songs of the day. The chorus work was very good and several fancy moves by the end men and the girls brought forth loud applause. As soon as the opener was over the jokes began to fly thick and fast and continued through the whole show.

The first end song was by Frank Driscoll, who made his debut on the stage. He sang "Ever loving Spoony Sam" and made a hit with his funny antics. He was followed by "Al" Bullock, well known in Quincy minstrel shows. Al sang "I'd like to see you get along," and put out a few parodies that were good. "Shine on Harvest Moon" a ballad by George Davey was the next number.

"Ed" Desmond the Copeland end, sang "Going up" and the house was convulsed at this funny song. Ed got great applause from a block of West Quincy admirers. This was followed by a solo by Russell McDonald, "I've got to make love to somebody." Russell is a little boy with a big voice and he made a hit with the audience by pointing out different ones in the crowd who looked good to him.

Ray Elcock sang "You're in the right church but in the wrong pew" and was followed by Miss Celina Beliveau who sang "For I am a true loving wife" from the Merry Widow.

Tim DeCoste, familiar to Quincy people, sang Lew Dockstader's big hit "Broke." Tim had a few steps that took well with the house. John

WOULD ESCORT "DRUNKS" HOME

Better Than Taking Them to Stations, Says Commissioner

NEW YORK'S FALLEN WOMEN

Officers Said to Have a System Whereby They Have Easy Graft In Making Arrests and Having Cases Fixed Up—White Slave Trust Exists, Requirements of Law Being Easily Met by Subterfuges

New York, Jan. 30.—Police assistance of drunken men to their homes instead of their being taken under arrest to station houses, was one of the subjects incisively, if briefly, discussed by Police Commissioner Bingham in testimony before the legislative committee investigating courts.

"I think Chief of Police Kohler of Cleveland has the right idea," said the commissioner. "If a Cleveland policeman meets a drunken man or even a disorderly person on the streets, he takes him home. A man coming home from a dinner, drunk, should not be arrested."

As to the existing police discretion the commissioner said: "They may take a chance and use discretion—for a five dollar bill."

Other subjects taken up, some of them at much length, were the alleged prevalence of graft in dealing with women of the streets; the hopelessness of dealing with the social evil until, as the commissioner expressed it, "ministers are either called off or educated," and white slave traffic among immigrants.

The commissioner described as "easy" graft that connected with arrests of women of the street. He said he knew a "system" was worked, although he could not prove it, whereby officers grab a woman, take her to the night court, have her fined and then have the case "fixed up" so that the arresting officer gets his share of the money.

According to his statements the white slave traffic is extensively carried on among immigrants in all parts of New York. "If you knew all, gentlemen," he said, "it would break your hearts.

"One of the first things to be done," continued the commissioner, "is to abolish the trust controlling the white slave trade. There is no use denying that there is such a trust, and the sooner we realize it the better off we will be."

After his testimony Bingham was asked to amplify his statement that white slaves are controlled by a trust. He referred his questioners to his annual report, in which he said:

"The traffic in importing women, especially among the French, has received careful attention from the department during the past year. This traffic is found to be of large dimensions. There seems to be very slight difficulty in getting women into the country. The requirements of the immigration authorities are easily met by various simple subterfuges.

"The new law which went into effect July 1, 1907, has been of great help, but the traffic still goes on and will continue until drastic federal measures are taken to extirpate it. The forms it takes are as bad as possible.

"The term ownership is no misnomer. The women seem to be the property of the men in about the same way that a trick dog would be the property of the man who trains him and exhibits him for his own personal profit."

SUPERSTITIOUS MINERS

Placed More Faith In Clairvoyant Than In Safety of Mine

Pittsburg, Jan. 30.—Because a Pittsburg clairvoyant predicted the destruction of the mine by an explosion Friday, only 80 of the 350 employes of the Hazel mine, near Canonsburg, appeared for work and the mine was closed till Monday.

The other workmen, filled with superstition, lined the hills at a safe distance from the mine and waited all day for the explosion, which did not come. The financial loss from the shutdown will amount to several thousand dollars.

Cassatt Leaves the Army

Washington, Jan. 30.—At the request of of Captain Edward B. Cassatt, Thirteenth cavalry, the president has accepted his resignation. Cassatt is a son of the late president of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, and leaves the army to engage in private business. His troop is under orders to proceed to the Philippines.

Cuba Buys Spanish War Materials

Madrid, Jan. 30.—A convention has been signed settling the question of the ownership of the war materials left in Cuba by Spain at the time of the evacuation of the island by the Spanish. Spain will turn over the materials to Cuba in consideration of the payment of $300,000, payable in three installments.

Bulgaria Draws Attention of Powers to the Attitude of Turkey

Sofia, Jan. 30.—The Bulgarian government last night delivered a note to the representatives of the powers complaining of the irreconcilable and uncompromising attitude of Turkey and declaring that the porte must be responsible for the consequences.

The note does not solicit the intervention of the powers, but draws their attention to the tension of the situation.

For several days past the relations between Bulgaria and Turkey again have been exceedingly strained because Bulgaria mobilized her reserves and brought up to its war strength of 25,000 men the eighth division of her army on the Turkish frontier.

The present situation is the result of the failure of Bulgaria and Turkey to reach an amicable agreement concerning the amount of the indemnity Bulgaria shall pay Turkey for her independence which she proclaimed last October, and for the seizure of a portion of the Oriental Railway.

GRIDIRON CLUB'S ANNUAL

Roosevelt Will Be Placed "On the Slab" at Tonight's Feast

Washington, Jan. 30.—Tonight at the New Willard hotel President Roosevelt will be roasted, done to a turn. The roasting, which will not be painful either physically or mentally, will be done at the dinner of the Gridiron club, the Washington organization of newspaper men whose fame has extended to all corners of the civilized world.

Tonight's Gridiron club dinner will be the twenty-fourth annual banquet of the club and the last one to be attended by Mr. Roosevelt during his term of office. Of course not even a hint of the dinner program has been given out, but it is a safe guess that all sorts of fun regarding the close of the administration and the coming trip to Africa will be poked at the president. Coming in for a share of the satire will be the retiring vice president and the members of congress who have lost their seats.

REFORM ORDERS REGARDING NAVY

Effort of Congress to Get Some Light on the Subject

Washington, Jan. 30.—That the house means to take part in the reorganization of the navy department became evident when the committee on naval affairs adopted a resolution inviting the secretary of the navy to explain to it next Thursday the scope and effect of the recent reform orders, designed to consolidate the bureaus.

The committee desires the information to guide it in determining whether legislation is necessary to carry out the reforms or to prevent a return to the bureau system by some succeeding secretary of the navy.

PANIC IN COAL MINE

All but Two of Shift of Three Hundred Escape From Explosion

Madison, Pa., Jan. 30.—Two men were killed and three hundred others narrowly escaped death from an explosion of coal dust at the Sewickley mine of the Keystone Coal and Coke company.

The explosion caused a panic among the day shift at work, numbering about 300 men, and all made a rush for the exits. Except the two victims all succeeded in escaping before the fire damp settled around where they were working.

One of the men killed was working about a mile and a half from the mine entrance and is supposed to have loaded a car with slate and, while waiting for it to be removed, fired a shot, igniting the dust.

RAILROADS ARE TIED UP

Schedules Interfered With by Great Blizzard In the West

Chicago, Jan. 30.—The storm of sleet, snow and rain which, swirled along by a high wind during the last twenty-four hours, has prostrated telegraph and telephone wires, stalled trains, wrecked buildings and isolated whole communities, struck Chicago last night.

A long fight is being made by the telegraph and railroad companies to restore wires and rescue trains. All the roads warned all employes to prepare for blizzards. No freight trains are running in the storm belt in Iowa, and few in Wisconsin and Minnesota.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The Higgins block, a three story wooden structure at Presque Isle, Me., containing stores and the Knights of Pythias hall, was burned. The fire started from a defective electric wire. The total loss is estimated at $20,000.

The resignation of William F. Harris as assistant professor of Greek in the classical department of Harvard university is announced. He resigns that he may devote his entire time to writing.

What DO YOU DO for Quincy?

A Little Wad of Common Sense.

A New Aid Fable.

Once there was a Geezer, who sat around and cut Kindling too small for Cook Stove purposes. He Whittled against Time and Flabbergasted against his Town. The town was No Good, he said—strictly on the Blink. Yes, it was N. G. Why, hadn't he lived Here since '84 and found that the Place was Punky? Sure, Mike!

Look at that town over in the next County. Grown like Jonah's Gourd. Must be a Jonah here. We've grown some, but I don't see that we're knocking any particularly Big Persimmons. That's the way this Gazaboo knocked his town.

One day a Sarcastic Stranger floated into the Town that was Knocked from the burg that had Blossomed like Jonah's Gourd. He Heard some of the Flabbergasting and Dropped to the situation.

"Look here, you," he remarked to the citizen who was Handing Out the Knocks. "What do you do for this town? Are you doing your part to put this Burg on the Upgrade? What's that hefty Bunch of literature sticking out of your Clothes?"

"That's a Mail Order Catalogue from Chicago—a town that is a town," replied the Geezer.

"So I thought," said the Impertinent Arrival. "Now let me hand you out a nice little Wad of common sense. For the past ten years you have been sending your money to the Chicago Mail Order houses instead of spending it among your home merchants. What would have happened to Chicago fifty years ago if all the First Settlers had shipped their Loose Coin to New York on catalogue inducements? Why, you'd have to use a sand dredger now to find the Original Site of Chicago. Now, in the Burg from which I have just Blown in we got over all this Bum Business years ago. We passed Resolutions that we would trade at home and help our own town to Spread out so that you could Sight it on the map without using Opera Glasses. But you and a Bunch of other folks in this town have wasted your Substance in Riotous Expenditures in Chicago by mail and let the sheriff hang out the 'Nothing Doing' sign in front of some of your own town's mercantile Emporiums. Look at our Town and then look at yours. What makes the Difference?"

Whereupon the Whittling Gazaboo threw a few well chosen Thoughts into his mental makeup and went down to the village store to Annex a linen collar in place of the Paper Circles which he had bought from Chicago at Two Bits a Box.

MORAL: If you want your town to grow, patronize home enterprises.

STATE HOUSE LETTER.

Boston, Jan. 27, 1909.

Plenty of politics will be played with the merger proposition until the end of the session, according to present signs. Some of the procedure is clearly not politics; some look as if it had no other explanation. Under the first class comes, without doubt, the statement of the railroad commissioners, replying to the order of the last legislature to report to the present one, taking ground against the consolidation of the New Haven railroad with the electric roads in Berkshire county, but favoring the consolidation of the Bennington and North Adams street railway company with the Berkshire street railway company. Now the Berkshire people are strongly in favor of New Haven ownership of trolly lines in that part of the state, and they are clearly preparing to oppose the position of the railroad commissioners. Representative Tytus of Tyringham has introduced a bill which gives authority for consolidation, but only west of the Connecticut river, of steam and electric roads. This will permit the state to insist upon its general policy for by far the larger part of the transportation business, but will give the Berkshire people the relief which they say can come from no other quarter than the New Haven railroad.

Representative White of Brookline has put in an order, which the House adopted unanimously, that the New Haven road inform the House in detail as to its holdings of stock in other railroads and in electric roads, and especially what it has done with the railway stock which the supreme court said on May 8, 1908, the company was holding illegally. The order says that the railroad company shall give the information forthwith. In the meantime, in the Senate, on the order of Senator Parker of Suffolk, there has been adopted, also unanimously and without debate, a request for an opinion from Attorney General Malone whether the Boston and Maine railroad company, or any other railroad holding stocks in foreign corporations, has presumably forfeited its charter by reason of violation of our laws. On its face this order seems to bring the New Haven road and the Boston and Maine into the same class, considering the supposed operations of the Boston and Maine in New Hampshire, and, if the New Haven road is found to have forfeited his charter, it may be found that it has good company, and the problem of how to deal with it will be materially modified if the legislature finds that it must take the same course toward the Boston and Maine. There is where politics seems to come in.

Since my last letter, Speaker Walker has done something very unusual in legislative history and in politics. The committee on rules recommended a new rule to prevent evils in pairing absent members. It was an unanimous report. But many of the House thought it went too far. But Walker refused to allow any loyalty to him or other consideration than the merits of the case influence the members. To some inquirers he distinctly told them not to make any account of him. So they did not and the committee on rules was defeated by vote of 140 to 76 on roll call, though if they had exerted themselves to save their prestige, they doubtless could have done so. There is where Walker deliberately, with his eyes open, sacrificed his prestige, and at the beginning of his administration, to his sense of duty as to how business should be done. This high standard if the House lives up to it, will give the state the most unselfish legislation it has had for a generation.

Considering the evident danger to society from degenerate human beings and the study how to improve the human stock physically and mentally, there is interest in the bill of Morrison I. Swift directing the state board to form a engenic section by the appointment of two scientific experts to study the problem of improving the quality of the people of this state through a judicious application of the laws of heredity and beneficial environment. The section shall make a careful study to see how far the laws of heredity already discovered may be brought into practical use for the betterment of human stock. It shall also investigate the influence of environment upon individuals with the same end in view. It shall publish such recommendations as these studies warrant for improvement of the human species by means of proper birth and favorable environment. It shall suggest the limitations on marriage and child-bearing that would raise the quality-level of the people. The bill makes an appropriation of $8000. Of course it is to be expected that such a proposition will fail. Its source does not give it the most possible prestige. But, all the same, there are experts in the question of treating diseased persons, physically and mentally, who are looking for improvement by action in the direction proposed by Swift.

Further new business will find the legislative gate closed against it. But in the House alone there were 1374 matters introduced by time to close, against 1010 last year. The Senate had a few less than last year, but the total is materially higher, and the consequence will be greater push by the committees all along the line in order not to have a late prorogation. The legislature never made a prompter start than this year.

One of the distinguished visitors at the state house this week has been Charles Oster, an energetic young Frenchman and advocate before the court of appeal in Paris. He is studying our institutions, visiting the different capital cities and observing the legislative practice. One thing which struck him forcibly was the provision made by the Massachusetts legislature for publicity of its proceedings and for conveniences for the newspaper men, in contrast with the marked lack of equal facilities afforded in connection with the French Senate and Chamber of Deputies. He suggested that the French practice of the presiding officer using a bell, rather than a gavel, was better, owing to its clearer tones during noisy proceedings. But our Massachusetts House and Senate are always quiet enough for the gavel to amply equal to any emergency. The bell is generally used in Europe.

The Democrats in the Senate tried this afternoon to secure a change in the number required to secure a roll-call, so that one-eighth should be sufficient, instead of one-fifth. The proportion is one-eighth in the House, but the House has six times as many members. The debate and the vote were on party lines and of course the democrats were badly defeated. It was admitted by one of the democrats in the debate that he wanted the rule changed for partisan purposes, and of course that killed his argument.

A stiff fight seems to be ahead over automobiles. The owners of the machines seem to think that if they are required to carry lights at night, that all other vehicles which use highways should also be so required, and there are other indications that the automobile owners are going to strike back. On the other hand, there is evident resentment by the public against the owners of the great machines which tear up the state highways and other first class roads and put the expense far more upon the public than upon the persons who are responsible for the mischief. The public is determined to get back at the reckless and costly drivers, and there is blood in the moon.

Liquor business is going to occupy much time, judging by the number of bills introduced. There has been no time to digest the mass, but these seem, upon hasty reading of the indorsements, to be about all of the attempts made during the last dozen years and some new ones. Game measures are unusually numerous, and there will be a wholly new and highly important contest over the renting of shore flats for the purpose of cultivating shellfish, rather than permitting everybody to dig as he pleases. There is plenty of work for a long session. Rule.

MEN HAD BARELY TIME TO ESCAPE

Newburyport, Mass., Jan. 30.—Twenty men were forced to jump from second-story windows to save their lives when fire broke out in the comb factory of George W. Richardson & Co. All the men made the jump safely except two, Joseph B. Thibault, aged 65, and Jeremiah Lynch, aged 45, both of whom suffered leg fractures. It is feared that they have internal injuries in addition to the fractures.

The room where the fire started from overheated celluloid is kept at a high temperature, the men working in the thinnest of clothing. The flames spread so quickly that they were unable to get their street clothes and left everything, including their watches and the envelopes containing their week's pay, which had been handed them ten minutes before. The loss is about $20,000.

AGITATION OVER JAPS

New York Merchants Fear That Serious Trouble Will Follow

New York, Jan. 30.—An important movement with respect to the Japanese question in California was inaugurated at a meeting of the board of trade and transportation's committee on foreign and insular trade.

It was decided "to recommend to the board that the merchants of New York appeal to the merchants and manufacturers of all the other states to co-operate with them in impressing upon the people of California the unwisdom of persistent discrimination against the people of a nation (Japan) that has shown its title to the respect of the world at large, one that has proven itself to be a great factor in the civilizing and progressive influence of the world and whose trade is of importance to this country."

The committee strongly deprecated the constant agitation in California against the Japanese and expressed the fear that its continuance will seriously affect the amicable relations between Japan and the United States.

MURDERED HER HUSBAND

Revenge of a Woman Who Was Chided For Not Paying Bills

Sharon, Pa., Jan. 30.—The mystery involved in the murder of James Harry last Thanksgiving eve, was cleared when the man's wife, Mrs. Ella Harry, who was arrested last night, charged with the crime, confessed.

The confession will result in the discharge of William Hugg and John Ward, who found the body and were arrested because $45 Harry was known to have had was missing. It now turns out that the woman took the money after shooting her husband.

Mrs. Harry says she killed her husband because he chided her for not paying bills for which he had given her money. She is skilled in the use of a revolver and on the night of the tragedy she says she followed her husband down the railroad tracks when he started for work and shot him.

WRITING BASEBALL PLAY

Murphy Expects to Produce a Drama That Will Please the Fans

Chicago, Jan. 30.—Charles W. Murphy, president of the Chicago team of the National league, announces that he has begun writing a drama in which baseball is to be the theme.

"Of course," said Murphy, "it is going to be a melodrama. There will be a lot of first mortgages, old mills, knockout drops, human bridges, tin money and other elements, but baseball is to be the central thread upon which all these are strung. I have concluded that baseball, as a good, healthful sport, will make as wholesome a play as any."

OPPOSITION VANISHES

Senate Confirms Keefe as Commissioner General of Immigration

Washington, Jan. 30.—The nomination of Daniel J. Keefe, to be commissioner general of immigration, was confirmed Friday by the senate.

Keefe's nomination has been held up since Dec. 8 because of the charge that the office was given him because of his assistance in getting labor votes for the Republican ticket in the late campaign.

Opposition appeared to have vanished and the nomination was not debated.

Business Bound to Pick Up

New York, Jan. 30.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says that a fundamental factor of strength is the steadily multiplying evidence that stocks are so depleted as to render a large and general resumption of the nation's industries inevitable and measurably nearer as confidence is restored.

Stork's Generous Gift

Pittsburg, Jan. 30.—For the second time in twenty months, Mrs. William P. Mazon, wife of a fireman, presented her husband with twins. Both are boys. The twins born twenty months ago are girls. All four babies are strong and healthy.

REGULATING THE COOK.

The Good Housewife's Experience and Its Abrupt Ending.

"Maggie," said Mrs. Hartford sharply, "this meat is not properly cooked. My husband says it is not fit for a pig."

"But, Mrs. Hartford"—

"Now, do not answer back, Maggie. I do not care to argue with you. I went to the butcher myself yesterday and bought the steak, so I know it is all right."

"If you"—

"Do not be impudent with me. I have warned you several times about trying to correct me. You have made a dismal failure of today's dinner. M Hartford is thoroughly disgusted w' your cooking and just left for the cafe to get something to quiet his appetite."

By this time poor Maggie was in tears.

"There is no use crying about it," continued Mrs. Hartford without the least display of sympathy. "I have remonstrated with you about your neglect of duty long enough. Remember, now, if this occurs again I shall certainly discharge you without a moment's notice."

But Mrs. Hartford awoke with a sudden start and, shaking her husband violently, said:

"George, I have just had the most impossible dream."—St. Louis Republic.

TRAINING WILD BEASTS.

Whips, Sticks and Iron Rods Are the Methods That Win.

"Kindness and argymint," said the backwoods father of five husky sons, "is great things, but whenever I wanter persuade one o' my boys to do suthin' in a hurry thet he don't wanter do I use a bale stick."

In laying down this rule for the government of his offspring the old backwoodsman hit the principle of wild animal training straight in the nose. The only use an animal trainer has for the word "kindness" may be found in its employment when he discusses his professional methods with an interviewer.

Many pounds of good white paper have been wasted in describing instances of mutual affection between animal and trainer, but when it comes right down to actual cases the sole bond between the domestic man and the wild beast is a good strong stick, and the fiercer the beast the bigger and tougher the stick. Of the great army of nature fakers certainly the professional animal trainer is commander in chief.

Whips, sticks and iron rods are the accepted instruments of persuasion, and trainers constantly employ them. When a wild animal is to be broken the first thing to break is his spirit. It is done with a club.—Everybody's Magazine.

The Cause of the Delay.

Our small boy, Arthur, had long believed that a baby in the family was desirable, since most of his playmates came from homes provided with this adjunct. In good time his mother told him confidentially that his oft expressed wish for a family baby would probably be gratified. The news was too good to keep, and Arthur was promptly boasting to his nearest chum.

"But when are you going to have it?" demanded the friend.

"Oh, I don't know—'fore long, I guess," answered Arthur.

"Huh," sniffed the other, "what's the use of waiting? What good's a baby if you can't have it when you want it? Why don't you get it right away?"

"Well, you see, it's this way," explained Arthur, driven to his wits' end; "we've ordered the baby, but we haven't paid for it yet!"—Woman's Home Companion.

Pleasant While It Lasted.

He listened intently. It was his wife and her mother talking.

"No, my dear," the latter was saying, "I must go tomorrow. I do not believe in a mother-in-law making long visits. But, before I go, I want to tell you what a treasure I think you have gained in your husband. He seems to me to be near perfection. Are you sure, however, that you are not too strict with him? Do not be quick to chide him when he stays out late. Men need a little latitude, you know—say two or three times a week."

The man stirred uneasily in his sleep. It seemed so real; but, alas, it was a dream!

A Light Diet.

A certain father who is fond of putting his boys through natural history examinations is often surprised by their mental agility. He recently asked them to tell him "what animal is satisfied with the least nourishment."

"The moth!" one of them shouted confidently. "It eats nothing but holes."—Youth's Companion.

Cordial and Confidential.

"How did you get along with Mamie's father?"

"Fine. He said it was all right before I asked him. And then he asked me if I didn't know a few more likely young fellows who would take the rest of his girls."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Made His Mark.

"Well, young Dr. Slicer has made his mark already, hasn't he?"

"Yes; did it on his first case."

"Great work! What did he do?"

"Vaccinated him."

There is many a good hearted fool. The trouble is that a man doesn't do his thinking with his heart.—Philadelphia Record.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title—Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL
(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

COMPELLING CIRCUMSTANCES

Circumstances push us round,
Hither, thither, everywhere,
Whether we would go or not.
What do circumstances care?
If a path to guide our feet
Outlined clearly we essay,
Stronger forces take command,
And we go the other way.

Carefully we lay our plans,
Fixing details up just so,
Saying they will certainly
Bring us where we want to go,
And when we proceed to put
Their unfoldment to the test
Something we had not foreseen
Comes and knocks them gally west.

Rising from our little bed
Somewhat later than the sun,
We declare that on today
Such and such things will be done,
And we take a running start,
Looking well before we leap;
Then we strike an obstacle
And decide our plans will keep.

Circumstances toss us round
As a ship is tossed at sea.
In their clutches we are caught.
No one from their spell is free.
It is useless to resist,
Kick or try to make a fuss,
For we cannot break away—
They have got the bulge on us.

Reckless.

"There you are, smoking a cigar again, John Henry, when you know it is undermining your health."

"But when have I smoked before?"

"When have you smoked before? Didn't I see you smoking a cigar just last week?"

"What of it?"

"All right, if you insist on going the pace that kills."

Trouble For Nothing.

"Are there any reporters present?" asked the lady agitator who was about to unburden her mind.

"Want to be more careful what you say?"

"Careful nothing! What's the use in cutting up if we are not to be reported?"

Had the Evidence.

"That girl is two faced."

"I didn't think that of her."

"She is, though. If you could see her in the morning before she has done anything with it and at night when she is ready for the party you would think so too."

Accept Them Himself.

"I wish you would tell me how to get my stories accepted."

"Oh, that's easy."

"Is it?"

"Sure. Buy a magazine."

Exception.

Time is money,
Not a bit,
Though, for those
Who're doing it.

Too Expensive.

"Not having as many poems printed as you did?"

"No; I have sort of let up."

"Advertising rates too high?"

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

It is hard to convince yourself that there is anything in resolution day when you see how your friends continue to treat you in the same old way.

There are men whom the world could get along without, but these men are in darkest and densest ignorance of the fact.

It takes a man of keen perceptions and great persuasive ability to discover a thing that doesn't exist.

Everybody would like to be good, but the great trouble is that most of us know so many disagreeable people who wont let us.

If the nondescript girl with hay colored hair is known as a blond beauty, she has a millionaire father.

An absentminded man ought to be made to absent himself and hunt his mind up every time he indulges his peculiarity.

Between knowing what we ought to do and knowing what our friends ought to do some of us are so busy that we are necessarily inactive.

The man who is the author of his own misery doesn't draw a royalty from one of the six best sellers.

Dead Man's Hand.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Old Mississippi has seen great changes. For ages she knew only the red men hunting on her banks or darting hither and thither in their canoes, leaving streaks of light on her broad bosom. She saw De Soto come, an apparition from another world. Later the flatboat, the sun glittering on its water dripping sweeps, marked the approach of civilization. The steamer followed the flatboat, an era that marked the old river's greatest glory, a glory of which she was robbed by the railroad built on her banks.

In the middle of the last century what was then regarded a floating palace stopped at Memphis, took on passengers and proceeded on her way down toward New Orleans. Among those who came aboard at Memphis was Arthur Davidson, the son of a widow living on her plantation near that city. Her husband had been a spendthrift and had mortgaged his plantation. From the day of his death for ten years Mrs. Davidson struggled and saved, scraping together every loose coin that came in her way to pay off this mortgage and leave her plantation to her children free from debt. These were two girls and two boys. The eldest boy, Arthur, was twenty-one, the youngest boy eleven. The widow determined to send Arthur to New Orleans, where the money had been borrowed to pay it off and to enter upon a business life. Her property was to be reserved for her minor children.

At that time, when the long table in the cabin was not set for meals, a number of groups were scattered about playing various games of cards. Arthur Davidson stood over one of these tables looking on. It was not only Arthur that listened to the fascinating click of gold pieces (for our individuality is merged into that of our parents and our children; it was both he and his weak father. He sat down and joined in the game.

He had in his pocketbook money for his traveling expenses. The $10,000 with which to pay off the mortgage was in a money belt about his waist. Arthur Davidson soon lost his expense money, rose from the table and walked out on the guards, struggling the while against temptation to go back and redeem his loss by risking the money intrusted to his care. The image of his mother came up before him—terror stricken, pleading. He saw his younger brother and sisters ruined at an age when they could not at that day hope to provide for themselves. But the temptation was too strong for him. Feverishly he unbuckled his belt and, taking out a number of $500 bills, placed them unfolded in his pocketbook. Then he returned to the cabin and resumed his place at the table.

While there were gambler sharks on the Mississippi, there were many games made up of planters, cow men and others in legitimate occupations. The game in which Arthur Davidson was playing was fair, but he was reckless, doing an inordinate amount of bluffing, and he lost steadily. The more his mother's savings diminished the more reckless he became. The game continued far into the night, and toward the small hours of the morning he had parted with more than one-half he had taken from his belt.

It was about 2 o'clock when some one of the players opened a fat pot, and every one stayed in. It was Davidson's last say. He raised, as he usually did, and still no one dropped out. This transferred to the pot about half of what he had left of his original sum. The cards were now drawn. The opener drew three, the next two drew two each and the last three one each. Davidson was one of those who drew one card. The opener bet, and Davidson raised him with all the money he had left. Since he was so given to bluffing, the others, supposing he had drawn but one card to scare them off, called him.

If he won he would win twice the mortgage money. If he lost he would have nothing left. After the last bet he laid his cards on the table face down. It was noticed that he was laboring under a terrible excitement. He bent over the table, his head resting on his arms. The rest showed their hands. The opener had one small pair, another had a pair of aces, a third had two pairs, sevens and fours, and the fourth man had a pair of queens. The highest hand in the lot was the sevens and fours, not a hard one to beat.

"Come, Davidson; show your hand."

Davidson didn't move. One of the players, impatient to know the result, turned over the young man's hand. It contained a pair of tens and a pair of threes. It had won.

"The pot's yours, youngster," called one of the players. "Wake up."

All expected Davidson to start up and eagerly clutch his winnings. Instead he remained immovable. They shook him. They turned his face so that they could see his features. It was livid.

"Is there a doctor aboard?"

Word was passed, and a man in the ladies' cabin came forward, raised Davidson, looked into his face, felt his pulse and pronounced him dead. His heart had yielded to the excitement of standing on the precipice between ruin and a doubling of the money he had been tempted to risk.

Davidson's body was shipped back to his mother and with it not only the $10,000 she had intrusted to his care, but $10,000 additional.

Since then tens and treys have been called the dead man's hand, and it is a hand that is rarely beaten in draw poker. T. DEWITT BOWMAN.

Petitions are circulating throughout the country beseeching the President to give up his African hunting excursion. They are the pleas of sentimental and hysterical members of humane associations. There are a few such members in the societies for the Prevention of Cruely to Animals and they harm rather than help these excellent organizations. The intelligent and thoughtful members of these societies devote their time and means to the alleviation of the sufferings of domestic herbivorous animals. It is in the interest of the welfare of these animals that lions, tigers, wolves and all predatory carnivora shall be exterminted. Just as it is good to extirpate weeds, to hang assassins, it is also desirable to rid the earth of the beasts of prey. It is presumably against these that the President is going abroad in Africa.

Probably the most meritorious piece of constructive statesmanship initiated by President Roosevelt is in the conservation of the natural resources through the concerted action of national and state authorities. This action is appealing to Congress for official recognition. The President asks that a fund be provided for its maintenance and the continuance of this work,—a work so far conducted at private expense. The sum asked for is fifty thousand dollars and this is less than one tenth of the amount appropriated for private pension bills, which it is well known are the perquisities of members of the House and Senate. Tariff revision is no doubt a very important subject and Congress is committed to action upon it, but there are other subjects that the people of the United States are interested in. All over the country, farmers, business men and men in the professions are urging Congress and will hold its members responsible for neglect of such important legislation as may go to preserve the natral resources of the country or as are iecessary to develop the inland waterways, or establish postal savings banks, or to develop a parcels post. Congress, by husbanding its time, can accomplish much toward desirable and even necessary legislation before the Fourth of March next.

MUSICAL VESPER SERVICES.

The first of a series of monthly musical vespers will be held at the Wollaston Congregational church, Sunday January 31, at 4 o'clock, to which the public is cordially invited.

Selections from the Holy City will be sung as follows.

Chourses—"No Shadows Yonder," "They that sow in tears shall reap in joy."

Soprano solo—"These are they that came out of great tribulation."

Contralto solo—"Eye hath not seen the things which God hath prepared."

Mrs. Oscar Hunting of Boston, cellists will assist and the minister's fifteen-minute sermon will have for its theme "The Mesage that Saved."

FEBRUARY MAGAZINES.

Editors of magazines publishing novelettes have long complained to the difficulty of securing satisfactory stories of this type, owing to the fact that most writers find it just as easy and more profitable to expand a plot suitable for novelettes, into a book, too long for magazine use. Be this as it may, Lippincott's seems to have solved the problem, for in it has appeared a long series of fine complete novels, and instead of falling off the quality seems to be steadily improving. The February issue contains a powerful tale of army life by General Charles King. It is entitled "Lanier of the Cavalry," and portrays army life with the same vigor and naturalness which characterized "The Colonel's Daughter," "Captain Blake," and other famous books by this author.

SHINES AT OUTINGS AND AT BANQUETS

That's what John L. Miller Says of Board of Trade

Editor of the Daily Ledger:

I notice Mr. Sandberg's letter in your issue of the 28th, and I feel quite complimented to be placed on so high a pedestal by Mr. Sandberg. But I would assure him that I had no malice towards the Board of Trade of Quincy, for I have noticed in other cities as I travel over the country that they do very commendable work.

But in Quincy the organization only appears to shine when they have their winter banquet or their fall outing. I gladly give them credit for two splendid winter banquets. They had a good crowd, menu and talent, but in a few days thereafter the glamor was all gone and they relapsed into sleep.

Now Mr. Editor, I may have an entirely erroneous idea of what the Board of Trade is for. I conceived the idea that it would do all possible for our city, and when anyone was looking for a location for a new factory, the Board of Trade would get hold of him, and bring him to Quincy and show him our advantages, and if a little inducement was necessary to call a meeting of the business men and taxpayers and state the case something like this "Here is Smith looking for a location for a factory. He will employ 200 men at first, and more as the business increases. But he wants Quincy people to take a little stock in the enterprise, say $10,000. Now fellow citizens will you do it?"

Then I expected that they would take a deep interest in the city government and its doings, but of we must judge from appearances all they have done in this direction is to see how many of their members could be seated in public office and they went so far in this direction as to get one of the political parties to establish headquarters in their rooms.

Now Mr. Sandberg I have noticed in the papers several times that you have taken parties from Quincy to inspect the States Prison at Charlestown. Whether this was under the auspices of the Board of Trade or not, I have no means of knowing.

The Board of Trade did prepare a plan for eliminating the grade crossing at Water street, and as it was on about the same lines as the Granite Manufacturers' plan, we agreed that if certain changes were made, we would support it. But when it came before the Mayor and his committee from the different organizations, it was not loyally supported by the representative of the Board of Trade. But the other organizations adopted it with minor changes, and it is the city plan before the commission.

But Mr. Sandberg you know of our splendid water front. What has the Board of Trade done to develope it? You know of our thousands of acres of low land adapted for factory purposes. What has been done to induce factories to locate here? In fact the ommissions are legion, but no newspaper controversy will help it.

If each member will just take off his coat and show a reason why the Board should live, then things would happen. But so far it reminds me of an incident that happened some years ago. A certain employer had a man who was in the habit of taking frequent rests during working hours. One day the employer came along and caught him and in a stern voice said "Jim, what are you doing?" Jim was much taken back, but replied, "Helping Johnson, sir" "What is Johnson doing?" "Nothing, sir."

Very truly yours,
J. L. Miller.

At the Child Nurture club meeting on Monday afternoon at half past two at the home of Mrs. E. D. Gannett, Marion street, the speaker will be Dr. Charles S. Adams and his subject, "Embryonic Life."

A conference of presidents and recording secretaries of branches of the New England Alliance is to be held Monday morning at eleven o'clock in the Unitarian building, Beacon street, Boston.

The clock on the First church stopped at 5.30 this morning.

The regular monthly meeting of the Quincy Day Nursery association will be held at Quincy Women's club house, Goffe street on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. All interested are cordially invited.

In observance of the centenary of the birth of Mendelssohn, E. Landis Snyder, organist at First church, has arranged musical programs for the morning and vesper service entirely of the compositions of Mendelssohn.

The scholars are singing old songs of the Civil war and the days of "Lincoln" in preparation for Lincoln day. "When Johnny comes marching home again," "Battle Hymn of the Republic," "Tramp, Tramp" and "Marching through Georgia" are heard.

Owing to the interest in the Valentine dance to be given at Quincy Music hall on the afternoon of February thirteenth, Miss Corlew has decided not to hold her dancing class at Wollaston that afternoon so as to allow her pupils to attend the dance.

There will be a committee at Grand Army hall tonight between seven and eight o'clock to meet those who wish to join the new Camp Sons of Veterans, sons and grandsons of veterans of the Civil war are eligible to join.

At the Hospital Aid meeting on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Wilson Tisdale, Miss Charlotte Burgess, the new president, was in the chair. Mrs. Walter L. Sargent was elected secretary in place of Mrs. Brooks Keyes, who resigned. The full board of directors will be made up by the officers at a later meeting.

The Westland quartet of Boston, of which Mrs. Moore and Miss Coe of this city are members, is to sing at a vesper service Sunday at the Universalist church in Lawrence. They sang at Manchester, N. H., on Monday and at the Quincy Women's club on Tuesday. Their singing is evidently appreciated far and near, for they are having a very busy season.

The Choral society offers the novelty of an afternoon meeting to its members this week, the next rehearsal being announced for Sunday afternoon, January 31st, at four o'clock. In many singing societies the practice of holding Sunday afternoon meetings for the study of sacred music is continued through the entire season, but the Quincy Choral plans, as arranged for this season, include only one or two Sunday meetings for the study of Elijah.

Sumner E. Bowman, of the Old South building, Boston and Somerville, has commenced the development of a tract of land on Des Moines road and Winter street. His first building will be a bungalow of attractive appearance, this to be followed by houses of a like or more expensive figure, as the demand may warrant. Mr. Bowman is a man well and favorably known among builders, contractors and architects of Boston and New York. He is familiar with construction from a camp to the highest office building. Should a few men of this description get interested in the development of Quincy real estate, the surrounding towns would be claiming, as residents a lesser number of men who are constantly employed in this city, but cannot find suitable homes in our midst.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

HIDDEN DANGERS
Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Quincy Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy, or a thick, red, illsmelling urine, full of sediment and irregular of passage.
DANGER SIGNAL NO. 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick Kidneys and warn you of the approach of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's Quincy proof.
P. J. Garrity, living at 367 Granite St., Quincy, Mass., says: "Some time ago I was afflicted with Kidney disease and was in such a condition that I could hardly get about. The trouble was especially severe at night and I could not find any position that was comfortable. The kidney secretions were too frequent in action and caused me to arise many times during the night to avoid them. I was rapidly growing worse and was at a loss to know what to do, as the many remedies I tried failed to help me. Finally Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store and began their use. When I had taken the contents of four boxes I was in good health. I highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to take no other.
For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.
Remember the name—Doan's—and other kidney sufferers."

WEYMOUTH.

The school committee held one of the old time lively meetings Thursday evening, the only difference being that instead of friction between the members of the committee it was between the superintendent and some of the members of the committee. Ever since superintendent of schools Abner A. Badger was elected last summer, when he received just votes enough for his reelection, there has been trouble. And at times the relations of the superintendent and committee have been strained. Mr. Badger informed the committee some months ago when they did not see fit to indorse one of his recommendations, that he thought he had better resign and last night he carried it into effect, tendering his resignation to take effect May 1. On the occasion of the funeral service of Rev. J. J. Murphy, one of the town's oldest and most highly respected clergymen, the schools in the ward were closed by the local committeeman during the hour of the funeral. At the meeting Thursday evening the superintendent wished the board to pass a vote that in the future the schools be closed only by a vote of a majority of the school board. This recommendation was turned down by the committee, Messrs. Nash, Carter and Cook voting in favor of the measure and Messrs. Torrey, Reardon and Perry against. When the vote was declared the superintendent tendered his resignation.

The matter of suggesting a name for the town for the new school house on Lake street, which has been discussed at several previous meetings, was again brought up and on recommendation of the resident member of the committee, Mr. Carter, who said the citizens of the ward wished it named Garfield, it was so voted. This, however, does school is also favored by a great have to be decided by a vote of the town and a great many citizens are in favor of naming it after some of the old families of the town.

The name of Joseph A. Cushing school is also favored by a great many as Mr. Cushing was instrumental in having the school built. Others want it named the Drake school in honor of Dr. W. A. Drake, for a quarter of a century a member of the school board and one of the town's leading citizens who is acknowledged to be an expert in educational matters.

Galen Flanders resigned as principal of the Lake street school to accept a similar position at the East school, New Britian, Conn. He takes the place of H. F. Wilson, a former Weymouth teacher, who resigned the position in New Britian to accept the position of master of the John Hancock and Lincoln districts, Quincy.

The committee will ask the town for an additional appropriation of $1000 to raise the salaries of the teachers of the first to eighth grade inclusive. If the recommendation of the committee is adopted it will be necessary to make an additional appropriation next year of $2800 and every year there after.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Higgins of Southbridge have received word that they are rejoicing in the advent of a little daughter. Mrs. Higgins was well known as Miss Mary Wilson, a successful teacher in the Jonas Perkins school, East Braintree and later in the Weymouth schools. Mr. Higgins was a popular clerk in A. M. Bachelder's drug store, Washington square, Weymouth.

Boston Finance Commission Submits Its Report

SPOILS SYSTEM IS ATTACKED

Declared to Have Reached Its Culmination During Fitzgerald's Term of Office as Mayor, When "City Reached Lowest Depth of Its Degradation"—Outline of Features Proposed In New Boston Charter

Boston, Jan. 30.—Having for thirteen months conducted an exhaustive research into the causes and instances of alleged maladministration, waste and dishonesty in the government of the city of Boston, the Boston finance commission closed its labors by sending to the general court the results of its findings in a comprehensive report of some 30,000 words, accompanying it with the copy of an act "to amend the charter of the City of Boston," intended to embody the remedy for the abuses disclosed.

Partial reports, covering the findings of various departments as they were investigated, have been rendered from time to time, so that but little of the report is actually new.

A feature of the report of the commission is a bitter attack upon the administration of ex-Mayor Fitzgerald.

The commission devotes a chapter to the administration of 1906 and 1907, and says that the spoils system reached its culmination during Fitzgerald's term of office, and that in this period the city reached the lowest depth of its degradation.

The report reviews in detail some of its reports made during the year. It charges the ex-mayor with having used the patronage which befel him as the chief executive for his political advancement.

It implicates the former president of the city committee in connection with "graft" in connection with a garbage contract in East Boston.

The features of the proposed charter may be summed up as follows:

Substitution of a council of nine members for common council and board of aldermen.

Permanent finance commission appointed by the governor.

Mayor to be elected for four years, voters having right to recall him at end of two years.

Members of the city council having interest in purchase of supplies or making of contracts shall be subject to a fine of $1000 and imprisonment for a year.

Mayor given extraordinary power over appropriations.

Heads of departments exceeding their appropriations may be fined $1000 and are subject to one year's imprisonment.

City messenger, clerk of committees, assistant health commissioners and secretary of the water department abolished.

Women may sign nomination papers for the school committee.

Heads of departments, including the board of street commissioners, shall be appointed by the mayor and be subject to confirmation by the civil service commission.

All contracts over $1000 shall be advertised and bids asked.

A city record or municipal newspaper, containing the records of council meetings and advertisements for bids shall be published.

Any department may take by right of eminent domain land for which the price proposed is 25 percent more than the assessed value.

The entire charter to take effect on Feb. 1, 1910, the finance commission to be appointed upon the passage of the act and the provisions regarding elections to take effect Oct. 1, 1909.

Up to today 1195 talesmen have been examined in an effort to get twelve jurors. Of the last venire of 500 men, 195 have been called.

A Reasonable Excuse.

"Bridget," said Mrs. Subbubs sternly, "breakfast is half an hour late again."

"Yis, mim," returned Bridget meekly.

"What excuse have you to offer? You know I told you that Mr. Subbubs must catch that early train, and punctuality at breakfast is absolutely necessary," said the lady.

"Sure an' Oi overshlep' mesilf," said Bridget.

"That is no excuse," said the mistress. "I gave you an alarm clock only yesterday."

"Oi know that, mim."

"Did you wind it up?"

"Oi did."

"And didn't it go off?"

"Sure an' it did that. It made a tarrible n'ise."

"Then why didn't you get up?"

"Sure, mim," responded Bridget tearfully, "it was that t'ing that's made all the throuble. Oi niver shlep' a wink all night waitin' for it to go off, an' whin it did Oi was that toired Oi couldn't move."—Harper's Weekly.

To Cure Wrinkles.

"Look at a paralytic if you think wrinkles incurable," said a beauty doctor. "On the side he is paralyzed all his wrinkles disappear. Though he be sixty or seventy, his profile on that side is the profile of a youth. So the paralytic shows us how to cure our wrinkles—namely, by keeping our facial muscles still. If we keep our faces in perfect repose, never laughing when the comedian sings his best song, never weeping when wife or sweetheart dies, we will have no wrinkles whatever. The skin wouldn't wrinkle if it were not exposed. The skin of the body is much disturbed by action of the muscles underneath—as at the knee, for instance—yet this unexposed skin never wrinkles. Not being exposed to the bad influence of sun and wind, it has not lost the oil and the elasticity of childhood. And that's where I come in with my creams and unguents and massages."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Taming Patti.

Patti was to sing on a certain date at Bucharest, but at the last moment she declined to leave Vienna. It was too cold; snow everywhere; she would not risk catching her death of cold. M. Schurmann, the impresario, was in despair until a brilliant inspiration came to him. Quickly he telegraphed to the advance agent in the Roumanian capital: "At whatever cost Patti must receive an ovation at Bucharest station from the Italian aristocracy Send me by return the following wire: 'The members of the Italian and Roumanian nobility are preparing to give Mme. Patti a magnificent reception. The ministry will be represented. Processions, torches and bands. Telegraph the hour of arrival.'" The advance agent carried out this instruction, and when the telegram dictated to him over the wires arrived in Vienna it was handed to Patti, with the desired effect. "How charming!" she murmured. "What time do we start?"

His Wonderful Invention.

Australia, as is well known, is infested with rabbits, a most destructive and multitudinous pest. Not long ago a man invented the following plan:

You go out into the field from which the rabbits are to be removed. You saw down a tree, and on the slant of the stump you paint a black spot. Then you keep very quiet, so that the rabbits will come back from their burrows and feed as usual. When a large enough number has collected you clap your hands sharply. The effect will be electric. The rabbits will jump in haste for their burrows. At least one is sure to mistake the black spot for his hole and make for it. Invariably he will dash his brains out. This process, repeated often enough, is warranted to exterminate the rabbit forever.

Twin Place.

One day an old gentleman who found the Java village at the World's fair very absorbing at length confided in a young man standing near. "It's powerful nice to watch," he said, "but I may say I should be better on't if I was a trifle better posted. My jography's a leetle rusty, and it's truth and fact that I don't jestly know where Java is. Now, where is it?"

"Oh," said the young man, with the assured quiet of one who knows, "just a little way from Mocha!"—Argonaut.

Making It Easier.

Little Jean's dolly had met with an accident, and her mother had procured a new head for it. The removal of the old head proved to be a rather difficult task, which Jean watched with great interest.

"I'm afraid, Jean, I can't get this old head off," said the mother.

Jean's face glowed with the light of an inspiration as she said:

"Never mind, mamma; just take the body off."

A Teaser.

"There is one subject on which it is difficult to keep up interest?"

"What particular subject is that on which it is difficult to keep up interest?"

"The mortgage of my house."

To the Point.

VAGARIES OF WEIGHT.

How Can a Pound of Food Make One Three Pounds Heavier?

Here are two personal experiences of my own that are equally striking. After having put on rather too much weight, probably through excess and other mistakes of food and drink, I played a severe tennis match and lost seven pounds in weight. Then I took a glass of wine and at once by this put on two pounds. Then I took a meal slightly larger than usual and put on another two and a half pounds, though the meal itself weighed only one pound.

On another occasion when I had fasted for a day or two and had naturally lost two or three pounds a day I ate a meal weighing about one pound and went up in weight not one pound, but three pounds.

How can only one pound in food add three pounds in weight?

How, in the case of other people, can three pounds—a day's food and drink—add nothing at all?

In my own case one principle appears, and this is that my nature is at any rate rapid in getting toward the normal, but comparatively slow in getting far below or far above the normal.

A not uncommon but very striking phenomenon is that of the shampooer in a Turkish bath in London. He finds that after his day's work, which involves copious sweating and hard physical exercise and scarcely anything to eat or drink, he goes up in weight some two or three pounds merely by resting.—Eustace Miles in Metropolitan Magazine.

STRANGER THAN FICTION.

The Way the Captain of a Slave Trader Was Convicted.

Romance writers are often blamed for making the plots of their stories turn upon slight chances and improbable incidents, but here is an incident in real life stranger than fiction.

In 1799 the cutter Sparrow brought the brig Nancy into harbor at Kingston, Jamaica, under suspicion that she was engaged in the slave trade. But, although many circumstances pointed to this fact, no clear proof could be obtained, as the brig had no papers from which the charge could be substantiated. The suspected vessel was therefore discharged, but the day before she left the harbor a man-of-war arrived, bringing some documents that clearly proved her guilt.

These papers had been obtained in a "highly improbable manner." While cruising off the coast of Santo Domingo the crew of the man-of-war had amused themselves by fishing for sharks. One monster was captured and cut up on deck, and in its stomach was found a bundle of ship's papers, the very documents flung overboard by the captain of the Nancy when he was boarded by the Sparrow.

Curiosity led the captain of the man-of-war to clean and examine the papers, and the result was that he brought them before the authorities at the nearest port. The unlucky brig was condemned on this romantically acquired evidence.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

A Lame Excuse.

"A French sentinel in Algeria," said a playwright, "had for his colonel a very tall, lanky, round shouldered man. This round shouldered colonel one night was making a quiet inspection. Passing the sentinel, he found, to his rage and indignation, that he was not challenged. So he returned to the man and roared:

"'You didn't challenge me!'

"'N-no, sir,' faltered the sentinel, saluting.

"'Well, why didn't you?' the colonel demanded.

"'Excuse me, sir,' said the sentinel, 'but I thought—I beg your pardon, sir—I thought you was a camel.'"

His Denomination.

A man who had been playing golf with a clergyman heard him swear two or three times under his breath. Suspecting the lapse, he could not be sure of it until one monosyllable came out with unmistakable clearness. After he had finished the match a friend of his said: "I saw you playing just now with the Rev. Mr. Dash. Of what denomination is he?" "Some people say he is a Congregationalist," replied his late opponent, "but I should call him a Profanitarian."—Argonaut.

OVERWHELMED BY TIDAL WAVE

City of Barcelona Reported to Have Been Engulfed

HAS A POPULATION OF 450,000

Terrible Earthquake Along the Entire Mediterranean Coast of Spain Devastates Several Towns and Villages —Great Landslide Buries Village of Romara and Several Hundred Inhabitants—Reports Are Very Meagre

London, Jan. 30.—A dispatch from Tarrassa says that Barcelona has been overwhelmed by a tidal wave. The loss of life is unknown.

Subterranean roarings preceded the tidal wave, causing a fearful panic among the people on the promenades and in the buildings of the city.

A special dispatch from San Sebastian, Spain, says that a terrible earthquake has devastated several towns and villages in south and southeastern Spain.

A tidal wave partially submerged the coast near Barcelona and a great landslide at Ceuta buried the village of Romara and several hundred inhabitants.

News from Malaga says that many houses were damaged in the town of Totana and several villages in the province of Murcia.

Tarrasa, whence comes the report of a great tidal wave at Barcelona, is fifteen miles distant from the latter city. Barcelona is the second largest city in Spain and is situated on the Mediterranean, in the northeastern part of the country. It has a population of 450,000.

Murcia, where the shock is also reported to have been felt, is in southeastern Spain, a short distance inland from the Mediterranean coast. Malaga, where a shock was reported early today, is in extreme southern Spain, on the Mediterranean coast.

The meagre advices thus far received indicate that the earthquake was felt along the entire Mediterranean coast.

GETS CORDIAL GREETING

Taft Welcomed by Members of Obaldia's Cabinet at Culebra

Panama, Jan. 30.—President-elect Taft made his eighth trip across the isthmus Friday and everywhere was greeted with marked demonstrations of good will. With his party he landed at Colon and proceeded by special train to Culebra, where he was quartered at the residence of Lieutenant Colonel Goethals. Today he will visit the site of Gatun dam.

Cruiser North Carolina, on which Taft sailed from Charleston last Monday, and the convoy cruiser Montana, arrived at Colon after a voyage that was marked by splendid weather.

Mr. Taft and his party immediately boarded a train and left at noon for Culebra. On arriving there the president-elect was received ceremoniously by the members of President Obaldia's cabinet.

DEATH CAME SUDDENLY

Man Who Never Tasted Liquor or Tobacco Lives 115 Years

Wheeling, Jan. 30.—Henderson Cremeans, known to be the oldest man in West Virginia, and probably the oldest in the United States, died at the home of his grandson, Clark Cremeans, near Point Pleasant, aged 115 years.

He was strong and hearty up to the time of his death, falling on the roadside on his way home from a grocery store. He was removed to his home and died a few minutes later. His mother died at 120; his wife at 101.

Cremeans was one of the first settlers of the Ohio valley, coming here from Virginia at the age of 18. He had 70 grandchildren, 131 great-grandchildren and 19 great-great-grandchildren. He never tasted liquor or tobacco in his life.

TO RELIEVE THE PANIC

Perkins Testifies That Absorption of Tennessee Concern Was Necessary

Washington, Jan. 30.—The merger of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company and the United States Steel Corporation was probed by the senate committee on the judiciary, Oakleigh Thorne, president of the Trust Company of America, and George W. Perkins, of J. P. Morgan & Co., who is also a member of the finance board of the steel corporation, being examined in an executive hearing.

The testimony of Perkins seemed to uphold President Roosevelt's contention that the absorption of the Tennessee concern was necessary to relieve the panicky condition of securities in November, 1907.

Mr. Thorne denied that the Trust Company of America was interested in the deal in Tennessee Coal and Iron stocks and declared that the merger was not necessary to save his institution. He gave the names of many of the persons who were interested in the syndicate which obtained control of a majority of the Tennessee company's stock.

NAPTHA FUMES IGNITED

Women Perhaps Fatally Burned by Their Clothing Catching Fire

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 30.—Three people were seriously burned by an explosion of naphtha which was being used as a cleaning fluid in the basement of the "Lancaster," a fashionable apartment house, late last night. Mrs. Vinnie Maharry, aged 35, was probably fatally burned, and Miss Louise Madison, aged 25, is also on the dangerous list at a hospital, where all the injured were taken.

William Maharry, aged 38, husband of the dying woman, has severe burns as a result of his efforts to extinguish the flames in the clothing of the women.

The three were cleaning kid gloves in the basement when the fumes of the naphtha which they were using were ignited by a candle, and an explosion occurred, which sprinkled the blazing fluid over their clothing.

The bodies were taken to Trinity church, where the funeral services will be held this afternoon. The services will be attended by delegations from the members of the class of 1889, Yale Sheffield Scientific school, and the class of 1893, Yale Medical school; members of the Sheffield Society, Theta Xi; of the medical profession, the Grand Army, and the several Italian societies of the city.

A PLEA FOR PARDON

For Those Who Aided and Abetted In Lincoln's Assassination

Washington, Jan. 30.—Speaker Cannon received a letter from Memphis, conveying for his consideration a bill by the terms of which it is proposed to grant amnesty and a general pardon to any person who aided or abetted the assassination of President Lincoln.

The occasion suggested is the 100th anniversary of the birth of the martyred president and the reason offered is that it would serve to bring out the true facts concerning the assassination, including those figuring in the story that John Wilkes Booth was captured and killed at the Garrett House in Virginia.

"LOVE" DREAM SHATTERED

Negro and White Wife Will Live Apart For Twenty-Five Years

Toronto, Jan. 30.—William Seay, a negro, was sentenced to twenty-five years' imprisonment for attempting to murder his white wife, whom he shot in a jealous rage.

Seay was a coachman in the employ of Mrs. Seay's former husband, a wealthy Michigan lumberman. He eloped with the woman and they traveled through the United States and Mexico, finally coming to Canada before they could find anyone to perform the marriage ceremony.

Not Yet Able to Fly

Berlin, Jan. 30.—After two attempts had been made Friday by Armand Zipfel, a French aviator, to fly a Voisin bi-plane on the Tempelhof field, it was found necessary to abandon the trials, owing to defects in the motor and the benzine becoming frozen.

"Deck Courts" In the Navy

Washington, Jan. 30.—"Deck courts" for the trial of minor cases in the navy or marine corps are provided for in a bill passed by the senate. Such courts are to consist of one commissioned officer only, with appeal to the commanding officer.

The Scrap Book

The Great Poe.

"The late Charles Eliot Norton," said a Bostonian, "used humorously to deplore the modern youth's preference of brawn to brain.

"He used to tell of a football game he once witnessed. Princeton had a splendid player in Poe—you will remember little Poe?—and Professor Norton, thinking of 'The Raven' and 'Annabel Lee,' said to the young student at his side:

"'He plays well, that Poe.'

"'Doesn't he?' the youth cried.

"'Is he,' said Professor Norton, 'any relation to the great Poe?'

"'Any relation?' cried the youth in surprise and indignation. 'Why, man, he is the great Poe.'"

Courage.

'Tis the front toward life that matters most—
The tone, the point of view,
The constancy that in defeat
Remains untouched and true.

For death in patriot fight may be Less gallant than a smile,
And high endeavor to the gods
Seems in itself worth while.
—Florence Early Coates in Outlook.

Precocious as a Child.

Colonel Tom Ochiltree, long time famous for his brilliant exaggerations, facetiously by some called a champion liar and never denying his right to the title, once said:

"Although I was always modest, quiet and retiring, even as a child, my father sometimes administered rawhide applications to my back for my general improvement. On one occasion as he was taking that sort of exercise he exclaimed:

"'I'll teach you to lie, and steal, and smoke, and use profane language, you young rascal!'

"'Never mind father,' I howled enthusiastically, 'I know all them branches already!'"

Unexpected Appreciation.

An odd anecdote is told about the "Reverie and Caprice For Violin and Orchestra" by Berlioz, a composition which partakes largely of the remarkable character that belongs to most of the works of that famous French musician. It was being performed at Leipzig by one of the greatest of German violinists, and Berlioz and Mendelssohn were both present.

After the piece was ended, amid the most enthusiastic applause, the violinist turned to Mendelssohn and whispered: "I am glad enough I have got through it, for I never had such a task in my life. I have not the remotest idea what I have been playing or what the piece can be about."

Scarcely were the words out of the bewildered fiddler's mouth when Berlioz exclaimed to Mendelssohn: "Never have I heard my composition so divinely rendered. Never have I heard an artist who has so completely caught my meaning and so wonderfully interpreted it."

Punctuation Was Preserved.

When John Kendrick Bangs' phantasy of "Tomorrowland" was in rehearsal the author was very much disturbed by the arbitrary alterations in his book by an omnipotent manager, who succeeded in the end in transforming a musical satire into a tuneful show having neither head nor tail. Mr. Bangs expressed himself to some friends rather forcibly one night on the subject of the managerial omniscience.

"If you feel that way," said one of his friends, "why do you attend rehearsals?"

"I am trying to save my punctuation," said the librettist sadly. "I hope to get a comma and a couple of semicolons through, even if the rest goes by the board."—Harper's Weekly.

She Didn't Object.

A widower after his wife's death had vowed that he would not marry again unless his departed spouse herself would consent to it. He remained a widower for some time, but finally fell in love and wished to marry the object of his admiration. Remembering, however, his vow, he went to his first wife's resting place and sat down at the side of the grave.

"Bertha," he said in a low voice, "I have fallen in love with a woman and wish to marry her. Now, if you have any objection to my marrying her, let me know, and I shall abandon the project. If you, however, have nothing to say, I shall understand that my plan of marrying again pleases you. Now what shall it be?"

He married again.

Judgment.

Foolish men imagine that because judgment for an evil thing is delayed there is no justice, but an accident alone, here below. Judgment for an evil thing is many times delayed some day or two, some century or two, but it is sure as life, it is sure as death!—Carlyle.

Puzzled the Frenchman.

Sergeant Harry, who acted as usher in the White House during Cleveland's second term, told this story: "I will never forget the message President Cleveland sent to Secretary Olney one night. It was this way: There was an eclipse of the moon that night, and President and Mrs. Cleveland were much interested in watching it. 'I don't believe Olney knows about it,' said Mr. Cleveland, 'and he will be sorry to miss it.' Then very quickly, 'Harry, go telephone Olney to look at the moon.'

"I went to the phone, and Olney's chef or butler or something French answered. 'The president sends word to Mr. Secretary to look at the moon,' I said. 'To look at vat?' answered the Frenchman. 'The moon,' I repeated. 'Ze vat?' again he asked. 'The m-o-o-n,' I spelled, 'the moon.' 'Is ze presiden' in hies mind?' 'Yes. He tells Mr. Olney to go look at the moon. Give him the president's message.' 'But vat for iss dat—to look at ze moon?' I then said a word or two and rang off.

"About an hour later the same butler called us up and, with more density in his tone than even before, said, in a bewildered way, 'Meestaire Secretary desires to say to Meestaire President zat he hass looked at ze moon, and he iss mooch obliged!'"

A Genial Greeting.

It was a former archbishop of York, Dr. Thomson, who appeared once in the role of coachman. He had attended an evening party and, on leaving the house, discovered that his coachman was drunk. There appeared nothing for it but to drive home himself, and the archbishop, after placing the smiling but unconscious coachman inside the carriage, mounted the box and took the reins. The monotony of the homeward journey was broken by a wheel of the carriage coming into violent collision with a stone just outside the entrance to Bishopsthorpe. The lodge keeper, unable to recognize the approaching figure in the darkness, called out cheerily: "Hello, Bill! Drunk again? And blowed if you ain't got the old cock's hat on!"

"It's the old cock himself," gravely responded his grace.

What He Didn't Mean.

A young member of congress was insisting upon recognition for the delivery of a speech, and the speaker gave him multiples of reasons for declining to grant recognition, finally saying, "Young man, you seem to be incorrigible."

"Maybe I am incorrigible," exclaimed the young man hotly, "but I'll have you to understand, Mr. Speaker, that I'm not incorruptible!"

Didn't Need a Selection.

A Kansas man tells of a music hall in a town of that state which bore the unenviable reputation of possessing absolutely the worst band anywhere. On one occasion a "headliner" from Chicago had been promised by the management for a "turn," and consequently the hall was packed to the doors. When, however, the time had come for the "headliner" to appear instead of that eagerly awaited attraction the audience was astounded to see the agitated manager come before the curtain holding a telegram in his hand.

"Ladies and gentlemen," said he, "I very much regret to inform you that the 'Great Stewart' cannot (hisses and catcalls) possibly arrive for at least another half hour. (Great applause.) In the meantime the band will play you a selection."

At this a dead silence followed, which was finally broken by a man in the gallery.

"Smitty, Smitty," he shrieked, "don't let the band play. We'll be quiet, honest we will!"

Cultivate Habits, Not Maxims.

In the conduct of life habits are of greater importance than maxims, because habit is a living maxim that has become flesh and instinct. To remodel one's maxims means nothing. This is only to alter the title of the book. But to acquire new habits is everything, for it is to grasp the meaning of life, which is only a tissue of habits.—Henri Frederic Amiel.

Congratulation Either Way.

An author had been congratulated on the success of his last book.

"Thank you," said the author, "and I am glad your congratulations don't work both ways."

"Work both ways?"

"Yes. Like those that were once offered to a man named Brownlow.

"A friend said to Brownlow:

"'Let me congratulate you. I see by the paper that your wife has presented you with twins.'

"Brownlow smiled.

"'No,' he said, 'that is a mistake. The father's name is John C. Brownlow. I am John K. Brownlow.'

"'Ah,' cried the other man heartily, 'then I do indeed congratulate you!'"

He Caught It.

The ferry dock was crowded with weary home goers when through the crowd rushed a man, hot, excited, laden to the chin with bundles of every shape and size. He sprinted down the pier, his eyes fixed on a ferryboat only two or three feet out from the pier. He paused but an instant on the stringpiece, and then, cheered on by the amused crowd, he made a flying leap across the intervening stretch of water and landed safely on the deck. A fat man happened to be standing on the exact spot on which he struck, and they both went down with a resounding crash. When the arriving man had somewhat recovered his breath he apologized to the fat man. "I hope I didn't hurt you," he said. "I am sorry. But, anyway, I caught the boat!"

"But, you idiot," said the fat man, "the boat was coming in!"

His Hands Full.

Two Irishmen celebrated St. Patrick's day and started home together, but became separated. Finally they discovered themselves hugging lamp-posts on opposite sides of the street.

"How are yez, Pat?" called Mike.

"Fair," says Pat. "How are yez?"

"I dunno," says Mike. "Come over and see."

"I can't come," says Pat.

"Why can't yez?" says Mike.

"I've got me hands full shtayin' where I am," says Pat.

Iroquois Club Minstrel Show

Swan followed with a selected baritone solo.

The last of the end songs was by "Dan" Driscoll and was the hit of the show. "After All" was the title of the song and Dan sung parodies on the police and fire departments, the Republican and Democratic parties and about other things of popular interest. He was encored time and again and each time responded with some funny verse.

The first part was brought to a close with a grand finale by Celina Beliveau and the entire company, the song being "Life is a See Saw." A tableau was introduced here representing the Goddess of Liberty. The darkened hall and colored lights produced a pretty effect.

The second part was opened with a solo by Charles F. Hanks, the colored singer of Quincy. He sang "I used to be afraid to go home in the Dark." He made a hit with his bass voice and funny smile.

Number two in part two was a sketch "In Dear Old Holland." Ernest Godfrey was the soloist and he was assisted by the following: Miss Annie G. Raab, Miss Catherine A. McDermott, Miss Gertrude Bradley, Miss Catherine J. Yule, Miss Margaret Fay, Miss Ella Blanding, Miss Mae Curran and Miss Pearl McDonald.

Daniel M. Nivin, a singer and dancer, entertained the crowd with a little talk and some steps. His act was very good.

The program was closed with a patriotic march arranged by A. J. Dinegan, introducing "Dear Old Yankee Land," Tim DeCoste soloist. He was assisted by the following:—Miss Mollie Sullivan, Miss Josephine Rizzi, Miss Florence McKenna, Miss Josie Edwards, Miss Mabel McDonald, Miss Annie G. Raab, Miss Catherine A. McDermott, Miss Sadie Mellen, Miss Catherine J. Yule, Miss Annie A. O'Neil, Miss Annie M. Foy, Miss Margaret Fay.

After the performance the hall was cleared and dancing was enjoyed until 3 o'clock this morning. Wilson's orchestra furnished the music and a large crowd remained till the end, even though there was a small blizzard in progress outside. At intermission refreshments were served, the club members looking after this end themselves.

Revival Service Well Attended

Another large crowd was present Friday evening at the evangelistic service at the Bethany church. On the platform aside from the speaker were Rev. William J. Heath, Rev. R. G. Davis and Rev. Dr. E. N. Hardy.

The song service as at other meetings, was led by Prof. E. C. Zartman.

Rev. Dr. Weddel took for his text at this service "The Revival Atmosphere."

At the close of the service all who had accepted Christ were asked to raise their hands. Most of these responded.

Savings Bank And Old Age Insurance

A general discussion followed, during which Mr. Brandeis answered many questions.

There seemed to be a general sentiment in favor of establishing agencies in Quincy. This was especially true among the labor representatives, who were very enthusiastic over the plan.

During the evening H. G. Smith, general manager of the Fore River Ship Building Co., stated that his company had been considering the matter and had decided to establish an agency at its plant for its workmen. He also said he hoped that the company would not have to go outside of Quincy.

Before the meeting adjourned, a committee was appointed consisting of Henry M. Faxon, John L. Miller, H. G. Smith, W. Ward Whicher and George H. Brown to select a larger permanent committee.

This committee will aid in the establishing o a system of agencies in Quincy.

BASKET BALL.

Winthrop High defeated Quincy High at basket ball at the local team's gym yesterday afternoon, the score being 34 to 16. The boys from the North Shore are considered the fastest in the state and expected an easy victory. The score looks one-sided but does not indicate the closeness of the game. Winthrop had to fight for every point she made.

Anderson started the scoring by getting a pretty goal with a one hand shot. Quincy then flashed a little teamwork that surprised the visitors and soon had three baskets. The game continued close all through the first half, the local five excelling in teamwork but falling down at shooting. Many easy shots were missed by the home team and Winthrop led 12 to 8 at the end of the period.

Things began with a rush in the second half both sides getting a goal at the start. Then Snow, the clever Winthrop back, began to take occasional trips down the floor and nearly every time he went down he caged the ball. His total was ten baskets which with six more by Carl Anderson, tells the story of Quincy's defeat.

The best game for the home team was played by Russ Bates and Marsh. The former got four baskets from the floor and did some excellent floor work. Marsh played a strong defensive game and held his man to one basket. The summary:

WINTHROP H. S.		QUINCY H. S.
LaCour rf		lb Marsh
Anderson lf		rb S. Bates
Taylor c		c Howe
Phillips rb		lf Manning
Snow lb		rf R. Bates

Score Winthrop high school 34, Quincy high school 16. Goals from floor, LeCour, Anderson 6, Snow 10, S. Bates, Howe 2, R. Bates 4, goals from fouls, Manning 2. Referee Tupper. Umpire, Reed. Scorer, Gore. Timer, Cole. Time 20m. and 5m. periods. Attendance 200.

The second teams of both schools met between the halves of the first game and the home team carried off the honors, by the score of 25-16. The game was close but Quincy was never in danger. Hogan, Brooks and Trask excelled for Quincy, while Harrington and Margeson played best for Winthrop. The summary:

QUINCY H. S. 2D		WINTHROP H. S, 2D
Hogan rf		lb Devereanx
Trask lf		rb Harrington
Brooks c		c Margerson
Carlson rb		lf Roland
Jobin lb		rf Fielding

Score. Quincy H. S. 2d 25, Winthrop H. S. 2d 16. Goals from floor Hogan 3, Trask 2, Brooks 4, Carlson, Jobin, Harrington 4, Margerson 2, Fielding 2. Goals from fouls, Trask 3. Referee, Tupper. Umpire, Reed. Scorer, Gore. Timer, Cole. Time, 10m. and 20m. periods.

AMUSEMENTS.

Keith's Theatre.

For the second week of their engagement at Keith's theatre, McIntyre and Heath will appear in "The Man from Montana," which by many is declared to be even funnier than their famous "Georgia Minstreis." The return of this team to vaudeville has proved to be one of the events of the season, and last week they were received with even more favor than they have been in recent years. There is an entire change of bill aside from the headliners, one of the principal features being Belle Blanche, than whom there is no better initiator of popular stage stars before the public today.

Castle Square Theatre.

With next week at the Castle Square, "The Circus Girl" will break all records at that house. It will have run six weeks and a half, the longest continuous engagement of any one play there, and it will have had no less than seventy-seven performances by the John Craig Stock Company. Afternoon and evening the theatre is filled to overflowing with people of all ages who have taken the greatest delight in the mirthful scenes and in the scenis spectacle of "The Circus Girl" and the demand for seats still shows no sign of lessening. In spite of its great popularity, Mr. Craig is finally compelled to bring the run of "The Circus Girl" to a close, and he announces that the coming week will positively be its last. In every way "The Circus Girl" is the best show of its kind, and in every way it is given the best production possible by the John Craig Stock Company. After the run of "The Circus Girl" comes a production of "Old Heidelberg," and soon after that "The Evangelist" and "The Lightning Conductor." Mr. Craig is happy to announce, however, that since the Boston public likes musical comedies so much, he has secured "The Runaway Girl" and that he will produce it before many weeks have passed.

Hollis Street Theatre.

The astonishing success of Miss Billie Burke in "Love Watches," which comes to the Hollis Street theatre, Boston, on Feb. 1st, has drawn attention to the fact that the three most succesful American actresses are under the management of one man, himself an American, Mr. Charles Frohman. These three, it is hardly necessary to say, are Miss Maude Adams, the most lovable, Miss Ethel Barrymore, the most distinguished and Miss Billie Burke, the most winsome. Miss Billie Burke is particularly interesting at this time because she was educated and made her first appearance abroad and now comes back to this country to find that it is her own people who are most enthusiastic about her. As John Drew's leading lady last year, she was everywhere enthusiastically received, but few were prepared for the delightful and fascinating quality of her work in "Love Watches," in which she made her debut as a star. During the four months that she appeared this season at the Lyceum Theatre, New York City, the critics vied with one another in acclaiming her fascination. "The play has the vivacity of champagne," said one, "and the star is even more sparkling." "A remarkably charming and vivacious young actress is Miss Billie Burke," said the sedate New York Evening Post.

Orpheum Theatre.

The wonderful bill presented at the Orpheum theatre last week inaugurating the London Music hall policy proved such a surprise to the theatre-going public that many predicted that the remarkable pace in the quality of the show could not be maintained, but the reception which was accorded the policy during the week and its instantaneous success has induced the management to redouble its efforts to provide the best obtainable with the result that next week's bill will be even above the standard established last week. The long awaited Mrs. Brown Potter will make her first appearance in Boston in the picturesque novelty popularized by her on the London stage. Mrs. Brown Potter's social connections are such that enormous sums of money were offered her by New York multi-millionaires to forego her stage career and identify herself with society, but she has persistently refused and Boston will have an opportunity of seeing this remarkable woman.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Granite Railway Co. was held this morning and the following officers were chosen: President, Henry M. Faxon; vice president, Charles E. Morey; directors, Henry H. Kimball, Stillman P. Williams, Lewis E. Stanton; clerk and treasurer, Luther S. Anderson.

Today's Court.

—Brookline seems to be as desirable a place for town officials as for the inhabitants. The tax collector's work is much easier than in some towns for the Brookline Chronicle on investigation finds that for the last ten years the majority of the taxes have been paid by the evening of November 2, and from 70 to 75 per cent. have been paid by the evening of the tenth of November.
